14:2 The weak in faith apparently believed that they should eat only vegetables. Their conviction probably stemmed from a concern to maintain Jewish ritual purity in the midst of a pagan culture. These Jewish Christians were following the lead of Daniel and his friends, who refused to eat the rich food and wine that the king of Babylon offered them (Dan 1:3-16). Other Jewish sources reveal that pious Jews often restricted their diets in pagan cultures because they could never be sure that meat had been slaughtered according to Jewish requirements.

14:3-4 look down on . . . condemn: The "strong," those who prided themselves on their enlightened freedom in Christ, looked with disdain on those they considered to be "weak." The weak, in turn—certain that they were following the true route to piety—condemned the strong for their laxness. These attitudes, over different issues, are mirrored throughout the history of the Christian church. • God has accepted them: Both the weak and the strong are genuine believers, welcomed by God into his family. Therefore, they have no right to treat each other as if they do not belong (14:4; see also 15:7).

14:5 some think one day is more holy than another day, while others think every day is alike: The reference is probably to Jewish festival days and to the Sabbath; cp. Col 2:16. With Christ's provision of salvation, observance of the Sabbath in its original form is not required of Christians.

14:7 As the Lord's servants (14:4), Christians are to look to God for guidance and seek to honor him in all things (14:8). Because we are ultimately accountable to him, our desire should always be to please him, not to live for ourselves.

14:9 Paul refers to standard early Christian teaching on the significance of Jesus' death and resurrection (e.g., 2 Cor 5:15). • of the living and of the dead (literally of the dead and of the living): The original word order matches the sequence of Jesus' death and resurrection, the redemptive events that make Jesus our Lord.

¹⁰So why do you condemn another believer? Why do you look down on another believer? Remember, we will all stand before the judgment seat of God. ¹¹For the Scriptures say,

“‘As surely as I live,’ says the LORD, ‘every knee will bend to me, and every ⁸tongue will declare allegiance to God.’”

¹²Yes, each of us will give a personal ¹⁴account to God.

Do Not Cause Your Brother or Sister to Stumble!

¹³So let's stop condemning each other. Decide instead to live in such a way that you will not cause another believer to ¹⁵stumble and fall.

¹⁴I know and am convinced on the authority of the Lord Jesus that no food, in and of itself, is wrong to eat. But if someone believes it is wrong, then for that person it is wrong. ¹⁵And if another believer is distressed by what you eat, you are not acting in ¹⁶love if you eat it. Don't let your eating ruin someone for whom Christ died. ¹⁶Then you will not be criticized for doing something you believe is good. ¹⁷For the Kingdom of God is not a matter of what we eat or drink, but of living a life of goodness and peace and joy in the Holy Spirit. ¹⁸If you serve Christ with this attitude, you will please God, and others will approve of you, too. ¹⁹So then, let us aim for ¹⁹harmony in the church and try to build each other up.

²⁰Don't tear apart the work of God over what you eat. Remember, all foods are acceptable, but it is wrong to eat something if it makes another person ²¹stumble. ²¹It is better not to eat meat or drink wine or do anything else if it might cause another believer to stumble. ²²You may believe there's nothing wrong with what you are doing, but keep it between yourself and God. Blessed are those who don't feel guilty for doing something they have decided is right. ²³But if you have doubts about whether or not you should eat something, you are sinning if you go ahead and do it. For you are not following your convictions. If you do anything you believe is not right, you are ²⁴sinning.

Put Other People First!

14:10 another believer: Literally your brother; also in 14:10b, 13, 15, 21. See note on 1:13. • we will all stand before the judgment seat of God: Paul reminds the Roman Christians that it is God, not other Christians, who will ultimately judge all of us (cp. 2 Cor 5:10).

14:11 This quotation is from Isa 49:18; 45:23 (Greek version). In its original context, Isa 45:23 is surrounded by assertions of God's sovereignty (Isa 45:22, 24). Only the sovereign God has the right to stand in judgment (14:10, 12). • declare allegiance to God: Or declare praise for God.

14:13 This verse acts as a bridge. Let's stop condemning each other summarizes 14:1-12, while the concern about causing another believer to stumble and fall becomes the major emphasis of 14:14-23. • stumble and fall: This phrase originally applied to obstacles that could trip people as they walked, or to traps into which a person might fall. It is used metaphorically throughout the NT for behavior that might bring spiritual harm to another person (see 1 Cor 8:9, 13; 1 Jn 2:10; cp. Matt 21:42-44; Luke 20:17-18; Rom 9:32-33; 1 Pet 2:8).

14:14 no food, in and of itself, is wrong to eat (literally nothing is common in itself): The word common signals that the root concern that Paul was addressing was Jewish purity regulations. Jews described food as common if it was not clean (i.e., not kosher), thereby causing a Jew to become ritually impure (see Lev 11; cp. Mark 7:2, 5; Acts 10:14). Paul again follows the teaching of Jesus that “every kind of food is acceptable in God's eyes” (Mark 7:19). • for that person it is wrong: The truth that no food is wrong to eat was not easy for pious Jews to accept because they had been raised to honor God by avoiding certain foods. Paul urges those who are strong in faith not to force others to violate their consciences (cp. 1 Cor 8:1-13).

14:15 The word translated ruin (Greek apollumi, “destroy”) is often applied to eternal damnation (see 2:12; Matt 10:28; 18:14; Luke 9:24; 13:2-5; John 3:16; 10:10, 28; 1 Cor 1:18-19; Jas 4:12; 2 Pet 3:9). By insisting on their freedom to eat whatever they want, the strong might cause sensitive Jewish Christians for whom Christ died to turn away from the faith.

14:20 The work of God refers both to the spiritual life of other Christians (14:15) and to the Christian community itself (14:19). The strong, with their dogged insistence on doing whatever they want, create division and disrupt God's intention to build a healthy and united community of believers.

14:21 or drink wine: Jews sometimes abstained from wine to avoid the appearance of ritual contamination, since wine was used in pagan religious celebrations (see Dan 1:3-16).

14:22 keep it between yourself and God: Paul did not contest the freedom of the strong believers, but he instructed them to limit the expression of their freedom out of love for fellow believers so that the whole Christian community could be built up. • Blessed are those who don't feel guilty: Guilt could come from harming the faith of the weak believers. Christian freedom is only worthwhile when it can be lived out without bringing such guilt.

14:23 If you do anything you believe is not right, you are sinning: God's word defines sin for us, yet sin also involves violating our conscience. The weak Christians in Rome did not yet believe in their own hearts that they could eat meat, drink wine, or ignore Jewish holy days; their consciences were still weak. They should not violate their consciences on these matters. Nor should the strong, by the power of their example or by their scorn, force weak Christians to do so.

15:1-4 We who are strong: Paul aligns himself with those he identifies as strong in faith, and he reveals that the division in the Roman church was not simply between Jews and Gentiles. Like Paul, some Jews had enlightened consciences and so were counted things like this. We must not just please ourselves. ²We should help others do what is right and build them up in the Lord. ³For even Christ didn't live to please himself. As the Scriptures say, "The insults of those who insult you, O God, have fallen on me." ⁴Such things were written in the Scriptures long ago to teach us. And the Scriptures give us hope and encouragement as we wait patiently for God's promises to be fulfilled.

⁵May God, who gives this patience and encouragement, help you live in complete harmony with each other, as is fitting for followers of Christ Jesus. ⁶Then all of you can join together with one voice, giving praise and glory to God, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Receive One Another!

⁷Therefore, accept each other just as Christ has accepted you so that God will be given glory. ⁸Remember that Christ came as a servant to the Jews to show that God is true to the promises he made to their ancestors. ⁹He also came so that the Gentiles might give glory to God for his mercies to them. That is what the psalmist meant when he wrote:

"For this, I will praise you among the Gentiles;
I will sing praises to your name."

Paul pleads for tolerance between those who are weak in faith and those who are strong in faith, and he teaches that believers need to accept each other (14:1; 15:7). They should stop condemning and belittling each other. Rather, they should learn to worship God with a united voice and spirit (15:6).

Paul is addressing the specific issue of whether believers need to practice certain requirements of the OT law and of Jewish worship. Theologians have used the word adiaphora ("non-essentials") to describe beliefs or practices that are neither required nor prohibited by Scripture. On such issues, Christians must accommodate a variety of opinions.

Paul takes a very different approach when the Good News itself is at stake. In Galatians, for example, Paul confronts false teaching about the Good News by severely castigating the false teachers (Gal 1:6-9) and by warning readers that adopting false teaching will alienate them from Christ (Gal 5:4).

In our day, we need to be careful about what we tolerate and accommodate, and we need to be equally careful about what we decide is worthy of confrontation. Believers need to consider carefully the different issues they confront in their associations with other believers. If the basic truth of the Good News is not violated, we should not quarrel or be divided over such issues. Other issues, however, strike at the heart of the message of Good News. In these cases, Christians need to take a stand and be faithful to the Good News and to Christ. The way Paul himself dealt with a variety of issues in his own time can serve as a guide for dealing with conflicts and controversies in our time.

among the strong. Similarly, some Gentiles were so strongly influenced by Jewish teaching and tradition that they were among the weak in faith.  must be considerate of those who are sensitive about things like this: This phrase is reminiscent of Gal 6:2. Paul did not want the strong to simply put up with those who were weak in faith; rather the strong were to actively and sympathetically assist the weak in living out their Christian faith with integrity (see also Gal 5:13-15).

15:2 others (literally the neighbor): See Lev 19:18, quoted in 13:9. Love for others should govern the conduct of people who are strong in faith.

15:3 This quotation is from Ps 69:9.  A number of passages in the NT use Psalm 69 to describe Jesus' suffering (Matt 27:34; Mark 15:35-36; Luke 23:36; John 15:25; 19:28-29). Paul's quotation of just a small portion of that psalm evokes the whole experience of Jesus' suffering.  who insult you, O God, have fallen on me: Literally who insult you have fallen on me.

15:4 Such things were written in the Scriptures long ago to teach us: All that God caused to be recorded in the OT has supreme relevance to believers, who experience the fulfillment of God's plan.

15:5-6 live in complete harmony: This phrase (see note on 12:16) refers to the whole orientation of how someone thinks. A mindset of harmony is important for Christian unity (see 12:3-5, 16; Phil 2:2-5).

15:7 To accept each other means more than grudgingly putting up with each other. We are to welcome other believers, with all their flaws and sins, into our fellowship and treat them as family (see note on 12:10), just as Christ has accepted us, with all our flaws and sins, into his fellowship and family (5:8-11).

15:8-9 Through Christ, God made it possible for Jews and Gentiles to join together to give glory to God in the new covenant people of God (see chs 9-11). The issue of Jewish-Gentile relationships was fundamental to the dispute in the Roman church (14:1-15:7).

15:8 servant to the Jews: Literally servant of circumcision.

15:9-12 These quotations from the OT all emphasize God's promise that Gentiles would join with Jews in praising God. Gentiles are now full members of God's people.

15:9 This quotation is from Ps 18:49.

¹⁰And in another place it is written,

"Rejoice with his people, you Gentiles."

¹¹And yet again,

"Praise the LORD, all you Gentiles.
Praise him, all you people of the earth."

¹²And in another place Isaiah said,

"The heir to David's throne will come, and he will rule over the Gentiles.
They will place their hope on him."

¹³I pray that God, the source of hope, will fill you completely with joy and peace because you trust in him. Then you will overflow with confident hope through the power of the Holy Spirit.

6. THE LETTER CLOSING (15:14–16:27)

Paul's Ministry and Travel Plans

¹⁴I am fully convinced, my dear brothers and sisters, that you are full of ^dgoodness. You know these things so well you can teach each other all about them. ¹⁵Even so, I have been bold enough to write about some of these points, knowing that all you need is this reminder. For by God's grace, ¹⁶I am a ^especial messenger from Christ Jesus to you Gentiles. I bring you the Good News so that I might present you as an acceptable offering to God, made holy by the Holy Spirit.

¹⁷So I have reason to be enthusiastic about all Christ Jesus has done through me in my service to God. ¹⁸Yet I dare not boast about anything except what Christ has done through me, bringing the Gentiles to God by my ^fmessage and by the way I worked among them. ¹⁹They were convinced by the power of miraculous ^gsigns and wonders and by the power of God's Spirit. In this way, I have fully presented the ^hGood News of Christ from Jerusalem all the way to Illyricum.

²⁰My ambition has always been to preach the Good News where the name of Christ has never been heard, rather than where a church has already been started by someone else. ²¹I have been following the plan spoken of in the Scriptures, where it says,

"Those who have never been told about him will see, and those who have never heard of him will understand."

²²In fact, my visit to you has been delayed so long because I have been preaching in these places.

²³But now I have finished my work in these regions, and after all these long years of waiting, I am eager to visit you. ²⁴I am planning to go to Spain, and when I do, I will stop off in Rome. And after I have enjoyed your fellowship for a little while, you can provide for my journey.

15:12 This quotation is from Isa 11:10 (Greek version). • The heir to David's throne: Literally The root of Jesse. David was the son of Jesse.

15:14–16:27 This final section contains elements common at the end of NT letters: a discussion of travel plans (15:14–29), requests for prayer (15:30–33), references to ministry associates (16:1–2, 21–23), greetings (16:3–16), and a doxology (16:25–27). Only the warning about false teachers (16:17–19) is a non-standard feature in this conclusion.

15:14 dear brothers and sisters: Literally brothers; also in 15:30. See note on 1:13. • You know these things so well: Paul praises the Roman Christians, as he had in the opening of the letter (see 1:8–12), demonstrating a gracious manner toward a church he had neither founded nor visited.

15:15–16 by God's grace: Paul emphasized that his role as apostle and teacher was because God had chosen him to lead in the formation of the Christian church (see also 1:5; 12:3; 1 Cor 3:10; Gal 2:9; Eph 3:2, 7, 8).

15:16 special messenger: The Greek word (leitourgos, "servant" or "minister") could refer to almost any kind of servant, but Jews often applied the word to priests. Paul probably chose this word to emphasize the priestly nature of his ministry. • to you Gentiles: Paul stresses the Gentile flavor of the church in Rome (see also 1:6–7). This does not mean that there were no Jews in the church (see 16:3–16), but Gentiles had become the majority. • present you as an acceptable offering to God: Paul was fulfilling Isa 66:19–20.

15:19 God's Spirit: Other manuscripts read the Spirit; still others read the Holy Spirit. • I have fully presented the Good News of Christ: Paul was not claiming that the work of evangelism had been completed in these regions. His point was that churches had been planted in enough major population centers so that those churches could carry on the work of evangelism themselves. Paul's own distinctive ministry of planting foundational and strategic churches had been fulfilled. • from Jerusalem all the way to Illyricum:

Illyricum was a region northeast of Italy, a Roman province that occupied most of the coastlands along the Adriatic Sea, from modern-day Albania to Croatia. An arc drawn from Jerusalem to Illyricum would include the areas where Paul had planted churches (southern Galatia, Asia Minor, Macedonia, and Greece).

15:21 This quotation is from Isa 52:15 (Greek version).

15:24 I am planning to go to Spain: In Paul's day, "Spain" included the entire Iberian Peninsula (modern Spain and Portugal). Parts of the peninsula had been occupied by the Romans since 200 BC, but only within Paul's lifetime had the area been organized into a Roman province. Paul saw Spain, at the far end of the Mediterranean, as his final target in fulfilling the promise of Isa 66:19–20. • you can provide for my journey: Spain was so far from Paul's previous sending church, Antioch in Syria, that he hoped the Roman church could serve as the logistical base for this future evangelistic effort.

²⁵But before I come, I must go to Jerusalem to take a gift to the believers there. ²⁶For you see, the believers in Macedonia and Achaia have eagerly taken up an offering for the poor among the believers in Jerusalem. ²⁷They were glad to do this because they feel they owe a real debt to them. Since the Gentiles received the spiritual blessings of the Good News from the believers in Jerusalem, they feel the least they can do in return is to help them financially. ²⁸As soon as I have delivered this money and completed this good deed of theirs, I will come to see you on my way to Spain. ²⁹And I am sure that when I come, Christ will richly bless our time together.

³⁰Dear brothers and sisters, I urge you in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ to join in my struggle by praying to God for me. Do this because of your love for me, given to you by the Holy Spirit. ³¹Pray that I will be rescued from those in Judea who refuse to obey God. Pray also that the believers there will be willing to accept the donation I am taking to Jerusalem. ³²Then, by the will of God, I will be able to come to you with a joyful heart, and we will be an encouragement to each other.

³³And now may God, who gives us his peace, be with you all. Amen.

Paul Greet His Friends

16 I commend to you our sister Phoebe, who is a ¹deacon in the church in Cenchrea. ²Welcome her in the Lord as one who is worthy of honor among God's people. Help her in whatever she needs, for she has been helpful to many, and especially to me.

³Give my greetings to Priscilla and Aquila, my co-workers in the ministry of Christ Jesus. ⁴In fact, they once risked their lives for me. I am thankful to them, and so are all the Gentile churches. ⁵Also give my greetings to the ⁶church that meets in their home.

Greet my dear friend Epenetus. He was the first person from the province of Asia to become a follower of Christ. ⁶Give my greetings to Mary, who has worked so hard for your benefit. ⁷Greet Andronicus 15:25-28 I must go to Jerusalem to take a gift to the believers there: During his third missionary journey, Paul collected donations from the Gentile churches to help the believers in Jerusalem and to draw the two wings of the first-century church closer together (see also 1 Cor 16:1-2; 2 Cor 8-9).

15:25 the believers: Literally God's holy people; also in 15:26, 31.

15:26 Macedonia and Achaia were the northern and southern regions of Greece. Paul founded churches in several prominent cities in Macedonia, including Philippi, Thessalonica, and Berea. In Achaia, Paul had preached in Athens and founded the church in Corinth (see Acts 16-18). • the poor among the believers in Jerusalem: Jewish Christians in Jerusalem were suffering from famines that had hit the area (see Acts 11:27-30), and also because their faith in Christ caused them to be ostracized from Jewish society.

15:27 they owe a real debt: Gentile Christians owe their spiritual existence to God's work among the Israelites (see 11:17-24).

15:31 Pray that I will be rescued from those in Judea who refuse to obey God: See Acts 21-22. God preserved Paul's life and used the circumstances of his arrest in Jerusalem to take him precisely where he planned to go—Rome. • the donation: Literally the ministry; other manuscripts read the gift.

15:33 Some manuscripts do not include Amen. One very early manuscript places the doxology (16:25-27) here.

This has led some scholars to conclude that the original letter to the Romans consisted of only 1:1-15:33, but few now follow this theory. The best early manuscripts place the doxology at the end of ch 16, and the whole of ch 16 was most likely part of Paul's original letter to the Romans. See also note on 16:1-16.

16:1-16 Paul here commended and greeted twenty-seven Roman Christians, ten of whom were women. Women played important roles in the early church. • Paul had never been to Rome, which has led to some speculation as to how he knew so many people there. One theory is that ch 16 was actually part of another letter that Paul sent to Ephesus. However, we have no good manuscript evidence for a separate letter (cp. note on 15:33). Perhaps the answer is that Paul was able to greet so many people in Rome because he had encountered them during their travels away from Rome (see Romans Introduction, "Setting," p. 1888).

16:1 A deacon (Greek diakonos, "servant") refers both to a Christian who is recognized as a servant of Christ and specifically to someone who holds the office of deacon in a particular church (see Phil 1:1; 1 Tim 3:8-12; cp. Acts 6:1-6). • Cenchrea was located eight miles from Corinth and functioned as its port. Paul might have been writing this letter to the Romans from Corinth on a winter-long stop there near the end of his third missionary journey (see Acts 20:2-3).

16:2 she has been helpful to many: This phrase indicates the ancient role of the patron, a wealthy person who used influence and money to help people and causes (see "Work and Patronage" at 2 Thes 3:6-10, p. 2045). Phoebe was apparently a woman of wealth and influence who used her resources to help missionaries such as Paul.

16:3-16 Although Paul had never visited the Christian community in Rome, he established rapport with these believers by personally greeting many of the church's members. The names reveal that the Roman Christian community was very diverse—Jews and Gentiles, slaves and free, men and women all formed a new society in the church (see Gal 3:26-29).

16:3 Priscilla and Aquila were Paul's good friends (see "Priscilla and Aquila" at Acts 18:1-3, p. 1865). After leaving Rome around AD 49, they became his co-workers for an extended time in Corinth and Ephesus (see Acts 18-19). They had apparently returned to Rome by the time Paul wrote Romans (about AD 57).

16:5 the church that meets in their home: Early Christians did not have large buildings for their meetings—they met in private homes. The church in Rome was composed of a number of house churches where small groups of believers gathered for worship and instruction.

and Junia, my fellow Jews, who were in prison with me. They are highly respected among the apostles and became followers of Christ before I did. ⁸Greet Ampliatus, my dear friend in the Lord. ⁹Greet Urbanus, our co-worker in Christ, and my dear friend Stachys.

¹⁰Greet Apelles, a good man whom Christ approves. And give my greetings to the believers from the household of Aristobulus. ¹¹Greet Herodion, my fellow Jew. Greet the Lord's people from the household of Narcissus. ¹²Give my greetings to Tryphena and Tryphosa, the Lord's workers, and to dear Persis, who has worked so hard for the Lord. ¹³Greet Rufus, whom the Lord picked out to be his very own; and also his dear mother, who has been a mother to me.

¹⁴Give my greetings to Asyncritus, Phlegon, Hermes, Patrobas, Hermas, and the brothers and sisters who meet with them. ¹⁵Give my greetings to Philologus, Julia, Nereus and his sister, and to Olympas and all the believers who meet with them. ¹⁶Greet each other with a sacred kiss. All the churches of Christ send you their greetings.

Closing Remarks and Doxology

¹⁷And now I make one more appeal, my dear brothers and sisters. Watch out for people who cause divisions and upset people's faith by teaching things contrary to what you have been taught. Stay away from them. ¹⁸Such people are not serving Christ our Lord; they are serving their own personal interests. By smooth talk and glowing words they deceive innocent people. ¹⁹But everyone knows that you are obedient to the Lord. This makes me very happy. I want you to be wise in doing right and to stay innocent of any wrong. ²⁰The God of peace will soon crush ^aSatan under your feet. May the grace of our Lord Jesus be with you.

²²I, Tertius, the one writing this letter for Paul, send my greetings, too, as one of the Lord's followers.

²³Gaius says hello to you. He is my host and also serves as host to the whole church. Erastus, the city treasurer, sends you his greetings, and so does our brother Quartus.

16:7 In Greek, the name Junia could refer to a man named Junias or to a woman named Junia. Most interpreters understand Junia as a feminine name. Some late manuscripts accent the word so it reads Junias, a masculine name; still others read Julia (feminine). This section pairs masculine and feminine names to refer to husband-and-wife teams, so Junia was probably a woman. • fellow Jews: Or compatriots; also in 16:21. • who were in prison with me: When this occurred is uncertain. According to Acts, Paul had been imprisoned overnight in Philippi (Acts 16:19-28); after Romans was written, he would later be imprisoned for two years in Caesarea (Acts 24:27) and for two years in Rome (Acts 28:30-31). Paul was undoubtedly imprisoned on occasions not mentioned in Acts (see 2 Cor 11:23). • highly respected among the apostles: This phrase probably indicates that Andronicus and Junia were apostles—i.e., accredited missionaries of the church (see Acts 14:4, 14; 1 Cor 9:5-6; Gal 2:9).

16:10 This Aristobulus was probably the same man as the brother of Herod Agrippa I; Aristobulus was a member of the Roman aristocracy who lived in Rome many years prior to his death in AD 48 or 49 (see Josephus, Antiquities 18.8.4; War 2.11.6). His household probably refers to his family and their servants in Rome.

16:11 fellow Jew: Or compatriot.

16:13 This Rufus might be the individual mentioned as the son of Simon of Cyrene, who carried Christ's cross (see Mark 15:21).

16:14 brothers and sisters: Literally brothers; also in 16:17. See note on 1:13.

16:15 all the believers: Literally all of God's holy people.

16:16 with a sacred kiss: The kiss was a common way to greet another person in the ancient world and particularly among the Jews. It is mentioned frequently in the NT as a greeting (1 Cor 16:20; 2 Cor 13:12; 1 Thes 5:26; see 1 Pet 5:14); the kiss of peace became a standard feature of the Christian liturgy by the second century.

16:17 people who cause divisions: Paul had trouble with divisive false teachers elsewhere (see Galatians, Colossians, 1 Timothy), so he warned the Roman church about this danger.

16:20 The God of peace will soon crush Satan under your feet: Paul alludes to the curse that God pronounced upon the serpent after he had deceived Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden (Gen 3:15). Christ, the offspring of Eve, will soon crush Satan under the feet of the church (cp. Matt 16:18-19). • Lord Jesus: Some manuscripts read Lord Jesus Christ.

16:21 Timothy was one of Paul's closest ministry associates (see "Timothy" at Acts 16:1-3, p. 1860). Timothy accompanied Paul on his second missionary journey (Acts 16:2-3) and was with Paul in Corinth while Paul wrote this letter to the Roman church (see Acts 20:2-4).

16:22 Tertius was the scribe (or amanuensis) who wrote the letter as Paul dictated. Most ancient letter writers employed such a scribe.

16:23 Some manuscripts add v 24, May the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all. Amen. Still others add this sentence after v 27. • This Erastus was probably the individual Paul sent from Ephesus to Macedonia during his third missionary journey (Acts 19:21-22; see 2 Tim 4:20). An inscription in Corinth mentions an Erastus who was a city magistrate, possibly the same Erastus mentioned here.

16:25-27 This doxology makes a very appropriate conclusion to Paul's letter and its argument, reprising many of the themes found at the very beginning (1:1-15). • The doxology is missing in two late manuscripts and is in different places in other manuscripts (after 14:23 and after 15:33). Therefore, these verses might have been added to Paul's letter at a later time. However, the majority of manuscripts do include the doxology at the end of the letter, and it uses vocabulary and themes common in the rest of the letter. Paul most likely wrote it himself as a conclusion to the letter.

16:25 plan (literally mystery): For Paul, the mystery is the truth about God and his plan that was not clearly known in the OT era but which has been revealed in the NT era. While the OT predicted the conversion of Gentiles, it did not make clear that Gentiles would become equal members of the people of God without becoming proselytes of Judaism.

16:26 the prophets: Literally the pro- phetic writings. • so that they too might believe and obey him: Paul uses the same language about the mission to the Gentiles that he used in 1:5, creating a beautiful frame around the letter as a whole.

PAUL'S FIRST LETTER TO THE Corinthians

In this fascinating letter to a multiethnic church, we see some of the everyday problems the early Christians were dealing with. In Paul's advice on how to handle these problems, we find the deepest principles that shape his thinking about practical Christian living. These enduring principles—so different from the popular trends of Paul's time or ours—provide rich guidance for us as we deal with similar problems today.

SETTING

Corinth's widespread reputation as an important city full of vice was linked to its geography. The city was strategically located on the narrow four- to five-mile-wide isthmus separating mainland Greece from the Peloponnesus (the large southern peninsula). It profited from travelers passing north and south along the main overland route and from those sailing east and west between the Gulf of Corinth and the Saronic Gulf. To avoid the stormy hazards of the Mediterranean Sea, especially in winter-time, the owners of small commercial boats sailing between Italy and the eastern Mediterranean often had them dragged over the isthmus from one gulf to the other and spent a night or two in Corinth on the way. As a result, Corinth gained the notoriety of a port city and was widely known for prostitution and other vices. There was even a verb in Greek (korinthiazomai, "to act like a Corinthian") that referred to sexual immorality. It's not surprising that some of these problems made their way into the young church (see Paul's strong words about sexual immorality in 5:1-13; 6:12-20).

Old Corinth was conquered and destroyed by the Romans in 146 BC. It was rebuilt a century later as a Roman colony and populated in large part by former Roman slaves. By the time of Paul's visit, it was a cosmopolitan city, with Romans, Greeks, Jews, and other ethnic groups from all over the Mediterranean, as well as international visitors passing through the city. As a result, the members of the young church were multi-ethnic. This surely contributed to the tensions and problems it experienced (see Paul's rebuke of their cliquishness in 1:10-12; 3:1-4).

Paul first arrived in the city during his second missionary trip (around AD 50), after his work in the northern province of Macedonia and Athens. Realizing that the city was strategic to his evangelistic efforts, he stayed in Corinth for eighteen months (AD 50-52; see Acts 18:1-17). When the Jews took him to court for breaking the law, the governor Gallio threw the case out because it was a religious dispute. Given the freedom to evangelize, Paul made a number of converts and began a church there before he left.

Over the next five years, Paul corresponded with the Corinthians several times on difficult issues and even visited them personally to sort out some of their problems. The present letter, written during the period AD 53-56, was sent from Ephesus, in the province of Asia (western Turkey), where Paul spent two to three years on his third missionary journey.

SUMMARY

Paul deals with a wide range of problems and questions facing the young church—some of which reflect the problems of the city itself—and he gives specific advice on dealing with them. Paul's advice reflects the fundamental principles underlying his view of the Christian life, principles rooted in the Good News itself. Paul addressed the following issues:

- Criticism of Paul's non-intellectual approach to evangelism (chs 1-4)
- A flagrant case of sexual immorality in the church (ch 5)
- The practice of taking fellow believers to court before pagan judges (ch 6)
- Problems of sexual immorality (ch 6)
- Questions about marriage, divorce, and staying single (ch 7)
- The question of whether believers are allowed to eat meat sacrificed to pagan idols (chs 8-10)
- The question of appropriate dress for women who minister publicly (ch 11)
- Irreverent and disrespectful behavior in receiving the Lord's Supper (ch 11)
- Distorted perspectives on spiritual gifts and their practice (chs 12-14)
- Skepticism about a future resurrection of the dead (ch 15) scholars, no one questions the authorship of 1 Corinthians. Some, however, question the authenticity of 14:34-35 (see note). In line with common practice of the ancient world, Paul used an amanuensis (secretary) to do the actual writing of this letter (see 16:21; see also Timothy and Titus Introduction, "Authorship," p. 2047).

DATE AND OCCASION OF WRITING

This letter to the Corinthian church was written on Paul's third missionary journey, during his two- to three-year stay in Ephesus (about AD 53-56; see Acts 19). Paul had written a previous letter to the church (see 5:9), and the Corinthians had replied, asking his advice on a number of points (see 7:1). He had also received reports and visitors from Corinth (see 1:11; 16:15-17), making him aware of a number of problems facing the young church. This letter, full of advice on specific issues, is his response. It may have been delivered by Stephanas, Fortunatus, and Achaicus (see 16:15-17) when they returned to Corinth.

Some problems apparently remained unresolved, resulting in a later personal visit to Corinth and a strongly worded letter that we do not have. Paul refers to these in the emotionally laden letter we know as 2 Corinthians, written from Macedonia shortly after he left Ephesus, in anticipation of yet another visit to the church (see 2 Cor 2:1-11; 7:8-10; 2 Corinthians Introduction, "Date and Occasion of Writing," p. 1956).

MEANING AND MESSAGE

In 1 Corinthians, we catch a fascinating glimpse of what life was like in the early church. We see some of the practical problems the early Christians faced as they lived in a pagan environment and how they dealt with them. Among the more theologically significant points are the following.

Motivation for Christian Behavior. Paul deals with problems in the churches from a thoroughly Christian point of view, rooted in the Good News of God's grace. In his thinking, Christian behavior is firmly grounded in Christian theology, in the message of Christ and the cross. The advice he gives on Christian living is not simply pragmatic, but solidly based on the relationship of believers to Christ. His own practical life has been revolutionized by his experience of God's grace in Christ.

So, for example, when Paul addresses issues of sexual immorality (chs 5, 6), he reminds the church that believers have been made new by the sacrifice of Christ and that they should live accordingly. His appeal for faithfulness is not that they should keep the law of Moses, but that they should understand what it means to be married to Christ and to be the sanctuary of the Holy Spirit (6:15-20).

When Paul discourages believers from taking one another to pagan law courts (6:1-8), he is in part concerned for the effect on their witness as Christians. He urges them to give up their rights out of love for others, as Christ did. The death of Christ has taught him that Christian love is sacrificial.

When Paul gives advice on marriage (ch 7), he encourages those who are unmarried to remain single so they can give themselves more fully to Christ's service. Christians are claimed by Christ and can no longer live only for themselves.

When he addresses the freedom of believers to eat meat sacrificed to pagan idols (chs 8, 10), he avoids formulating rules, asserting their liberty in Christ to eat anything. He emphasizes, however, that the effect of one's actions on others is always more important than one's own rights, so believers should readily abstain from actions that would be detrimental to others. Like Christ, they are to be governed by sacrificial love in all their relationships.

Paul's practical advice is rooted in the Good News and in the relationship of believers to Christ. In his thinking, Christian behavior is a response of gratitude to the mercy and grace of God, shown in Christ and expressed in the Good News.

The whole of the believer's life is to express devotion to God and love for others (see 10:31-33). This is Paul's equivalent to Jesus' two great love commands (Matt 22:36-40; Luke 10:25-37). In this letter, we see more clearly than elsewhere how Paul applies these enduring principles to a wide range of practical problems.

Paul's Understanding of Evangelism. When Paul is criticized for his rather unpolished, non-intellectual approach to evangelism (chs 1-4), he emphasizes that only God can change a person's heart. The real power does not lie in the persuasive powers of human intellect and rhetoric, but in the message of God's grace and in the power of God's Spirit to renew and transform. Conversion is not a matter of one person changing another person's mind, but of God changing a person's heart.

Unity and Love in the Church. Unity among believers is important throughout this letter, as a number of the issues Paul deals with have apparently divided the church (see 1:10-4:21, cliques in the church; 6:1-12, lawsuits against fellow Christians; 8:1-11:1, different opinions on food sacrificed to idols; 11:2-16, different opinions on appropriate dress for women ministering publicly; 11:17-34, problems in taking the Lord's Supper). Bound together as fellow members of Christ's body by a common commitment to Christ as Lord and by the shared experience of God's Spirit, believers are to live together in unity. This letter, which includes Paul's classic chapter on Christian love (ch 13), highlights the importance of relating to other believers in sacrificial love, the kind of love shown by Christ himself.

Marriage, Divorce, and the Single Life. Paul has a high view of marriage and an even higher view of the single life (ch 7). The two ways of living are not ends in themselves, but alternate ways of serving Christ, which is the important thing.

The Lord's Supper. Along with the accounts in the synoptic Gospels, this letter sheds significant light on early Christian understanding and practice of the Lord's Supper, offering the only extended treatment in the NT (chs 10-11).

The Church As a Body. Paul understands the church as a dynamic, Spirit-led body made up of different parts, each with its own unique work to do (chs 12, 14). In these early days of the Christian movement, there is no distinction between clergy and laity, but different roles creating a complementary ministry of the Spirit's gifts when Christians gather. Each has a part to play in building up the body, and individuals are dependent on the Spirit to empower and guide them all in their ministries.

The Resurrection. Among the NT writings, this letter gives us the most complete discussion of resurrection (ch 15), including the fullest account of those who saw the resurrected Jesus, the rationale for a future resurrection, and the nature of resurrection bodies.

The most intensely practical of all St. Paul's letters. It was written to meet immediate needs of his converts.

1. INTRODUCTION (1:1-9)Greetings from Paul

1 This letter is from Paul, chosen by the will of God to be an apostle of Christ Jesus, and from our brother Sosthenes.

²I am writing to God's ^achurch in Corinth, to you who have been ^bcalled by God to be his own holy people. He made you holy by means of Christ Jesus, just as he did for all people everywhere who call on the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, their Lord and ours.

³May God our ^cFather and the Lord Jesus Christ give you grace and peace.

Paul Gives Thanks to God

⁴I always thank my God for you and for the gracious gifts he has given you, now that you belong to Christ Jesus. ⁵Through him, God has enriched your church in every way—with all of your eloquent words and all of your knowledge. ⁶This confirms that what I ^dtold you about Christ is true. ⁷Now you have every spiritual ^egift you need as you eagerly wait for the ^freturn of our Lord Jesus Christ.

⁸He will keep you strong to the end so that you will be free from all blame on the day when our Lord Jesus Christ returns. ⁹God will do this, for he is faithful to do what he says, and he has invited you into ^gpartnership with his Son, Jesus Christ our Lord.

2. PAUL CONFRONTS SIN IN THE CHURCH (1:10–6:20)Divisions in the Church (1:10–4:21)The Problem of Competing Factions

¹⁰I appeal to you, dear brothers and sisters, by the authority of our Lord Jesus Christ, to live in harmony with each other. Let there be no divisions in the church. Rather, be of one mind, united in thought and purpose.

¹¹For some members of Chloe's household have told me about your quarrels, my dear brothers and sisters. ¹²Some of you are saying, "I am a follower of Paul." Others are saying, "I follow Apollos," or "I follow Peter," or "I follow only Christ."

1:1-3 Paul commonly begins his letters with a few words about himself, followed by greetings and an invocation of grace and peace. In this, he follows the normal pattern of ancient Greek letters but expands it with Christian meaning.

1:1 An apostle of Christ Jesus was a missionary evangelist commissioned by Christ himself. • Sosthenes, Paul's co-worker, might be the same person as in Acts 18:17.

1:2 The church is comprised of those who are called by God to be his own holy people, those who belong to him and are dedicated to him. • Corinth was the capital city of Achaia, the southern region of the Greek peninsula. • They have been made holy by means of Christ Jesus (or because you belong to Christ Jesus; literally in Christ Jesus). God has set them apart for himself through the saving work of his Son and their faith relationship to him.

1:3 Grace and peace represent traditional Greek and Hebrew greetings. Grace is undeserved blessing that comes from the kindness of God. Peace is a sense of well-being and contentedness, rooted in the Good News and brought about by the Holy Spirit (see Gal 5:22). Together, the phrase conveys things understood as gifts from God (see Rom 5:1-2).

1:4-9 Paul thanks God for the spiritual gifts he sees in the lives of the Corinthian Christians and expresses his confidence that God will keep them safe to the end.

1:4 now that you belong to Christ Jesus (literally in Christ Jesus): Paul frequently uses the phrase in Christ Jesus to refer to the saving relationship believers have with Christ (e.g., Rom 3:24; Gal 2:4; Eph 3:6).

1:5 God had enriched the Corinthian church spiritually, specifically in eloquent words and knowledge. This probably refers to the spiritual messages and understanding (see 1:7) on which the church prided itself. Word and knowledge occur frequently in this letter: Paul acknowledges the abundant spiritual gifts that God has given the church in Corinth. Later, he corrects their distorted perspectives on these gifts (see 1:18–2:5; 3:18–20; chs 12–14).

1:7 every spiritual gift: See 12:8–10, 28.

1:8 Even though believers are saved from eternal condemnation (see Rom 8:1), they remain accountable to God for the way they live (see 3:12–15; 4:4–5; 2 Cor 5:10). Paul encourages his readers to live a holy life so that they will be found faultless when Christ returns (see Phil 1:6, 10; 1 Thes 3:13; 5:23–24).

1:9 God . . . is faithful: See 10:13; Deut 7:9; 1 Thes 5:24. • he has invited you: God has chosen them and brought them into partnership with his Son (cp. Rom 8:28–39).

1:10–15:58 The body of the letter is devoted to Paul's advice on specific problems and questions that had arisen in the Corinthian church.

1:10–17 The Corinthian believers were arguing over which of the leading evangelists (Paul, Apollos, Peter) was best. Paul rebukes them for their quarreling and worldly comparisons. As a minister of Christ and the Good News, he and the others are all channels through whom God works (see 3:1–4:7).

1:10 dear brothers and sisters (literally brothers; also in 1:11, 26): Paul uses this generic, traditional term of affection to address all the believers, not just the men. • I appeal to you: Paul motivates them by the authority of our Lord Jesus Christ, not by his own authority. • authority (literally name): In Jewish thought, a person's name carried the weight of the person's authority and reputation. • Let there be no divisions: His desire was not simply that they avoid divisiveness, but that they be so filled with the Spirit of Christ that they would be of one mind, united in thought and purpose (cp. Phil 2:2).

1:11 Chloe was a Corinthian woman, not mentioned elsewhere in Scripture.

1:12 The Christians in Corinth had formed factions loyal to different Christian leaders, but the leaders themselves do not seem to have been in conflict. Paul, as the one who had first brought the Good News to Corinth, would receive the loyalty of some. • Apollos, now with Paul (see 16:12), was an eloquent Alexandrian Jew who had become a powerful Christian evangelist and had ministered in Corinth (see Acts 18:24–19:1). He attracted followers because of his skillful oratory (perhaps in contrast to Paul) and his ability to interpret Scripture. See "Apollos" at Acts 18:24–19:1, p. 1867. • Peter: Greek Cephas; see also Matt 16:18; John 1:42. Peter was the primary early evangelist to the Jews. He represented a more traditional Jewish perspective and had a gift for speaking in front of crowds (see Acts 1:15–22; 2:14–40; 3:12–26; 4:8–12; 10:34–43). • I follow only Christ: This might refer to a group who disavowed allegiance to any human authority and viewed themselves as more holy than others.

Rom 4:17

¹³Has Christ been divided into factions? Was I, Paul, crucified for you? Were any of you baptized in the name of Paul? Of course not! ¹⁴I thank God that I did not baptize any of you except Crispus and Gaius, ¹⁵for now no one can say they were baptized in my name. ¹⁶(Oh yes, I also baptized the household of Stephanas, but I don't remember baptizing anyone else.) ¹⁷For Christ didn't send me to baptize, but to preach the Good News—and not with clever speech, for fear that the cross of Christ would lose its power.

The World's Wisdom and God's Wisdom

¹⁸The message of the cross is foolish to those who are headed for destruction! But we who are being saved know it is the very power of God. ¹⁹As the Scriptures say,

"I will destroy the wisdom of the wise and discard the intelligence of the intelligent."

²⁰So where does this leave the philosophers, the scholars, and the world's brilliant debaters? God has made the wisdom of this world look foolish. ²¹Since God in his wisdom saw to it that the world would never know him through human wisdom, he has used our foolish preaching to save those who believe. ²²It is foolish to the Jews, who ask for ^hsigns from heaven. And it is foolish to the Greeks, who seek human wisdom. ²³So when we preach that Christ was crucified, the Jews are ⁱoffended and the Gentiles say it's all nonsense.

²⁴But to those called by God to salvation, both Jews and Gentiles, Christ is the power of God and the wisdom of God. ²⁵This foolish plan of God is wiser than the wisest of human plans, and God's weakness is stronger than the greatest of human strength.

²⁶Remember, dear brothers and sisters, that few of you were wise in the world's eyes or powerful or wealthy when God ⁱcalled you. ²⁷Instead, God chose things the world considers foolish in order to shame those who think they are wise. And he chose things that are powerless to shame those who are powerful. ²⁸God chose things despised by

1:13 Paul asks three rhetorical questions, all expecting the obvious answer, "no." Christian devotion is to be given to Christ, not to his messengers.

1:14 Crispus and Gaius were two of Paul's earliest converts in Corinth. Crispus was a former leader of the synagogue in Corinth (see Acts 18:8), and Gaius later offered Paul the use of his home (see Rom 16:23). This might identify him with Titius Justus, an earlier convert to Judaism who lived next door to the synagogue (see Acts 18:7). His full Roman name would then be Gaius Titius Justus.

1:16 The household of Stephanas were the first converts in the province of Achaia (southern Greece; see 16:15). Household refers to all who lived in the house, which might include more than Stephanas's immediate family.

1:17 The important thing is not baptism, but the preaching of the Good News; baptism signifies people's response to the message (see "Baptism" at Acts 2:38, 41, p. 1828). • clever speech: Eloquence, or an appeal to human wisdom. • for fear that the cross of Christ would lose its power: Too much emphasis on eloquence and the persuasiveness of human reason can distract from the simple message that Christ died for people's sins so that they could be forgiven (2:1-5; 15:1-3).

1:18-31 Paul contrasts eloquence and human wisdom, which were highly valued by some of the Corinthians, and the foolish message of the cross—the expression of God's wisdom. The followers of Apollos, in particular (see 1:12), were probably attracted by his rhetorical abilities and intellectual approach to ministry (see Acts 18:24-28). In contrast, Paul emphasizes that the real power lies in the simple message of the cross of Christ.

1:18 The message that God is saving the world through a condemned criminal is foolish to unbelievers, for their eyes are blinded to the truth (2 Cor 4:4). For believers, whose eyes have been opened by God, the message of the cross has the ring of truth to it, and they know its power to convict the human heart (see 1:23-24; Rom 1:16). Unbelievers, still in their sin, are headed for destruction, for ultimate condemnation. Believers, whose sins have been forgiven, are being saved: They are on their way to eternal life and glory.

1:19 This quotation from Isa 29:14 shows God's estimation of mere human wisdom.

1:20 In God's eyes, the human wisdom of this world is foolish. Divine wisdom lies in the message of the cross and in Jesus Christ (see 1:24, 30).

1:21 Human wisdom alone does not bring people to the true knowledge of God; that comes only through the message of the cross, which the world considers foolish, but which saves those who believe (cp. Matt 11:25).

1:22-24 Paul uses the words Greeks and Gentiles interchangeably to refer to non-Jews.

1:22 Unbelieving Jews wanted to see miraculous signs to validate the message (cp. Matt 12:38-39; 16:1-4; John 2:18, 23; 4:48). Greeks, renowned for their schools of philosophy, were only interested in human wisdom—i.e., philosophical reasoning.

1:23 Regardless of what unbelieving Jews and Gentiles desired, Paul refused to give them anything but the simple message of the cross. To many Jews, the idea of a crucified Messiah was a contradiction in terms because crucifixion expressed not the power and blessing of God but his curse (see Gal 3:13; cp. Deut 21:23).

1:24 and Gentiles: Literally and Greeks. See note on 1:22-24.

1:25 What the unbelieving world considers foolish and weak—Christ and the message of the cross—is in reality wiser and stronger than anything the world has to offer. It solves the world's greatest problem, the problem of sin, and overcomes all the powers of evil that oppose human beings.

1:26 Socially and culturally, most Corinthian Christians were ordinary people; few were among the elite (cp. Matt 11:25). Only a few Christians, such as Erastus, the city treasurer in Corinth (see Rom 16:23), were wealthy (or high born; cp. Jas 2:5).

1:27-29 God chose despised and humble people in order to demonstrate his judgment on human pride (cp. Rom 3:27; 4:2; 2 Cor 4:7-11; 12:8-10; Eph 2:9).

1:28 God chose things despised by the world: Or God chose those who are low born.

the world, things counted as nothing at all, and used them to bring to nothing what the world considers important. ²⁹As a result, no one can ever boast in the presence of God.

³⁰God has united you with Christ Jesus. For our benefit God made him to be wisdom itself. Christ made us right with God; he made us pure and ^hholy, and he ^afreed us from sin. ³¹Therefore, as the Scriptures say, "If you want to boast, boast only about the LORD."

The Power of the Message of the Cross

2 When I first came to you, dear brothers and sisters, I didn't use lofty words and impressive wisdom to tell you God's ^bsecret plan. ²For I decided that while I was with you I would forget everything except Jesus Christ, the one who was crucified. ³I came to you in weakness—timid and trembling. ⁴And my message and my preaching were very plain. Rather than using clever and persuasive speeches, I relied only on the power of the Holy Spirit. ⁵I did this so you would trust not in human wisdom but in the power of God.

Paul's Message of Real Wisdom from the Spirit

⁶Yet when I am among mature believers, I do speak with words of wisdom, but not the kind of wisdom that belongs to this world or to the rulers of this world, who are soon forgotten. ⁷No, the wisdom we speak of is the mystery of God—his plan that was previously hidden, even though he ^cmade it for our ultimate glory before the world began. ⁸But the rulers of this world have not understood it; if they had, they would not have crucified our glorious Lord. ⁹That is what the Scriptures mean when they say,

"No eye has seen, no ear has heard, and no mind has imagined what God has prepared for those who love him."

¹⁰But it was to us that God revealed these things by his Spirit. For his Spirit searches out everything and shows us God's deep secrets. ¹¹No one can know a person's thoughts except that person's own spirit, and no one can know God's thoughts except God's own Spirit. ¹²And we have received God's Spirit (not the world's spirit), so we can know the wonderful things God has freely given us.

¹³When we tell you these things, we do not use words that come from human wisdom. Instead, we speak words given to us by the Spirit, using the Spirit's words to explain spiritual truths. ¹⁴But people who aren't

1:30 When people are united . . . with Christ Jesus, God makes them righteous, holy, and free (see 6:11; Rom 3:21-26; 5:17-21). This work of Christ is an expression of God's wisdom.

1:31 This quotation is a paraphrase of Jer 9:24 (cp. 2 Cor 10:17). Because salvation is a result of God's sovereign power (2:5) and his decision to save his people, there is absolutely no room for human pride (see 1:29).

2:1-5 God's sovereign work made Paul's preaching effective. In his evangelism, Paul did not rely on the persuasive power of his intellect or his dynamic personality, but on the power of the Holy Spirit (see also note at 1:18-31).

2:1 When I first came to you: See Acts 18:1-17. • dear brothers and sisters: Literally brothers. See note on 1:10. • lofty words and impressive wisdom: Human wisdom and philosophy don't bring people to Christ (see 1:17, 21; 2:2). The message of the cross has its own power to convert the human heart (see 1:17; Rom 1:16; Gal 6:14). • God's secret plan: Literally God's mystery; other manuscripts read God's testimony. See note on 2:7.

2:3-4 Human weakness is no barrier to God's work (2 Cor 12:7-10). The real power is not in charismatic preaching, finesse of presentation, or logical persuasiveness (cp. 2 Cor 10:10), but in the message itself, centered on Christ and his death for our sins, and in the power of the Holy Spirit, who convicts the human heart.

2:6-16 Paul emphasizes God's wisdom in contrast to the world's wisdom. Real wisdom is not mere human wisdom but the wisdom of the Spirit, expressed in the so-called "foolishness" of the Good News (see 1:20-25).

2:6 Only the spiritually mature will recognize God's wisdom; many of the Corinthians would have been unable to recognize it (see 3:1-3). • The rulers of this world (see also 2:8) are soon forgotten because Christ now rules—his enemies have been defeated by his death on the cross (see 15:24-25; Col 2:15).

2:7 No, the wisdom we speak of is the mystery of God: Literally But we speak God's wisdom in a mystery. In Paul's writings, mystery often refers to a truth previously hidden but now revealed in the Good News of Christ and his saving work (see Rom 11:25-27; 1 Tim 3:9, 16). • before the world began: From the very beginning, it has been God's desire to save his chosen people through Christ (see Rom 16:25-26; Eph 1:9-12; 3:3-12; Col 1:25-27) and to bring them to ultimate glory in the coming age (see Rom 5:2; 8:18-21, 29-30; 1 Thes 2:12).

2:8 The rulers of this world are probably political rulers rather than spiritual authorities (see also 15:24; cp. Acts 3:14-15; 4:10; 5:29-32).

2:9 This quotation (cp. Isa 64:4) supports Paul's point (2:8): Those with no spiritual sensitivity do not understand God's work of redemption.

2:10-12 But: Some manuscripts read For. • it was to us: Those who believe in Christ and have thus received his Spirit (see 6:19; 12:13; Gal 3:2; Eph 1:13; Titus 3:5) are contrasted with the rulers of this world (2:8). God's deep secrets are not understood through secular wisdom or philosophy, but through God's own Spirit, who alone can reveal God's thoughts to his people (see 1 Jn 2:20, 27; cp. Matt 11:25-27). God has graciously given his Spirit to his people so they can know the wonderful things God has freely given them (cp. John 16:13-14).

2:13 using the Spirit's words to explain spiritual truths (or explaining spiritual truths in spiritual language, or explaining spiritual truths to spiritual people): Just as spiritual wisdom is different from human wisdom, so the way spiritual wisdom is taught must be different from the way human wisdom is taught. The communicating and learning of spiritual truth must be done in the dimension and power of the Spirit; it is not simply a rational, human exercise.

spiritual can't receive these truths from God's Spirit. It all sounds foolish to them and they can't understand it, for only those who are spiritual can understand what the Spirit means. ¹⁵Those who are spiritual can evaluate all things, but they themselves cannot be evaluated by others. ¹⁶For,

"Who can know the LORD's thoughts?
Who knows enough to teach him?"

But we understand these things, for we have the mind of Christ.

Paul and Apollos, Servants of Christ

3 Dear brothers and sisters, when I was with you I couldn't talk to you as I would to spiritual people. I had to talk as though you belonged to this world or as though you were infants in Christ. ²I had to feed you with milk, not with solid food, because you weren't ready for anything stronger. And you still aren't ready, ³for you are still controlled by your sinful nature. You are jealous of one another and quarrel with each other. Doesn't that prove you are controlled by your sinful nature? Aren't you living like people of the world? ⁴When one of you says, "I am a follower of Paul," and another says, "I follow Apollos," aren't you acting just like people of the world?

⁵After all, who is Apollos? Who is Paul?

We are only God's servants through whom you believed the Good News. Each of us did the work the Lord gave us. ⁶I planted the seed in your hearts, and Apollos watered it, but it was God who made it grow. ⁷It's not important who does the planting, or who does the watering. What's important is that God makes the seed grow. ⁸The one who plants and the one who waters work together with the same purpose. And both will be rewarded for their own hard work. ⁹For we are both God's workers. And you are God's field. You are God's building.

¹⁰Because of God's grace to me, I have laid the foundation like an expert builder. Now others are building on it. But whoever is building on this foundation must be very careful. ¹¹For no one can lay any foundation other than the one we already have—Jesus Christ.

¹²Anyone who builds on that foundation may use a variety of materials—gold, silver, jewels, wood, hay, or straw. ¹³But on the judgment day, fire will reveal what kind of work each builder has done. The fire will show if a person's work has any value. ¹⁴If the work survives, that builder will receive a reward. ¹⁵But if the work is burned up, the builder will suffer great loss. The builder will be saved, but like someone barely escaping through a wall of flames.

2:14 people who aren't spiritual (or people who don't have the Spirit; or people who have only physical life): Unbelievers, whose minds are blinded, function in the natural world and see life only through physical eyes (see 2 Cor 4:4). They cannot appreciate the significance of the Good News, for it is essentially a spiritual message.

2:15 Those who are spiritual: People who have the Spirit have a true understanding of divine revelation.

2:16 This quotation from Isa 40:13 (Greek version) shows how divine wisdom transcends the limitations of human reasoning (cp. Rom 11:34). • we have the mind of Christ: Linked to Christ, believers have the Spirit of Christ to reveal Christ's thinking to them.

3:1–4:7 Having contrasted human and spiritual wisdom, Paul now returns to the divisiveness in the Corinthian church (see 1:10–12), particularly their misplaced devotion to himself and Apollos.

3:1–4 Paul rebukes the Christians in Corinth for their spiritual immaturity.

3:1 Dear brothers and sisters: Literally Brothers. See note on 1:10. • The Corinthians' behavior was not that of the spiritual people (or people who have the Spirit) whom Paul described in 2:15, but like that of unbelievers who are attracted to the wisdom and values of this world. • infants in Christ: Though they were converted, their lives and thinking did not reflect maturity in Christ and the transforming perspective of his spirit.

3:2 Because of the Corinthian Christians' lack of spiritual maturity, Paul was unable to speak about the deeper truths of life in Christ, the solid food (see 2:6–7) that is reserved for mature Christians. Instead, he had to restrict himself to milk, the basic teachings of the Good News (cp. Heb 5:12–14; 6:1–3; 1 Pet 2:2).

3:3 Their jealousy and quarreling (see 1:10–12) showed that they were still just like unbelievers, controlled by their sinful nature rather than by the Spirit of God (cp. 2 Cor 12:20; Gal 5:19–21).

3:4 Proudly identifying oneself with a preferred teacher (see 1:12) was common in Greek culture, but it is not in keeping with the mind of Christ (3:5–9; cp. Matt 23:8–10).

3:5–9 To identify oneself proudly as a follower of a human teacher is wrong because God does the real work of redemption, so he deserves the honor.

• We are only God's servants: Cp. 2 Cor 4:5.

3:6 I planted: See Acts 18:1–11. • Apollos watered: See Acts 18:27–19:1.

3:10–17 All people are accountable to God for the way they serve Christ.

3:10 Paul laid the foundation when he first began the church in Corinth. Now others were building on it by what they were teaching the young Christians.

3:11 There can never be any other foundation for the church than Jesus Christ himself (see Isa 28:16; 1 Pet 2:4–8; cp. Rom 9:33), but the Corinthians were in danger of treating a human teacher as their foundation.

3:12–15 Some of the things that people build on the foundation of Christ will endure; other things will burn up in the fire of judgment (cp. Mal 4:1). On judgment day, the work of each builder who instructs the church will be assessed (cp. Jas 3:1; see also Rom 14:10–12; 2 Cor 5:10). Those whose teachings are faithful and true will receive a reward; the others will suffer great loss, not of their salvation but of their reward. They themselves will be saved, but just barely, like someone pulled to safety through a wall of flames (cp. Amos 4:11; Zech 3:2; Jude 1:23).

¹⁶Don't you realize that all of you together are the temple of God and that the Spirit of God lives in you? ¹⁷God will destroy anyone who destroys this temple. For God's temple is holy, and you are that temple.

¹⁸Stop deceiving yourselves. If you think you are wise by this world's standards, you need to become a fool to be truly wise. ¹⁹For the wisdom of this world is foolishness to God. As the Scriptures say,

"He traps the wise in the snare of their own cleverness."

²⁰And again,

"The LORD knows the thoughts of the wise;
he knows they are 'worthless.'"

²¹So don't boast about following a particular human leader. For everything belongs to you—²²whether Paul or Apollos or Peter, or the world, or life and death, or the present and the future. Everything belongs to you, ²³and you belong to Christ, and Christ belongs to God.

Paul's Relationship with the Corinthians

4 So look at Apollos and me as mere servants of Christ who have been put in charge of explaining God's mysteries. ²Now, a person who is put in charge as a manager must be faithful. ³As for me, it matters very little how I might be evaluated by you or by any human authority. I don't even trust my own judgment on this point. ⁴My conscience is clear, but that doesn't prove I'm right. It is the Lord himself who will examine me and decide.

⁵So don't make judgments about anyone ahead of time—before the Lord returns. For he will bring our darkest secrets to light and will reveal our private motives. Then God will give to each one whatever praise is due.

⁶Dear brothers and sisters, I have used Apollos and myself to illustrate what I've been saying. If you pay attention to what I have quoted from the Scriptures, you won't be proud of one of your leaders at the expense of another. ⁷For what gives you the right to make such a judgment? What do you have that God hasn't given you? And if everything you have is from God, why boast as though it were not a gift?

⁸You think you already have everything you need. You think you are already rich. You have begun to reign in God's kingdom without us! I wish you really were reigning already, for then we would be reigning with you. ⁹Instead, I sometimes think God has put us apostles on display, like prisoners of war at the end of a victor's parade, condemned to die. We have become a spectacle to the entire world—to people and ¹angels alike.

3:16-17 Christians must be very careful, both in what they teach and in how they relate to one another, because the body of believers is the temple of God, the home of the Spirit of God who lives in (or among) them (cp. Eph 2:21-22), and God's temple is holy (see 1:2). There are terrible consequences for anyone who destroys God's temple by such things as jealousy, argumentativeness, and divisiveness (see 3:3-4).

3:18-20 Here Paul returns to the contrast between human wisdom and divine wisdom (see 1:18-25). Using OT quotations, Paul encourages the Corinthians to be willing to appear foolish in the eyes of the world so that they may be truly wise in God's eyes.

3:19 This quotation is from Job 5:13.

3:20 This quotation is from Ps 94:11.

3:21-23 As the privileged children of God, they may now lay claim to everything—the world, and life and death, and the present and the future (see Rom 8:38-39). So there is no point in claiming a particular human leader as their own.

3:22 Peter: Greek Cephas.

3:23 Just as they may now claim everything as their own, so Christ has claimed them for himself (see Rom 14:7-9), and in Christ they are ultimately claimed by God (see 6:19-20; 7:23).

4:1-5 Paul emphasizes his faithfulness and the genuineness of his motives as an apostle of Christ. But only God can judge the heart.

4:1 Paul and Apollos should not be viewed as leaders competing for a following, but as mere servants of Christ who have been put in charge of explaining God's mysteries. They were stewards entrusted with administration of the master's business (as in Luke 12:42); their whole life was devoted to their master's concerns, not to their own.

• God's mysteries: See note on 2:7.

4:3-4 Paul's deepest desire was that he be found faithful before God. Human assessments of him—by himself or others—didn't matter.

4:5 don't make judgments about anyone: Only the Lord can fully know a person's heart, and when he returns, he will judge. Paul took God's judgment of his ministry very seriously (see 2 Cor 5:9-10; Phil 2:16; 1 Thes 2:19-20; cp. 2 Cor 1:14).

4:6-21 Paul again rebukes the Corinthian Christians for their arrogance (4:6-13) and then admonishes them as a father (4:14-21).

4:6 Dear brothers and sisters: Literally

Brothers. See note on 1:10. • If you pay attention to what I have quoted from the Scriptures: Or If you learn not to go beyond "what is written." • you won't be proud: See also 1:29-31; 3:21; 4:18-19; 5:2, 6; 8:1; 13:4.

4:7 Pride in a particular leader results from failure to realize that everything is a gift from God. There is no room for pride; humble gratitude is the only appropriate attitude.

4:8-13 Paul ironically highlights the difference between himself and them. Their attitudes reflect the wisdom of the world; his, the wisdom of God. In their pride, the Corinthians thought they had arrived, but they actually had a long way to go (cp. Rev 3:17-18; contrast Phil 3:12-14). If they had truly arrived, they would be sharing more of the suffering that Paul experienced (4:11-13). In contrast to the Corinthians, who were so proud of their attainments and the respect they had from others, the apostles suffered scorn and contempt.

4:9 Like prisoners . . . condemned to die by facing wild animals in the amphitheater, the apostles were a spectacle. Paul gladly accepted suffering because God was using it to bring blessing to others (see 2 Cor 1:4-7; 4:7-12; Phil 2:17; Col 1:24).

¹⁰Our dedication to Christ makes us look like fools, but you claim to be so wise in Christ! We are weak, but you are so powerful! You are honored, but we are ridiculed.

¹¹Even now we go hungry and thirsty, and we don't have enough clothes to keep warm. We are often beaten and have no home.

¹²We work wearily with our own hands to earn our living. We bless those who curse us. We are patient with those who abuse us.

¹³We appeal gently when evil things are said about us. Yet we are treated like the world's garbage, like everybody's trash—right up to the present moment.

¹⁴I am not writing these things to shame you, but to warn you as my beloved children.

¹⁵For even if you had ten thousand others to teach you about Christ, you have only one spiritual father. For I became your father in Christ Jesus when I preached the Good News to you. ¹⁶So I urge you to imitate me.

¹⁷That's why I have sent Timothy, my beloved and faithful child in the Lord. He will remind you of how I follow Christ Jesus, just as I teach in all the churches wherever I go.

¹⁸Some of you have become arrogant, thinking I will not visit you again. ¹⁹But I will come—and soon—if the Lord lets me, and then I'll find out whether these arrogant people just give pretentious speeches or whether they really have God's power.

²⁰For the Kingdom of God is not just a lot of talk; it is living by God's power. ²¹Which do you choose? Should I come with a rod to punish you, or should I come with love and a gentle spirit?

Sin in Relationships (5:1–6:20) Paul Confronts Sexual Immorality and Spiritual Pride

5 I can hardly believe the report about the sexual immorality going on among you—something that even pagans don't do. I am told that a man in your church is living in sin with his stepmother. ²You are so proud of yourselves, but you should be mourning in sorrow and shame. And you should remove this man from your fellowship.

³Even though I am not with you in person, I am with you in the ⁴spirit. And as though I were there, I have already passed judgment on this man ⁴in the name of the Lord Jesus. You must call a meeting of the church. I will be present with you in spirit, and so will the power of our Lord Jesus. ⁵Then you must throw this man out and hand him over to Satan so that his sinful nature will be destroyed and he himself will be saved on the day the Lord returns.

⁶Your boasting about this is terrible. Don't you realize that this sin is like a little yeast that spreads through the whole batch

4:11-13 Paul reminds the Corinthians how much he had endured for Christ's sake (cp. 2 Cor 6:4-5; 11:23-28).

4:12 We work: To avoid being blamed by others for taking money, Paul preferred to support himself (9:3-18; Acts 18:3; 20:33-35). • We bless those who curse us: Paul's response was in line with Jesus' teaching (Matt 5:44-45; cp. Rom 12:14, 17-21).

4:14-21 Paul concludes this section on divisions in the church (1:10-4:21) with gentle words of fatherly admonition and warning.

4:14-16 As their spiritual father who first brought them the Good News, Paul affirms his genuine concern for their well-being (cp. 1 Thes 2:11-12). As his beloved children, they should listen to their father and imitate his example and teachings (see 11:1; Gal 4:12; Phil 3:17; 4:9; 1 Thes 1:6; 2 Thes 3:7-9).

4:17 Timothy, Paul's child in the faith and one of his closest associates, was with Paul when he first preached the Good News in Corinth (see 2 Cor 1:19). Paul sent him to faithfully communicate what it means to follow Christ Jesus. See "Timothy" at Acts 16:1-3, p. 1860.

4:18-20 Because of his sending Timothy, some may have concluded that Paul lacked the courage to visit them himself, but in fact Paul was deeply engrossed in his work in Ephesus at this time (Acts 19:8-20; see note on Acts 19:10). He would indeed visit them soon (see 16:5-9; Acts 19:21-22; 20:1-3; cp. 2 Cor 1:15-2:4) and would confront those who publicly opposed him and show that they were nothing more than big talkers. His life and words would demonstrate the reality of God's power (see also 2:4).

5:1-8 Paul confronts sexual immorality in the church and instructs the Christians to expel a shameless offender from their fellowship.

5:1 sexual immorality: A man was having sex with his stepmother (literally his father's wife). Such behavior even pagans didn't do: It violated both the law of Moses (see Lev 18:7-8) and Roman law (Gaius, Institutes 1.63).

5:2 The Corinthian Christians were proud (see 4:8, 10, 18; 5:6), when they should have been mourning in sorrow and shame over such sin among them. • remove this man from your fellowship: This instruction might presuppose that the man had refused their appeals, or that such blatant sin required immediate discipline (cp. Matt 18:15-18).

5:3 in the spirit (or in spirit): Paul's spiritual unity with them and the authority he had received from God through the Spirit were effective among them.

5:4 in the name of the Lord Jesus. You must call a meeting of the church: Or In the name of the Lord Jesus, you must call a meeting of the church. The punctuation of this verse is uncertain.

5:5 The instruction to throw this man out is not in the Greek text, but is implied from 5:2, 13. • and hand him over to Satan: Cp. 1 Tim 1:20. Those who are outside of God's church are under the power and control of Satan (see Eph 2:2; 1 Jn 5:19). • so that his sinful nature will be destroyed: (or so that his body will be destroyed; literally for the destruction of the flesh): The flesh may be interpreted figuratively as a reference to his evil desires or literally as his physical life (i.e., so that he will die). • and he himself (literally and the spirit) will be saved: Perhaps he would repent and not be condemned (cp. 2 Cor 2:5-8). • on the day the Lord returns: Literally in the day of the Lord, which includes the final judgment. • the Lord: Other manuscripts read the Lord Jesus; still others read our Lord Jesus Christ.

5:6-7 Yeast was often a symbol of sin (cp. Matt 16:6, 12; Mark 8:15; Luke 12:1; Gal 5:9). Jews ceremonially of dough? ⁷Get rid of the old ^k“yeast” by removing this wicked person from among you. Then you will be like a fresh batch of dough made without yeast, which is what you really are. Christ, our Passover Lamb, has been sacrificed for us. ⁸So let us celebrate the festival, not with the old ^abread of wickedness and evil, but with the new bread of sincerity and truth.

Disciplining Christians Who Sin

⁹When I wrote to you before, I told you not to associate with people who indulge in sexual sin. ¹⁰But I wasn’t talking about unbelievers who indulge in sexual sin, or are greedy, or cheat people, or ^bworship idols. You would have to leave this world to avoid people like that. ¹¹I meant that you are not to associate with anyone who claims to be a believer yet indulges in sexual sin, or is greedy, or worships idols, or is abusive, or is a drunkard, or cheats people. Don’t even eat with such people.

¹²It isn’t my responsibility to judge outsiders, but it certainly is your responsibility to judge those inside the church who are sinning. ¹³God will judge those on the outside; but as the Scriptures say, “You must remove the evil person from among you.”

Avoiding Lawsuits against Fellow Christians

6 When one of you has a dispute with another believer, how dare you file a lawsuit and ask a secular court to decide the matter instead of taking it to other believers! ²Don’t you realize that someday we believers will judge the world? And since you are going to judge the world, can’t you decide even these little things among yourselves? ³Don’t you realize that we will judge ^cangels? So you should surely be able to resolve ordinary disputes in this life. ⁴If you have legal disputes about such matters, why go to outside judges who are not respected by the church? ⁵I am saying this to shame you. Isn’t there anyone in all the church who is wise enough to decide these issues? ⁶But instead, one believer sues another—right in front of unbelievers!

⁷Even to have such lawsuits with one another is a defeat for you. Why not just accept the injustice and leave it at that? Why not let yourselves be cheated? ⁸Instead, you yourselves are the ones who do wrong and cheat even your fellow believers.

⁹Don’t you realize that those who do wrong will not inherit the Kingdom of God? Don’t fool yourselves. Those who indulge in sexual sin, or who ^dworship idols, or commit adultery, or are male prostitutes, or practice homosexuality, ¹⁰or are thieves, or greedy people, or drunkards, or are abusive, or cheat people—none of these will inherit the Kingdom of God. ¹¹Some of you were once like that. But you were cleansed; you were cleansed their homes of yeast before the annual Passover meal (Exod 12:19; 13:7). • Get rid of . . . this wicked person: Sin, if unaddressed, could spread throughout the church, just as yeast spreads throughout a batch of dough.

5:7-8 Paul draws an analogy between the traditional Jewish Passover celebration and the sacrifice of Christ. In the Passover celebration, a lamb was sacrificed and unleavened bread was eaten (see Exod 12:1-27; 13:3-7). The sacrifice of Christ, which occurred at Passover (Matt 26:2; cp. John 1:29; 1 Pet 1:19), results in the removal of sin for believers. • has been sacrificed for us: Literally has been sacrificed. • not with the old bread: Literally not with old leaven. • but with the new bread: Literally but with unleavened [bread].

5:9-13 The church is to discipline anyone in the church who is known to be living in sin.

5:9 When I wrote to you before refers to an unknown earlier letter. • Sexual sin is any form of illicit sexual activity (see 6:9).

5:10 Paul generally encouraged believers not to separate themselves from the company of sinful unbelievers (e.g., 10:27).

5:11 Separation from a professing believer (literally brother) who was living in sin was intended to reinforce and maintain the high moral standards of the Christian community. The social pressure it exerted might also encourage repentance in an erring brother or sister (cp. 2 Thes 3:6, 14).

5:12-13 Christians are not called to judge (i.e., discipline) sin in unbelievers, but in believers. • as the Scriptures say: This quotation is from Deut 17:7.

6:1-11 When serious differences arise between two Christians, they are not to be settled by a secular court, but by other believers.

6:1 other believers: Literally God’s holy people; also in 6:2.

6:2-3 Someday we believers will judge the world—and even angels—as associates of the Son of Man, who is the ultimate Judge of all people (cp. Dan 7:13, 22, 27; Matt 19:28; John 5:27; Acts 17:31; Rev 3:21; 20:4). In light of this responsibility, Christians should be able to settle their disagreements over comparatively little things.

6:4-6 I am saying this to shame you: It is a scandal for Christians to have to resolve their conflicts in secular courts, as if there were no one in the church sufficiently capable of resolving them.

6:6 one believer: Literally one brother. See note on 1:10.

6:7 Even to have such lawsuits with one another is a defeat for you: To sue a fellow believer reflects self-interest rather than concern for the welfare of others or the glory of God. • Why not just accept the injustice? Christians are called to follow the example of Christ’s self-sacrifice (see Matt 5:38-42).

6:8 Far from following Christ’s example or his teachings about sacrificial love, some of the Corinthian believers were cheating even their fellow believers (literally even the brothers). Both their actions and their attitudes were wrong.

6:9-11 Those who willingly sin have no share in the Kingdom of God. The lives of Christians must reflect the faith they confess.

6:9 Don’t fool yourselves: Sin is deceptive; believers should not take it lightly, as if it were somehow acceptable (Jer 17:9). • Continuing to indulge unrepentantly in sexual sin indicates a heart that has not been renewed by the Holy

Avoiding Sexual Sin

¹²You say, "I am allowed to do anything"—but not everything is good for you. And even though "I am allowed to do anything," I must not become a slave to anything. ¹³You say, "Food was made for the stomach, and the stomach for food." (This is true, though someday God will do away with both of them.) But you can't say that our bodies were made for sexual immorality. They were made for the Lord, and the Lord cares about our bodies. ¹⁴And God will raise us from the dead by his power, just as he raised our Lord from the dead.

¹⁵Don't you realize that your bodies are actually parts of Christ? Should a man take his body, which is part of Christ, and join it to a prostitute? Never! ¹⁶And don't you realize that if a man joins himself to a prostitute, he becomes one body with her? For the Scriptures say, "The two are united into one." ¹⁷But the person who is joined to the Lord is one spirit with him.

2 Pet 1:3-4

The NT writers emphasize the importance of holy living in the area of sexual relations. In contrast to the so-called sexual freedom of the Greco-Roman world, the sexual life of God's people is to be characterized by faithfulness and purity (1 Thes 4:3-8). Sexual relationships are to be restricted to marriage alone (1 Cor 7:1-9, 36-37; see also "Human Sexuality" at Gen 1:27-28, p. 23).

God has made Christians holy by the work of his Holy Spirit (1 Cor 6:11; 2 Thes 2:13), and they are therefore called to live as his own holy people (1 Cor 1:2). God has given them everything they need to live a holy life in this world (2 Pet 1:3-4). As a result, their way of life is to be distinctly different from that of the unholy world around them. Every part of their life is to reflect the transforming work of the Holy Spirit (Rom 12:2). It is therefore inappropriate for anyone who is united to Christ to have sexual relations with anyone outside of marriage. Such relations violate the Christian's body, which has become a sanctuary of the living God and is therefore claimed by God for himself (1 Cor 6:12-20).

Though homosexual activity was accepted in Greco-Roman culture, it is condemned throughout the Bible. In both the OT and the NT, homosexual activity is viewed as a perversion of God's intentions for men and women (Lev 18:22; 20:13; Rom 1:26-27; 1 Cor 6:9-11; 1 Tim 1:10).

Those who freely give themselves to illicit sexual relations, whether homosexual or heterosexual, will not inherit the Kingdom of God (1 Cor 6:9-10; Gal 5:19-21; Col 3:5-6), but will suffer God's judgment (see 2 Pet 2:1-3:13). As with all sin, though, forgiveness and cleansing are available for those who turn to Christ with faith and repentance (Acts 2:38; Rom 3:21-26). In every way, God's people are to live in holiness and godliness (2 Pet 3:11), in accord with the desires of their Creator and Judge.

Spirit. Sexual sins include adultery (see Exod 20:14; Matt 5:27-28) and practicing homosexuality (cp. Lev 18:22; 20:13; Rom 1:26-27; 1 Tim 1:10).

6:10 none of these will inherit the Kingdom of God: The repetition of this point (also 6:9) emphasizes the severe consequences of living in sin (for similar warnings, see Gal 5:19-21; Eph 5:5; cp. Col 3:5-6).

6:11 Following the strong warning of 6:9-10, Paul reaffirms his confidence in the genuineness of his readers' conversion. • you were cleansed (cp. Acts 22:16): Cleanliness is a metaphor for the righteousness that comes from forgiveness (see Titus 3:5). They were made holy by God himself (see 1:2). • They were made right with God by their identification with the Lord Jesus Christ and by the transforming work of the Spirit of our God. God has forgiven them and views them as righteous (see Rom 1:17; 3:21-26), and their lives have really been changed for the good (see Titus 3:5-7).

6:12-20 Paul gives several reasons why Christians must not engage in sexual immorality.

6:12 "I am allowed to do anything" seems to have been a popular attitude among some Christians who were sexually immoral. Paul counters this attitude by emphasizing that not all things are helpful; true Christians must lead disciplined lives (cp. 10:23; Gal 5:13).

6:13-14 "Food was made for the stomach, and the stomach for food": This statement was apparently used by some Corinthian Christians to rationalize their sexual immorality on the analogy that "the body was made for sex, and sex for the body." It is a false analogy, because our bodies . . . were made for the Lord, and sexual immorality does not glorify him. In light of his concern for our bodies and the coming resurrection from the dead, our bodies must be used for holy purposes in God's service.

6:15-17 To be a Christian is to be spiritually joined to Christ in both life and death (cp. Rom 6:3-11). As a result, believers' bodies have become parts of Christ (cp. 12:12-28; Rom 12:4-5). This spiritual union (cp. John 14:20; 17:21-23) means that they are not free to violate their bodies by physical union with a prostitute.

6:16 This quotation is from Gen 2:24.

¹⁸Run from sexual sin! No other sin so clearly affects the body as this one does. For sexual immorality is a sin against your own body. ¹⁹Don't you realize that your body is the temple of the Holy Spirit, who lives in you and was given to you by God? You do not belong to yourself, ²⁰for God bought you with a high price. So you must honor God with your body.

3. PAUL ANSWERS THE CORINTHIANS' QUESTIONS (7:1–16:4)

Marriage, Divorce, and Singleness (7:1-40)

7 Now regarding the questions you asked in your letter. Yes, it is good to abstain from sexual relations. ²But because there is so much sexual immorality, each man should have his own wife, and each woman should have her own husband.

³The husband should fulfill his wife's sexual needs, and the wife should fulfill her husband's needs. ⁴The wife gives authority over her body to her husband, and the husband gives authority over his body to his wife.

⁵Do not deprive each other of sexual relations, unless you both agree to refrain from sexual intimacy for a limited time so you can give yourselves more completely to prayer. Afterward, you should come together again so that Satan won't be able to tempt you because of your lack of self-control. ⁶I say this as a concession, not as a command. ⁷But I wish everyone were single, just as I am. Yet each person has a special 'gift from God, of one kind or another.

⁸So I say to those who aren't married and to widows—it's better to stay unmarried, just as I am. ⁹But if they can't control themselves, they should go ahead and marry. It's better to marry than to burn with lust.

¹⁰But for those who are married, I have a command that comes not from me, but from the Lord. A wife must not leave her husband. ¹¹But if she does leave him, let her remain single or else be ⁸reconciled to him. And the husband must not leave his wife.

¹²Now, I will speak to the rest of you, though I do not have a direct command from the Lord. If a fellow believer has a wife who is not a believer and she is willing to continue living with him, he must not leave her. ¹³And if a believing woman has a husband who is not a believer and he is willing to continue living with her, she must not leave him. ¹⁴For the believing wife brings holiness to her marriage, and the believing husband brings holiness to his marriage. Otherwise, your children would not be holy, but now they are holy. ¹⁵(But if the husband or wife who isn't a believer insists on leaving, let them go. In such cases the believing

6:18-20 For Christians, the body is the temple of the Holy Spirit (see note on 3:16-17; cp. 2 Cor 6:16). Sexual sin violates this sacred sanctuary and the divine presence. • You do not belong to yourself: Christians can no longer claim their bodies as their own, as they have been bought . . . with a high price, the blood of Christ (cp. 7:23; Rev 5:9), and every part of their lives has been claimed by Christ for God's glory (see Rom 14:7-9; 2 Cor 5:14-15).

7:1-16:4 Paul now addresses the questions the Corinthians had asked him by letter, beginning with the question of marriage (cp. 7:25; 8:1; 12:1; 16:1).

7:1-40 Paul consistently states his strong conviction that true Christians, as slaves of Christ, are wholly claimed by Christ the Lord for his own service. Because of this, he recommends that Christians remain single, but concedes that getting married is no sin.

7:1 it is good to abstain from sexual relations (or it is good to live a celibate life; literally It is good for a man not to touch a woman): Both Paul and Jesus encouraged the ideal of a celibate life for God's sake (cp. Matt 19:10-12). Paul's emphasis on celibacy is shaped by his expectation that the end of the age is near (see 7:29-31).

7:2 Because of widespread sexual immorality, Paul encourages most Christians to get married (7:9). He tempers the ideal of the celibate life with awareness of physical realities.

7:3-4 Because of the temptation to sexual immorality, married Christians must always be considerate of the sexual needs of their spouses. Sexual intimacy is a mutual right for both spouses in a marriage and must not be withheld. Marriage means yielding the authority over one's body to one's spouse, though such authority is clearly not to be abused.

7:6-7 Paul's preference is singleness, but he recognizes that both marriage and the single life are among the gifts that God gives to various people.

7:8-9 Paul's general advice is that it's better to stay unmarried because of the opportunities it provides to serve Christ without distraction (7:32-35). But even with its distractions, an honorable marriage is much better than living a life dominated by unsatisfied sexual desire.

7:10-11 Paul advises Christian couples contemplating divorce. • a command that comes . . . from the Lord: This doesn't mean that Paul's other instructions (see 7:12, 25, 40) have less authority. It is an indication that this particular counsel is grounded in known sayings of Jesus (see Matt 5:32; 19:9; Mark 10:11-12; Luke 16:18). • But if she does leave him: Paul acknowledges that some couples have great difficulty in living together, but even in that case they must honor their marriage vows to be faithful to their spouse alone (see 7:27; Rom 7:2).

7:12-13 Paul now turns to the case of a Christian married to an unbeliever. • I do not have a direct command from the Lord: Paul knew of no saying of Jesus that was directly applicable, but his counsel is consistent: Believers must be faithful and honor their marriage commitment. • a fellow believer: Literally a brother.

7:14 By remaining committed to the marriage, the Christian brings holiness to the unbelieving spouse. Such holiness extends to the children, who also benefit from the holiness of a Christian parent (cp. Mal 2:15). • the believing husband: Literally the brother.

7:15 If the unbeliever breaks up the marriage, the believing husband or wife (literally the brother or sister) is free to let them go. • has called you: Some manuscripts read has called us. • God's desire is that his people live in peace.

husband or wife is no longer bound to the other, for God has called you to live in peace.) ¹⁶Don't you wives realize that your husbands might be saved because of you? And don't you husbands realize that your wives might be saved because of you?

¹⁷Each of you should continue to live in whatever situation the Lord has placed you, and remain as you were when God first called you. This is my rule for all the churches. ¹⁸For instance, a man who was circumcised before he became a believer should not try to reverse it. And the man who was uncircumcised when he became a believer should not be circumcised now. ¹⁹For it makes no difference whether or not a man has been circumcised. The important thing is to keep God's commandments.

²⁰Yes, each of you should remain as you were when God called you. ²¹Are you a slave?

Don't let that worry you—but if you get a chance to be free, take it. ²²And remember, if you were a ^hslave when the Lord called you, you are now free in the Lord. And if you were free when the Lord called you, you are now a ^hslave of Christ. ²³God paid a high price for you, so don't be enslaved by the world. ²⁴Each of you, dear brothers and sisters, should remain as you were when God first called you.

²⁵Now regarding your question about the young women who are not yet married. I do not have a command from the Lord for them. But the Lord in his mercy has given me wisdom that can be trusted, and I will share it with you. ²⁶Because of the present crisis, I think it is best to remain as you are. ²⁷If you have a wife, do not seek to end the marriage. If you do not have a wife, do not seek to get married. ²⁸But if you do

To many modern readers, the NT seems to portray an extreme view of the Christian life. Believers are called to forfeit their rights, suffer, and even die for the sake of Christ (Mark 8:34-36). They are to turn away from the things of the world that everybody else lives for (1 Jn 2:15-17) and even to despise their life in this world (John 12:24-25). So also Paul encourages them to give up the normal desires for marriage and family and remain single for Christ, if they have that spiritual gift (7:7).

What lies behind such an apparently extreme view of life? For Paul, it is the awareness that believers are claimed by Christ and so belong to him, body and soul. When Christ died, he bought them for himself (6:20). They must no longer live simply for themselves and their own desires (2 Cor 5:14-15). Having died to their own personal interests, they are called to live entirely for their Lord (Rom 14:7-9).

For true Christians, obedience to Christ is not an onerous burden, but a way to express their love and loyalty to the one who died for them (Mark 12:30). For the people of Christ, the whole of life is to be a joyful expression of thanks for the grace God has shown them in Jesus Christ. They gladly yield their lives to serve the one who gave up everything for them. By dying to themselves, they make it possible for him to live in and through them (Gal 2:19-20).

rather than in the intolerable conflict of a mixed marriage no longer desired by the non-Christian spouse.

7:16 There is always the hope that the believing mate will win the unbelieving mate to faith in Christ. However, the Greek text is ambiguous, and could also be interpreted as saying that there is no guarantee that the believing mate will ever win over the unbelieving spouse.

7:17-24 Paul states as a general principle that Christians should accept their God-given lot in life.

7:17 As a general rule, Christians should continue in the social situation in which they first became believers (see 7:20, 24).

7:18-19 Circumcision illustrates the general principle just stated (7:17). All Jewish males were circumcised. Some, seeking acceptance in Gentile society, attempted to reverse the procedure surgically (see 1 Maccabees 1:14-15; Josephus, Antiquities 12.5.1), a practice Paul discourages. Circumcision has little importance (see also Rom 2:28-29; 4:9-12; Gal 5:2-6; 6:12-15; Phil 3:2-3), compared with keeping God's commandments, such as the commands to love God and others.

7:21-23 Slavery illustrates the general principle stated in 7:17, 20, 24. Slavery was widespread in the Greco-Roman world, and many Christian converts were slaves serving rich families. Like circumcision, one's own slavery is a relatively unimportant issue for the Christian. Even as a slave, the Christian is spiritually free from the power of sin, death, and the law (see Rom 6:14; 7:4-6; 8:2). And as a freeman, the believer is still a slave of Christ (see Eph 6:5-6; 1 Pet 2:16). • As one who has been purchased at a high price (see 6:20), the free Christian ought not to be enslaved by the world (literally don't become slaves of people).

7:24 dear brothers and sisters: Literally brothers; also in 7:29. See note on 1:10.

7:25-35 Paul gives three reasons why it is generally preferable for single people to remain unmarried.

7:25-28 First, single people have fewer everyday problems than married people.

7:26 the present crisis: Or the pressures of life.

get married, it is not a sin. And if a young woman gets married, it is not a sin. However, those who get married at this time will have troubles, and I am trying to spare you those problems.

²⁹But let me say this, dear brothers and sisters: The time that remains is very short. So from now on, those with wives should not focus only on their marriage. ³⁰Those who weep or who rejoice or who buy things should not be absorbed by their weeping or their joy or their possessions. ³¹Those who use the things of the world should not become attached to them. For this world as we know it will soon pass away.

³²I want you to be free from the concerns of this life. An unmarried man can spend his time doing the Lord's work and thinking how to please him. ³³But a married man has to think about his earthly responsibilities and how to please his wife. ³⁴His interests are divided. In the same way, a woman who is no longer married or has never been married can be devoted to the Lord and holy in body and in ¹spirit. But a married woman has to think about her earthly responsibilities and how to please her husband. ³⁵I am saying this for your benefit, not to place restrictions on you. I want you to do whatever will help you serve the Lord best, with as few distractions as possible.

³⁶But if a man thinks that he's treating his fiancée improperly and will inevitably give in to his passion, let him marry her as he wishes. It is not a sin. ³⁷But if he has decided firmly not to marry and there is no urgency and he can control his passion, he does well not to marry. ³⁸So the person who marries his fiancée does well, and the person who doesn't marry does even better.

³⁹A wife is bound to her husband as long as he lives. If her husband dies, she is free to marry anyone she wishes, but only if he loves the Lord. ⁴⁰But in my opinion it would be better for her to stay single, and I think I am giving you counsel from God's Spirit when I say this.

Rights and Self-Limitation (8:1–11:1)

Food Sacrificed to Idols

8 Now regarding your question about food that has been offered to idols. Yes, we know that "we all have knowledge" about this issue. But while knowledge makes us feel important, it is ¹love that strengthens the church. ²Anyone who claims to know all the answers doesn't really know very much. ³But the person who loves God is the one whom God recognizes.

⁴So, what about eating meat that has been offered to idols? Well, we all know that an idol is not really a god and that there is only one God. ⁵There may be so-called gods both in heaven and on earth, and some people actually worship many gods and many lords. ⁶But for us,

There is one God, the Father, by whom all things were created,
and for whom we live.

And there is one Lord, Jesus Christ, through whom all things were created, and through whom we live.

⁷However, not all believers know this. Some are accustomed to thinking of idols

7:29-31 Second (see note on 7:25-35), because the end is near, Christians ought not let marriage and the things of the world be their dominant concerns. Their primary concern should be Christ and eternity.

7:32-35 Third (see note on 7:25-35), because marriage brings earthly responsibilities and divided interests, those who choose to remain single can devote their lives more fully to serving Christ.

7:36-38 Paul recommends celibate life in preference to marriage, but he allows for marriage if a person's sexual desires prove too much of a temptation. Those in firm control of their sexual desires are encouraged to choose the celibate life.

7:39 A widow may marry another man, but only if he loves the Lord (literally only in the Lord). Paul strongly discouraged the marriage of Christians to unbelievers (cp. 2 Cor 6:14-16).

8:1-11:1 Paul now addresses the Corinthians' question about food that has been offered to idols: Throughout the Greco-Roman world, there were temples and shrines dedicated to pagan gods. It was common for worshipers of those gods to offer animal sacrifices, and the excess meat was then sold in the market by pagan priests. The question inevitably arose as to whether Christians were free to eat such meat. Is meat taken from an animal that has been sacrificed to a pagan god inherently defiled? Paul makes no mention here of the prohibition made by the Jewish Christian leaders in Acts 15:20, 29, but emphasizes that one's actions must be governed, above all, by loving consideration of others. After introducing the topic (ch 8), he provides several illustrations of the principle of giving up one's rights for the sake of others (ch 9), and then gives his advice on three specific situations in which believers faced this issue.

8:1 "We all have knowledge" was apparently a common saying of the Corinthian Christians. The knowledge in question is religious knowledge, paraded by certain Christians who might have felt their superior understanding made them unaccountable to the opinions of others.

8:2-3 It is those who truly love God—not just those who know all the answers—who are acknowledged by God as his own (see 13:12; Gal 4:9). * the person who loves God is the one whom God recognizes: Some manuscripts read the person who loves has full knowledge.

8:4-6 In reality, the idols to which such meat is sacrificed are not gods, for there is one God (Deut 6:4; cp. Deut 4:35, 39; 10:19-20). He is the Creator of everything, including the meat in question. The only ultimate reality is God, the Father, and the one Lord, Jesus Christ, through whom all things were created (cp. John 1:3; Col 1:16; Heb 1:2).

as being real, so when they eat food that has been offered to idols, they think of it as the worship of real gods, and their weak consciences are violated. ⁸It's true that we can't win God's approval by what we eat. We don't lose anything if we don't eat it, and we don't gain anything if we do.

⁹But you must be careful so that your freedom does not cause others with a weaker conscience to ¹⁰stumble. ¹⁰For if others see you—with your “superior knowledge”—eating in the temple of an idol, won't they be encouraged to violate their conscience by eating food that has been offered to an idol?

¹¹So because of your superior knowledge, a weak believer for whom Christ died will be destroyed. ¹²And when you sin against other believers by encouraging them to do something they believe is wrong, you are sinning against Christ. ¹³So if what I eat ^acauses another believer to sin, I will never eat meat again as long as I live—for I don't want to cause another believer to ^astumble.

Paul Gives Up His Rights

9 Am I not as free as anyone else? Am I not an ^aapostle? Haven't I seen Jesus our Lord with my own eyes? Isn't it because of my work that you belong to the Lord? ²Even if others think I am not an apostle, I certainly am to you. You yourselves are “proof that I am the Lord's apostle.”

³This is my answer to those who question my authority. ⁴“Don't we have the right to live in your homes and share your meals? ⁵Don't we have the right to bring a believing wife with us as the other apostles and the Lord's brothers do, and as Peter does? ⁶Or is it only Barnabas and I who have to work to support ourselves?

⁷What soldier has to pay his own expenses? What farmer plants a vineyard and doesn't have the right to eat some of its fruit? What shepherd cares for a flock of sheep and isn't allowed to drink some of the milk? ⁸Am I expressing merely a human opinion, or does the law say the same thing? ⁹For the law of Moses says, “You must not muzzle an ox to keep it from eating as it treads out the grain.” Was God thinking only about oxen when he said this? ¹⁰Wasn't he actually speaking to us? Yes, it was written for us, so that the one who plows and the one who threshes the grain might both expect a share of the harvest.

¹¹Since we have planted spiritual seed among you, aren't we entitled to a harvest of physical food and drink? ¹²If you support others who preach to you, shouldn't we have an even greater right to be supported?

8:7 Many of the Corinthian believers, having grown up in the pagan world, viewed eating such meat as an expression of devotion to the god to whom the meat had been sacrificed. For such Christians, to eat meat presented to an idol would violate their weak consciences (see 8:10-12; 10:28-29; Rom 14:13-23).

8:8 The Corinthians' relationship with the living God was not affected by eating or not eating, whatever the source of the food (cp. Rom 14:17).

8:9-10 Believers must be careful that what they do (such as eating sacrificial meat) does not cause others . . . to stumble (cp. Rom 14:13, 20-21; Gal 5:13).

8:11 For believers to insist on eating food offered to idols because their superior knowledge assured them that they are free to eat such food could destroy less mature Christians (who understood eating this meat as an expression of worship of pagan gods). • believer: Literally brother; also in 8:13. See note on 1:10. • for whom Christ died: Cp. Rom 14:15.

8:12 To make immature believers (literally brothers; see note on 1:10) sin by violating their conscience is the same as sinning against Christ, who has claimed them for himself (cp. Matt 25:40, 45).

8:13 Personal rights must be subordinated to the larger commitment not to cause another believer to stumble.

9:1-27 Continuing the argument begun in 8:1 (see note on 8:1-11:1), Paul cites personal examples of his giving up his own rights for the sake of other people.

9:1-2 These four rhetorical questions each expect a positive answer. The first, following his discussion in ch 8, is an assertion of Paul's freedom from Jewish ritual obligations—though, as he later emphasizes (see 9:19-23), he freely accommodates himself to the practices of Jews in his desire to win them to Christ. The other three rhetorical questions are assertions of Paul's apostolic authority, which was apparently being questioned by some in Corinth. • For those who might be skeptical, the reality of Paul's apostolic calling was verified by his firsthand encounter with Jesus our Lord on the road to Damascus (see 15:8; Acts 9:3-6, 17). Also, the Corinthians themselves, who came to faith through Paul's evangelism (see Acts 18:1-11), were proof (literally the seal) of his status as an apostle.

9:3 my answer (literally my defense): This is a legal term for the argument made in response to accusations.

• those who question my authority: Literally those who examine me. See 2 Cor 11-12 for another response to their challenge.

9:4 As an apostle, Paul had the right to expect food and housing from those to whom he ministered (cp. 9:14; Luke 10:7-8). Nevertheless, to avoid any possible criticism, he did not take advantage of this privilege (see 9:6, 12, 14-15, 18; 2 Cor 11:7-9; 12:13-14).

9:5 For the sake of Christ and the Good News, Paul had given up the right to have a believing wife (literally a sister a wife). • the Lord's brothers: See Mark 6:3 for their names. • Peter (Greek Cephas): Mark 1:30 also speaks of Peter as married.

9:7-10 These examples support Paul's point that he and other Christian workers had a right to be supported by those they served.

9:9 This quotation is from Deut 25:4.

9:12 Compared with other Christian workers supported by the Corinthians, Paul claimed an even greater right to be supported by them, because he was the one who first brought the Good News to them. But to avoid criticism, he had never used this right (see 9:6, 14-15, 18; cp. Acts 18:3; 2 Cor 11:7-9; 12:13-14).

But we have never used this right. We would rather put up with anything than be an obstacle to the Good News about Christ.

¹³Don't you realize that those who work in the temple get their meals from the offerings brought to the temple? And those who serve at the altar get a share of the sacrificial offerings. ¹⁴In the same way, the Lord ordered that those who preach the Good News should be supported by those who benefit from it. ¹⁵Yet I have never used any of these rights. And I am not writing this to suggest that I want to start now. In fact, I would rather die than lose my right to boast about preaching without charge. ¹⁶Yet preaching the Good News is not something I can boast about. I am compelled by God to do it. How terrible for me if I didn't preach the Good News!

¹⁷If I were doing this on my own initiative, I would deserve payment. But I have no choice, for God has given me this sacred trust. ¹⁸What then is my pay? It is the opportunity to preach the Good News without charging anyone. That's why I never demand my rights when I preach the Good News.

¹⁹Even though I am a free man with no master, I have become a slave to all people to bring many to Christ. ²⁰When I was with the Jews, I lived like a Jew to bring the Jews to Christ. When I was with those who follow the Jewish law, I too lived under that law. Even though I am not subject to the law, I did this so I could bring to Christ those who are under the law. ²¹When I am with the Gentiles who do not follow the Jewish law, I too live apart from that law so I can bring them to Christ. But I do not ignore the law of God; I obey the law of Christ.

²²When I am with those who are weak, I share their weakness, for I want to bring the weak to Christ. Yes, I try to find common ground with everyone, doing everything I can to save some. ²³I do everything to spread the Good News and share in its blessings.

²⁴Don't you realize that in a race everyone runs, but only one person gets the prize? So run to win! ²⁵All athletes are disciplined in their training. They do it to win a prize that will fade away, but we do it for an eternal prize. ²⁶So I run with purpose in every step. I am not just shadowboxing. ²⁷I discipline my body like an athlete, training it to do what it should. Otherwise, I fear that after preaching to others I myself might be disqualified.

Lessons from Israel's Idolatry

10 I don't want you to forget, dear brothers and sisters, about our ancestors in the wilderness long ago. All of them were guided by a cloud that moved ahead of them, and all of them walked through the sea on dry ground. ²In the cloud and in the sea, all of them were baptized as followers of Moses. ³All of them ate the same spiritual food, ⁴and all of them drank the same spiritual water. For they drank from 9:13 Paul might be referring to Levites and priests at God's temple in Jerusalem (see Deut 18:1-4; cp. Lev 6:16-17, 26; Num 18:8-32), but the pagan priests in temples around Corinth would have done similarly.

9:14 the Lord ordered: See Matt 10:10; Luke 10:7; see also Gal 6:6; 1 Tim 5:17-18.

9:15 Paul had never pressed his rights, nor was he now seeking to do so. Rather, he was illustrating the importance of giving up one's rights for the sake of others (cp. 8:13).

9:16 compelled by God to do it: Acts 22:14-15; 26:16-18.

9:18 Paul's satisfaction came from preaching the Good News without charging anyone. This is another example of the way Christians must be willing to give up their rights out of consideration for others (cp. 8:13).

9:19-23 Paul places himself in the position of a slave in the household. He shows how far he was willing to go in adjusting his lifestyle and behavior to that of the people to whom he was preaching in order to win them to Christ.

9:21 the Gentiles who do not follow the Jewish law: Literally those without the law.

9:24-27 To illustrate how seriously the Corinthians must take the discipline of their salvation, Paul alludes to the familiar Isthmian games, an athletic competition held every two years in Corinth. • All athletes are disciplined: Strict self-discipline is required for athletes competing for a prize. In Paul's day, athletes endured months of rigorous training before competing. In the same way, strict self-discipline (cp. Gal 5:22-23) is required if a person is to gain the eternal prize of salvation. Christians must submit to the daily discipline of obeying Christ. • a prize that will fade away: Athletic prizes were often wreaths made out of laurel leaves (cp. 2 Tim 4:8; Jas 1:12; 1 Pet 5:4; Rev 2:10).

9:26 I am not just shadowboxing: Christians must engage in the real contest of obedience to Christ rather than merely going through the motions.

9:27 I fear that . . . I myself might be disqualified: Those who are disqualified from a sporting event have no hope of winning the prize. To avoid losing the eternal prize, Paul disciplined himself severely, like an athlete, so that he would not be led away from Christ into a life of sin (see 9:25; Heb 12:1).

10:1-22 After illustrating from his own life the key principle of giving up one's rights for the sake of others (ch 9), Paul turns back to the specific question of eating meat sacrificed to idols (8:1-13). He warns believers of God's wrath on those who sin, especially on those who engage in idolatry.

10:1-11 Even though the Israelites were God's people and experienced his salvation and provision (see Exod 13:21-22; 14:21-29), they still came under his judgment because of their disobedience.

10:1 dear brothers and sisters: Literally brothers. See note on 1:10.

10:2 all of them were baptized: Paul draws a parallel with the baptized Corinthians.

10:3-4 Spiritual food . . . spiritual water: God graciously and supernaturally provided food and water in the wilderness, especially for the people the spiritual ⁴rock that traveled with them, and that ⁵rock was Christ. ⁵Yet God was not pleased with most of them, and their bodies were scattered in the wilderness.

⁶These things happened as a ⁷warning to us, so that we would not crave evil things as they did, ⁷or ⁸worship idols as some of them did. As the Scriptures say, "The people celebrated with feasting and drinking, and they indulged in pagan revelry." ⁸And we must not engage in sexual immorality as some of them did, causing 23,000 of them to die in one day.

⁹Nor should we put Christ to the test, as some of them did and then died from snakebites. ¹⁰And don't grumble as some of them did, and then were destroyed by the angel of death. ¹¹These things happened to them as examples for us. They were written down to warn us who live at the end of the age.

¹⁴So, my dear friends, flee from the ¹⁵worship of idols. ¹⁵You are reasonable people. And when we break the bread, aren't we ¹⁷sharing in the body of Christ? ¹⁷And though we are many, we all eat from one loaf of bread, showing that we are one body. ¹⁸Think about the people of Israel. Weren't they united by eating the sacrifices at the altar?

I am saying that these sacrifices are offered to ²⁰demons, not to God. And I don't want you to participate with ²¹demons. ²¹You cannot drink from the cup of the Lord and from the cup of demons, too. Paul nowhere tells believers that they should defend their rights. On the contrary, he emphasizes that believers must always be willing to give up their rights for the sake of others. Believers are free from many of the rules that others feel bound by, but they must always be ready to give up their freedoms if their actions would cause someone else to sin (8:1-13; 10:23-33; Rom 14:15-22). Defending one's own personal rights is of little value to Paul.

Paul, like Jesus, sees loving others as one of the most important principles in life (13:1-13; Matt 5:43-44; 22:37-39; Rom 13:8-10; Gal 5:6). Real Christian love is always sacrificial (13:4-7), like Christ's own love. Believers ought never to focus on what is best for themselves, but on what is best for others (10:32-33). The sacrificial death of Christ for sinners (Rom 5:6-8) is the model that reveals the nature of true love (Rom 15:1-5; 1 Jn 4:9-12). The whole of a believer's life is to be an expression of Christ's sacrificial love. This will never be easy, for it means people must consider themselves dead to their own desires.

of Israel (see Exod 16:4-35; 17:1-7; Num 20:2-17). The Corinthians' situation was analogous. • The spiritual rock that traveled with them alludes to the rock that Moses struck to get water (Exod 17:1-7; Num 20:2-17). Early Jewish tradition understood both occurrences to involve the same rock that was traveling with them. • that rock was Christ: Paul's interpretation of Israel's experience provides a parallel between God's provision in the wilderness and the Lord's Supper (10:14-18; cp. John 4:14; 7:37-39; Rev 22:17). Both the Israelites and Christians share in the spiritual provisions of Christ; and just as the Israelites were therefore judged for their sins, so Christians will be judged if they sin (10:5-22).

10:7 worship idols: See Exod 32:6.

• Feasting and drinking refers to celebrations in honor of pagan gods; pagan revelry suggests wild partying with drinking and sex.

10:8 See Num 25:1-9.

10:9 Nor . . . put Christ to the test: See Deut 6:16; Ps 78:18-20; Matt 4:7. • Christ: Some manuscripts read the Lord, which probably represents a scribe's attempt to harmonize with the OT context.

10:10 See Num 16:13-14, 41-49.

10:12-13 Paul gives the Corinthians a final warning against falling into sin (cp. Rom 11:20-22) and reminds them that God is faithful (see 1:9; cp. Deut 7:9; 1 Pet 4:19). God will not allow them to be tempted (or tested; cp. Jas 1:2-4) beyond their ability to endure, but will always provide a way out.

10:14-22 Paul warns his readers against anything that might be interpreted as idolatry (cp. 1 Jn 5:21), which includes eating food in honor of a pagan god.

10:16-18 Paul affirms the spiritual meaning of sacred meals. In the Lord's Supper, believers share in the blood and body of Christ (see also 11:17-34; Matt 26:26-28; Mark 14:22-24; Luke 22:19-20). Sharing one loaf unites believers as one body in Christ, just as the pagans' religious meals unite them with the gods they worship (see 10:19-21).

10:19-20 Idols have no reality or life (see 8:4-6), and sacrifices made to them accomplish nothing. The sacrifices pagans make to idols are actually unknowingly made to demons (see Deut 32:16-17; Ps 106:37; Rev 9:20). Those who share in their religious meals are thereby uniting themselves with demons.

10:21 Believers should avoid participating in religious meals eaten in a pagan temple (see 8:10), because those united to the Lord (Christ) cannot simultaneously be united to demons (see 2 Cor 6:14-16).

eat at the Lord's Table and at the table of demons, too. ²²What? Do we dare to rouse the Lord's jealousy? Do you think we are stronger than he is?

Specific Advice on Eating Sacrificial Food

²³You say, "I am allowed to do anything"—but not everything is good for you. You say, "I am allowed to do anything"—but not everything is beneficial. ²⁴Don't be concerned for your own good but for the good of others.

²⁷If someone who isn't a believer asks you home for dinner, accept the invitation if you want to. Eat whatever is offered to you without raising questions of conscience. ²⁸(But suppose someone tells you, "This meat was offered to an idol." Don't eat it, out of consideration for the conscience of the one who told you. ²⁹It might not be a matter of conscience for you, but it is for the other person.) For why should my ^afreedom be limited by what someone else thinks? ³⁰If

I can thank God for the food and enjoy it, why should I be condemned for eating it?

³¹So whether you eat or drink, or whatever you do, do it all for the glory of God.

³²Don't give offense to Jews or Gentiles or the ^bchurch of God. ³³I, too, try to please everyone in everything I do. I don't just do what is best for me; I do what is best for others so that many may be saved. ^{11:1} And you should imitate me, just as I imitate Christ.

Instructions for Public Worship (11:2-34) Appropriate Dress for Public Worship

11 ²I am so glad that you always keep me in your thoughts, and that you are following the teachings I passed on to you. ³But there is one thing I want you to know: The head of every man is Christ, the head of woman is man, and the head of Christ is God. ⁴A man dishonors his head if he covers his head while praying or prophesying. ⁵But a woman dishonors her head if she prays or prophesies without a covering on her head, for this is the same as shaving her head. ⁶Yes, if she refuses to wear a head covering, she should cut off all her hair! 10:22 To ignore Paul's advice on this matter is to rouse the Lord's jealousy and judgment, just as Israel did (see 10:6-11; Exod 20:5; Deut 32:21).

10:23-11:1 Paul closes the discussion begun in 8:1 with advice about when Christians may eat meat sacrificed to an idol, and when they should not (see note on 8:1-11:1). His advice reflects the principle of giving up one's rights out of love (see also 8:13-9:23).

10:23-24 You say: The NLT supplies these words—Paul is probably quoting a popular saying among the Corinthians and clarifying it. • "I am allowed to do anything" (literally All things are lawful): Paul qualifies the assertion of a Christian's freedom by emphasizing the importance of doing what is most beneficial for others (see 6:12; 10:32-33; Rom 14:13-15, 19-21; 15:1-2; cp. Phil 2:3-4).

10:27-29a When Christians are invited for a meal with an unbeliever, the Christians are free to eat what is set before them unless warned that the meat has been offered to an idol. In that case, the Christian should refrain from eating it out of consideration for the conscience of the other person, who might misinterpret it or be hurt by believing that such eating honors the god to whom the meat has been sacrificed (see 8:7, 9-10; cp. Rom 14:13-15, 20-23).

10:29b-30 These two questions are difficult to understand in light of 10:28-29a. By placing 10:28-29a in parentheses, the NLT has interpreted these questions as expressing Paul's own convictions, following on from 10:27.

10:31-33 Paul concludes his discussion by summarizing the two principles that are to guide Christian behavior in issues like this: (1) Believers are to do everything for the glory of God (see Col 3:17; 1 Pet 4:11); (2) believers are not to give offense and should avoid doing anything that would harm another person's Christian faith (cp. 8:9, 13; 1 Jn 2:10). Christians' behavior is to be guided by what is best for others rather than by personal privilege (cp. Rom 14:13-15, 19-21; 15:1-2). These two basic principles lie at the heart of Paul's advice on practical Christian living in this letter.

11:1 imitate me: Cp. 4:16; Phil 3:17.

11:2 the teachings I passed on to you: This language generally refers to an authoritative tradition of Christian teaching being passed down orally (see also 11:23; 15:1-3; 2 Thes 2:15).

11:3-16 Paul now addresses a woman's use of a head covering. Paul argues that women publicly praying or prophesying should wear a veil as an element of dressing modestly and appropriately in public worship (cp. 1 Tim 2:9; 1 Pet 3:3). Apparently some in Corinth were rejecting head coverings based on freedom in Christ. Paul's argument in favor of the custom is based on traditional social conventions, the Genesis account of Creation, and the watchful eye of angels.

11:3 The head of every man is Christ, the head of woman is man, and the head of Christ is God: Or The source of every man is Christ, the source of woman is man, and the source of Christ is God. Or Every man is responsible to Christ, a woman is responsible to her husband, and Christ is responsible to God. The NLT gives the literal reading head of, which is a metaphor for either source or authority. The immediate context and Paul's overall teaching both favor understanding head in this context as meaning authority (see Gen 3:16; Eph 5:21-23; Col 3:18; 1 Pet 3:1).

11:4-6 In this passage, head is used in both a literal and a figurative sense. A man who covers his (physical) head when he prays dishonors his (spiritual) head, Christ. A woman who prays or prophesies without a covering on her (physical) head thereby dishonors her (spiritual) head, her husband. • The spiritual gift of prophesying is the God-given ability to speak a specific word from God, not merely to predict the future (cp. 12:10; 14:1-5; 1 Thes 5:20). • if she prays or prophesies: Women were allowed to engage in public praying and prophesying in the church (cp. Acts 21:9).

11:4 dishonors his head: Or dishonors Christ.

11:5 dishonors her head: Or dishonors her husband.

11:6 should wear a covering: Or should have long hair, a less likely interpretation.

since it is shameful for a woman to have her hair cut or her head shaved, she should wear a covering.

⁷A man should not wear anything on his head when worshipping, for man is made in God's image and reflects God's glory. And woman reflects man's glory. ⁸For the first man didn't come from woman, but the first woman came from man. ⁹And man was not made for woman, but woman was made for man. ¹⁰For this reason, and because the angels are watching, a woman should wear a covering on her head to show she is under authority.

¹¹But among the Lord's people, women are not independent of men, and men are not independent of women. ¹²For although the first woman came from man, every other man was born from a woman, and everything comes from God.

¹³Judge for yourselves. Is it right for a woman to pray to God in public without covering her head? ¹⁴Isn't it obvious that it's disgraceful for a man to have long hair? ¹⁵And isn't long hair a woman's pride and joy? For it has been given to her as a covering. ¹⁶But if anyone wants to argue about this, I simply say that we have no other custom than this, and neither do God's other churches.

¹⁷But in the following instructions, I cannot praise you. For it sounds as if more harm than good is done when you meet together. ¹⁸First, I hear that there are divisions among you when you meet as a church, and to some extent I believe it. ¹⁹But, of course, there must be divisions among you so that you who have God's approval will be recognized!

²³For I pass on to you what I received from the Lord himself. On the night when he was betrayed, the Lord Jesus took some bread ²⁴and gave thanks to God for it. Then he broke it in pieces and said, "This is my body, which is given for you. Do this in remembrance of me." ²⁵In the same way, he took the cup of wine after supper, saying, "This cup is the new covenant between God and his people—an agreement confirmed 11:7 man is made in God's image: See Gen 1:26-27.

11:10 because the angels are watching: Angels are guardians of the created order, appointed to ensure that everything is done according to God's plan (see Gen 19:1-21; 22:11-12; Exod 23:20; Num 22:22-23; Ps 34:7; 91:11; 103:20-21; Heb 1:7, 14). Believers are to do what is appropriate in the sight of fellow humans and God's observing angels (cp. 1 Tim 5:21). • should wear a covering on her head to show she is under authority: Or should have authority over her own head; literally should have authority on [or over] her head.

11:11-12 These verses qualify the preceding verses. Believers recognize that God has made men and women mutually dependent on one another. • Everything comes from God (cp. 8:6): Both men and women must ultimately submit to God, the head of all.

11:13 Is it right? This rhetorical question expects the answer "no."

11:14 Isn't it obvious? (literally Doesn't nature itself teach you?): In Paul's culture, men would never wear long hair.

11:15 Paul argues that social conventions regarding hair length express fundamental differences between men and women. • it has been given to her as a covering: Paul suggests that women's long hair, covering their head, shows that God intends women to have some type of "covering."

11:16 if anyone wants to argue about this: Some in the cosmopolitan Corinthian church did not agree with Paul. • Paul's final argument is that the use of a head covering was an established custom of the church. Most contemporary interpreters take this verse to mean that the custom was culturally based.

11:17-34 Paul addresses problems in the way the Corinthians were relating to each other and to the Lord while taking the Lord's Supper.

11:17 when you meet together: Early Christians met together in someone's home at least once a week, usually on the Lord's Day (see 16:2).

11:18 The divisions may be those spoken of in 1:10-12 (cp. Titus 3:10), or (more likely) the result of social discrimination when they shared meals (see 11:21-22, 33; Acts 6:1).

11:19 As translated, this ironic expression rebukes the Corinthian Christians' claims to superiority based on distinctions among them. Alternatively, Paul might be saying that though their divisiveness is clearly wrong, it will have the positive result of making clear who among them is truly faithful.

11:20-22 Some people were more concerned about eating their own supper than with the Lord's Supper.

11:23 I pass on to you what I received from the Lord himself: This is one of the few explicit references in Paul's letters to traditions handed down from Christ (see also 7:10; 9:14; cp. 1 Thes 4:15-17). • On the night when he was betrayed: See Mark 14:43-46.

11:24 Jews and early Christians traditionally gave thanks to God for their food before eating (see note on Mark 14:22-25). • This is my body: Cp. John 6:32-35, 48-58. • which is given for you: Literally which is for you; other manuscripts read which is broken for you.

11:25 After supper might suggest that the main meal separated the breaking of the bread from the drinking of the cup (see Luke 22:20). • The new covenant is God's promise to forgive sins because of the sacrificial death of Jesus (cp. Jer 31:31-34; 32:40; Luke 22:20; Heb 7:22; 8:8-10; 9:15; 10:12-18; 12:24; 13:20). The blood of a sacrifice confirmed an agreement or covenant (see Exod 24:8; Zech 9:11; Heb 9:12; 13:20; cp. Rom 3:25; 5:9).

with my blood. Do this in remembrance of me as often as you drink it." ²⁶For every time you eat this bread and drink this cup, you are announcing the Lord's death until he comes again.

²⁷So anyone who eats this bread or drinks this cup of the Lord unworthily is guilty of sinning against the body and blood of the Lord. ²⁸That is why you should examine yourself before eating the bread and drinking the cup. ²⁹For if you eat the bread or drink the cup without honoring the body of Christ, you are eating and drinking God's judgment upon yourself. ³⁰That is why many of you are weak and sick and some have even died.

³¹But if we would examine ourselves, we would not be judged by God in this way. ³²Yet when we are judged by the Lord, we are being ¹disciplined so that we will not be condemned along with the world.

³³So, my dear brothers and sisters, when you gather for the Lord's Supper, wait for each other. ³⁴If you are really hungry, eat at home so you won't bring judgment upon yourselves when you meet together. I'll give you instructions about the other matters after I arrive.

Spiritual Gifts (12:1–14:40)

Different Spiritual Gifts

12 Now, dear brothers and sisters, regarding your question about the special abilities the Spirit gives us. I don't want you to misunderstand this. ²You know that when you were still pagans, you were led astray and swept along in worshipping speechless idols. ³So I want you to know that no one speaking by the Spirit of God will curse Jesus, and no one can say Jesus is Lord, except by the Holy Spirit.

⁴There are different kinds of spiritual ⁶gifts, but the same Spirit is the source of them all. ⁵There are different kinds of service, but we serve the same Lord. ⁶God works in different ways, but it is the same God who does the work in all of us.

⁷A spiritual gift is given to each of us so we can help each other. ⁸To one person the Spirit gives the ability to give wise advice; to another the same Spirit gives a message of special knowledge. ⁹The same Spirit gives great faith to another, and to someone else the one Spirit gives the gift of healing. ¹⁰He gives one person the power to perform miracles, and another the ability to prophesy.

11:26 In taking the Lord's Supper, Christians proclaim the saving significance of the Lord's death to those around them until he comes again (see 1:7-8; cp. 1 Thes 1:9-10; 3:12; 4:13-18; 5:23).

11:27 To take the Lord's Supper without recognizing its significance or with unconfessed sin in one's life is to take it unworthily (see 11:28-31). It is equivalent to sinning against the body and blood of the Lord himself; it treats his sacrificial death as trivial (cp. Heb 10:29). • is guilty of sinning against: Or is responsible for.

11:28 Before taking the Lord's Supper, Christians should confess their sins and consider what the bread and the cup signify (11:26).

11:29-30 In light of 11:27, the body of Christ (literally the body; other manuscripts read the Lord's body) is probably to be understood here as a reference to the death of Christ, not to the church, though some interpret it that way. • Those who eat the bread or drink the cup unworthily thereby invoke God's judgment upon themselves. Such judgment may be expressed in infirmities, sickness, and even death (cp. Acts 5:5, 10).

11:31 Self-judgment (which implies confession of sin and repentance) averts God's judgment.

11:32 When God's people are judged by the Lord and disciplined (cp. Deut 8:5; Heb 12:5-11), it is for their ultimate good, so that they will not be condemned with the world (see Eph 2:1-3).

11:33 dear brothers and sisters: Literally brothers. See note on 1:10.

11:34 after I arrive: Paul was planning to visit soon (4:19; 16:5-7).

12:1–14:40 The church at Corinth had placed too much emphasis on the gift of tongues (see 14:1-25, 27; cp. the lists in 12:8-10, 28, where Paul places tongues last), so Paul gives corrective advice regarding the value and use of spiritual gifts.

12:1-3 Paul introduces the topic, emphasizing the active presence of the Holy Spirit in believers.

12:1 dear brothers and sisters: Literally brothers. See note on 1:10.

12:2 pagans: Gentile unbelievers.

12:3 Paul gives two criteria for discerning the presence of the Spirit in worship. (1) Those who curse Jesus thereby express their rejection of Jesus and his message and thus cannot be speaking by the Spirit of God. (2) The presence of the Holy Spirit in believers' lives is shown by their sincere confession that Jesus is Lord. This is perhaps the earliest Christian creed (cp. Rom 10:9, 13; 2 Cor 4:5; Phil 2:11; 1 Jn 4:2-3).

12:4-11 Though believers are united in the Lord and his Spirit, God gives different kinds of spiritual gifts to different people so that they can fulfill different kinds of service to the same Lord (see also 7:7; 12:7-11, 28-31; Rom 12:6-8; Eph 4:11).

12:6 All the work believers do for God is in fact God working through them (see 15:10; 2 Cor 4:7; Gal 2:8; Phil 2:13; cp. Gal 2:20).

12:7 Spiritual gifts are not given for the individual recipients' benefit but to help each other (cp. 1 Pet 4:10-11).

12:8-10 This list of nine spiritual gifts is a representative rather than complete list (cp. 12:28-30; Rom 12:6-8; Eph 4:11).

12:8 God's Spirit gives supernatural wisdom or knowledge to some believers. • gives the ability to give wise advice: Or gives a word of wisdom; see 2:6-16. • gives a message of special knowledge: Or gives a word of knowledge; cp. 1:5; 8:1; 13:2, 8.

12:9 The spiritual gift of great faith is not the faith required for salvation but an unusual ability to trust God for special needs (see 13:2; Matt 17:19-20; cp. Acts 6:5; 11:24).

12:10 The ability to prophesy does not refer primarily to predicting the future, but to speaking a special message directly from God (see 11:4-5; 13:2, 8; 14:1-25, 29-33; 1 Thes 5:20; cp. Acts 13:1-2; 21:4, 10-11). • The ability to discern whether a message is from the Spirit of God or from another spirit is a necessary gift for any Christian community that is open to hearing a word directly from God (see 14:29; 1 Thes

He gives someone else the ability to discern whether a message is from the Spirit of God or from another spirit. Still another person is given the ability to speak in unknown languages, while another is given the ability to interpret what is being said. ¹¹It is the one and only Spirit who distributes all these gifts. He alone decides which gift each person should have.

The Church as One Body with Many Parts

¹²The human body has many parts, but the many parts make up one whole body. So it is with the body of Christ. ¹³Some of us are Jews, some are Gentiles, some are slaves, and some are free. But we have all been baptized into one body by one Spirit, and we all share the same Spirit.

¹⁴Yes, the body has many different parts, not just one part. ¹⁵If the foot says, "I am not a part of the body because I am not a hand," that does not make it any less a part of the body. ¹⁶And if the ear says, "I am not part of the body because I am not an eye," would that make it any less a part of the body? ¹⁷If the whole body were an eye, how would you hear? Or if your whole body were an ear, how would you smell anything?

¹⁸But our bodies have many parts, and God has put each part just where he wants it. ¹⁹How strange a body would be if it had only one part! ²⁰Yes, there are many parts, but only one body. ²¹The eye can never say to the hand, "I don't need you." The head can't say to the feet, "I don't need you."

²²In fact, some parts of the body that seem weakest and least important are actually the most necessary. ²³And the parts we regard as less honorable are those we clothe Different NT writers emphasized different aspects of the Holy Spirit's work. John, for example, highlighted the Spirit's role as teacher and revealer of God's thoughts and ways (John 14:17, 26; 15:26; 16:13-15; 1 Jn 2:20, 27). Luke focused on the Spirit's guidance and power for evangelism (Acts 1:8; 4:31; 8:29, 39) and the importance of being filled with the Holy Spirit (Acts 2:4; 4:8, 31; 7:55; 13:9). Paul, however, provides a comprehensive view of the Spirit's work.

According to Paul, God gives his Holy Spirit to all who come into a saving relationship with Jesus Christ (6:19; Eph 1:13-14; Gal 3:2-5). The Spirit brings new life in Christ. He affirms believers' salvation (6:11; 2 Thes 2:13) and their identity as children of God (Rom 8:9, 14-17).

The Holy Spirit gives Christians power over sin (Rom 8:1-4), power to live a fruitful life (Gal 5:22-23), and power for ministry (12:1-31). Believers are to be continuously "filled with the Holy Spirit" (Eph 5:18), and though they experience the conflict between the flesh and the Spirit, they can please God by yielding to the Spirit's guidance and power (Gal 5:16-18).

The Holy Spirit enables Christians to understand God's thoughts and ways (2:9-16). He gives spiritual gifts to believers to help the church grow (ch 12). The Spirit leads and empowers their worship as they use the gifts that the Spirit has given them (14:26-33, 39-40).

The Spirit guarantees that believers will receive all the blessings that God has promised (2 Cor 1:22; 5:5; Eph 1:13-14). The Spirit helps believers and prays for them in their human weakness (Rom 8:26). The goal of the Spirit's work is to make them like Christ (Rom 8:28-29).

5:19-21; cp. Acts 16:16-18; 1 Jn 4:1-3).
• For Paul, the ability to speak in unknown languages (or in various tongues; also in 12:28, 30) here refers to spiritual language that requires the spiritual gift of interpretation in order to be understood. By placing this gift near the bottom of the list (both here and in 12:28), Paul shows the lesser priority to be attached to the gift of tongues, with which the Corinthian church had become over-enamored (cp. 13:1, 8; 14:1-25, 27). • The ability to interpret does not refer to natural intellectual ability to translate, but to a spiritual ability to understand the meaning of the Spirit's message communicated through the gift of tongues (see 14:5, 13, 26-28).

12:11 The Spirit . . . decides which gift each person should have: See 12:4, 6, 18, 28. Paul paradoxically affirms both the sovereign choice of God in giving spiritual gifts, and the human responsibility to "earnestly desire the most helpful gifts" (12:31).

12:12-31 The church is like a body (see 12:27) composed of many different parts, each with its own function as determined by God (see 12:11, 18, 28; Rom 12:4-5).

12:13 Ethnic and social distinctions have no significance in the church (see Gal 3:28; Col 3:11). • Gentiles: Literally Greeks. • baptized into one body by one Spirit: Water baptism symbolizes a spiritual baptism in which the believer is united with Christ and the church by the work of the Holy Spirit (see "Baptism" at Acts 2:38, 41, p. 1828). • we all share the same Spirit: Literally we were all given one Spirit to drink.

12:14-21 These verses move from the image of a physical body to the image of the church as a spiritual body. Every part of the body is important and essential to its proper functioning. Believers should neither boast of their spiritual ministry nor belittle it in comparison to the ministries of other believers. God, who made the body, has put each part just where he wants it (12:18).

12:22-26 The seemingly weaker and less significant parts of the body are the most necessary and should be given special attention and respect so that the whole body will function well.

with the greatest care. So we carefully protect those parts that should not be seen, ²⁴while the more honorable parts do not require this special care. So God has put the body together such that extra honor and care are given to those parts that have less dignity. ²⁵This makes for harmony among the members, so that all the members care for each other. ²⁶If one part suffers, all the parts suffer with it, and if one part is honored, all the parts are glad.

²⁷All of you together are Christ's body, and each of you is a part of it. ²⁸Here are some of the parts God has appointed for the church:

first are ^kapostles, second are prophets,
third are teachers,
then those who do miracles,
those who have the ^agift of healing,
those who can help others,
those who have the gift of leadership, those who speak in unknown languages.

²⁹Are we all apostles? Are we all prophets? Are we all teachers? Do we all have the power to do miracles? ³⁰Do we all have the gift of healing? Do we all have the ability to speak in unknown ^blanguages? Do we all have the ability to interpret unknown languages? Of course not! ³¹So you should earnestly desire the most helpful gifts.

But now let me show you a way of life that is best of all.

Love Is the Most Important Thing

13 If I could speak all the languages of earth and of angels, but didn't love others, I would only be a noisy gong or a clanging cymbal. ²If I had the gift of prophecy, and if I understood all of God's secret plans and possessed all knowledge, and if I had such faith that I could move mountains, but didn't love others, I would be nothing.

The Church as a Dynamic Body (12:7-31)

Paul viewed the church as the living body of Christ comprised of believers. Paul made no formal distinction between professional clergy and laity, with the ministry being done by the clergy. The community had leaders (see, e.g., 1 Tim 3:1-13), but every believer had a ministry in building up the body (12:12-31). When the early believers gathered together, usually in someone's home, everyone brought something from God to share with the others (14:26-33).

Paul understood God's Spirit as gifting people for their specific ministries (12:8-11, 28; Rom 12:6-8; Eph 4:11) and leading them when they came together for worship. Guided by the Spirit, every believer was to use their spiritual gifts for the benefit of the church. Paul wanted believers to be sensitive to the empowering of the Spirit in all that they did (14:26-33).

When believers meet together, every individual is important and each one has an active role to play. Believers must listen for God speaking his word—and be prepared to speak it—in all their relationships. Paul also calls for the others to “evaluate” what is said (14:26, 29). Every believer is a crucial part of the body, called to be actively involved in its growth.

12:25-26 The church is a unified body, so harmony and care for each other in the church is essential.

12:28-31 Paul lists some of the different individual roles given to people in the church (see also the list in 12:8-10; cp. Rom 12:6-8; Eph 4:11).

12:28 Apostles are specially commissioned emissaries of Christ in the world (see also Eph 4:11). • Prophets speak a word from God (see 12:10 and note; Eph 4:11; cp. Acts 13:1-2). • Teachers instruct others in the faith (Rom 12:7; Eph 4:11; cp. Acts 13:1). • those who speak in unknown languages: See note on 12:10.

12:29-30 These rhetorical questions all expect the answer, Of course not! Paul gently rebukes those who are jealous of others. Believers are to gratefully accept the gifts God has given them, and not to envy other gifts or elevate any gifts as more important than others (but see 12:31).

12:31 Believers are to earnestly desire the most helpful gifts, those that have the greatest potential to build up the church (see 14:12), while realizing that God is the one who distributes gifts as he chooses (12:11, 18, 28). Paul encourages the Corinthians to move beyond their desire for the gift of tongues (cp. 14:1-25, 27; see 12:10) because it has the least potential, of all the gifts, to build up the church. • But now let me show you: This statement transitions to Paul's description of love in ch 13. Love is a way of life that is best of all.

13:1-13 Paul interrupts his discussion of spiritual gifts (resumed in ch 14) to emphasize that love is more important than any spiritual gift (cp. 8:1-3). The most important thing for Christians is to become deeply and consistently loving people.

13:1-3 Spiritual gifts in themselves do not define our worth to God or to the church. In fact, apart from the expression of love, spiritual gifts are of no value.

13:1 all the languages of earth (literally the tongues of men) and of angels: Tongues was the spiritual gift most highly prized by the Corinthians (see also 12:10; 12:28; 14:1-25, 27). Some may have thought tongues to be the language of angels; in Acts, Luke uses the same term to refer to natural human languages (see Acts 2:4-13).

13:2 If I . . . possessed all knowledge possibly refers to the gift of “special knowledge” (12:8).

³If I gave everything I have to the poor and even sacrificed my body, I could boast about it; but if I didn't love others, I would have gained nothing.

⁸Prophecy and speaking in unknown ⁹languages and special knowledge will become useless. But love will last forever! ⁹Now our knowledge is partial and incomplete, and even the gift of prophecy reveals only part of the whole picture! ¹⁰But when the time of ¹¹perfection comes, these partial things will become useless.

¹¹When I was a child, I spoke and thought and reasoned as a child. But when I grew up, I put away childish things. ¹²Now we see things imperfectly, like puzzling reflections in a mirror, but then we will see everything with perfect clarity. All that I know now is partial and incomplete, but then I will know everything completely, just as God now knows me completely.

¹³Three things will last forever—faith, ¹⁴hope, and love—and the greatest of these is love.

The Gifts of Tongues and Prophecy

14 Let love be your highest goal! But you should also desire the special abilities the Spirit gives—especially the ability to prophesy. ²For if you have the ability to speak in ³tongues, you will be talking only to God, since people won't be able to Jesus speaks of loving one's neighbor as the second most important of the OT commandments (Mark 12:31). Love summarizes the entire OT law (Matt 7:12; 22:40; cp. Matt 9:9-13; 12:1-13; see Rom 13:8-10). Jesus criticized the Pharisees for their failure to show love (Matt 9:13; 12:7; 23:4, 13-14, 23). Love is the mark of a true follower of Jesus (John 13:34-35) and of an authentic experience of God (1 Jn 2:9-11; 3:11-18; 4:7-21).

For Paul, love is more important than any of the spiritual gifts and the most important virtue. Love "binds us all together in perfect harmony" (Col 3:14). Without love, ministry has limited value (13:1-3). Paul summed up the whole of the Christian ethics as "faith expressing itself in love" (Gal 5:6). Love is the central ethical expression of Christian faith, the primary fruit of the Spirit (Gal 5:22), and one of the most important motivations for ministry. The most important thing for believers to value and seek is to become a faithfully loving person.

13:3 sacrificed my body, I could boast about it: Some manuscripts read sacrificed my body to be burned; it would have been easy for a copyist to change the text accidentally, because in Greek the two readings differ only by one letter. It is unclear which reading is to be preferred; however, the manuscripts supporting the reading I could boast are generally better. • I would have gained nothing: Even the most impressive sacrificial acts mean nothing if not motivated by love.

13:4-7 This description of Christian love emphasizes the willingness to give up one's own desires for the good of others (see also chs 8–10; Rom 5:6-8; 15:3; 2 Cor 8:9; Phil 2:4-8).

13:5 It does not demand its own way: Love is not self-centered, not concerned simply with its own interests (see Phil 2:4-8).

13:8-13 Love, in contrast to spiritual gifts, will last forever.

13:8 in unknown languages (or in tongues): see note on 12:10. • Love will last forever, because God is love (cp. 1 Jn 4:7-12, 16).

13:9 None of the spiritual gifts gives us full understanding; unlike love, they are all limited in their benefits.

13:12 The contrast between now and then is between this age and the coming age. • Now we see things imperfectly, like puzzling reflections in a mirror: In Paul's day, mirrors were usually made of polished bronze, so the view was imperfect. Our perception in this life is limited and our understanding is partial and incomplete. • then: When the end comes and Christ establishes his eternal kingdom, we will see everything with perfect clarity (literally [we will see] face to face). Then the spiritual gifts that give knowledge will be unnecessary.

13:13 Faith, hope, and love are more important than spiritual gifts because they last forever (see also Rom 5:1-5; Gal 5:5-6; Col 1:4-5; 1 Thes 1:3; 5:8). Of the three, the greatest . . . is love, because love is the quintessential nature of God himself (see 1 Jn 4:7-12, 16-21).

So love should epitomize our relationship with him and others.

14:1-25 Having emphasized the supreme importance of love (ch 13), Paul returns to the subject of spiritual gifts. Their relative value is defined by the benefit they give to others, which is characteristic of love (ch 13). In that light, Paul contrasts the over-valued gift of tongues with the more beneficial gift of prophecy.

14:1 Of all the special abilities the Spirit gives (see note on 12:1-14:40), Paul encourages the Corinthians to seek the ability to prophesy (see 12:10) because of its greater benefit to the church.

14:2-4 The problem with the gift of speaking in tongues (or in unknown languages; also in 14:4-5, 13-14, 18, 22, 26-28, 39; see 12:1, 10) is that hearers cannot readily understand the message; the gift of prophecy, however, is immediately intelligible and beneficial as a word from God that strengthens . . . encourages . . . and comforts those who hear.

understand you. You will be speaking by the power of the Spirit, but it will all be mysterious. ³But one who prophesies strengthens others, encourages them, and comforts them. ⁴A person who speaks in tongues is strengthened personally, but one who speaks a word of prophecy strengthens the entire church.

⁵I wish you could all speak in tongues, but even more I wish you could all prophesy. For prophecy is greater than speaking in tongues, unless someone interprets what you are saying so that the whole church will be strengthened.

⁶Dear brothers and sisters, if I should come to you speaking in an unknown language, how would that help you? But if I bring you a ^brevelation or some special knowledge or prophecy or teaching, that will be helpful. ⁷Even lifeless instruments like the flute or the harp must play the notes clearly, or no one will recognize the melody. ⁸And if the bugler doesn't sound a clear call, how will the soldiers know they are being called to battle?

⁹It's the same for you. If you speak to people in words they don't understand, how will they know what you are saying? You might as well be talking into empty space.

¹⁰There are many different languages in the world, and every language has meaning. ¹¹But if I don't understand a language, I will be a foreigner to someone who speaks it, and the one who speaks it will be a foreigner to me. ¹²And the same is true for you. Since you are so eager to have the special abilities the Spirit gives, seek those that will strengthen the whole church.

¹³So anyone who speaks in tongues should pray also for the ability to interpret what has been said. ¹⁴For if I pray in tongues, my spirit is praying, but I don't understand what I am saying.

¹⁵Well then, what shall I do? I will pray in the spirit, and I will also pray in words I understand. I will sing in the spirit, and I will also sing in words I understand. ¹⁶For if you praise God only in the spirit, how can those who don't understand you praise God along with you? How can they join you in giving thanks when they don't understand what you are saying? ¹⁷You will be giving thanks very well, but it won't strengthen the people who hear you.

¹⁸I thank God that I speak in tongues more than any of you. ¹⁹But in a church meeting I would rather speak five understandable words to help others than ten thousand words in an unknown language.

²⁰Dear brothers and sisters, don't be childish in your understanding of these things. Be innocent as babies when it comes to evil, but be mature in understanding matters of this kind. ²¹It is written in the ^cScriptures:

"I will speak to my own people through strange languages and through the lips of foreigners.
But even then, they will not listen to me," says the LORD.

²²So you see that speaking in tongues is a sign, not for believers, but for unbelievers. Prophecy, however, is for the benefit of believers, not unbelievers. ²³Even so, if unbelievers or people who don't understand these things come into your church meeting and hear everyone speaking in an unknown language, they will think you are crazy. ²⁴But if all of you are prophesying, and unbelievers or people who don't understand these 14:4 The primary purpose of spiritual gifts is not self-edification, but the strengthening of the entire church (see 12:7; cp. 8:1; 14:12).

14:6 Dear brothers and sisters: Literally Brothers; also in 14:20, 26, 39. See note on 1:10. • in an unknown language: Or in tongues; also in 14:19, 23; see note on 12:10.

14:12 Special abilities from the Spirit are given to strengthen the whole church (see 12:7; 14:4; cp. Eph 4:15-16).

14:13 Paul does not forbid speaking in tongues (see 14:39), but the ability to interpret is crucial, especially in public worship (see 14:27-28).

14:14 Speaking in tongues engages the spirit of the speaker (because the Holy Spirit is speaking through the person) but not his mind (because the message is not rationally intelligible).

14:15-17 It is preferable both to worship in the spirit (or in the Spirit) and to use words I understand in worship and ministry because public worship should always bless both God and others. Speaking in tongues without interpretation, though it gives glory to God and edification to the speaker (14:4), fails to benefit others who are present. • praise God along with you (literally say "amen" to your thanksgiving): Amen was the traditional congregational response to a prayer.

14:18-19 Paul affirmed the personal value of speaking in tongues, but speaking in a church meeting should help others, not only the speaker.

14:20 To be mature in understanding such matters, one must consider the purpose of spiritual gifts and not treat them as ends in themselves for one's own enjoyment.

14:21-25 The Scriptures (literally the law) refers here to the OT generally. Paul used this quotation from Isa 28:11-12 to show that speaking in tongues is a sign, not for believers, but for unbelievers. However, in 14:23-25, Paul argues that even unbelievers are more likely to be convicted by a word of prophecy than by speaking in tongues. His point is that, in public worship, the gift of prophecy is of greater usefulness than the gift of tongues.

things come into your meeting, they will be convicted of sin and judged by what you say. ²⁵As they listen, their secret thoughts will be exposed, and they will fall to their knees and worship God, declaring, "God is truly here among you."

Using Spiritual Gifts in Public Worship

²⁶Well, my brothers and sisters, let's summarize. When you meet together, one will sing, another will teach, another will tell some special revelation God has given, one will speak in tongues, and another will interpret what is said. But everything that is done must strengthen all of you.

²⁷No more than two or three should speak in tongues. They must speak one at a time, and someone must interpret what they say. ²⁸But if no one is present who can interpret, they must be silent in your church meeting and speak in tongues to God privately.

²⁹Let two or three people prophesy, and let the others evaluate what is said. ³⁰But if someone is prophesying and another person receives a revelation from the Lord, the one who is speaking must stop. ³¹In this way, all who prophesy will have a turn to speak, one after the other, so that everyone will learn and be encouraged. ³²Remember that people who prophesy are in control of their spirit and can take turns. ³³For God is not a God of disorder but of peace, as in all the meetings of God's holy people.

³⁴Women should be silent during the church meetings. It is not proper for them to speak. They should be submissive, just as the law says. ³⁵If they have any questions, they should ask their husbands at home, for it is improper for women to speak in church meetings.

³⁶Or do you think God's word originated with you Corinthians? Are you the only ones to whom it was given? ³⁷If you claim to be a prophet or think you are spiritual, you should recognize that what I am saying is a command from the Lord himself. ³⁸But if you do not recognize this, you yourself will not be recognized.

³⁹So, my dear brothers and sisters, be eager to prophesy, and don't forbid speaking in tongues. ⁴⁰But be sure that everything is done properly and in order.

The Resurrection of the Dead (15:1-58)

The Resurrection of Christ

15 Let me now remind you, dear brothers and sisters, of the Good News I preached to you before. You welcomed it then, and you still stand firm in it. ²It is this Good News that saves you if you continue to believe the message I told you—unless, of course, you believed something that was never true in the first place.

³I passed on to you what was most important and what had also been passed on 14:25 "God is truly here among you." Paul is alluding to Isa 45:14.

14:26-40 Paul gives specific procedures for the use of spiritual gifts in the church and emphasizes that they are to be expressed in an orderly way. Among the early Christians, church meetings were not led by professional pastors or priests. Instead, everyone shared with the others what God had given them for strengthening the church.

14:26 will sing: Literally has a psalm, either to be sung alone or for the fellowship to sing together (cp. Eph 5:19; Col 3:16). • Everything that is done in public worship is to be for the purpose of strengthening the church (see 12:7; 14:4, 6, 12, 26; cp. 8:1).

14:27-28 For a church overly eager for the gift of tongues (see 12:10), Paul places limits on its public expression so it would be most helpful to the church: no more than two or three, . . . one at a time, and only if there is someone present who can interpret the message.

14:29-32 Public prophesying is to be expressed in an orderly way, sensitive to the guidance of the Spirit, so that everyone may benefit from it. The others are then to evaluate what is said to assess whether it is indeed a word from God (1 Thes 5:19-21). Those with a word of prophecy are to take turns—prophecy is a divinely given word, but it is still subject to the control of the speaker.

14:33 The phrase as in all the meetings of God's holy people could instead be joined to the beginning of 14:34.

14:34-35 This aside in the discussion on using spiritual gifts reflects a perspective on women's roles similar to that of the Pastoral Letters (see "Women's Roles in the NT Church" at 1 Tim 2:11-15, p. 2053). Some manuscripts place 14:34-35 after 14:40. • Paul advises women to be silent and submissive in church meetings. This instruction is to be understood in light of 11:5, which clearly implies that women are permitted to pray and prophesy publicly. • just as the law says: Possibly referring to Gen 3:16.

14:36-37 Paul expected the Corinthians to take his apostolic word seriously, as a command from the Lord himself. • What I am saying probably refers to all of his teaching, especially as it relates to spiritual gifts.

14:38 Some manuscripts read If you are ignorant of this, stay in your ignorance.

14:39-40 Paul summarizes his discussion of spiritual gifts (chs 12-14).

15:1-58 Some people in the church had doubts about a future resurrection of the dead. Paul reassures them and, perhaps in response to their skeptical questions, discusses the nature of a resurrection body.

15:1-11 Paul summarizes the Good News that he preached.

15:1 dear brothers and sisters: Literally brothers; also in 15:31, 50, 58. See note on 1:10. • At the heart of the Good News stands the message of the atoning death and resurrection of Christ (see 15:3-4; Rom 5:8-10; 6:5-11).

15:2 if you continue to believe: Those who continue firm in their faith will be saved (cp. Matt 10:22; 24:13; John 15:6; Gal 5:4; Col 1:23; Heb 6:4-6; contrast 1 Cor 1:8; Rom 8:38-39; Phil 1:6; Heb 6:9). • unless, of course, you believed something that was never true in the first place: Or unless you never believed it in the first place.

15:3 The heart of the Good News is that Christ died for our sins (see Rom 3:24-25; 5:8-10; Gal 1:4; 1 Thes 5:9-10).

to me. Christ died for our sins, just as the Scriptures said. ⁴He was buried, and he was raised from the dead on the third day, just as the Scriptures said. ⁵He was seen by Peter and then by the Twelve. ⁶After that, he was seen by more than 500 of his followers at one time, most of whom are still alive, though some have died. ⁷Then he was seen by James and later by all the ^aapostles. ⁸Last of all, as though I had been born at the wrong time, I also saw him. ⁹For I am the least of all the apostles. In fact, I'm not even worthy to be called an apostle after the way I persecuted God's church.

¹⁰But whatever I am now, it is all because God poured out his special favor on me—and not without results. For I have worked harder than any of the other apostles; yet it was not I but God who was working through me by his grace. ¹¹So it makes no difference whether I preach or they preach, for we all preach the same message you have already believed.

The Future Resurrection of the Dead

¹²But tell me this—since we preach that Christ rose from the dead, why are some of you saying there will be no ^rresurrection of the dead? ¹³For if there is no resurrection of the dead, then Christ has not been raised either. ¹⁴And if Christ has not been raised, then all our preaching is useless, and your faith is useless. ¹⁵And we apostles would all be lying about God—for we have said that God raised Christ from the grave. But that can't be true if there is no resurrection of the dead. ¹⁶And if there is no resurrection of the dead, then Christ has not been raised. ¹⁷And if Christ has not been raised, then your faith is ^euseless and you are still guilty of your sins. ¹⁸In that case, all who have died believing in Christ are lost! ¹⁹And if our hope in Christ is only for this life, we are more to be pitied than anyone in the world.

²⁰But in fact, Christ has been raised from the dead. He is the first of a great harvest of all who have died.

²¹So you see, just as death came into the world through a man, now the resurrection from the dead has begun through another man. ²²Just as everyone dies because we all belong to Adam, everyone who belongs to Christ will be ^hgiven new life. ²³But there is an order to this resurrection: Christ was raised as the first of the harvest; then all who belong to Christ will be raised when he ⁱcomes back.

²⁴After that the end will come, when he will turn the Kingdom over to God the Father, having destroyed every ruler and authority and power. ²⁵For Christ must reign until he humbles all his enemies beneath his 15:5 He was seen by Peter (Greek Cephas): See Luke 24:34. • then by the Twelve: See Matt 28:16-17; Mark 16:14; Luke 24:36; John 20:19.

15:6 he was seen by more than 500: We have no other account of this event. • his followers: Literally the brothers. See note on 1:10. • most of whom are still alive: When this letter was written (around AD 53–56), the factuality of Christ's resurrection could be verified by consulting living eyewitnesses.

15:7 This James was almost certainly Jesus' brother, who became a leader of the Jerusalem church after Jesus' death (see Mark 6:3; John 7:1-5; Gal 1:19; cp. Acts 12:17; 15:13; 21:18).

15:8-9 as though I had been born at the wrong time (or As though I were stillborn): This phrase can refer to a miscarriage or stillbirth. Here it might express the unusual manner of Paul's conversion, or the derogatory view some opponents held of his apostleship, or his own sense of unworthiness to be an apostle. The overall emphasis is on the extraordinary grace of God to Paul as a former persecutor of Christ's people (see Gal 1:13; Phil 3:6; cp. Acts 8:3; 9:1-2). • I also saw him: Paul came face to face with the risen Christ at his conversion (see 9:1; Acts 9:3-6; Gal 1:15-16).

15:10 Paul's awareness of God's extraordinary special favor (literally grace) to him resulted in an extraordinary response on his part. But even that must be understood as an expression of God . . . working through me by his grace (see 2 Cor 4:7; Gal 2:20; Col 1:27).

15:11 The important thing is the message, not the messengers (cp. 1:10-12).

15:12-34 Paul now makes the case for a future resurrection.

15:12-20 Christ's resurrection confirms the reality of the future resurrection.

15:12 Some believers in Corinth apparently had a difficult time accepting the Jewish notion of a bodily resurrection of the dead, preferring instead the Greek notion of the immortality of the soul (cp. Acts 17:18, 32).

15:14-18 If Christ has not risen from the dead, then Christian faith is useless. But in reality, Jesus' resurrection is proof that the sacrifice of Christ fully atoned for human sins (see 15:3). If Christ has not been raised, then human beings remain unforgiven, under the judgment of God—still guilty of their sins (see Rom 3:19; Eph 2:1-3).

15:19 Without eternal life, faithful believers are more to be pitied than anyone in the world because they suffer persecution and deprivation. But they find their joy in anticipating what lies beyond this life, as did both Jesus (see Heb 12:2) and Paul (see 2 Cor 4:16-18; Phil 1:21-23; 3:7-11).

15:20 In the OT, the first crop was dedicated to God (see Exod 23:19). Christ's resurrection is the first of a great harvest of God's people who will be resurrected (see Col 1:18).

15:21-23 Adam's sin contrasts with Christ's resurrection (cp. 15:45-49).

15:24-28 Christ is the Lord of all things, even death itself. Nevertheless, he remains subordinate to God his Father.

15:24 The phrase every ruler and authority and power refers to spiritual powers who oppose Christ (cp. Rom 8:38; Eph 1:21; Col 2:10, 15; 1 Pet 3:22).

feet. ²⁶And the last enemy to be destroyed is death. ²⁷For the Scriptures say, "God has put all things under his authority." (Of course, when it says "all things are under his authority," that does not include God himself, who gave Christ his authority.) ²⁸Then, when all things are under his authority, the Son will put himself under God's authority, so that God, who gave his Son authority over all things, will be utterly supreme over everything everywhere.

²⁹If the dead will not be raised, what point is there in people being ²⁹baptized for those who are dead? Why do it unless the dead will someday rise again?

³⁰And why should we ourselves risk our lives hour by hour? ³¹For I swear, dear brothers and sisters, that I face death daily. This is as certain as my pride in what Christ Jesus our Lord has done in you. ³²And what value was there in fighting wild beasts—those people of Ephesus—if there will be no resurrection from the dead? The Resurrection Body

³⁵But someone may ask, "How will the dead be raised? What kind of bodies will they have?" ³⁶What a foolish question! When you put a seed into the ground, it doesn't grow into a plant unless it dies first. ³⁷And what you put in the ground is not the plant that will grow, but only a bare seed of wheat

Jesus spoke of a future resurrection of all people—either to eternal life or to judgment (Mark 12:25-26; John 5:28-29; cp. Luke 20:34-36). He also promised that he would give new life to all who have believed in him (John 6:39-40, 44, 54; 11:25-26). When Christ returns, all his people will be resurrected to be with him forever (1 Thes 4:13-18; cp. 2 Cor 5:1-10).

This strong hope characterized the outlook of the early Christians. They were able to endure their suffering because their eyes were fixed on what lay beyond this life (2 Cor 4:16-18; Heb 12:2). They expected Jesus to return and resurrect their bodies. They looked forward to living with him forever (1 Pet 1:3-6, 23). Jesus' own bodily resurrection was the foundation of their Christian faith (15:12-20; Acts 4:33; see also 2 Cor 4:14).

The resurrection body will be fundamentally different from the body we experience in this life, with all its limitations and failings. Our resurrected bodies will be glorious, strong, immortal, and spiritual, like Christ's own resurrection body (15:35-58).

Because they are already joined to Christ, believers actually begin to experience resurrection existence here and now. They have already been "raised" with Christ; they have already been given "resurrection life" (Rom 6:4-11; 8:10-11; Col 2:12). As a result, their life is now centered in the spiritual realities of heaven, not the things of earth (Col 3:1-4). Believers can experience the transforming power of that new life here and now, the new life of the Spirit that frees them from the power of sin and death (Rom 8:1-4). In all the difficulties they face, their trust is not in themselves but in the resurrection power of God (2 Cor 1:9).

15:27 "God has put all things under his authority": See Ps 8:6; cp. Matt 22:44.

15:29 Some first-century Christians apparently practiced baptism-by-proxy for dead unbelievers whom they wished to be saved. Paul neither endorses nor condemns the practice; he simply uses it as evidence for belief in resurrection. There is no other reference to such a practice in early Christian literature.

15:30-32 The apostles' willingness to risk their lives was based on their conviction that there is life beyond death. If there is no resurrection, such suffering is pointless.

15:32 fighting wild beasts—those people of Ephesus (literally fighting wild beasts in Ephesus): Paul refers figuratively to his struggles with opponents in Ephesus (see 16:8; Acts 19:23-41; 2 Cor 1:8; 4:8-12; 11:23-28). Watching condemned prisoners fighting wild beasts and getting mauled to death was a common form of entertainment in the Roman world. • "Let's feast and drink, for tomorrow we die!" This quotation is from Isa 22:13.

15:33 "bad company corrupts good character": This quotation from the Greek poet Menander (300s BC) is a warning not to listen to those who are teaching wrong things.

15:34 some of you don't know God at all: Paul sharply rebukes those who prided themselves on their knowledge but remained skeptical of resurrection.

15:35-58 Paul discusses the nature of resurrection bodies, perhaps responding to skeptical questions. In the Greco-Roman world, belief in the immortality of the soul was common, but not belief in the resurrection of the body.

15:36 What a foolish question! Paul's strong response suggests that the question is skeptical. It might also imply that the answer is unknowable.

15:37-39 Just as the kind of seed determines the shape of the plant that grows, yet the plant does not resemble the seed, so the resurrection body will be unlike the present body, yet identifiable as belonging to the same person.

or whatever you are planting. ³⁸Then God gives it the new body he wants it to have. A different plant grows from each kind of seed. ³⁹Similarly there are different kinds of flesh—one kind for humans, another for animals, another for birds, and another for fish.

⁴⁰There are also bodies in the heavens and bodies on the earth. The glory of the heavenly bodies is different from the glory of the earthly bodies. ⁴¹The sun has one kind of glory, while the moon and stars each have another kind. And even the stars differ from each other in their glory.

⁴²It is the same way with the resurrection of the dead. Our earthly bodies are planted in the ground when we die, but they will be raised to live forever. ⁴³Our bodies are buried in brokenness, but they will be raised in glory. They are buried in weakness, but they will be raised in strength. ⁴⁴They are buried as natural human bodies, but they will be raised as spiritual bodies. For just as there are natural bodies, there are also spiritual bodies.

⁴⁵The Scriptures tell us, “The first man, Adam, became a living person.” But the last Adam—that is, Christ—is a ^blife-giving Spirit. ⁴⁶What comes first is the natural body, then the spiritual body comes later. ⁴⁷Adam, the first man, was made from the dust of the earth, while Christ, the second man, came from ^cheaven. ⁴⁸Earthly people are like the earthly man, and heavenly people are like the heavenly man. ⁴⁹Just as we are now like the earthly man, we will someday be like the heavenly man.

⁵⁰What I am saying, dear brothers and sisters, is that our physical bodies cannot inherit the Kingdom of God. These dying bodies cannot inherit what will last forever.

⁵¹But let me reveal to you a wonderful ^dsecret. We will not all die, but we will all be transformed! ⁵²It will happen in a moment, in the blink of an eye, when the last trumpet is blown. For when the trumpet sounds, those who have died will be raised to live forever. And we who are living will also be transformed. ⁵³For our dying bodies must be transformed into bodies that will never die; our mortal bodies must be transformed into immortal bodies.

⁵⁴Then, when our dying bodies have been transformed into bodies that will never die, this Scripture will be fulfilled:

“Death is swallowed up in victory.

⁵⁵ O death, where is your victory?

O death, where is your sting?”

⁵⁶For ^esin is the sting that results in death, and the law gives ^esin its power. ⁵⁷But thank God! He gives us victory over sin and death through our Lord Jesus Christ.

⁵⁸So, my dear brothers and sisters, be strong and immovable. Always work enthusiastically for the Lord, for you know that nothing you do for the Lord is ever useless.

15:40-41 Everything that God has made has its own glory—its own unique beauty and magnificence. The resurrection body will be unlike anything else.

15:42-44 Just as growing plants differ from the seeds out of which they sprout, so resurrection bodies will be vastly unlike our mortal bodies.

15:45-49 Adam and Christ founded two distinct humanities: One is natural and earthly, enslaved to sin and death; the other is spiritual and heavenly, purified and destined for life. Adam represents the natural (physical) body and Christ the spiritual (resurrection) body. See also 15:21-22; Rom 5:12-21.

15:45-46 Just as Christ’s life-giving Spirit supersedes the natural life, the spiritual body will supersede the physical body.

15:45 This quotation is from Gen 2:7.

15:47 made from the dust of the earth: Adam’s earthly origin (Gen 2:7) is here contrasted with Christ’s heavenly origin.

15:48 Earthly people (literally those of the dust): Like Adam, natural human beings are under the curse of sin and death. All return to dust (see Gen 3:19)—they all die. • heavenly people are like the heavenly man: Those who belong to Christ are like him in having an unending spiritual life.

15:49 Like the earthly man, Adam, we have physical bodies in this life. But we will someday be like (some manuscripts read let us be like) Christ, the heavenly man, experiencing the Kingdom of God in resurrection bodies (cp. Rom 6:4-14).

15:50 Physical bodies cannot inherit God’s Kingdom. Only a spiritual, resurrected body can experience the Kingdom in all its fullness (cp. John 4:24).

15:51 The Good News reveals the previously unknown secret of resurrection. • We will not all die: Paul might have expected the future resurrection in his own lifetime (cp. 15:52; 1 Thes 4:15, 17).

15:54 bodies that will never die: Some manuscripts add and our mortal bodies have been transformed into immortal bodies. • “Death is swallowed up in victory”: This quotation is from Isa 25:8. Resurrection defeats the ultimate enemy, death, just as the power of the Spirit enables believers to transcend sin here and now (see Rom 8:2, 11).

15:55 This quotation (Hos 13:14, Greek version) assures believers that they have nothing to fear from death. • Death is like the sting of a scorpion.

15:57 The death and resurrection of Christ end the dominating power of sin and death (see Rom 6:14; 8:2; 10:4).

15:58 Nothing you do for the Lord is ever useless: There will be eternal rewards for those who serve him faithfully (see 3:12-15).

16:1-4 Paul answers the Corinthians’ question about the offering for poor Christians in Jerusalem (Acts 24:17; Rom 15:25-27; 2 Cor 8-9; Gal 2:10).

Galatia. ²On the first day of each week, you should each put aside a portion of the money you have earned. Don't wait until I get there and then try to collect it all at once. ³When I come, I will write letters of recommendation for the messengers you choose to deliver your gift to Jerusalem. ⁴And if it seems appropriate for me to go along, they can travel with me.

4. CONCLUSION (16:5-24)

Paul's Final Instructions

⁵I am coming to visit you after I have been to Macedonia, for I am planning to travel through Macedonia. ⁶Perhaps I will stay awhile with you, possibly all winter, and then you can send me on my way to my next destination. ⁷This time I don't want to make just a short visit and then go right on. I want to come and stay awhile, if the Lord will let me. ⁸In the meantime, I will be staying here at Ephesus until the Festival of Pentecost. ⁹There is a wide-open door for a great work here, although many oppose me.

¹⁰When Timothy comes, don't intimidate him. He is doing the Lord's work, just as I am. ¹¹Don't let anyone treat him with contempt. Send him on his way with your blessing when he returns to me. I expect him to come with the other believers.

¹²Now about our brother Apollos—I urged him to visit you with the other believers, but he was not willing to go right now. He will see you later when he has the opportunity.

¹³Be on guard. Stand firm in the faith. Be courageous. Be strong. ¹⁴And do everything with love.

¹⁵You know that Stephanas and his household were the first of the harvest of believers in Greece, and they are spending their lives in 'service to God's people. I urge you, dear brothers and sisters, ¹⁶to submit to them and others like them who serve with such devotion. ¹⁷I am very glad that Stephanas, Fortunatus, and Achaicus have come here. They have been providing the help you weren't here to give me. ¹⁸They have been a wonderful encouragement to me, as they have been to you. You must show your appreciation to all who serve so well.

Paul's Final Greetings and Benediction

¹⁹The churches here in the province of Asia send greetings in the Lord, as do Aquila and Priscilla and all the others who gather in their home for church meetings. ²⁰All the brothers and sisters here send greetings to you. Greet each other with a sacred kiss.

²¹HERE IS MY GREETING IN MY OWN HAND-WRITING—PAUL.

²²If anyone does not love the Lord, that person is cursed. Our Lord, come!

²³May the grace of the Lord Jesus be with you.

²⁴My love to all of you in Christ Jesus.

16:2 Christians met on the first day of each week (see Acts 20:7) rather than the last day of the week, as in the OT (Exod 20:8; 34:21; Isa 58:13-14). The first day was the "Lord's Day," the day of the Lord's resurrection (Mark 16:9; Luke 24:13-15; John 20:19; Rev 1:10). • The portion of the money you have earned is not specified; Paul later encouraged them to give as generously as they could (2 Cor 8:1-4; 9:6-13; cp. Luke 12:33-34; 21:1-4; 1 Tim 6:18-19).

16:4 Paul did in fact deliver the gift to Jerusalem (Rom 15:25-26).

16:5 Paul had traveled through Macedonia, a Roman province in the northern region of Greece, on his second missionary journey (Acts 15:36-18:22). • planning to travel through Macedonia: See Acts 19:21; 20:1-3; see also map, p. 1869.

16:6-7 possibly all winter: Paul evidently made this visit (cp. Acts 20:2-3).

16:8 Paul wrote this letter while in Ephesus (about AD 53-56; Acts 19:1-20:1). • Pentecost was in May or June.

16:10 When Timothy comes: See 4:17. Timothy was Paul's child in the faith and co-worker (see "Timothy" at Acts 16:1-3, p. 1860). • don't intimidate him: Timothy may have been shy (2 Tim 1:6-8).

16:11-12 with the other believers: Literally with the brothers; also in 16:12; see note on 1:10. It is not clear whom Paul meant. • Apollos: See note on 1:12.

16:13 Be courageous: Literally Be men.

16:15 in Greece: Literally in Achaia, the southern region of the Greek peninsula, which included Corinth. • dear brothers and sisters: Literally brothers; also in 16:20. See note on 1:10.

16:17 Together with Stephanas (see also 1:16; 16:15), Fortunatus and Achaicus had apparently traveled from Corinth to visit Paul in Ephesus.

16:19-24 As in other letters, Paul greets his friends and gives a benediction.

16:19 Asia was a Roman province in what is now western Turkey. • Aquila and Priscilla (Greek Prisca) had previously moved from Corinth to Ephesus, where Paul was writing this letter (see "Priscilla and Aquila" at Acts 18:1-3, p. 1865). • gather in their home: Aquila and Priscilla later continued this practice in Rome (see Rom 16:3-5).

16:20 with a sacred kiss (also in Rom 16:16; 2 Cor 13:12; 1 Thes 5:26; 1 Pet 5:14): A kiss on the cheek was a common greeting.

16:21 Paul takes up the pen and signs the letter in his OWN HANDWRITING. As was common, Paul used a secretary to write this letter and others (see Rom 16:22; Gal 6:11; Col 4:18; 2 Thes 3:17).

16:22 To be cursed is to be condemned by God (see also Rom 9:3; Gal 1:8-9). • Our Lord, come! (from Aramaic, Marana tha. Some manuscripts read Maran atha, "Our Lord has come"): This phrase was sometimes used in early Christian prayers (see also Rev 22:20).

16:23-24 All of Paul's letters close with a benediction similar to this one. • Paul invokes grace at both the beginning and the end of this letter (see 1:3).

16:24 Some manuscripts add Amen.

PAUL'S SECOND LETTER TO THE Corinthians

Second Corinthians reveals, more than any other letter, Paul's concern as a pastor. He passionately desires to win the Christians in Corinth back to himself, convinced that the Good News is above all a message of reconciliation. Paul faced criticism and accusations from fellow Christians who doubted him as a leader. Forced to defend himself, he opens his heart to this congregation to a degree not found in his other letters. Paul faced many dangers, including threats to his life, but being falsely accused by Christians he had won for Christ was one of his worst trials. This letter is a great source of encouragement and hope—both to Christian leaders when they are at an impasse over difficult congregations and when their role as leaders is challenged, and to the congregations themselves, who have Paul's example of how Christ loves his church.

SETTING

The apostle Paul first came to Corinth in the course of his second missionary journey (see Acts 18:1-20). The city was ancient even in Paul's day. It had developed into a strong, well-populated economic and urban center from the 500s BC. Under Roman occupation and influence since Julius Caesar reestablished it in 44 BC, it became a city of fine buildings, shops, theaters, and houses. Its trade, according to the geographer Strabo, brought much wealth, and Plutarch says that the city banks flourished. Artisans crafted bronze artifacts, pottery, and especially the terra cotta lamps that were well-known throughout the ancient world (see 4:7). Agriculture was also key to Corinth's prosperity, so Paul can use the imagery of field and farm to make a point in his teaching even though his readers were city dwellers (9:6-10; 1 Cor 3:6-9; 9:7, 10). Beginning in 27 BC, Achaia (southern Greece) had been controlled by the Roman senate because of Corinth's economic importance and geographical advantage.

◀ The Setting of 2 Corinthians, about AD 56. After writing 1 Corinthians (see 1 Corinthians Introduction, p. 1924), Paul left Ephesus in AD 56 and traveled up to Macedonia; while there, he wrote 2 Corinthians to continue to address the serious difficulties the church in Corinth was facing. Shortly after writing 2 Corinthians, Paul traveled down to Corinth and spent three months there before finishing his journey. The map shows Paul's third missionary journey as a solid line up to the writing of 2 Corinthians in Macedonia, and as a dashed line thereafter.

The religious life of Corinth is well attested in contemporary writings. The Greek goddess Aphrodite (whom the Romans called Venus), the goddess of life, beauty, and passion, was a popular deity.

Conclusion

Strabo speaks of her vast temple on a hill above the city as a center of prostitution, and the moral climate of Corinth was infamously degraded.

Scholars are now cautious about this opinion, since the political rivalry between Corinth and nearby Athens might have motivated Strabo's denigrating remarks about Corinth. However, we know that Paul wrote Rom 1:18-32 while he was at Corinth (see Romans Introduction, "Date, Place, and Occasion of Writing," p. 1890; cp. Acts 20:2-3), and 2 Corinthians undeniably reflects his awareness of serious moral problems there (see 6:14-17; 12:19-21).

Into this city Paul brought the message of Christ. By God's grace and the ministry of his servant, a company of believers was established, and the nascent church grew. Paul's converts, whom he regarded as his children (6:13; 12:14;

1 Cor 4:15), were a mixed lot, a cross-section of cosmopolitan society in this city that was famous for its pretensions to wisdom and rhetoric, its popular culture, its trade, its two harbors, and its love of life. At the climax of his list of trials in 11:23-28, Paul writes: "Then, besides all this, I have the daily burden of my concern for all the churches." No congregation brought Paul more concern than the church at Corinth.

SUMMARY

Arising out of challenges to Paul's apostolic authority and the infiltration of false teachers, 2 Corinthians handles a number of issues not raised in 1 Corinthians.

In the first half of 2 Corinthians (chs 1-6), Paul outlines his understanding of Christian service. Suffering for Christ's sake is a necessary part of service (ch 1), though it is hard to endure when we are offended by fellow Christians (ch 2). The message of Good News gives life in the Spirit and God's salvation, replacing the religion of the old covenant, though it has continuity with it (ch 3). The power of the message shows through the weakness of God's servants (ch 4) and centers in the death of God's Son, by which we are restored to God's favor (ch 5). Christian living is marked by devotion and dedication that distinguish believers from the evils of the world (ch 6).

In chs 7–13 we see Paul as a caring pastor addressing a variety of themes. Paul explains how he came to write his letters to Corinth (ch 7). He reveals principles of giving and stewardship in discussing the collection for the Jerusalem church (chs 8–9), and he makes a spirited defense of his apostolic work against those who denigrated his status because of his weaknesses (chs 10–13).

AUTHOR

No one has seriously challenged Paul's authorship of 2 Corinthians. The sole exception is that 6:14–7:1 is sometimes regarded as a non-Pauline insertion, perhaps from a sect, since it is similar in terminology to the Dead Sea Scrolls. More likely it is simply a digression, or perhaps it has been taken from another of Paul's letters to Corinth and inserted here (see below under "Date and Occasion of Writing"). Either way, the material in it was most likely written by Paul himself to deal with the moral and spiritual situation in the church in Corinth.

DATE AND OCCASION OF WRITING

During his two- to three-year stay in Ephesus (AD 53~56), Paul wrote 1 Corinthians and sent it to the church in Corinth by the hand of Timothy (see 1 Cor 16:10-11; 1 Corinthians Introduction, "Date and Occasion of Writing," p. 1926). Apparently 1 Corinthians was not well-received, and some of the Corinthians were now questioning Paul's apostolic authority. This crisis was anticipated in 1 Cor 4:18-21, but the challenge became more vocal and aggressive. So Paul made a personal visit from Ephesus (2:1). This visit apparently failed to achieve its purpose, as Paul's opponents apparently withstood him. Humiliated before the church and insulted by a prominent member, Paul returned to Ephesus in great distress. He then wrote a "severe letter" and sent it with Titus to Corinth (2:3-13). This severe letter, which has been lost, was finally successful in bringing the Corinthians to repentance (7:8-10).

Meanwhile, Paul left Ephesus after severe trials (Acts 19:23-41; cp. 2 Cor 1:8-11; 4:8-15; 6:4-10) and traveled to Macedonia (Acts 20:1). In Macedonia Paul found Titus, who had arrived from Corinth, and Titus gave Paul a very encouraging report about the situation there (7:5-7). In response to that report, Paul wrote 2 Corinthians (about AD 56) and sent it back to Corinth with Titus (8:6, 16-19). Paul then traveled on to Corinth himself, where he spent three months (see Acts 20:1-3).

THE UNITY OF 2 CORINTHIANS AS A LETTER

Although there is no question that Paul himself wrote 2 Corinthians, there are questions about whether it was all written and sent as one letter.

6:14–7:1. In 1 Cor 5:9, Paul mentions a letter that he had previously sent to Corinth dealing with the issue of associating with immoral people. Although this letter has been lost, some scholars believe that at least part of it is preserved as 2 Cor 6:14–7:1, which addresses the same subject. If 6:14–7:1 is a fragment of that previous letter, it might explain why this section seems to be inserted in the discussion, which would otherwise flow naturally from 6:13 directly to 7:2. On the other hand, Paul often digressed while writing his letters, so it is also possible that 6:14–7:1 is simply a digression.

Paul's second letter to Corinth is very different from the first one. Something terrible had happened, and we feel his pain from the opening lines. . . . The letter itself comes through the tragedy and out into the sunlight, and has a lot to teach us as we make that journey from time to time ourselves.

10:1–13:14. The last four chapters of 2 Corinthians are a puzzle. Some see them as part of Paul's "severe letter" (see 7:8); but that is not likely, since the Corinthians responded to his severe letter with repentance (7:9). The tone of chs 10–13 is more indignant and ironic. It is better to regard chs 10–13 as being written later than chs 1–9 in response to a new situation that arose following the coming of false teachers to Corinth (cp. 11:4, 12–15). The Corinthians had warmly received these teachers, who quickly reopened old wounds and insinuated that Paul was not a true apostle nor even a Christian at all (see 10:7, 10; 11:5; 12:11). When Paul sensed the danger, he wrote a blistering note full of irony, invective, ridicule, and self-defense. At the heart of chs 10–13 is Paul's "Fool's Speech" (11:16–12:10), in which he resorts to boasting because the need compels him (11:1, 16–17).

We cannot tell whether the letter preserved in chs 10–13 succeeded in warding off these threats and defending once more Paul's apostolic standing in Corinth. Paul followed up this letter with a visit (Acts 20:2) as he came to Greece, presumably Corinth. From there he sailed to Jerusalem with the money donated by the other churches, including Corinth. So it is possible that Paul's last letter was the most effective of all, and the Corinthians were finally won over. Forty years after the Corinthian correspondence, a letter known as 1 Clement, written by a leader at Rome to the Corinthians, speaks warmly of Paul's ministry.

MEANING AND MESSAGE

The Minister's Job Description. The first half of the letter (chs 1–7) explains and describes the responsibilities and privileges of a leader. The message of Good News is new (ch 3) and must be validated by the life-style of those who proclaim it. The gospel brings reconciliation (ch 5).

The Heart of the Good News. Chapter 5 contains one of the fullest accounts of Paul's central message (5:18–21). Paul had already told the Corinthians that he came preaching Christ crucified (1 Cor 1:18–2:2). Now, in light of the situation that had developed at Corinth after Paul left for Ephesus, he explains how this message is to be applied. People are out of harmony with God because of sin, so God has acted in response to human need. God in Christ has dealt with the problem of sin and alienation by becoming human and taking our sin upon himself at the cross. Through Christ, we are restored to a relationship of peace and acceptance with God. We are urged to be reconciled to God (5:20) and to maintain our reconciliation with God. This relationship needs to be maintained throughout our lives, which implies loyalty to the Good News as Paul proclaimed it and separation from moral evils such as plagued the city of Corinth.

The Call to Holy Living. Running through this letter is a summons to holy life. The two governing images are of the church as a temple (6:14–7:1) and as a bride (11:2). Both images speak of purity and dedication. The Temple is the holy place where God is worshiped, so his people should be consecrated to this task. The bride of Christ should live in faithful relationship to her spouse.

We learn much more about Paul himself [in 2 Corinthians] than from any other of his letters.

The Need for Generous Giving. Two lengthy chapters (chs 8–9) are devoted to a single theme. Those who are at strife among themselves at Corinth need to consider the needs of others, especially the poverty-stricken Jewish believers in Jerusalem. The incarnate Lord Jesus Christ is our supreme model for sacrificial giving (8:9).

Second Corinthians is a very human document that opens a window onto the inner life of the apostle Paul. For that reason, it has been called Paul's most personal letter. The apostle and the Good News are closely united throughout the epistle. What was at stake at Corinth was the essence of the Good News as expressed in the way of the cross. Paul's experience of suffering and weakness as an apostle was, to the believers in Corinth, a seeming contradiction to his authority. In fact, however, the essence of the Good News is for people to accept another person's suffering (Christ's, first and foremost) for their own good. This is still relevant to leadership and daily living among Christians today.

1. INTRODUCTION (1:1-11)

Greetings from Paul (1:1-2)

1 This letter is from Paul, chosen by the will of God to be an apostle of Christ Jesus, and from our brother Timothy.

I am writing to God's church in Corinth and to all of his holy people throughout Greece.

Thanksgiving (1:3-11)

God Offers Comfort to All

³All praise to God, the ^aFather of our Lord Jesus Christ. God is our merciful ^aFather and the source of all comfort. ⁴He comforts us in all our troubles so that we can comfort others. When they are troubled, we will be able to give them the same comfort God has given us. ⁵For the more we suffer for Christ, the more God will shower us with his comfort through Christ. ⁶Even when we are weighed down with troubles, it is for your comfort and salvation! For when we ourselves are comforted, we will certainly comfort you. Then you can patiently endure the same things we suffer. ⁷We are confident that as you share in our sufferings, you will also share in the comfort God gives us.

God's Rescue of Paul

⁸We think you ought to know, dear brothers and sisters, about the trouble we went through in the province of Asia. We were crushed and overwhelmed beyond our ability to endure, and we thought we would never live through it. ⁹In fact, we expected to die. But as a result, we stopped relying on ourselves and learned to rely only on God, who raises the dead. ¹⁰And he did rescue us from mortal danger, and he will rescue us again. We have placed our confidence in him, and he will continue to rescue us. ¹¹And you are helping us by praying for us. Then many people will give thanks because God has graciously answered so many prayers for our safety.

1:1-2 Letters in the first century usually began by mentioning the writer's name and that of the person(s) addressed, followed by a greeting (see Acts 15:23; 23:25-26). Paul follows this pattern.

1:1 Greece: Greek Achaia, the southern region of the Greek peninsula. • Paul turns the usual, colorless "greetings" (Greek chairein) into a rich salutation by praying for God's grace (Greek charis) and peace on his readers. • Paul highlights his calling as an apostle; his status as God's appointed agent for establishing the church had been challenged at Corinth.

1:3-11 Paul now breaks into a jubilant thanksgiving. He is glad that, in spite of many troubles that have weighed upon him, he has had special comfort from God (1:4-7) and has been rescued from death in the province of Asia (1:8-11).

1:3 our merciful Father: God delights in showing favor to his people and in hearing his children's cry (Ps 145:18-19).

1:4-6 One purpose of suffering is to qualify Christ's servants to enter sympathetically into the experience of others. Paul is not an aloof pastor, remote from the people to whom he ministers.

1:6 it is for your comfort and salvation!

Paul's sharing in their troubles and offering of encouragement promotes their spiritual well-being.

1:8-11 dear brothers and sisters: Literally brothers. Paul uses this traditional term of affection to address all the believers, not just the men. • The trouble we went through in the province of Asia is not easy to identify. One suggestion is the riot in Ephesus (Acts 19:23-41). Another is that Paul was tried in a civil court and faced the prospect of execution in Ephesus (1:9; see 1 Cor 15:32). Less likely is that he suffered an acute life-threatening illness. Paul was no stranger to mortal danger (1:10; see also 4:10-12; 6:9; 11:23), but he was marvelously rescued by divine assistance (1:11).

2. PAUL'S TRAVEL PLANS AND LETTER (1:12-2:13)

Paul's Change of Plans

¹²We can say with confidence and a clear conscience that we have lived with a God-given holiness and sincerity in all our dealings. We have depended on God's grace, not on our own human wisdom. That is how we have conducted ourselves before the world, and especially toward you. ¹³Our letters have been straightforward, and there is nothing written between the lines and nothing you can't understand. I hope someday you will fully understand us, ¹⁴even if you don't understand us now. Then on the day when the Lord Jesus returns, you will be proud of us in the same way we are proud of you.

¹⁵Since I was so sure of your understanding and trust, I wanted to give you a double blessing by visiting you twice—¹⁶first on my way to Macedonia and again when I returned from Macedonia. Then you could send me on my way to Judea.

¹⁷You may be asking why I changed my plan. Do you think I make my plans carelessly? Do you think I am like people of the world who say "Yes" when they really mean "No"? ¹⁸As surely as God is faithful, our word to you does not waver between "Yes" and "No." ¹⁹For Jesus Christ, the Son of God, does not waver between "Yes" and "No." He is the one whom Silas, Timothy, and I preached to you, and as God's ultimate "Yes," he always does what he says. ²⁰For all of God's promises have been fulfilled in Christ with a resounding "Yes!" And through Christ, our "Amen" (which means "Yes") ascends to God for his glory.

²¹It is God who enables us, along with you, to stand firm for Christ. He has commissioned us, ²²and he has identified us as his own by placing the Holy Spirit in our hearts as the ^bfirst installment that guarantees everything he has promised us.

²³Now I call upon God as my witness that I am telling the truth. The reason I didn't return to Corinth was to spare you from a severe rebuke. ²⁴But that does not mean we want to dominate you by telling you how to put your faith into practice. We want to work together with you so you will be full of joy, for it is by your own faith that you stand firm.

2 So I decided that I would not bring you grief with another painful visit. ²For if I cause you grief, who will make me glad? Certainly not someone I have grieved.

Paul's Tearful Letter

³That is why I wrote to you as I did, so that when I do come, I won't be grieved by the very ones who ought to give me the greatest joy. Surely you all know that my joy comes from your being joyful. ⁴I wrote that letter in great anguish, with a troubled heart and many tears. I didn't want to grieve you, but I wanted to let you know how much love I have for you.

1:12-14 Paul's travel plans and his unfulfilled promise of a visit to Corinth were criticized; he was charged with being fickle like persons of the world "who say 'Yes' when they really mean 'No'" (1:17). Before responding to that charge, he clarifies his motives in his ministry and in his letters.

1:12 holiness: Some manuscripts read honesty. The difference is only two letters in Greek (hagiotēti, "holiness"; haplotēti, "honesty").

1:14 the Lord Jesus: Some manuscripts read our Lord Jesus.

1:15-2:2 Paul had changed his travel plan. In 1 Cor 16:5, he expressed the hope of visiting Corinth after passing through Macedonia, which was in the northern region of Greece. Then he evidently promised to visit Corinth earlier (perhaps in his "severe letter," 7:8)—on his way north. Now he would have to go back to the original plan, and that earlier visit, bringing a double blessing, would not be happening after all.

1:17 Paul's apparent indecisiveness and failure to keep his promise were being criticized. Paul's protest is indignant.

1:18-22 It was bad enough that Paul's enemies at Corinth had attacked his character as unreliable and shift (1:17). It was worse when they charged that his entire message was just as uncertain. In these verses Paul answers that allegation.

1:18-20 As surely as God is faithful: God can be trusted, as can his promises in Christ and his ministry through the apostles.

1:19 Silas (Greek Silvanus) was a well-known Christian leader from the church in Antioch (see Acts 15:22, 27, 32; 1 Thes 1:1; 2 Thes 1:1; 1 Pet 5:12).

1:20 God has put a seal of approval, with a resounding "Yes!" on the OT prophecies as they are fulfilled in Christ. Believers respond with "Amen," meaning "confirmed and agreed."

1:21-22 Paul's ministry was enabled, commissioned (literally anointed), and endorsed by God, who equipped him for his work. • along with you: All believers are identified . . . as his own (literally sealed) by the Holy Spirit, who is God's gift to his people (see Rom 8:1-27; Gal 3:2-7; 5:5-6, 16-26; Eph 1:13-14). • First installment is a commercial term for a deposit or down payment, guaranteeing full possession (see 5:5; Eph 1:14).

1:23-2:2 God as my witness: This mild oath indicates that he is telling the truth (see 1 Sam 12:5; 20:12; Job 16:19; cp. Ruth 1:17; 1 Sam 14:44; 2 Sam 3:35; 1 Kgs 2:23; Jer 42:5). The real reason for Paul's change of travel plans was to spare them from a severe rebuke (1:23) and not inflict another painful visit on them (2:1).

2:1 Paul's previous visit had been very painful and had caused him great distress. This visit is not recorded in Acts; it apparently took place during Paul's three-year ministry in Ephesus (see Acts 19:8-22). During that visit, Paul severely rebuked the church (1:23) but was insulted by an unnamed man (2:5-11).

2:3-4 After his painful visit (2:1), Paul then wrote a letter with great anguish . . . and many tears that was intended for the Corinthians' good. That letter (see also 7:8-10) has evidently been lost. But it was effective in bringing about the needed repentance and change.

Forgiveness for the Sinner

⁵I am not overstating it when I say that the man who caused all the trouble hurt all of you more than he hurt me. ⁶Most of you opposed him, and that was punishment enough. ⁷Now, however, it is time to forgive and comfort him. Otherwise he may be overcome by discouragement. ⁸So I urge you now to reaffirm your love for him.

⁹I wrote to you as I did to test you and see if you would fully comply with my instructions. ¹⁰When you forgive this man, I forgive him, too. And when I forgive whatever needs to be forgiven, I do so with Christ's authority for your benefit, ¹¹so that Satan will not outsmart us. For we are familiar with his evil schemes.

Paul's Recent Travels

¹²When I came to the city of Troas to preach the Good News of Christ, the Lord opened a door of opportunity for me. ¹³But I had no peace of mind because my dear brother Titus hadn't yet arrived with a report from you. So I said good-bye and went on to Macedonia to find him.

3. PAUL'S APOSTOLIC MINISTRY (2:14–7:16)

Ministers of the New Covenant

¹⁴But thank God! He has made us his captives and continues to lead us along in Christ's triumphal procession. Now he uses us to spread the knowledge of Christ everywhere, like a sweet perfume. ¹⁵Our lives are a Christ-like fragrance rising up to God. But this fragrance is perceived differently by those who are being saved and by those who are perishing. ¹⁶To those who are perishing, we are a dreadful smell of death and doom. But to those who are being saved, we are a life-giving perfume. And who is adequate for such a task as this?

¹⁷You see, we are not like the many hucksters who preach for personal profit. We preach the word of God with sincerity and with Christ's authority, knowing that God is watching us.

3 Are we beginning to praise ourselves again? Are we like others, who need to bring you letters of recommendation, or who ask you to write such letters on their behalf? Surely not! ²The only letter of recommendation we need is you yourselves. Your lives are a letter written in our hearts; everyone can read it and recognize our good work among you. ³Clearly, you are a letter from Christ showing the result of our ministry among you. This "letter" is written not with pen and ink, but with the Spirit of the living God. It is carved not on tablets of stone, but on human hearts.

⁴We are confident of all this because of our great trust in God through Christ. ⁵It is not that we think we are qualified to do anything on our own. Our qualification comes from God. ⁶He has enabled us to be ministers of his new covenant. This is a covenant

2:5-11 These verses are the outcome of Paul's earlier visit and the insult he received. Following Paul's severe but tearful letter, the church condemned the behavior of the man who caused all the trouble and disciplined him (2:6). He repented, so now it was time to forgive and comfort him, as Paul had already done.

2:11 If we exercise forgiveness, as Paul did, Satan will not outsmart us by making us either too lax over sin or too rigorous in punishing offenders. • familiar with his evil schemes: Cp. 11:3, 14; Eph 6:11.

2:12-13 After the riot at Ephesus (Acts 19:1-20:1), Paul went to the seaport of Troas (Acts 20:5). He was impatient to get news from Titus about the result of the severe but tearful letter (2:4), and he crossed over to Macedonia in northern Greece to find him.

2:14-7:4 At this point, the story about finding Titus breaks off, and will not be resumed until 7:5. Paul digresses to discuss his ministry as an apostle proclaiming the Good News.

2:14 Like captives in a Roman general's celebration march, Paul was in Christ's triumphal procession (cp. 1 Cor 4:9; Eph 4:7-11), carrying the marks of willing servitude (see Rom 1:1; Gal 6:17).

2:15-16 Incense was scattered along the parade route of a victorious Roman general, and it was received in one of two ways. For the captives, who were on their way to the arena and death, it was a dreadful smell of death and doom. For the victors, it was a life-giving perfume. So it is with the lives of those who proclaim the Good News, which either leads to eternal life or seals the fate of the person who rejects it (cp. 1 Cor 1:18).

2:17 Paul contrasts his service with that of his opponents. • the many hucksters: Some manuscripts read the rest of the hucksters. They preach for personal profit and adulterate the truth, like merchants in Paul's day who offered shoddy goods, or innkeepers who watered down the wine. By contrast, Paul preached with sincerity and with Christ's authority (cp. 1:12; 4:2). Paul's denial of mercenary motives reemerges in chs 11-12.

3:1-3 Paul's ministry was validated by the lives of those who were changed by the Good News rather than by a letter of recommendation (cp. Acts 18:27). Christ, the author of this transformation, used Paul to lead believers to him. The marks of genuineness are not in letters written . . . with pen and ink on parchment, but the fruit of the Spirit (Gal 5:22-23) in human lives and carved . . . on human hearts.

3:2 our hearts: Some manuscripts read your hearts.

3:4-18 The contrast between Paul's ministry and the others' ministries leads Paul to contrast the old covenant of written laws (Exod 31:18) with the new covenant written on human hearts (Jer 31:33).

3:4-6 The old written covenant is the religion of Moses as interpreted by the Jewish rabbis. It ends in death for adherents who see it as a way of salvation. The law is good (Rom 7:12-14), but those who use it to gain merit fail. It leads either to transgression or to pride; not of written laws, but of the Spirit. The old written covenant ends in death; but under the new covenant, the Spirit ^egives life.

The Glory of the New Covenant

⁷The old way, with laws etched in stone, led to death, though it began with such 'glory that the people of Israel could not bear to look at Moses' face. For his face shone with the 'glory of God, even though the brightness was already fading away. ⁸Shouldn't we expect far greater glory under the new way, now that the Holy Spirit is giving life? ⁹If the old way, which brings condemnation, was glorious, how much more glorious is the new way, which makes us right with God! ¹⁰In fact, that first glory was not glorious at all compared with the overwhelming glory of the new way. ¹¹So if the old way, which has been replaced, was glorious, how much more glorious is the new, which remains forever!

¹²Since this new way gives us such confidence, we can be very bold. ¹³We are not like Moses, who put a veil over his face so the people of Israel would not see the glory, even though it was destined to fade away. ¹⁴But the people's minds were hardened, and to this day whenever the old ^ecovenant is being read, the same veil covers their minds so they cannot understand the truth. And this veil can be removed only by believing in Christ. ¹⁵Yes, even today when they read Moses' writings, their hearts are covered with that veil, and they do not understand.

¹⁶But whenever someone turns to the Lord, the veil is taken away. ¹⁷For the Lord is the Spirit, and wherever the Spirit of the Lord is, there is ^hfreedom. ¹⁸So all of us who have had that veil removed can see and reflect the glory of the Lord. And the Lord—who is the Spirit—makes us more and more like him as we are ⁱchanged into his glorious image.

Paul's Preaching Ministry

4 Therefore, since God in his mercy has given us this new way, we never give up. ²We reject all shameful deeds and underhanded methods. We don't try to trick anyone or distort the word of God. We tell the truth before God, and all who are honest know this.

³If the Good News we preach is hidden behind a veil, it is hidden only from people who are perishing. ⁴Satan, who is the god of this world, has blinded the minds of those who don't believe. They are unable to see the glorious light of the Good News. They don't understand this message about the glory of Christ, who is the exact likeness of God.

⁵You see, we don't go around preaching about ourselves. We preach that Jesus Christ is Lord, and we ourselves are your servants for Jesus' sake. ⁶For God, who said, "Let there be light in the darkness," has made this light shine in our hearts so we could know the glory of God that is seen in the face of Jesus Christ.

⁷We now have this light shining in our hearts, but we ourselves are like fragile clay jars containing this great treasure. This makes it clear that our great power is from God, not from ourselves.

⁸We are pressed on every side by troubles, but we are not crushed. We are perplexed, but not driven to despair. ⁹We are hunted down, but never abandoned by God. We get knocked down, but we are not destroyed. ¹⁰Through suffering, our bodies continue to share in the death of Jesus so that the life of Jesus may also be seen in our bodies.

¹¹Yes, we live under constant danger of death because we serve Jesus, so that the either way, the law brings condemnation (3:9).

3:7-11 The old way: (Or the old ministry; also in 3:8-12): The old covenant had its moments of glory, such as when Moses' face . . . shone from his communion with the Lord (Exod 34:29-35). ^{*} The old way has been replaced by the new way, which is eternal (Heb 8:8-13).

3:12-15 The old covenant, represented by Moses' veil, led to fear and did not remove spiritual blindness.

3:16-18 The believer who turns to the Lord has freedom in the Spirit. We receive something Moses never knew as we become more and more like Christ (4:4; John 1:1-14; Col 1:15; Heb 1:1-4) and reflect the glory of the Lord. Divine glory in this present life leads to our being like Christ in the next life (Rom 8:29; Gal 4:19; Phil 3:21; 1 Jn 3:2).

4:1 This new way (or This new ministry) shows us God's mercy. Paul felt privileged to have the ministry of sharing the message of Good News (1 Cor 15:9-11; 1 Tim 1:12-17).

4:2 Paul's ministry was marked by honesty, unlike some other preachers (2:17).

4:3-4 The Good News divides people into two categories: those who remain in darkness, and those who are enlightened by God (see Acts 26:18). God's action in bringing people to himself is a movement from a realm governed by darkness to the light of God's presence (Col 1:12-14; 1 Pet 2:9). The god of this world fights against the change that the Good News brings to people's hearts and minds.

4:5 We preach that Jesus Christ is Lord: See also Rom 10:9-10; 1 Cor 12:3; Col 2:6.

4:7 We now have . . . this great treasure: Literally We now have this treasure in clay jars. The message of Good News is like great treasure, but it is housed in fragile clay jars—our weak bodies. This insight gives purpose to suffering (4:8-5:10).

4:11 Believers often share the humiliation of the Lord with confidence that they will also share in his triumphant risen life (4:14).

life of Jesus will be evident in our dying bodies. ¹²So we live in the face of death, but this has resulted in eternal life for you.

¹³But we continue to preach because we have the same kind of faith the psalmist had when he said, "I believed in God, so I spoke." ¹⁴We know that God, who raised the Lord Jesus, will also raise us with Jesus and present us to himself together with you. ¹⁵All of this is for your benefit. And as God's grace reaches more and more people, there will be great thanksgiving, and God will receive more and more glory.

¹⁶That is why we never give up. Though our bodies are dying, our spirits are being renewed every day. ¹⁷For our present troubles are small and won't last very long. Yet they produce for us a glory that vastly outweighs them and will last forever! ¹⁸So we don't look at the troubles we can see now; rather, we fix our gaze on things that cannot be seen. For the things we see now will soon be gone, but the things we cannot see will last forever.

New Bodies

5 For we know that when this earthly tent we live in is taken down (that is, when we die and leave this earthly body), we will have a house in heaven, an eternal body made for us by God himself and not by human hands. ²We grow weary in our present bodies, and we long to put on our heavenly bodies like new clothing. ³For we will put on heavenly bodies; we will not be spirits without bodies. ⁴While we live in these earthly bodies, we groan and sigh, but it's not that we want to die and get rid of these bodies

Paul interprets the old covenant in light of his experience with Jesus Christ and the new covenant that Christ initiated (3:7-18), as prophesied in Jer 31:31-34. Using the creation story of Gen 1-2, Paul explains how the God of creation is also the God of the new creation in Jesus Christ, who shows his glory to those who believe (4:4-6; 5:17). God is now revealed in Christ, who brings God close to us. What that means is spelled out in various ways in this letter.

In the new covenant, God is our Father because he is the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ (1:3). He is the faithful God whose OT promises are fulfilled in the Messiah (1:18-22). He calls men and women into his family (6:18) and sustains them in times of trial because he is the merciful father and the God who gives encouragement (1:3).

God is the author of reconciliation (5:18-21), and the Father and the Son are bound together in this common purpose. Christ became the means by which God won the sinful world back to himself. Jesus Christ became one with sinful humankind (8:9), and released God's saving power and righteousness to restore the broken relationship between God and the world.

God works in human lives through his Holy Spirit. God's plan includes the promise of resurrection, when believers' mortal bodies will be transformed into glorified bodies (1 Cor 15:42-57). Paul gives a full account of this hope in 5:1-10.

Paul had a rich understanding of one God in three persons (see 13:14). The salvation brought by Christ the Son reveals the Father's love, and believers come to share in this by the Holy Spirit. The Spirit is life-giving (3:6, 17-18); he is the one who unites us to Christ and guarantees complete salvation in the resurrection (1:22; 5:5).

4:12 Through his life of danger and exposure to mortal peril (see 1 Cor 15:30), Paul was reinforcing the faith of the Christians in the churches that he founded (cp. Col 1:24; 2 Tim 2:10).

4:13-14 The secret of Paul's resilience was in the same kind of faith the psalmist had, which is centered in the living Lord. • "I believed in God, so I spoke": This quotation is from Ps 116:10.

4:14 who raised the Lord Jesus: Some manuscripts read who raised Jesus.

4:16-17 we never give up: This call to endurance is given with a reminder of what is in store in the future (5:1-10). The human body is in the process of dying in the normal course of growing old, and Paul was particularly worn away physically and emotionally (4:8-12). Yet he was being renewed every day—his spirit's life was being rejuvenated and revitalized by the power of God. • our spirits are: Literally our inner being is.

4:18 If we look at the troubles we can see now, we grow faint; but when we see our lives in the light of eternal reality, we know that our troubles will soon be gone.

5:1-10 The prospect of eternal hope is bright, with heavenly bodies replacing the dying bodies of this present life. The God of resurrection will also raise us and present us to himself with all believers (4:14). The immediate stimulus for this statement of resurrection hope was what Paul had to face in Ephesus (1:8-11). The frailty of his body reminded him of what lies beyond death, when this earthly tent we live in—that is, our body—will be taken down in death and dissolution (see 1 Cor 15:42-57; Phil 3:20-21).

5:2 we long to put on our heavenly bodies: This is no death wish; Paul was yearning for the Lord's return when he would give new bodies to his people (1 Cor 15:51-58; Phil 3:20-21; 1 Thes 4:16-17).

5:3 we will not be spirits without bodies: Literally we will not be naked.

that clothe us. Rather, we want to put on our new bodies so that these dying bodies will be swallowed up by life. ⁵God himself has prepared us for this, and as a ^kguarantee he has given us his Holy Spirit.

⁶So we are always confident, even though we know that as long as we live in these bodies we are not at home with the Lord. ⁷For we live by believing and not by seeing. ⁸Yes, we are fully confident, and we would rather be away from these earthly bodies, for then we will be at home with the Lord. ⁹So whether we are here in this body or away from this body, our goal is to please him. ¹⁰For we must all stand before ^aChrist to be judged. We will each receive whatever we deserve for the good or evil we have done in this earthly body.

God's Ambassadors

¹¹Because we understand our fearful responsibility to the Lord, we work hard to persuade others. God knows we are sincere, and I hope you know this, too. ¹²Are we commending ourselves to you again? No, we are giving you a reason to be proud of us, so you can answer those who brag about having a spectacular ministry rather than having a sincere ^bheart. ¹³If it seems we are crazy, it is to bring glory to God. And if we are in our right minds, it is for your benefit. ¹⁴Either way, Christ's love controls us. Since we believe that Christ died for all, we also believe that we have all died to our old life. ¹⁵He died for everyone so that those who receive his new life will no longer live for themselves. Instead, they will live for Christ, who died and was raised for them.

The Message of Reconciliation (5:18-21)

Reconciliation is a term found throughout the Pauline letters with a wide range of meanings. In Rom 5:1-11, Paul concentrates on the cost of God's reconciling work in the death of his son. Colossians 1:15-20 is a hymn in praise of the cosmic scope of reconciliation, with the exalted Lord now ruler of all. In Eph 2:11-22, the emphasis is on the scope of reconciliation that embraces both Jews and Gentiles to form a united church with all hostility broken down like demolishing a wall of separation.

Paul's fullest exposition of the meaning of Jesus' death is in 2 Cor 5:18-21. Earlier, Paul had reminded the Corinthians of the centrality of the cross (1 Cor 15:3-5) but had not elaborated on the deepest meaning of that saving event. Now he explains what Christ's death on the cross means: Christ identified himself with human sin so that sinners might be restored to their family relationship with God. This reconciliation turns enemies into friends. The cost of this exchange is that "God made Christ, who never sinned, to be the offering for our sin, so that we could be made right with God through Christ" (5:21).

The event of Jesus' resurrection is also invested with tremendous significance. With the resurrection of Jesus and his triumph over death, a new world is born—a new era in which God's people have the promise of eternal fellowship with him (see 4:14–5:10). Those who have trusted in Christ for salvation have received the gift of the Holy Spirit, the guarantee of future salvation (5:5). They know that God has accepted them and will welcome them forever.

11:1, 3, 27), yet we do have Jesus' own resurrection and the presence of the Holy Spirit as evidence of what is to come (1 Cor 15:1-9; Eph 1:14).

5:9-10 The goal of the present life is to please him (see also Rom 12:1-2; 14:18; Col 1:10; 1 Thes 4:1). This ambition will be tested when we stand before Christ to be judged. The judge is also our advocate, so we are confident of acquittal (Rom 8:1, 33-34). Yet actions done in this earthly body will be assessed and called to account (Acts 17:31).

5:11-7:4 Paul now explains the main theme of his message, which is reconciliation—the turning of enemies into friends and the restoration of relationships. Paul's thinking is rooted in what God has done through Christ to reconcile sinners to himself (5:18-21).

This exposition is framed by a defense of his own ministry (5:11-17) and an application of his message to the situation in Corinth (6:1-7:4).

5:11 One motive for Paul's ministry is fearful responsibility to the Lord—not a cringing dread, but a healthy reverence (see "Fear of the Lord" at Prov 1:7, p. 1030).

5:12 proud of us: Some manuscripts read proud of yourselves. • Paul's opponents bragged about having a spectacular ministry outwardly, but they did not have a sincere heart (cp. 1 Sam 16:7; Rom 2:28-29).

5:13 if . . . we are crazy: This statement might imply a charge on Paul's previous visit to Corinth (2:1-2) that he was out of his mind when he proclaimed the simple Good News at Corinth (1 Cor 2:2).

5:14-17 Paul's doctrine of reconciliation arises from his conviction that (1) Christ died for all believers; (2) in Christ, believers also die to sin and self; and (3) now all believers should live for Christ. The new life in Christ thus leads to a fresh evaluation of other people and of Christ.

5:14 Christ's love controls us (or urges us on): This could refer either to believers' love for Christ or (more likely) to Christ's love for us, which urges believers on in making Christ known through their service (see 1 Cor 9:16). • Since we believe that Christ died for all, we also believe that we have all died to our old life: Literally Since one died for all, then all died.

¹⁶So we have stopped evaluating others from a human point of view. At one time we thought of Christ merely from a human point of view. How differently we know him now! ¹⁷This means that anyone who belongs to Christ has become a new person. The old life is gone; a new life has begun!

¹⁸And all of this is a gift from God, who brought us back to himself through Christ. And God has given us this task of reconciling people to him. ¹⁹For God was in Christ, reconciling the world to himself, no longer counting people's sins against them. And he gave us this wonderful message of reconciliation. ²⁰So we are Christ's ambassadors; God is making his appeal through us. We speak for Christ when we plead, "Come back to God!" ²¹For God made Christ, who never sinned, to be the offering for our sin, so that we could be made right with God through Christ.

6 As God's partners, we beg you not to accept this marvelous gift of God's kindness and then ignore it. ²For God says,

"At just the right time, I heard you.

On the day of salvation, I helped you."

Indeed, the "right time" is now. Today is the day of salvation.

Paul's Faithful Ministry

³We live in such a way that no one will stumble because of us, and no one will find fault with our ministry. ⁴In everything we do, we show that we are true ministers of God. We patiently endure troubles and hardships and calamities of every kind. ⁵We have been beaten, been put in prison, faced angry mobs, worked to exhaustion, endured sleepless nights, and gone without food. ⁶We prove ourselves by our purity, our understanding, our patience, our kindness, by the Holy Spirit within us, and by our sincere love. ⁷We faithfully preach the truth. God's power is working in us. We use the weapons of righteousness in the right hand for attack and the left hand for defense. ⁸We serve God whether people honor us or despise us, whether they slander us or praise us. We are honest, but they call us impostors. ⁹We are ignored, even though we are well known. We live close to death, but we are still alive. We have been beaten, but we have not been killed. ¹⁰Our hearts ache, but we always have joy. We are poor, but we give spiritual riches to others. We own nothing, and yet we have everything.

¹¹Oh, dear Corinthian friends! We have spoken honestly with you, and our hearts are open to you. ¹²There is no lack of love on our part, but you have withheld your love from us. ¹³I am asking you to respond

5:16-17 merely from a human point of view: Paul might be reflecting on his belief at one time as a Pharisee that the Messiah would come to set the Jews free from political oppression. • How differently we know him now! Christ rose from the dead, ushered in the new creation (5:17), and was established as the redeemer from sin and Lord of the universe (Rom 1:3-4; Phil 2:6-11; Col 1:15-20).

5:18-21 God entrusts to his servants the message and ministry of reconciliation through Christ. • God has given us the task of reconciling people: Paul is speaking of his own ministry, but sharing this wonderful message is the responsibility of all believers. Christ's ambassadors call people to accept what God has done so they can be made right with God through Christ. • Christ paid the penalty for people's sins—to take away all that stood between God and humans and to make us right with God.

5:20 The great privilege of believers is to be Christ's ambassadors (cp. Eph 6:20). • God is making his appeal through us: Paul doesn't say that he speaks for God; rather, God speaks his word through us. • Christ's redeeming work for sinners opens the way for them to "Come back to God!" and be reconciled with him (see Rom 5:1-11; Eph 2:11-22; Col 1:15-23). Christian witness has this appeal at its heart. Paul was also appealing to the rebellious Corinthians to come over to his side (see 6:1).

5:21 Christ became the offering for our sin (or sin itself; see Isa 53:10) on the cross when he took sin's penalty on himself and died a criminal's death. He did this, though he himself never sinned (John 8:46; 1 Pet 2:22; 1 Jn 3:5), so that we might be made right with God—i.e., set in right relationship with God and accepted by him (see Gal 3:13).

6:1-2 To win over the disaffected believers at Corinth, Paul appeals to them to listen to him and Timothy as God's servants and messengers. • As God's partners: Literally As we work together, which leaves open the question whether Paul meant that they were working together in a team effort, or that they were working together with God.

6:2 This quotation from Isa 49:8 (Greek version) clinches the point that God's offer of salvation could secure reconciliation between Paul and the Corinthians; their reconciliation with Paul would follow naturally from their true acceptance of the Good News.

6:3-10 Paul gives a revealing picture of the hardships of his ministry (cp. 4:7-18). Nine trials are listed; many of these experiences from Paul's life are recorded in Acts (e.g., Acts 14:5-6, 19-20; 16:19-24; 21:30-36). Through their steadfast suffering for the Good News, Paul and Timothy (1:1) showed that they were true ministers of God.

6:6-7 Paul describes the spirit with which he faced suffering, attributing his strength to the presence of the Holy Spirit within us (or our holiness of spirit).

6:8-10 Paul's character as an apostle was often attacked; he and his colleagues were even called impostors. Yet he was honest in spite of people's attitudes. They must have thought that Paul was a nobody who could be safely ignored, a foolhardy person who ran unnecessary risks that made him as good as dead already. Paul rebuts each of their allegations with insight into spiritual reality.

6:11-13 Paul's impassioned plea reveals his inner feelings. • our hearts are open to you . . . Open your hearts to us! These sentiments are continued in 7:2 (see notes on 6:14-7:1; 7:2-4).

The Temple of the Living God

¹⁴Don't team up with those who are unbelievers. How can righteousness be a partner with wickedness? How can light 'live with darkness? ¹⁵What harmony can there be between Christ and the devil? How can a believer be a partner with an unbeliever? ¹⁶And what union can there be between God's temple and idols? For we are the temple of the living God. As God said:

"I will live in them and walk among them.
I will be their God,
and they will be my people.

¹⁷Therefore, come out from among unbelievers, and separate yourselves from them, says the LORD.

Don't touch their filthy things, and I will welcome you.

¹⁸And I will be your Father, and you will be my sons and daughters, says the LORD ⁸Almighty."

7 Because we have these promises, dear friends, let us cleanse ourselves from everything that can defile our body or spirit. And let us work toward complete holiness because we fear God.

There are several pictures of the church as God's people. In 6:14–7:1, Paul portrays the church as the temple of God—a worshiping people whose dedication to God separates them from all that is not like him.

The imagery of the church as the temple of God has its roots in the OT. The promise to David and Solomon was that the Temple in Jerusalem would be a foretaste of God's abiding presence with his people (see 2 Sam 7:12-16; 1 Kgs 9:1-9). That Temple was completed in 960 BC, then destroyed in 586 BC. But the prophets of Israel looked forward to a new temple; they announced a message of hope that God would once again live among his people (see, e.g., Isa 56:7; Ezek 40:1–43:27). All these hopes were made good in the coming of Jesus (see John 1:14; 2:19-22; 4:21-24). He himself is God's temple, the place where God's holiness resides, and he calls his people to join him. Thus, God's people are to be a holy temple of God (see 6:16; 1 Cor 3:16-17; 6:19; Eph 2:21; 1 Pet 2:5; Rev 3:12).

Paul called on the Corinthians to realize their identity as God's "holy people" (1:1) in two ways: They were to separate themselves from moral evil, and they were to be dedicated to God in holy living and service. Christians are therefore urged, "Let us cleanse ourselves from everything that can defile our body or spirit. And let us work toward complete holiness because we fear God" (7:1).

6:14–7:1 The connection between 6:13 and 7:2 has led many scholars to conclude that 6:14–7:1 is an inserted fragment from another letter (perhaps the one mentioned in 1 Cor 5:9). However, this section might just as well be a digression in Paul's writing, a suitable challenge to the Corinthians to forsake their opposition to Paul and his message. Paul was anxious to see relationships restored; here, Paul draws a picture of believers in Christ forming a holy temple. Believers' identity as the temple of God motivates the need for harmony among them as well as separation from the impurity of unbelieving attitudes and behaviors. Paul therefore draws the contrast between Christian and pagan morality with quotations from the OT.

6:14 Don't team up with those who are unbelievers: This instruction alludes to the Jewish prohibition of certain mixtures (Lev 19:19; Deut 22:10). Paul was probably referring to how the Corinthians had been involving themselves in idolatrous practices (see 1 Cor 8–10; cp. 1 Cor 10:14-22).

6:15 the devil: Greek Beliar; various other manuscripts render this proper name of the devil as Belian, Beliab, or Belial. This Hebrew word means "worthless, good-for-nothing"; it came to be used in the intertestamental period as a name for Satan.

6:16 Believers together are the temple of the living God, indwelt by the Holy Spirit and thus holy (1 Cor 3:16; 1 Pet 2:1-10). • "I will live in them . . . and they will be my people": This quotation is from Lev 26:12; Ezek 37:27.

6:17 This quotation is from Isa 52:11; Ezek 20:34 (Greek version).

6:18 This quotation is from 2 Sam 7:14, though Paul adds and daughters (cp. Isa 43:6).

7:1 Paul wanted the church to be a holy people, filled with God's presence. • because we fear God: We should be reverent in the presence of a holy God (see note on 5:11).

7:2-4 Please open your hearts to us: Paul picks up his plea from 6:11-13 (see note on 6:14–7:1). Paul had a deep concern for the churches (11:28), expressed by seeking a close bond of fellowship. When he was misunderstood, he explained his actions, as he does here. • We have not . . . taken advantage of anyone: That is, by taking their money.

that you are in our hearts, and we live or die together with you. ⁴I have the highest confidence in you, and I take great pride in you. You have greatly encouraged me and made me happy despite all our troubles.

Paul's Joy at the Church's Repentance

⁵When we arrived in Macedonia, there was no rest for us. We faced conflict from every direction, with battles on the outside and fear on the inside. ⁶But God, who encourages those who are discouraged, encouraged us by the arrival of Titus. ⁷His presence was a joy, but so was the news he brought of the encouragement he received from you. When he told us how much you long to see me, and how sorry you are for what happened, and how loyal you are to me, I was filled with joy!

⁸I am not sorry that I sent that severe letter to you, though I was sorry at first, for I know it was painful to you for a little while. ⁹Now I am glad I sent it, not because it hurt you, but because the pain caused you to repent and change your ways. It was the kind of sorrow God wants his people to have, so you were not harmed by us in any way. ¹⁰For the kind of sorrow God wants us to experience leads us away from sin and results in salvation. There's no regret for that kind of sorrow. But worldly sorrow, which lacks repentance, results in spiritual death.

¹¹Just see what this godly sorrow produced in you! Such earnestness, such concern to clear yourselves, such indignation, such alarm, such longing to see me, such zeal, and such a readiness to punish wrong. You showed that you have done everything necessary to make things right. ¹²My purpose, then, was not to write about who did the wrong or who was wronged. I wrote to you so that in the sight of God you could see for yourselves how loyal you are to us. ¹³We have been greatly encouraged by this.

In addition to our own encouragement, we were especially delighted to see how happy Titus was about the way all of you welcomed him and set his mind at ease. ¹⁴I had told him how proud I was of you—and you didn't disappoint me. I have always told you the truth, and now my boasting to Titus has also proved true! ¹⁵Now he cares for you more than ever when he remembers the way all of you obeyed him and welcomed him with such fear and deep respect. ¹⁶I am very happy now because I have complete confidence in you.

A Call to Generous Giving

8 Now I want you to know, dear brothers and sisters, what God in his kindness has done through the churches in Macedonia. ²They are being tested by many troubles, and they are very poor. But they are also filled with abundant joy, which has overflowed in rich ^bgenerosity.

³For I can testify that they gave not only what they could afford, but far more. And they did it of their own free will. ⁴They begged us again and again for the privilege of ^csharing in the ^dgift for the believers in Jerusalem. ⁵They even did more than we had hoped, for their first action was to give

7:4 All our troubles might refer to Paul's many hardships (6:5) or his problems with the Corinthians themselves. Either way, he was filled with joy because the church's response had greatly encouraged him (as he explains in 7:5-16).

7:5-7 Paul's joy leads him to tell about his recent meeting with Titus, whose presence was a joy when he joined Paul in Macedonia (see note on 2:14-7:4; Acts 20:1-2). • Initially, Paul had no rest (this Greek word is used in 2:13, where it is rendered "peace of mind") but only conflict, battles, and fear. Paul was deeply discouraged, but he received encouragement from God, who encourages those who are discouraged (cp. Ps 42:5-6). Titus arrived from Corinth with the news that Paul's letter (see 2:3-4) had done its work (7:8-16). This was the chief cause of Paul's joy.

7:8-13a Paul was sorry at first that he had sent his previous letter (see 2:3-4). Now he was not sorry, realizing that the pain had been worthwhile, for the severe letter had brought the church in Corinth to repentance. They had rebuked the offending person—perhaps too strongly (see 2:6-11).

7:9-10 Two kinds of sorrow are mentioned: (1) Worldly sorrow that lacks repentance leads to spiritual death (e.g., see Matt 27:3-6; Heb 12:16-17). (2) Sorrow that leads us away from sin leads to salvation, as it did when the church in Corinth responded positively to Paul's rebuke.

7:13b-16 The way the Corinthians had welcomed and obeyed Titus as Paul's agent endeared the Corinthians to Titus and delighted Paul. The crisis at Corinth was over, and Paul had complete confidence that all was well.

7:13 his mind: Literally his spirit.

7:14 All along Paul had been optimistic, despite his fears, about the outcome of Titus's trip to Corinth.

8:1-9:15 Paul now turns his attention to the collection for the Jerusalem church (8:4; 9:1). This relief fund was intended to aid the poverty-stricken saints in the holy city (Acts 11:27-30; Rom 15:25-27, 31; Gal 2:10). Paul had earlier given instructions about this matter (1 Cor 16:1-2); now it was time to collect the funds (8:6). Paul hoped this gift from Gentile congregations to the Jewish church would cement relations between the two groups in the early Christian community.

8:1-2 dear brothers and sisters: Literally brothers. See note on 1:8-11. • The churches in Macedonia included the church in Philippi, which we know from Acts and Philippians was being tested by many troubles and was very poor. Yet they were generous in sending gifts to Paul and in supporting the collection (8:4-5; Phil 1:5; 2:25-30; 4:15-20).

8:4 for the believers: Literally for God's holy people.

themselves to the Lord and to us, just as God wanted them to do.

⁶So we have urged Titus, who encouraged your giving in the first place, to return to you and encourage you to finish this ministry of giving. ⁷Since you excel in so many ways—in your faith, your gifted speakers, your knowledge, your enthusiasm, and your love from us—I want you to excel also in this gracious act of giving.

⁸I am not commanding you to do this. But I am testing how genuine your love is by comparing it with the eagerness of the other churches.

⁹You know the generous grace of our Lord Jesus Christ. Though he was rich, yet for your sakes he became poor, so that by his poverty he could make you rich.

¹⁰Here is my advice: It would be good for you to finish what you started a year ago. Last year you were the first who wanted to give, and you were the first to begin doing it.

¹¹Now you should finish what you started. Let the eagerness you showed in the beginning be matched now by your giving. Give in proportion to what you have. ¹²Whatever you give is acceptable if you give it eagerly. And give according to what you have, not what you don't have. ¹³Of course, I don't mean your giving should make life easy for others and hard for yourselves. I only mean that there should be some equality. ¹⁴Right now you have plenty and can help those who are in need. Later, they will have plenty and can share with you when you need it. In this way, things will be equal. ¹⁵As the Scriptures say, Second Corinthians speaks of men and women who had turned away from the evils of the world (1 Cor 12:2) but were in danger of relapsing into those immoral ways (12:20-21). Paul calls these believers to continually answer the summons of dying to live (5:14-15). Their desire should always be to please God, not themselves (5:15). This means that believers are called to live under Christ's lordship (4:5) and be motivated by his love (5:14).

Christian living therefore is marked by a forgiving spirit (2:10) and a generous concern for those in need (chs 8–9). The church at Corinth, already endowed with many spiritual gifts (1 Cor 1:7), is therefore encouraged “to excel also in this gracious act of giving” (8:7). They are asked to be responsive to human need as represented by the poor Jewish Christians in Jerusalem. It would be a sign that the Gentiles were one with the mother church in Jerusalem.

Such bountiful giving is a mark of true grace. We see its sublime expression in the Lord of glory, who by his poverty made us rich and became one with us (8:9; Phil 2:3-11). We have received his unmerited favor in salvation (9:8-11). Now we give sacrificially in response to “this gift too wonderful for words!” (9:15).

We may summarize Paul's teaching on Christian giving as follows:

(1) Our giving should spring from a willing mind and heart (8:12). Paul begins with motives (9:7), since all giving should hinge on why we give.

(2) True giving is a joy, in contrast with grudging gifts (9:5). There is joy in sowing seed, like a farmer who anticipates a crop (9:6-10); and there is joy in sharing with others in need (8:11-15).

(3) Christian giving is marked by generosity and may entail sacrifice, as it did for the Macedonians (8:1-7).

(4) The handling of financial gifts calls for honesty, integrity, and care. Paul was careful to deflect any suspicion of his colleagues who were sent to collect gifts from the churches (8:20-21). Those who handle monetary gifts in the church should, like those in 8:16-24, be persons of proven reputation and responsibility.

8:6 Titus would start taking up the collection when he returned to Corinth carrying this letter from Paul in Macedonia.

8:7 This is the key verse in Paul's exposition on Christian giving (8:1–9:15). The Corinthians had a reputation for spiritual gifts (1 Cor 1:5-7; 14:12). Now, they must be leaders in this gracious act of giving, which is a hallmark of true spirituality (cp. 1 Cor 13). God had been lavish in his goodness to the Corinthians, so they should be generous to the Jewish believers in their need (9:13). This would be recognized as a sign of unity in Christ. • your love from us: Some manuscripts read your love for us.

8:9 The model for generous giving is the Lord himself, who was rich in the Father's presence (John 17:5, 24) yet became poor by accepting a human existence and death on the cross (see Phil 2:6-11). By that self-giving sacrifice, he could make people rich with the blessings of salvation.

8:10 What you started a year ago was the collection of an offering for Jerusalem, prompted by 1 Cor 16:1-2. So this letter is to be dated at least one year after 1 Corinthians.

8:15 Paul quotes from Exod 16:18 to say that there is a mutual responsibility among Christians: Affluent believers (the Corinthians) should help poor believers (in Jerusalem) so that all may have enough.

and those who gathered only a little had enough."

Titus and His Companions

¹⁶But thank God! He has given Titus the same enthusiasm for you that I have. ¹⁷Titus welcomed our request that he visit you again. In fact, he himself was very eager to go and see you. ¹⁸We are also sending another brother with Titus. All the churches praise him as a preacher of the Good News. ¹⁹He was appointed by the churches to accompany us as we take the offering to Jerusalem—a service that glorifies the Lord and shows our eagerness to help.

²⁰We are traveling together to guard against any criticism for the way we are handling this generous gift. ²¹We are careful to be honorable before the Lord, but we also want everyone else to see that we are honorable.

²²We are also sending with them another of our brothers who has proven himself many times and has shown on many occasions how eager he is. He is now even more enthusiastic because of his great confidence in you. ²³If anyone asks about Titus, say that he is my partner who works with me to help you. And the brothers with him have been sent by the churches, and they bring honor to Christ. ²⁴So show them your love, and prove to all the churches that our boasting about you is justified.

The Collection for Christians in Jerusalem

9 I really don't need to write to you about this ministry of giving for the believers in Jerusalem. ²For I know how eager you are to help, and I have been boasting to the churches in Macedonia that you in Greece were ready to send an offering a year ago. In fact, it was your enthusiasm that stirred up many of the Macedonian believers to begin giving.

³But I am sending these brothers to be sure you really are ready, as I have been telling them, and that your money is all collected. I don't want to be wrong in my boasting about you. ⁴We would be embarrassed—not to mention your own embarrassment—if some Macedonian believers came with me and found that you weren't ready after all I had told them! ⁵So I thought I should send these brothers ahead of me to make sure the ^kgift you promised is ready. But I want it to be a willing ^kgift, not one given grudgingly.

⁶Remember this—a farmer who plants only a few seeds will get a small crop. But the one who plants generously will get a generous crop. ⁷You must each decide in your heart how much to give. And don't give reluctantly or in response to pressure. "For God loves a person who gives cheerfully." ⁸And God will generously provide all you need. Then you will always have everything you need and plenty left over to share with others. ⁹As the Scriptures say,

"They share freely and give generously to the poor.

Their good deeds will be remembered forever."

¹⁰For God is the one who provides seed for the farmer and then bread to eat. In the same way, he will provide and increase your resources and then produce a great harvest of generosity in you.

¹¹Yes, you will be enriched in every way so that you can always be ^agenerous. And 8:18-24 Two other Christian men would travel with Titus to Corinth in order to guard against any criticism over the handling of the relief funds that they collected (8:20-21). Titus himself was a man of sterling character, whom all the churches praised. He and his companions would ensure that the money was properly handled. The identity of his two companions is unknown.

9:1-5 Two motives reinforce the spirit of love in giving: (1) to emulate the Macedonians, who in their poverty had been forthcoming in their generosity (9:2); and (2) not to shame Paul or themselves, since he had boasted about the Corinthians' generosity to the Macedonians (9:3-5). To ensure the timely gathering of the collection at Corinth, Paul would send the delegates (8:16-24) in advance to make sure the gift you promised is ready.

9:1 about this ministry of giving for the believers in Jerusalem: Literally about the offering for God's holy people.

9:2 in Greece: Greek in Achaia, the southern region of the Greek peninsula. Macedonia was in the northern region of Greece.

9:6 Paul turns to agriculture for an illustration of the benefits of generosity.

A farmer who expects a rich harvest must sow many seeds.

9:7 It is the spirit of giving that counts, "For God loves a person who gives cheerfully" (see note on Prov 22:8). Cheerfulness in giving is contrasted with giving reluctantly (literally out of sorrow) or in response to pressure.

9:8-9 As the Scriptures say: The quotation from Ps 112:9 supports the assurance that God, who provides for all human needs, will reward generosity.

9:10-14 The Corinthians' generosity (literally righteousness) would be matched by God's generosity (9:10-11). It would also meet the needs of Jewish Christians (9:12), honor God (9:13), show believers in Jerusalem that their Gentile brothers and sisters were genuine believers (9:13), and result in the Jewish when we take your gifts to those who need them, they will thank God. ¹²So two good things will result from this ministry of ⁹giving—the needs of the believers in Jerusalem will be met, and they will joyfully express their thanks to God.

¹³As a result of your ⁶ministry, they will give glory to God. For your ⁴generosity to them and to all believers will prove that you are obedient to the Good News of Christ. ¹⁴And they will pray for you with deep affection because of the overflowing grace God has given to you. ¹⁵Thank God for this gift too wonderful for words!

5. PAUL DEFENDS HIS APOSTLESHIP (10:1–12:21)

Paul Defends His Authority

10 Now I, Paul, appeal to you with the gentleness and kindness of Christ—though I realize you think I am timid in person and bold only when I write from far away. ²Well, I am begging you now so that when I come I won't have to be bold with those who think we act from human motives.

³We are human, but we don't wage war as humans do. ⁴We use God's mighty weapons, not worldly weapons, to knock down the strongholds of human reasoning and to destroy false arguments. ⁵We destroy every proud obstacle that keeps people from knowing God. We capture their rebellious thoughts and teach them to obey Christ. ⁶And after you have become fully obedient, we will punish everyone who remains disobedient.

⁷Look at the obvious facts. Those who say they belong to Christ must recognize that we belong to Christ as much as they do. ⁸I may seem to be boasting too much about the authority given to us by the Lord. But our authority builds you up; it doesn't tear you down. So I will not be ashamed of using my authority.

⁹I'm not trying to frighten you by my letters. ¹⁰For some say, "Paul's letters are demanding and forceful, but in person he is weak, and his speeches are worthless!" ¹¹Those people should realize that our actions when we arrive in person will be as forceful as what we say in our letters from far away.

¹²Oh, don't worry; we wouldn't dare say that we are as wonderful as these other men believers' intercessory prayer and affection for the Gentile believers (9:14). Paul envisioned a united, worldwide Christian church, composed of believing Jews and Gentiles who are all one in Christ Jesus (Gal 3:28; Eph 2:11-22), which would become a powerful witness to the Lord's work of reconciliation.

9:12 the believers in Jerusalem: Literally God's holy people.

9:15 this gift: Literally his gift.

10:1–13:13 In this section, Paul defends his ministry as an apostle. • These chapters pose several problems arising from a distinct change of tone and style. Chapters 1–9 are full of joy stemming from the reconciliation of sinners with God and of the Corinthians with Paul. Yet from this point on, Paul is on the defensive. These chapters are full of harsh words, bitter recriminations, passionate irony, and rebuke. The remarkable break at 10:1 has inspired a number of explanations: (1) These chapters might be a separate letter, perhaps the "severe letter" sent earlier to Corinth (2:3-4; 7:8-9). (2) It might be that, while the majority of the church members were obedient to the appeal for reconciliation, there was still a rebellious minority to whom Paul addressed these four chapters. (3) More likely, a new situation had arisen since Titus first brought back his glowing report of restored harmony (7:5-16). In this scenario, some anti-Paul missionaries had arrived in Corinth and launched a virulent campaign against the apostolic message of Good News (see 11:4, 13-15). They claimed that Paul was no real apostle or even a true Christian (10:7) and that he had no right to come to Corinth with the gospel message since it was territory that belonged to them (10:15-16). They brought an alien message (11:4) and exercised a domineering spirit. In short, they were doing Satan's work (11:13-15). Paul, summoned by hearing of this new situation, reasserts his apostolic authority and engages in a form of writing that is distasteful to him (11:1, 16-17; 12:1) by boasting of his weaknesses and trials. Paul's apostolic authority is real and powerful, yet it is conditioned and controlled by the love exhibited by the crucified Jesus (10:1; 13:4-10).

10:1-6 Paul states his own clear intentions and sincerity by defending himself against the suspicion that he is acting from human motives.

10:1 you think I am timid in person: See 10:10. Paul could write bold letters at a distance, but they mistook his personal gentleness and kindness as weakness. However, they forgot that he had the authority of Christ (12:19; 13:3-5, 7, 10; 1 Cor 4:21).

10:3-5 A military metaphor enforces Paul's rebuttal: Paul's weapons have divine power over spiritual strongholds (see 4:3-4).

10:4-5 English translations divide verses 4 and 5 in various ways.

10:7-11 Look at the obvious facts: Or You look at things only on the basis of appearance. The rival teachers were evidently claiming to be Christ's representatives in some superior way that excluded Paul because of his weakness. Here he defines having true authority as distinct from being a domineering authoritarian. His authority was to build up God's people, not to demolish them (see 13:10), yet he intended to deal firmly with these rivals when he came to Corinth (see 13:1).

10:10 Paul's letters are sometimes difficult and demanding, as other Christians also found (cp. 2 Pet 3:16). • in person he is weak: Paul had no domineering presence, bulldozing people into submission (cp. 1:24; 1 Cor 2:1-5). The earliest descriptions of Paul's personal appearance (Acts of Paul and Thecla, around AD 200) depict him as "a man of small height, almost bald, with crooked legs, but with a good body and eyebrows meeting. His nose was hooked, full of grace, for sometimes he appeared like a man and sometimes had the face of an angel." • his speeches are worthless: Unlike Apollos (Acts 18:24), Paul was not an eloquent preacher or captivating orator when he came to Corinth (11:6; 1 Cor 2:3-4). His message, however, was charged with a power no human rhetoric could command, as it was given in the Holy Spirit.

10:12 Paul now charges his enemies with a set of false values, since they attached great importance to themselves.

who tell you how important they are! But they are only comparing themselves with each other, using themselves as the standard of measurement. How ignorant!

¹³We will not boast about things done outside our area of authority. We will boast only about what has happened within the boundaries of the work God has given us, which includes our working with you. ¹⁴We are not reaching beyond these boundaries when we claim authority over you, as if we had never visited you. For we were the first to travel all the way to Corinth with the Good News of Christ.

¹⁵Nor do we boast and claim credit for the work someone else has done. Instead, we hope that your faith will grow so that the boundaries of our work among you will be extended. ¹⁶Then we will be able to go and preach the Good News in other places far beyond you, where no one else is working. Then there will be no question of our boasting about work done in someone else's territory. ¹⁷As the Scriptures say, "If you want to boast, boast only about the Lord."

¹⁸When people commend themselves, it doesn't count for much. The important thing is for the Lord to commend them.

Paul and the False Apostles

11 I hope you will put up with a little more of my foolishness. Please bear with me. ²For I am jealous for you with the jealousy of God himself. I promised you as a pure bride to one husband—Christ. ³But I fear that somehow your "pure and undivided devotion to Christ will be corrupted, just as Eve was deceived by the cunning ways of the serpent. ⁴You happily put up with whatever anyone tells you, even if they preach a different Jesus than the one we preach, or a different kind of Spirit than the one you received, or a different kind of 'gospel than the one you believed.

⁵But I don't consider myself inferior in any way to these "super apostles" who teach such things. ⁶I may be unskilled as a speaker, but I'm not lacking in knowledge. We have made this clear to you in every possible way.

⁷Was I wrong when I humbled myself and honored you by preaching God's Good News to you without expecting anything in return? ⁸I "robbed" other churches by accepting their contributions so I could serve you at no cost. ⁹And when I was with you and didn't have enough to live on, I did not become a financial burden to anyone. For the brothers who came from Macedonia brought me all that I needed. I have never been a burden to you, and I never will be.

¹⁰As surely as the truth of Christ is in me, no one in all of Greece will ever stop me from boasting about this. ¹¹Why? Because I don't love you? God knows that I do.

10:13-16 Paul had not trespassed on the limits God set for his missionary service, which includes our working with you. So he justifies his integrity and authority, insisting that when he first came to Corinth (Acts 18:1-17) he did so in response to God's call. He was determined not to enter someone else's territory (see Rom 15:20), but Paul was the first to travel all the way to Corinth with the Good News of Christ. His more recent opponents visited the church much later (11:4), so their claim to Corinth as their territory was empty.

10:17-18 Paul quotes Jer 9:24 to the effect that all missionaries are directed by the Lord. So boasting doesn't count for much. Only as the Lord praises us for our service can success have any significance.

11:1-6 Paul finds it necessary, if distasteful, to justify his actions because of the close link he claims with the church (11:2) and because his enemies were enticing the Corinthian believers away from Christ.

11:1 Paul takes on an ironic tone in saying, I hope you will put up with a little more of my foolishness. He again asks with irony, Please bear with me (or

But indeed you are putting up with me, a translation that makes the irony even more pointed).

11:2 The church is called to be a pure bride (literally a virgin) to one husband—Christ. This metaphor goes back to the OT, where Israel is the bride of the Lord (Isa 54:5; 62:5). Paul saw himself as the best man who acted for the bridegroom (cp. John 3:29).

11:3 The false teachers were pulling the Corinthian believers away from pure and undivided devotion to Christ. In this they are doing the work of Satan, just as the serpent did in Eden (11:14; see Gen 3:4, 13).

11:4 The false missionaries in Corinth evidently preached a different Jesus, a different kind of Spirit, and a different kind of gospel than the one the Corinthians had believed. It is difficult to know exactly what these false teachers preached; most likely, they promoted a powerful, dominant Christ and sidelined the suffering of the cross. They probably saw themselves as equally powerful preachers, exempt from hardship and trial. Paul's message, by contrast, centered on Christ crucified (13:4), and Paul's own sufferings were a mark of true apostleship (12:1-12). The nature of this difference is the heart of Paul's defense of his apostleship in chs 10-13.

11:5-6 These false teachers claimed authority as "super apostles," and they despised Paul's lack of sophisticated eloquence (10:10).

11:7 Paul was preaching God's Good News . . . without expecting anything in return. Paul's policy as a church planter (1 Cor 9:3-14) was to earn his living by his trade of tentmaking (Acts 18:3; 20:34) rather than being supported by the new churches (1 Thes 2:9; 2 Thes 3:8-9). His enemies in Corinth criticized him for this. In Greek thought, religious teachers could rightfully claim financial support; Paul's refusal provided his enemies with an argument that his apostleship was counterfeit.

11:8-9 Paul had accepted . . . contributions . . . from Macedonia—i.e., Philippi (Phil 4:15-19). Paul's apparent inconsistency made the Corinthians suspicious of his motives or doubtful of his love toward them (11:11).

Even ⁸Satan disguises himself as an angel of light. ¹⁵So it is no wonder that his servants also disguise themselves as servants of righteousness. In the end they will get the punishment their wicked deeds deserve.

Paul's Many Trials

¹⁶Again I say, don't think that I am a fool to talk like this. But even if you do, listen to me, as you would to a foolish person, while I also boast a little. ¹⁷Such boasting is not from the Lord, but I am acting like a fool. ¹⁸And since others boast about their human achievements, I will, too. ¹⁹After all, you think you are so wise, but you enjoy putting up with fools! ²⁰You put up with it when someone enslaves you, takes everything you have, takes advantage of you, takes control of everything, and slaps you in the face. ²¹I'm ashamed to say that we've been too "weak" to do that!

In this letter, Paul reveals the heart of his ministry as an apostle. Paul was God's special messenger for the establishment and nurture of churches. His service was marked by seriousness and sincerity, and his message raises life and death issues (2:15-17). As a pioneer missionary, he took the Good News to places where Christ's name was not yet known (Rom 15:17-21).

Paul's message of Good News is clear and incisive (ch 5), and it was backed up and illustrated by his own life. All preachers are called to be persons of integrity (2:17; 4:2). As Paul carried the precious message (4:7), the cross of Jesus was both the foundation of his faith (5:18-21) and the pattern for his ministry to others (chs 11-12).

Paul's authority was apparently disputed, so he needed to offer a personal account of how God had called him as an apostle and established his ministry at Corinth (10:12-18). For those who demanded proof of Paul's credentials (13:3) and who criticized his weaknesses, he simply pointed to the cross of Jesus (13:4) and to the lessons he had learned from it (4:10). Paul needed divine grace to accomplish his work, being only too conscious of his own limitations and hardships. True apostolic authority expresses itself in human weakness reinforced by divine strength (12:1-10).

Paul also had the miraculous works to verify his claim to apostleship (12:12). These works impressed the Corinthians, but they were apparently not enough for the young church. Paul exercised his ministry "patiently," not giving up when the Corinthians were difficult to deal with. This trait comes from Jesus, whose entire earthly ministry was marked by endurance (Heb 12:2-3). Paul's persistence with awkward people like the Corinthians is a sure sign of his calling from God.

Paul's example is a lesson for all those who are involved in Christian service: (1) Christian leaders should take criticism as a summons to self-examination, to see if any accusation is well-founded. (2) Christian leaders should be patient, as Paul was in his concern for the churches (11:28-29). (3) There is a place for reasoned defense and explanation of one's motives, such as Paul adopted (13:5-10); at the same time, Paul knew that the Lord was his ultimate and only true Judge (1 Cor 4:1-5).

11:12 Paul's motive in refusing to accept support from the Corinthians (11:7-11) was to show them what true Christian service is like in contrast to the ministry of those who were looking for an opportunity to boast.

11:13-15 Paul fiercely condemns the false teachers in Corinth (cp. Gal 1:6-9). Although the false teachers wanted to claim that their work was just like Paul's (11:12), they were in fact false apostles and deceitful workers (cp. Phil 3:2). Just as Satan changed himself into an angel of light to deceive Eve

(as described in the Jewish apocryphal book The Life of Adam and Eve), so his servants also disguise themselves as servants of righteousness. Satan's servants claim to be God's servants, but their deeds are wicked, and their punishment is sure (cp. 5:10).

11:16-29 Paul plays the part of a boastful fool (see also 12:11-13) so that he may present his true credentials as a suffering apostle. The intruders' arrogant spirit impels Paul to adopt a style of writing that matches their behavior, all in irony.

11:19 The Corinthians were proud of their capacity to understand deep religious issues, and they valued teachers who made a pretense of learning. Paul came with a different agenda (1 Cor 2:1-16).

11:20-21a The Corinthian church had welcomed the intruders even when they exploited and insulted them. They even saw Paul's refusal to exploit them as too "weak."

11:21b-29 Rather than boasting about his strengths and successes like the false teachers did, Paul boasts in about it, too. ²²Are they Hebrews? So am I. Are they Israelites? So am I. Are they descendants of Abraham? So am I. ²³Are they ^bservants of Christ? I know I sound like a madman, but I have served him far more! I have worked harder, been put in prison more often, been whipped times without number, and faced death again and again. ²⁴Five different times the Jewish leaders gave me thirty-nine lashes. ²⁵Three times I was beaten with rods. Once I was stoned. Three times I was shipwrecked. Once I spent a whole night and a day adrift at sea. ²⁶I have traveled on many long journeys. I have faced danger from rivers and from robbers. I have faced danger from my own people, the Jews, as well as from the Gentiles. I have faced danger in the cities, in the deserts, and on the seas. And I have faced danger from men who claim to be believers but are not. ²⁷I have worked hard and long, enduring many sleepless nights. I have been hungry and thirsty and have often gone without food. I have shivered in the cold, without enough clothing to keep me warm.

²⁸Then, besides all this, I have the daily burden of my concern for all the churches. ²⁹Who is weak without my feeling that weakness? Who is led astray, and I do not burn with anger?

³⁰If I must boast, I would rather boast about the things that show how weak I am. ³¹God, the Father of our Lord Jesus, who is worthy of eternal praise, knows I am not lying. ³²When I was in Damascus, the governor under King Aretas kept guards at the city gates to catch me. ³³I had to be lowered in a basket through a window in the city wall to escape from him.

Paul's Vision and His Thorn in the Flesh

12 This boasting will do no good, but I must go on. I will reluctantly tell about visions and ^hrevelations from the Lord. ²I was caught up to the third ^hheaven fourteen years ago. Whether I was in my body or out of my body, I don't know—only God knows. ³Yes, only God knows whether I was in my body or outside my body. But I do know ⁴that I was caught up to ^kparadise and heard things so astounding that they cannot be expressed in words, things no human is allowed to tell.

⁵That experience is worth boasting about, but I'm not going to do it. I will boast only about my weaknesses. ⁶If I wanted to boast, I would be no fool in doing so, because I weakness and defeat, pointing away from himself and toward God.

11:22 Are they Hebrews? So am I: A Jewish heritage was seen by Paul's opponents as a qualification for ministry (see Phil 3:5). • Are they Israelites? So am I: An Israelite was a member of the covenant community by circumcision (cp. John 1:47; Rom 9:4). Paul had this badge also and was in fact a Pharisee, a most devoted follower of Torah (Acts 26:4-5; Rom 11:1; Phil 3:5-6). • Are they descendants of Abraham? This is yet another of Paul's opponents' claims to God's favor based on ethnic identity. Elsewhere, Paul clarifies who can truly be called Israelites and descendants of Abraham (see Rom 2:28-29; Gal 3:16, 26-29). Here, he ironically adopts the erroneous perspective of his opponents to beat them at their own game.

11:23-27 I have served him far more! Paul's service to Christ had entailed Christlike sufferings and toils. Some of the difficulties in this litany are recorded in Acts.

11:23-24 in prison more often: E.g., see Acts 16:22-23. Clement of Rome says that Paul was imprisoned a total of seven times. • thirty-nine lashes: This punishment was prescribed in Deut 25:1-3. The Jewish leaders punished

Paul as a renegade Jew, and he faced death again and again.

11:25 Three times I was beaten with rods: Paul suffered this Roman punishment at Philippi, though as a Roman citizen he should have been exempted (Acts 16:22-24, 37). • Once I was stoned: At Lystra (Acts 14:19). • Three times I was shipwrecked: These events are otherwise unknown; Paul's shipwreck on the voyage to Rome would come later (Acts 27).

11:26-27 Paul's many long journeys are recorded in Acts 13-28. These trips involved facing danger and enduring hardship. • from men who claim to be believers but are not: literally from false brothers.

11:28 In addition to physical difficulties, Paul felt the burden of concern (or anxiety) for all the churches. No church gave Paul more cause for concern than Corinth.

11:30 the things that show how weak I am: Paul develops this theme in 12:1-10.

11:32-33 As a final "boast" of his weakness, Paul tells the story of his escape from Damascus a few years after his conversion (see Acts 9:23-25; Gal 1:15-18). • King Aretas IV of Nabataea controlled Damascus only after AD 37, following the death of the Emperor Tiberius (see Josephus, Antiquities 18.5.1-3); the mention of Aretas dates Paul's escape from Damascus between AD 37 and the end of Aretas's reign in AD 39 or 40.

12:1-7 Paul's accusers at Corinth leveled the charge that Paul did not have ecstatic spiritual experiences. He was no mystic, they said, but a plain person with no impressive gift (see 10:10). So even though Paul's authority did not come from visions and revelations from the Lord, he reveals his secret that he did, in fact, have such experiences.

12:1 This boasting will do no good: See note on 11:21b-29.

12:2 I was caught up (literally I know a man in Christ who was caught up): In Greek, Paul demurely uses third person to speak of himself. • The third heaven is a Jewish expression for the immediate presence of God. • fourteen years ago: That is, about AD 43.

12:3-4 Paul wasn't sure whether he was in a trance or actually taken to heaven. • But I do know that I was caught up: Literally But I know such a man, that he was caught up; see note on 12:2.

12:5-7a Paul could boast about his experience (12:2-4), but it was no source of confidence in his ministry. He never makes mystical experience a proof of would be telling the truth. But I won't do it, because I don't want anyone to give me credit beyond what they can see in my life or hear in my message, ⁷even though I have received such wonderful ^arevelations from God. So to keep me from becoming proud, I was given a thorn in my flesh, a messenger from ^bSatan to torment me and keep me from becoming proud.

⁸Three different times I begged the Lord to take it away. ⁹Each time he said, "My grace is all you need. My power works best in weakness." So now I am glad to boast about my weaknesses, so that the power of Christ can work through me. ¹⁰That's why I take pleasure in my weaknesses, and in the insults, hardships, persecutions, and troubles that I suffer for Christ. For when I am weak, then I am strong.

Paul's Concern for the Corinthians

¹¹You have made me act like a fool. You ought to be writing commendations for me, for I am not at all inferior to these "super apostles," even though I am nothing at all. ¹²When I was with you, I certainly gave you ^dproof that I am an apostle. For I patiently did many ^dsigns and wonders and miracles among you. ¹³The only thing I failed to do, which I do in the other churches, was to become a financial burden to you. Please forgive me for this wrong!

¹⁴Now I am coming to you for the third time, and I will not be a burden to you. I don't want what you have—I want you. After all, children don't provide for their parents. Rather, parents provide for their children. ¹⁵I will gladly spend myself and all I have for you, even though it seems that the more I love you, the less you love me.

¹⁶Some of you admit I was not a burden to you. But others still think I was sneaky and took advantage of you by trickery. ¹⁷But how? Did any of the men I sent to you take advantage of you? ¹⁸When I urged Titus to visit you and sent our other brother with him, did Titus take advantage of you? No! For we have the same spirit and walk in each other's steps, doing things the same way.

¹⁹Perhaps you think we're saying these things just to defend ourselves. No, we tell you this as Christ's servants, and with God as our witness. Everything we do, dear friends, is to strengthen you. ²⁰For I am afraid that when I come I won't like what I find, and you won't like my response. I am afraid that I will find quarreling, jealousy, anger, selfishness, slander, gossip, arrogance, and disorderly behavior. ²¹Yes, I am afraid that when I come again, God will humble me in your presence. And I will be grieved because many of you have not given up your old sins. You have not repented of his apostolic authority—his life and his message must be the proof. He instead boasts about his weaknesses (11:23-33).

12:7b-10 We do not know what the thorn in Paul's flesh was (cp. Num 33:55; Ezek 28:24; Hos 2:6); we only know that its purpose was to keep him from becoming proud, to prick the bubble of pride. • It was a messenger from Satan—that is, something or someone evil—so Paul prayed to the Lord to take it away. The Lord answered each petition the same way: "My grace is all you need. My power works best in weakness." Paul's human weakness was an opportunity for the power of Christ to work through him by God's grace. Paul accepted his suffering because Christ's strength showed itself through his weakness.

12:11-13 Paul reviews his apostolic credentials; he continues to play the role of a fool, making proud boasts because his detractors have forced him to do so (see note on 11:16-29). Paul, too, has a commission as an apostle, one sent by God himself, with all the signs to validate it.

12:11 "super apostles": See 11:5.

12:12 Included in Paul's credentials was his ability to deal patiently with difficult people such as the Corinthians.

12:13 The only thing I failed to do refers to his not taking payment for his services (see 11:7-11). • Please forgive me this wrong! This request is ironic and tongue-in-cheek.

12:14-15 the third time: Paul's first visit was his initial evangelism at Corinth (Acts 18:1-18); the second was the unscheduled "painful visit" (2:1). Paul contemplates what he hopes will be a happier visit, but there is still some suspicion and a need to clear the air. • I will not be a burden: Paul did not want their money but rather that they would fully accept his authority. That is why he would gladly spend himself for them rather than accept payment from them.

12:16-18 Some of the Corinthians still believed that Paul had deceived them by trickery. They might have insinuated that Paul was helping himself to the proceeds of the collection for the Jerusalem church (chs 8-9). The answer to this charge is a reminder of the integrity of Titus and the other brother (see 8:18-24). The integrity of Paul and his associates should debunk such false charges.

12:19 Paul is not simply offering a defense of his conduct and motives; he wants to assure his dear friends of his genuine love and Christian service for the well-being of the church.

12:20-21 Paul feared encountering renewed rebellion and resistance during his upcoming visit, with the Corinthians relapsed into their old ways. • and you won't like my response: If Paul had to, he would deal sternly with flagrant sinners (cp. 1:23-2:24; 1 Cor 4:21).

12:21 Paul fears that God will humble me in your presence—a reprise of the previous visit (2:1), when the Corinthians had rebuffed and humiliated Paul. • The vices listed were among the Corinthians' old sins (see 6:14-7:1; 1 Corinthians Introduction, "Setting," p. 1924).

your impurity, sexual immorality, and eagerness for lustful pleasure.

6. CONCLUSION (13:1-14)

Paul's Final Advice

13 This is the third time I am coming to visit you (and as the Scriptures say, "The facts of every case must be established by the testimony of two or three witnesses"). ²I have already warned those who had been sinning when I was there on my second visit. Now I again warn them and all others, just as I did before, that next time I will not spare them.

³I will give you all the proof you want that Christ speaks through me. Christ is not weak when he deals with you; he is powerful among you. ⁴Although he was crucified in weakness, he now lives by the power of God. We, too, are weak, just as Christ was, but when we deal with you we will be alive with him and will have God's power.

⁵Examine yourselves to see if your faith is genuine. Test yourselves. Surely you know that Jesus Christ is among you; if not, you have failed the test of genuine faith. ⁶As you test yourselves, I hope you will recognize that we have not failed the test of apostolic authority.

⁷We pray to God that you will not do what is wrong by refusing our correction. I hope we won't need to demonstrate our authority when we arrive. Do the right thing before we come—even if that makes it look like we have failed to demonstrate our authority. ⁸For we cannot oppose the truth, but must always stand for the truth. ⁹We are glad to seem weak if it helps show that you are actually strong. We pray that you will become mature.

¹⁰I am writing this to you before I come, hoping that I won't need to deal severely with you when I do come. For I want to use the authority the Lord has given me to strengthen you, not to tear you down.

13:1-2 Announcing his intention to return to Corinth the third time (see note on 12:14-15), Paul found confirmation of his plan in the Scriptures. The reason for this quotation from Deut 19:15 is not clear, but perhaps, given the context of Deut 19:15, Paul wanted to warn them that every transgression (listed in 12:20-21) would be judged on his arrival. The two or three witnesses against the Corinthian offenders were Paul's letters or visits and the promise of his coming the third time.

13:3-4 Christ speaks through me: Paul represented Christ to the Corinthian congregation, and he would exercise God's power in dealing with them. • Paul's weakness was patterned on the humiliation of Christ, who was crucified in weakness (see 8:9). Paul's judgment on the sinners would be tempered by the constraint of Christ's love (5:14-21). • We, too, are weak: Paul's humanity was frail, yet he could draw on Christ's strength (12:10).

13:5-6 The issue is clear cut: If they cannot recognize that Jesus Christ is living among (or in) them, they are the ones who have failed the test of genuine faith (literally are disproved). There is a play on words here: They were looking for "proof" of Paul's apostolic authority, but Paul urges them, Test yourselves (or Prove yourselves). The lack of Christ's presence would disprove their authenticity as Christians. But Paul himself has demonstrated that he has not failed the test of apostolic authority (literally not been disproved).

13:7-10 Whatever the problems Paul faced at Corinth, there is no doubt about his chief desire. He cherished the highest good for these people, that they would become mature and strong. Paul was always concerned to promote the welfare of his people, even when rebuking them.

13:7 that you will not do what is wrong: They would do this by embracing the false teachers who had appeared on the scene (11:5, 13-15; see note on 10:1-13:13). • even if that makes it look like we have failed: Paul's motivation in ministry is to be faithful, not to appear successful (1 Cor 4:2). He patterned his service on Jesus Christ himself (13:4), who was outwardly weak and an apparent failure in dying on the cross, but who is now victorious as he lives by the mighty power of God.

13:9 become mature: This Greek word sometimes carries the idea of repair or completion, of restoring something to its proper condition, as in a return to good health (a related word is used in 13:11, "grow to maturity"; Mark 1:19, "repair"; 1 Thes 3:10, "fill"; Heb 13:21, "equip"; 1 Pet 5:10, "restore").

13:10 Paul did not want to deal severely with the Corinthians by punishing the offenders (12:21). He wanted to exercise his apostolic authority in a positive way, but his ministry required him both to strengthen and to tear . . . down (cp. Jer 1:10). • to strengthen you (or to build you up): This is Paul's favorite expression for a stable Christian community (see Eph 4:12), in which the Lord lives both in and among the believers (13:5).

13:11-14 The letter's conclusion includes Paul's final appeal (13:11), greetings (13:12-13), and a blessing (13:14).

13:11 Dear brothers and sisters: Literally Brothers. See note on 1:8-11. • These last words are Paul's final instructions. • Be joyful: See also Phil 3:1; 4:4. • Grow to maturity: See note on 13:9—Paul's encouragement might be that they aim for restoration. • Encourage each other: The need for encouragement has been very prominent in 2 Corinthians, beginning with 1:3-7. • Live in harmony: Literally Be of the same mind (as in Phil 2:1-4).

13:12-13 with a sacred kiss: The kiss was a common Jewish form of salutation, not only a sign of personal affection. Common in the NT church (Rom 16:16; 1 Cor 16:20; 1 Thes 5:26; 1 Pet 5:14), it may have a significance in worship services in uniting fellow believers (the "kiss of peace"). The word for sacred (Greek hagio) is the same word that is translated God's people (literally the saints; Greek hagioi) in the next sentence. • God's people here were the believers in the place from which Paul was writing in Macedonia.

13:13-14 Some English translations include v 13 as part of v 12, and then v 14 becomes v 13.

13:14 Paul closes his letter with a prayer and blessing. He invokes the three persons of the Trinity, with the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ (see 8:9) coming first. This is because we are always relying on Christ's sacrificial

PAUL'S LETTER TO THE Galatians

Is a person saved by faith alone, or by a combination of faith plus works? Paul's letter to the Galatians proclaims that salvation is through faith alone. It also emphasizes freedom in Christ to live by the power of the Spirit, knowing that our relationship with God is not based on our performance but on the finished work of Jesus Christ. So we are truly free, not to serve our sinful nature, but to love and serve our Lord and others.

SETTING

When Paul and Barnabas set out from Antioch of Syria on their first missionary journey, they headed across the northeast corner of the Mediterranean Sea through Cyprus, across the Taurus Mountains of Pamphylia, and into the south of the Roman province of Galatia. There Paul and Barnabas established churches in Antioch of Pisidia, Iconium, Lystra, and Derbe (Acts 13:13–14:28). Many believed the Good News, but the message also aroused opposition and persecution. Paul and Barnabas then returned to Antioch of Syria, reporting on what God had accomplished "and how he had opened the door of faith to the Gentiles, too" (Acts 14:27).

From the results of Paul's ministry in Galatia and from Peter's experience with Cornelius and his household in Caesarea (see Acts 10:1-48), it became clear that salvation was available to Gentiles as well as Jews on the basis of faith in Jesus Christ. Gentiles did not have to become Jews in order to become full members of God's family. They had only to put their faith in Jesus Christ for salvation.

Even so, in the period before the council in Jerusalem (AD 49 or 50; Acts 15), controversy over the relationship of Jews and Gentiles in the church became more heated. When Peter returned to Jerusalem from his groundbreaking work among Gentiles in Caesarea, he faced immediate criticism and pressure from Jewish compatriots who opposed his eating with uncircumcised Gentiles. He answered with an account of the Spirit's work, which temporarily stilled the criticism (Acts 11:1-18).

◀ The Setting of Galatians, about AD 48. Galatians was probably written from ANTIOCH, a short time after Barnabas and Paul's first missionary journey, to the churches that had recently been founded in the Roman province of GALATIA. At that time, the controversy over whether to circumcise Gentile believers was heating up and had not yet been resolved by the council in JERUSALEM (AD 49–50; Acts 15). The map shows the route of the first missionary journey (solid arrow) and the probable route Barnabas and Paul would take to Jerusalem (dashed arrow).

Some Jewish Christians continued to believe that Gentiles should practice Judaism in order to be Christians. Those who believed this are often referred to as "Judaizers." Some of the Judaizers went to Galatia and began claiming that Paul's teaching about the Good News was inadequate.

Postscript

They denigrated Paul's status as an apostle, declaring that he had learned the Good News from the "real" apostles in Jerusalem. They asserted that Paul had changed the message, and that his version of the gospel had never received the apostles' sanction. The Judaizers argued that Paul's law-free gospel was incomplete, and they claimed that the real gospel required Gentiles to be circumcised and to keep other aspects of the law.

Largely in response to the Judaizers' challenge, Paul wrote his letter to the Galatians.

SUMMARY

After briefly identifying himself and greeting his recipients (1:1-5), Paul launches directly into his thesis: The Good News that he preaches is the only true Good News (1:6-7), he is a genuine apostle of Christ (1:1, 10), and his opponents will suffer God's judgment for their false message (1:8-9). The rest of the letter centers around these assertions.

Paul first demonstrates that he is a genuine apostle of Christ, preaching the true Good News (1:11-2:21). To this end, Paul reminds the Galatians of the kind of person he used to be (1:13-14) and recounts his conversion experience and his calling by God (1:15-16a). Paul received the Good News as a direct revelation from Christ (1:11-12) rather than from the other apostles in Jerusalem (1:16b-24). Still, the other apostles recognized Paul's apostleship and message (2:1-10), and they had nothing to add or change. Further, Paul was proven right in an instance when Peter and some others compromised the Good News contrary to their own principles (2:11-21).

Paul then makes an argument that his presentation of the Good News is scriptural and true (3:1-5:12). The Galatians had experienced the Spirit by faith (3:1-5), so they—like all who have faith in Christ—would experience the same blessing that Abraham received (3:6-9). By contrast, trying to be righteous by keeping the law only brings a curse (3:10-12). Christ rescued us from that curse and made God's blessing available to all who have faith in him (3:13-14). God's promise to Abraham shows that the promise is given on the basis of faith, not law (3:15-18). God's demand for righteousness was fulfilled by Christ, not by keeping the law, and those who have faith in Christ become recipients of God's promise to Abraham.

The law's purpose is not to make people righteous or to make them recipients of God's promises. Instead, it brings awareness of sin and points to Christ and faith in him (3:19-22). Now that Christ has come, those who have faith in him are God's children and heirs of his promises (3:23-4:7). In light of this, the Galatians' return to trusting in the law was a dreadful return to slavery (4:8-11), so Paul personally appeals to them to reconsider (4:12-20). He draws an analogy between Hagar and Sarah and the old and new covenants, showing that Christ brings freedom, not slavery (4:21-31). God's people must live in freedom (5:1), reject reliance on obedience to the law for salvation (5:2-4), and live by faith (5:5-6), because a message of salvation through the law is not from God (5:7-12).

Finally, Paul shows the Galatians that Christian freedom is not a license to sin, as some might claim. Instead, it is the only way to overcome sin, to live in Christ's love, and to experience the Spirit's power (5:13-6:10). Freedom provides an opportunity to love rather than to sin (5:13-15), and the only way to overcome sin is to live by the power of the Holy Spirit (5:16-18). Living by human effort cannot overcome sin, because the sinful nature can produce only sinful actions (5:19-21). By contrast, living in the power of the Holy Spirit produces good fruit (5:22-23). Paul gives several examples of the Spirit's leading in the lives of God's children (5:24-6:10).

Paul ends his letter with a postscript in his own hand (6:11-18). He appeals again to the cross of Christ, bestows God's mercy and peace on those who follow his teaching, reasserts his apostolic authority, and closes with a benediction that extends "the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ" to the recipients of his letter.

Galatians, p. lvii

AUTHOR

Galatians—with Romans and 1 and 2 Corinthians—has always been recognized as a genuine letter of Paul. It harmonizes well with the account of Paul's mission in Acts and the other letters, and it authentically reflects Paul's conflict with Jewish Christians who sought to make keeping the Jewish law a necessary element of Christian faith for Gentiles. Galatians has a message similar to that of Romans; but where Romans is grand and exalted, Galatians is intense and personal. Here we feel the heartbeat of Paul's care for the church.

RECIPIENTS

Some biblical scholars believe that Paul wrote to an ethnic group called "Galatians," who lived in north central Asia Minor and were related to Gauls and Celts. Others believe that the recipients of Paul's letter were groups of churches within the Roman province of Galatia, a much larger area than ethnic Galatia. The Roman province included in its southern districts all of the cities that Paul visited on his first missionary journey (Antioch of Pisidia, Iconium, Lystra, and Derbe).

Paul does not seem to have spent extended time in ethnic Galatia to the north (cp. Acts 16:6; 18:23), whereas we do have record of extensive and repeated missionary activity by Paul in the southern part of the Roman province of Galatia (Acts 13:13-14:25; 16:1-5). The available evidence suggests that the Galatians to whom Paul wrote this letter were most likely those whom Paul evangelized on his first missionary journey.

DATE

Paul wrote Galatians either shortly before the council at Jerusalem (Acts 15:1-29) in AD 49 or 50, or sometime after the council, perhaps during his third missionary journey (AD 53-57).

Traditionally, scholars saw Gal 2:1-10 as Paul's description of the council at Jerusalem. However, close examination reveals serious differences between Gal 2 and Acts 15. It is hard to reconcile Paul's account of two visits to Jerusalem (2:1) with the fact that the council in Acts 15 was really his third visit; neglecting to mention his second visit (Acts 11:30; 12:25) would seriously weaken Paul's argument that he had minimal contact with the apostles in Jerusalem. If this letter were written after the council, it would also be hard to imagine why Paul doesn't mention the council's decision, which directly addresses the issue in Galatians. After the council, in fact, Paul gladly carried news of its decision to the churches he visited (Acts 16:4). It is difficult to believe that 2:1-10 describes Acts 15 and that Galatians was written after the council at Jerusalem.

By contrast, there are relatively few difficulties in identifying the occasion described in Gal 2:1-10 with Acts 11:30 and 12:25. This would suggest that Paul wrote Galatians shortly before the council, perhaps in AD 48 or 49, just at the time when the controversy over circumcision was escalating in the church (see Acts 15:1-2).

MEANING AND MESSAGE

And now that the way of faith has come, we no longer need the law as our guardian. For you are all children of God through faith in Christ Jesus.

Galatians 3:25-26

The problem that arose in Galatia was a familiar one in the first-century church, and it remains a problem in the church today. Are we truly saved by the work of Jesus Christ on the cross, or is something more necessary on our part?

Paul's letter to the Galatians establishes the purity of the Good News—that salvation is available to all purely by faith in our Lord Jesus Christ and not by observing the law. It also establishes the unity of God's people: No division exists between Jews and Gentiles or between other classes of people. We all come to God and gain new life by the same means, through faith in Christ. Galatians establishes our liberty in Christ: We fulfill Christ's law not by human effort but by living in faith and love by the Holy Spirit. Finally, the letter establishes our need for the grace of God, which rescues us from the curse of sin, gives us new life and the promised Holy Spirit, and makes us God's children, empowered to fulfill Christ's law of love.

1. INTRODUCTION (1:1-10)Greetings from Paul

1 This letter is from Paul, an apostle. I was not appointed by any group of people or any human authority, but by Jesus Christ himself and by God the Father, who raised Jesus from the dead.

²All the brothers and sisters here join me in sending this letter to the churches of Galatia.

³May God the Father and our Lord Jesus Christ give you grace and peace. ⁴Jesus gave his life for our sins, just as God our Father planned, in order to rescue us from this evil world in which we live. ⁵All glory to God forever and ever! Amen.

There Is Only One Good News

⁶I am shocked that you are turning away so soon from God, who called you to himself through the loving mercy of Christ. You are following a different way that pretends to be the ^aGood News ⁷but is not the Good News at all. You are being fooled by those who deliberately twist the truth concerning Christ.

⁸Let God's curse fall on anyone, including us or even an angel from ^bheaven, who preaches a different kind of Good News than the one we preached to you. ⁹I say again what we have said before: If anyone preaches any other Good News than the one you welcomed, let that person be cursed.

¹⁰Obviously, I'm not trying to win the approval of people, but of God. If pleasing people were my goal, I would not be Christ's ^cservant.

1:1-2:21 Paul's opponents had questioned his integrity and authority as an apostle, so he opens his letter by defending his apostleship.

1:1-5 As in all his letters, Paul identifies himself and greets the recipients. This greeting is notable for (1) Paul's strong assertion of his apostolic authority (1:1); and (2) the lack of thanks, prayer, or praise, which are replaced by rebuke (1:6-10).

1:1 Paul, an apostle: Apostles were commissioned representatives having authority delegated by a sending agent, often a church body or council (e.g., 2 Cor 8:23; Phil 2:25). But Paul was not made an apostle by the Jerusalem church. Rather, he was directly commissioned by Jesus Christ himself and had Christ's authority (Acts 9:1-15; 26:12-20; see also Rom 1:5), which gave him equal authority with the other apostles. • Paul traced his commission to God the Father, who raised Jesus from the dead. The resurrection made Paul's commission possible.

1:2 the brothers and sisters (literally brothers; also in 1:11) here join me: Paul probably wrote from Antioch of Syria. Antioch was the hub of Paul's ministry and the earliest center of Gentile Christianity (see Acts 11:20-26). Paul did not stand alone (as his opponents in Galatia might have suggested), but in fellowship with a significant NT church. • The churches of Galatia were probably founded by Paul during his first missionary journey (Acts 13:4-14:26; see Galatians Introduction, "Recipients," p. 1978).

1:3-5 Paul followed the usual practice for first-century letters, including this greeting and wish of well-being as well as introducing the main topic, the Good News.

1:3 May God . . . give you grace and peace: This typical greeting by Paul (see also note on 1 Cor 1:3) uses elements of Greek and Hebrew greetings: "grace" (Greek charis), is similar to "greetings" (Greek chairein); "peace" mirrors Hebrew shalom. Thus Paul included both Jewish and Gentile Christians (cp. 3:28). The Galatians were at risk of losing God's grace and peace (3:1-4; 5:1-4). • God the Father and our Lord Jesus Christ: Some manuscripts read God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

1:4-5 This summary of the Good News is the basis for the rebuke that follows (1:6-10). This might be a creed or confession of faith that Paul used to remind the Galatians of the message they had earlier embraced.

1:4 Because Jesus completely rescued us from our sins, there is no place for efforts to save ourselves. • Christian faith rescues us from this evil world in which we live (see 4:8-12; 5:13-26).

1:5 All glory must go to God for salvation, because it is his work alone.

1:6-10 I am shocked: In most of his letters, Paul followed his greeting with gratitude for his readers and a prayer for them (e.g., Rom 1:8-10; 1 Cor 1:4-5; Phil 1:3-6; Col 1:3-5; 2 Thes 1:3-12), but he found nothing to praise in the Galatian church.

1:6 The Galatians were turning away . . . from God by rejecting the Good News Paul proclaimed and looking instead to the law. God called them to himself through the loving mercy of Christ (some manuscripts read through loving mercy), not through the law (2:16). • God, who called you: Cp. 1:15; Rom 8:30; 9:24; 11:29. • a different way that pretends to be the Good News: Some were teaching that Gentile Christians had to be circumcised to be considered members of God's family. Paul rejected any requirement besides faith in Jesus (cp. 5:2-4).

1:7 The "different way" (1:6) was a distortion, not the Good News of salvation at all. The only way to be saved is by faith in Christ. Adding any requirements makes the message no longer the Good News. • those who deliberately twist the truth concerning Christ: The Judaizers knew they were changing the Good News to fit their views.

1:8-9 Let God's curse fall on anyone (literally Let that person be anathema): The Greek word anathema was often used to translate the Hebrew kherem, which in the OT means something dedicated to God for total destruction (see "Complete Dedication" at Lev 27:28-29, p. 244; cp. Rom 9:3; 1 Cor 12:3; 16:22). Paul was invoking God's strongest wrath on those who distort the Good News (1:7). • including us or even an angel from heaven: No one is authorized to change the Good News (cp. 2:6-10, 11-14).

1:9 The Good News . . . you welcomed was precisely the message Paul had preached to them (1:8; cp. 2 Thes 2:15).

1:10 The tone and content of this letter make it clear that trying to win the approval of people was not Paul's goal. Paul was probably criticized by the Judaizers for trying to please people by presenting only the part of the Good News pertaining to faith and grace, and not what they perceived to be the whole message including the law. • Being Christ's servant requires fidelity to Christ, regardless of how people respond (cp. Acts 5:29; Eph 6:5-6; 1 Thes 2:3-6).

is not based on mere human reasoning.^{12I} received my message from no human source, and no one taught me. Instead, I received it by direct⁴ revelation from Jesus Christ.

¹³You know what I was like when I followed the Jewish religion—how I violently persecuted God's church. I did my best to destroy it. ^{14I} was far ahead of my fellow Jews in my zeal for the traditions of my ancestors.

¹⁵But even before I was born, God chose me and called me by his marvelous⁶ grace. Then it pleased him ¹⁶to reveal his Son to me so that I would proclaim the Good News about Jesus to the Gentiles.

When this happened, I did not rush out to consult with any human being. ¹⁷Nor did I go up to Jerusalem to consult with those who were apostles before I was. Instead, I went away into Arabia, and later I returned to the city of Damascus.

¹⁸Then three years later I went to Jerusalem to get to know Peter, and I stayed with him for fifteen days. ¹⁹The only other apostle I met at that time was James, the Lord's brother. ^{20I} declare before God that what I am writing to you is not a lie.

²¹After that visit I went north into the provinces of Syria and Cilicia. ²²And still the churches in Christ that are in Judea didn't know me personally. ²³All they knew was that people were saying, "The one who used to persecute us is now preaching the very faith he tried to destroy!" ²⁴And they praised God because of me.

The Other Apostles Recognize Paul

2 Then fourteen years later I went back to Jerusalem again, this time with Barnabas; and Titus came along, too. ^{2I} went there because God revealed to me that I should go. While I was there I met privately with those considered to be leaders of the church and shared with them the message I had been preaching to the Gentiles. I wanted to make sion questioned Paul's apostleship and attempted to discredit his message. Paul defended his apostolic authority, demonstrating from past events that his message was the true Good News.

1:11 the gospel message I preach: Paul's message was that people are made right with God by grace through faith, not by obeying the law (see 2:16-17; Rom 10:9-13; Eph 2:8-9).

1:12 no human source . . . no one taught me: Jewish scholars primarily depended on teachers. The Judaizers argued that Paul had received his commission and message from the other apostles, but then had unfaithfully changed the message. • I received it by direct revelation from Jesus Christ (or by the revelation of Jesus Christ): See 1:17; Acts 9:3-15; 26:12-18. Paul's unique experience gave him distinctive authority and insight. But he learned other matters, such as the life of Christ, from others (e.g., 1:18; 1 Cor 11:23-26; 15:3-11).

1:13-14 To prove that his message did not come from human reason (1:11), Paul describes what he was like before he encountered Christ: He was a highly successful Jew (see Acts 8:1-3; 22:1-5; 26:4-5; Phil 3:4-7). His antagonism to God's church and strict adherence to Judaism demonstrated his faith in the law before Christ confronted him (1:15-16).

1:15-16a even before I was born: Cp. Jer 1:5; see also Ps 139:13-16; Isa 49:1-6; Rom 9:10-13. • God chose me and called me: For the account of Paul's conversion, see Acts 9:1-19; 22:1-21; 26:9-23. • Paul's calling was specifically to proclaim the Good News about Jesus to the Gentiles (2:7), and he even educated other apostles in what that means (e.g., 2:11-21). • to reveal his Son to me (or to reveal his Son in me): This might refer to Paul's encounter with Christ (Acts 9:1-19; cp. 1 Cor 9:1; 15:8); in me might also suggest an internal revelation (cp. 2:20; 4:6-7) and implies that Paul's changed heart revealed Christ to others.

1:16b-20 Paul was taught by the Lord directly and did not . . . consult with any human being (literally with flesh and blood), even the other apostles. Paul was independent from the other apostles yet in harmony with them (2:1-10).

1:17 those who were apostles before I was: Paul put his own apostleship in the same category as the original disciples (see 1 Cor 9:1; 15:5-9; cp. Acts 1:22; 10:41). • Paul's trip to Arabia is not mentioned elsewhere; his understanding of the Good News was apparently formed during that time. Paul knew the OT Scriptures (see Acts 22:3), the claims of the first Christians (see Acts 8:1), and what others had told him since his conversion.

1:18-20 Peter and James had fifteen days to talk with Paul about his message, which was clearly in harmony with theirs. Paul did not receive a commission from the Jerusalem church—his apostleship did not derive from Jerusalem.

1:18 three years later (or in the third year): Either three years after Paul's conversion or after his return from Arabia. This event is probably the visit recorded in Acts 9:26-30. • to get to know Peter (Greek Cephas): Peter had something

Paul did not: deep personal acquaintance with Jesus during Jesus' earthly ministry. • Fifteen days was much too short a time for Paul to become dependent on Peter as his mentor, but plenty of time for the content of each man's preaching to be thoroughly discussed.

1:20 I declare before God: Paul here takes an oath to emphasize the truthfulness of his account of his trip to Jerusalem.

1:21-22 Paul was not working under the supervision of the apostles in Jerusalem nor of the churches . . . in Judea.

1:23-24 Paul's conversion was a source of rejoicing in the Jerusalem church. This change (cp. 1:13-14) and his message were both the work of God (cp. Acts 9:31). Paul was not out of sync with the church in Jerusalem.

2:1-10 During Paul's second visit to Jerusalem, the other apostles affirmed his message. Traditionally, this passage has been seen as a description of the church council (Acts 15), but it is much more likely that Paul was talking about his previous visit to Jerusalem (Acts 11:30; 12:25; see Galatians Introduction, "Date," p. 1979).

2:1 Counting fourteen years from Paul's conversion (1:15-17), instead of from his previous visit (1:18), fits well with Acts. • That Barnabas was familiar to the Galatians suggests that the Galatians were evangelized during the first missionary journey (Acts 13:4-14:26; see Galatians Introduction, "Recipients," p. 1978). • Titus: See "Titus" at Titus 1:4; 2:1, p. 2073.

2:2 If 2:1-10 correlates with the visit of Acts 11:30, God might have revealed his will through Agabus's prophecy and sure that we were in agreement, for fear that all my efforts had been wasted and I was running the race for nothing.³ And they supported me and did not even demand that my companion Titus be circumcised, though he was a Gentile.

⁴Even that question came up only because of some so-called believers there—false ones, really—who were secretly brought in. They sneaked in to spy on us and take away the freedom we have in Christ Jesus. They wanted to enslave us and force us to follow their Jewish regulations.⁵ But we refused to give in to them for a single moment. We wanted to preserve the truth of the gospel message for you.

⁶And the leaders of the church had nothing to add to what I was preaching. (By the way, their reputation as great leaders made no difference to me, for God has no favorites.)⁷ Instead, they saw that God had given me the responsibility of preaching the gospel to the Gentiles, just as he had given Peter the responsibility of preaching to the Jews.⁸ For the same God who worked through Peter as the apostle to the Jews also worked through me as the apostle to the Gentiles.

⁹In fact, James, Peter, and John, who were known as pillars of the church, recognized the gift God had given me, and they accepted Barnabas and me as their co-workers. They encouraged us to keep preaching to the Gentiles, while they continued their work with the Jews.¹⁰ Their only suggestion was that we keep on helping the poor, which I have always been eager to do.

Paul's Dispute with Peter

¹¹But when Peter came to Antioch, I had to oppose him to his face, for what he did was very wrong.¹² When he first arrived, he ate with the Gentile believers, who were not the church's decision to send aid (Acts 11:27-29). • If Paul needed the endorsement of the leaders in Jerusalem, he would have met with them publicly; that they met privately indicates that no one thought he needed public endorsement. • those considered to be leaders of the church: Paul's tone downplays their importance, perhaps to counteract the false teachers' undue regard for them. • Paul shared his message with the apostles in Jerusalem, not for endorsement, but to ensure agreement, so that the church would not split into Jewish and Gentile factions. • for fear that all my efforts had been wasted: A split between Jewish and Gentile Christians would undermine the fundamental unity that Christ had secured (3:28).

2:3 The Jerusalem apostles affirmed Paul's message without qualification. They stood together on the same Good News—that God's grace comes through faith in Christ, not through keeping the law. Clearly the Jerusalem apostles did not think that circumcision was necessary for a Gentile (literally a Greek) like Titus.

2:4-5 The false Christians entered the church there (either Jerusalem or Antioch) to subvert Paul's message that Gentiles are free from Jewish requirements such as circumcision.

2:4 By labeling some so-called believers as false (literally some false brothers), Paul denied that they were Christians at all. They did not understand or truly receive the Good News, in contrast with the apostles in Jerusalem (2:3). • were secretly brought in: Paul implies that a larger group of Jewish "Christians" opposed his preaching (cp. Acts 15:5) and stood behind the false teachers who entered the Galatian church. • Requiring Gentile Christians to observe Jewish law would enslave them to regulations (see 3:23-4:11) and deny the Good News of Christ.

2:5 we refused to give in to them for a single moment: Titus was not circumcised (2:3) and Paul did not require circumcision of Gentile Christians. • to preserve the truth: The false teaching would destroy the gospel message by adding other requirements and impeaching the effectiveness of Christ's death and God's grace (cp. 2:11-21).

2:6-10 Paul's message was in harmony with the Jerusalem apostles, but their affirmation was not the source of Paul's authority (1:12, 16-20).

2:6 The Jerusalem apostles' reputation as great leaders was probably derived from their personal acquaintance with Jesus' earthly ministry, which did not give them greater apostolic authority than Paul had. What mattered most was Christ's personal commission (see 1 Cor 9:1; cp. 2 Cor 12:11-12). • God has no favorites: The Judaizers probably regarded the Jerusalem apostles' earthly relationship with Jesus as an advantage. Paul argues that such favoritism is inconsistent with God's character (cp. Lev 19:15-16; Deut 1:17; 2 Chr 19:7; Job 13:10; Ps 82:1-2; Prov 18:5; Mal 2:8-9).

2:7-8 The apostles in Jerusalem saw that Paul and Peter had different scopes of ministry (for Peter's, see Acts 1-5; 9-10; for Paul's, see Acts 13-28), but they both preached the same gospel.

2:9 James: See "James, the Brother of Jesus" at Acts 15:13-21, p. 1858. • Peter: Greek Cephas; also in 2:11, 14. • they accepted Barnabas and me as their co-workers (literally they gave me and Barnabas a right hand of fellowship): This symbolic handshake showed full acceptance for Paul and Barnabas, their ministry, and their message.

2:10 The mention of helping the poor connects this narrative with Acts 11:30; 12:25. The Christians in Judea suffered years of deep poverty, and Paul was eager to have the Gentile churches alleviate some of that difficulty and build unity with the Jewish church (see Rom 15:25-27; 1 Cor 16:1-4; 2 Cor 8-9).

2:11-21 In Antioch, Peter and others compromised the Good News in contradiction of their own principles (this incident is not recorded in Acts). Paul's rebuke of Peter showed that Paul's apostleship was independent of Jerusalem and faithful to the Good News of Christ.

2:11 when Peter came to Antioch: This occasion, not recorded in Acts, probably occurred following the return of Paul and Barnabas from their first missionary journey (Acts 14:26-28). Paul probably wrote this letter soon afterward. • what he did was very wrong (or he stood condemned): Peter's actions were inconsistent with what he knew to be true—that God accepts Gentiles by faith, not by keeping the law (see Acts 10-11). • Paul had to oppose Peter to his face. Paul wanted to keep the Good News from being corrupted (2:21), which required showing publicly that Peter's own public action was wrong (cp. 1 Tim 5:20).

2:12 That Peter ate with the Gentile believers was consistent with what God had shown him (Acts 10:9-16, 34-35). • The friends of James wanted to reassert Jewish scruples and prevent the free communion between circumcised. But afterward, when some friends of James came, Peter wouldn't eat with the Gentiles anymore. He was afraid of criticism from these people who insisted on the necessity of circumcision. ¹³As a result, other Jewish believers followed Peter's hypocrisy, and even Barnabas was led astray by their hypocrisy.

¹⁴When I saw that they were not following the truth of the gospel message, I said to Peter in front of all the others, "Since you, a Jew by birth, have discarded the Jewish laws and are living like a Gentile, why are you now trying to make these Gentiles follow the Jewish traditions?"

¹⁵"You and I are Jews by birth, not 'sinners' like the Gentiles. ¹⁶Yet we know that a person is made right with God by faith in

Righteousness by Faith (Gal 2:14-21)

The key issues for the church in Galatia were: How do people become acceptable to God? What do people need to do to earn God's favor? How do people become members of God's family?

For Paul, the answer was simple: There is nothing people can or need to do. Only Christ could do—and has done—what must be done to make people acceptable to God. So we should simply receive his gift, gratefully thank him for what he has done for us, and trust in him.

For Jewish Christians in the first century, it was hard to accept this answer. From the time of Abraham, their relationship with God had been defined by circumcision, the rite of cutting off the male foreskin (Gen 17:9-14). Every male who was part of God's family had to be circumcised, and those who neglected it were cut off from God's people. Those who had received circumcision were also expected to keep the laws regarding the Sabbath and what foods could be eaten, along with the rest of the law.

When the Christian faith moved from the Jewish to the Gentile world, it was natural for questions to arise. Do Christians need to be circumcised—and keep God's law in general—to be accepted as part of God's family? Or does God accept people purely on the basis of their faith in Christ's work on the cross? As Paul's mission to Gentiles advanced, these questions became pressing.

The apostle Peter understood from his vision in Joppa and his experience in Caesarea that God has accepted Gentiles as Gentiles, on the basis of their faith in Christ's finished work (Acts 10:9–11:18). They did not have to become Jewish by observing circumcision, for Christ provided them open access to God by faith. Peter and the Jerusalem church therefore welcomed Gentile believers into fellowship. But later, Peter temporarily withdrew from fellowship with Gentiles when some Jewish Christians criticized him (2:11-13). In response, Paul rebuked Peter for communicating that Gentiles must become Jews in order to be accepted by God (2:14-21).

No one is accepted by God and made righteous before him on the basis of keeping the law (2:16). Even Abraham was accounted as righteous and accepted by God because of his faith (3:6; Gen 15:6)—not because he was circumcised, which came later (Gen 17:9-14). Both Jews and Gentiles are accepted by God and made righteous before him on the basis of faith alone.

Gentiles and Jews from continuing.

• Peter wouldn't eat with the Gentiles anymore: When Peter refused to share regular meals and the Lord's Supper (cp. 1 Cor 11:20-22, 33-34) with fellow Christians, he divided the Jewish and Gentile Christians and implied that the Jews' observances made them more acceptable to God. Peter's example, if uncorrected, would have undermined the Good News of salvation by grace through faith. • He was afraid: The friends of James intimidated Peter, who had previously withstood the same sort of criticism with power and eloquence (Acts 11:2-18). Peter might have been trying to avoid creating a barrier for the evangelism of Jews, or he might have been concerned for the safety and well-being of the Jewish Christians in Judea, who experienced persecution from non-Christian Jews (cp. 5:11; 6:12). In any case, his actions were inexcusable.

2:13 Peter's hypocrisy drew other Jewish believers into error regarding the Good News.

2:14-21 The actions of Peter and the others implied that faith in Christ was not enough. Paul eloquently argues against such a compromise of the truth of the gospel message, showing that the law plays no role in defining a Christian's position before God, which is by grace through faith (Eph 2:8-9). • It is not clear where Paul's public rebuke of Peter ends and his message to the Galatians resumes (see note on 2:16). While Paul was recounting his address to Peter, he was also speaking to the Galatians. His rebuke of Peter was also a rebuke of them (see 3:1).

2:14 By living like a Gentile—eating with Gentiles and not observing Jewish food laws—Peter communicated God's acceptance of Gentiles on equal terms with Jews, on the basis of faith in Christ (see Acts 10:34-43; 11:17-18). • why are you now trying to make these Gentiles follow the Jewish traditions? Both Jews and Gentiles would draw this conclusion from Peter's actions.

2:15 Gentiles were 'sinners' in that they did not have the law and could not obey God's commands. Paul was using the categories of Jewish thinking (cp. Matt 15:21-28; 26:45; Luke 6:32-34; 18:9-14) with strong irony in light of the sinful condition of all people (2:16; Rom 3:23).

2:16 Jews and Gentiles alike are sinners; the Good News requires both Jews and Gentiles to acknowledge that they

Jesus Christ, not by obeying the ^hlaw. And we have believed in Christ Jesus, so that we might be made right with God because of our faith in Christ, not because we have obeyed the ^hlaw. For no one will ever be made right with God by obeying the ^hlaw.”

¹⁷But suppose we seek to be made right with God through faith in Christ and then we are found guilty because we have abandoned the law. Would that mean Christ has led us into sin? Absolutely not! ¹⁸Rather, I am a sinner if I rebuild the old system of law I already tore down. ¹⁹For when I tried to keep the ^hlaw, it condemned me. So I died to the ^hlaw—I stopped trying to meet all its requirements—so that I might live for God. ²⁰My old self has been crucified with Christ. It is no longer I who live, but Christ lives in me. So I live in this earthly body by ^htrusting in the Son of God, who loved me and gave himself for me. ²¹I do not treat the grace of God as meaningless. For if keeping the ^hlaw could make us right with God, then there was no need for Christ to die.

3. JUSTIFICATION BY FAITH (3:1–5:12)

The Law and Faith in Christ (3:1–14)

Personal Experience of the Spirit

3 Oh, foolish Galatians! Who has cast an evil spell on you? For the meaning of Jesus Christ's death was made as clear to you as if you had seen a picture of his death on the cross. ²Let me ask you this one question: Did you receive the Holy Spirit by obeying the law of Moses? Of course not! You received the Spirit because you believed the message you heard about Christ. ³How foolish can you be? After starting your new lives in the Spirit, why are you now trying to become perfect by your own ^hhuman effort? ⁴Have you experienced so much for nothing? Surely it was not in vain, was it?

⁵I ask you again, does God give you the are sinful (see Rom 2:1-5; 3:1-20) and in need of God's grace (Rom 3:21-26). Peter later demonstrated his agreement with this message (Acts 15:7-11). • Some translators hold that the quotation extends through v 14; others through v 16; and still others through v 21.

2:17-21 The false teachers probably claimed that Paul's law-free Good News would lead to lawlessness, that people would flaunt their sinfulness, and that Christ would thus be seen as leading people into sin (2:17). Paul shows that this is false, because those who place their faith in Christ are empowered by the Holy Spirit to live holy, God-honoring lives (see 5:13-26).

2:18 I am a sinner (or lawbreaker): Turning away from faith and back to the law brings a person under the jurisdiction of the law, where all stand under God's judgment (Rom 3:10-12; 23-24; see Heb 6:1-8), and is itself a serious sin against Christ (5:2-4; cp. Heb 6:4-6). See also note on 2:19. • if I rebuild: By insisting on keeping Jewish laws concerning food and circumcision (2:11-13). • Christ tore down the system of law through his death (Eph 2:14-16).

2:19 when I tried to keep the law, it condemned me: Attempting to gain acceptance with God through keeping the law inevitably leads to sin (5:2-4; see Rom 7:5, 8-11), whereas living by the Spirit leads away from sin (5:16, 22-24; see “The Law and the Spirit” at 5:16-26, p. 1993). • I died to the law: The NLT adds an explanation that this means I stopped trying to meet all its requirements. Those who trust in Christ participate in his death (2:20); they are no longer under the law's judgment (see Rom 6:2, 10-11; 7:2-6), and they stop seeing the law as a means of their salvation. Instead, Christians live for God in a new relationship with God through Christ (3:23-4:11; see Rom 6:10-11; 14:7-8; 2 Cor 5:15).

2:20 A law-free Good News does not lead to lawlessness, as Paul's opponents argued (2:17), because lawlessness is a response of the unredeemed. The redeemed Christian has been crucified with Christ. (Some English translations put this sentence in v 19.) See also Col 2:11-14, 20-23. A Christian has laid aside the old self, which strove to achieve merit by keeping the law (cp. Rom 7:4-6). • It is no longer I who live, but Christ lives in me: Christians, having experienced Christ's death and resurrection (Rom 6:1-14), have new hearts (see Jer 31:31-34; 32:38-41; Ezek 11:19-20; 36:24-31) by the indwelling power of the Spirit (see Rom 8:9-11; Eph 3:16-19; Col 1:27; 3:1-17).

• I live in this earthly body: Christianity does not teach that the body is evil or that we have to escape from this world to have fellowship with God. Instead, by trusting in the Son of God, we fulfill God's purposes for our lives. • who loved me and gave himself for me: Christ's self-giving love makes new life possible (1:4; Rom 8:32-39; 2 Thes 2:16-17).

2:21 Perhaps Paul's opponents in Galatia suggested that his message would make God's grace to Israel meaningless, since it was connected with the law (cp. Rom 3:1-2, 31). Instead, it was Paul's opponents who treated the grace of God as meaningless by voiding the need for Christ to die.

3:1-5:12 Paul now defends the truth of his message—that right relationship with God comes by faith in Christ alone—and proves the fallacy of the message that Gentiles must keep the law in order to be acceptable to God.

3:1-9 Paul compares the Galatians' spiritual experience (3:1-5) with Abraham's (3:6-9), showing that they were made right with God in the same way, through faith and not through the law (Eph 2:8-9).

3:1 Oh, foolish Galatians! Their foolishness was both intellectual and spiritual (cp. Luke 24:25; see 1 Sam 25:1-38) as they turned away from Christ (1:6) and put faith in the law. • The Galatians were deceived by the teachers' evil spell (cp. Gen 3:1-7)—not literal witchcraft, but enticing arguments. • For the meaning of Jesus Christ's death was made as clear to you as if you had seen a picture of his death on the cross (literally Before your eyes Jesus Christ was publicly portrayed as crucified): Paul's proclamation of the Good News clearly portrayed Christ's death and explained its significance (see Rom 10:14-17).

3:2 The Galatians, like all Christians, received the Holy Spirit by faith in Christ, not by obeying the law of Moses (see Acts 2:38-39; Rom 8:9-11; 2 Cor 1:22; Eph 1:11-14; cp. Acts 10:44-48; 11:15-18). God accepted the Galatians because of their faith in the message . . . about Christ (cp. Rom 10:14-17), which made their turning to the law absurd (3:3-4).

3:3 by . . . human effort (literally by flesh): Paul makes a pun: The Galatians were trying to become perfect by human effort through keeping the law about circumcising the flesh of the male foreskin.

3:4 Have you experienced (or suffered) so much for nothing? This could refer to suffering, but what is known about the Galatian church does not suggest

Holy Spirit and work miracles among you because you obey the law? Of course not! It is because you believe the message you heard about Christ.

Faith the Same as Abraham's

6In the same way, "Abraham believed God, and God counted him as righteous because of his faith." 7The real children of Abraham, then, are those who put their faith in God.

8What's more, the Scriptures 9looked forward to this time when God would make the Gentiles right in his sight because of their faith. God proclaimed this good news to Abraham long ago when he said, "All nations will be blessed through you." 9So all who put their faith in Christ share the same blessing Abraham received because of his faith.

Curse through Law, Blessing through Faith

10But those who depend on the law to make them right with God are under his curse, for the Scriptures say, "Cursed is everyone who does not observe and obey all the commands that are written in God's Book of the Law." 11So it is clear that no one can be made right with God by trying to keep the law. For the Scriptures say, "It is through faith that a righteous person has life." 12This way of faith is very different from the way of law, which says, "It is through obeying the law that a person has life."

13But Christ has rescued us from the curse pronounced by the law. When he was hung on the cross, he took upon himself the curse for our wrongdoing. For it is written in the Scriptures, "Cursed is everyone who is hung on a tree." 14Through Christ Jesus, God has blessed the Gentiles with the same blessing he promised to Abraham, so that we who are believers might receive the promised Holy Spirit through faith.

The Law and God's Promise (3:15-29)

God's Promise to Abraham

15Dear brothers and sisters, here's an example from everyday life. Just as no one can set aside or amend an irrevocable agreement, so it is in this case. 16God gave the promises to Abraham and his child. And notice that the Scripture doesn't say "to his children," this. Paul was probably referring to the spiritual experiences the Galatians had through the Holy Spirit (3:3, 5). Turning to the law for right standing with God would mean regarding the work of the Spirit as meaningless.

3:5 work miracles: See 1 Cor 12:4-11. The Holy Spirit is present with believers and in the church because of faith in the message . . . about Christ.

3:6-9 Abraham's experience shows that faith has always been the basis for relationship with God and for receiving what God has promised.

3:6 This quote is from Gen 15:6, where God established his covenant with Abraham (see Gen 15:1-21; 17:1-27). This statement is foundational in defining God's relationship with humanity (see Hab 2:4; Rom 4:1-8, 17-22).

3:7 Gentile Christians—including the Galatians—are among the real children of Abraham, not by keeping the law of Moses, but by faith in God (see Rom 4:9-17, 23-25; cp. Matt 12:48-50).

3:8 the Scriptures looked forward: By faith, Abraham foresaw the coming Messiah (cp. John 8:56) and received the message that "All nations will be blessed through you" (Gen 12:3; 18:18; 22:18). Through Abraham's offspring, the Messiah, God would accept all nations on the same basis as Abraham himself—by faith.

3:10-12 By relying on circumcision, the Galatians depended on the law. Those who look to the law for right standing with God are under a curse. They cannot keep the whole law, so they cannot receive blessing under its terms.

3:10 Paul here quotes Deut 27:26, which summarized the curse that Israel would experience if they failed to keep all the stipulations of God's covenant (see Deut 27:9-26; cp. Deut 28:15-68; 31:26; Josh 1:8; Mal 2:2; see also Gen 3:14-19; 4:10-12). It is impossible for sinful human beings to obey God's will completely (see Rom 3:9-20).

3:11 So it is clear from Scripture, even if it was not clear to the Galatians or the false teachers who were insisting on circumcision for Gentile believers. • "It is through faith that a righteous person has life": Paul quotes Hab 2:4, in which the prophet was waiting in faith for God's promise to be fulfilled.

3:12 The law itself is not opposed to faith (see 3:19-25; Rom 7:7-13), but trying to be righteous by keeping the law opposes righteousness by faith in Christ. Paul quotes Lev 18:5 to show that life under the law comes by obeying rather than believing. Right standing with God is impossible on that basis (3:10-11).

3:13-14 In contrast with those who depend on the law (3:10-12), those who look to God through faith in Christ freely receive God's life and blessings.

3:13 rescued us (or ransomed us): Christ paid a ransom to buy back his people (see 4:4-5; 1 Pet 1:18-20). • "Cursed is everyone who is hung on a tree": Paul quotes Deut 21:23 (Greek version), in which executed criminals exposed for public shame were under God's curse (see note on Deut 21:22). Jesus, when he was crucified, took upon himself God's curse that should have fallen upon all sinners (cp. 2 Cor 5:21).

3:14 Christ Jesus has blessed the Gentiles with the same blessing . . . promised to Abraham, as described in 3:6-13. Paul equates this blessing with receiving the promised Holy Spirit (3:2-6; see also Rom 8:1-17, 23; Eph 1:13-14). • the promised Holy Spirit: Some manuscripts read the blessing of the Holy Spirit.

3:15-18 Christ, not the law, has fulfilled the promise and covenant given to Abraham.

3:15 Dear brothers and sisters: Literally Brothers. • An irrevocable agreement, such as a person's last will and testament, is unalterable after the person has died, and it must be executed exactly as written.

3:16 The promises to Abraham were primarily inherited by Abraham and his child (literally his seed)—the promised Messiah, the ultimate descendant of Abraham. "Seed" can refer to a single descendant or to many descendants (see notes on Gen 12:7; 13:15). Although the promise has a plural sense (see 3:29; Gen 13:15-16; 15:5-6; 17:7-8), this singular noun points to the one descendant, Christ, who completely fulfilled the promise. The heirs of the promise are not Jacob's physical children, but the spiritual children of Christ by the Spirit through faith. • children: Literally seeds.

as if it meant many descendants. Rather, it says “to his child”—and that, of course, means Christ. ¹⁷This is what I am trying to say: The agreement God made with Abraham could not be canceled 430 years later when God gave the law to Moses. God would be breaking his promise. ¹⁸For if the inheritance could be received by keeping the law, then it would not be the result of accepting God’s promise. But God graciously gave it to Abraham as a promise.

The Purpose of the Law

¹⁹Why, then, was the law given? It was given alongside the promise to show people their sins. But the law was designed to last only until the coming of the child who was promised. God gave his law through angels to Moses, who was the mediator between God and the people. ²⁰Now a mediator is helpful if more than one party must reach an agreement. But God, who is one, did not use a mediator when he gave his promise to Abraham.

²¹Is there a conflict, then, between God’s law and God’s promises? Absolutely not! If the law could ⁴give us new life, we could be made right with God by obeying it. ²²But the Scriptures declare that we are all prisoners of sin, so we receive God’s promise of freedom only by believing in Jesus Christ.

God’s Children through Faith

²³Before the way of faith in Christ was available to us, we were placed under guard by the law. We were kept in protective custody, so to speak, until the way of faith was revealed.

²⁴Let me put it another way. The law was our ⁶guardian until Christ came; it protected us until we could be made right with God through faith. ²⁵And now that the way of faith has come, we no longer need the law as our ⁷guardian.

²⁶For you are all children of God through faith in Christ Jesus. ²⁷And all who have been united with Christ in ⁸baptism have put on Christ, like putting on new clothes.

²⁸There is no longer Jew or Gentile, slave or 3:17 Just as irrevocable agreements cannot be canceled (3:15), the terms of God’s covenant with Abraham were not changed by the giving of the law. • 430 years: See note on Exod 12:40.

3:18 The inheritance (see 4:1-7) cannot come through keeping the law, because that would nullify God’s promise to Abraham, which was by faith before the law.

3:19-22 Paul’s argument so far might lead his readers to believe that the law had no purpose. Here, however, Paul emphasizes the law’s proper role in order to correct false teaching about the law.

3:19 If people do not receive God’s inheritance through the law, why, then, was the law given? It was to show people their sins and make it clear that sinful actions are offenses against God. People cannot rely on their own goodness to save them, but must turn to God in faith (see Rom 3:19-20; 4:15; 5:20; 7:7-13). • until the coming of the child who was promised: See 3:16. While the promise is permanent, the law was temporary. With Christ’s coming, the law was fulfilled (see Matt 5:17-20; cp. Matt 3:13-15; John 19:30) and God’s acceptance is based entirely on faith in Christ. • through angels: Deuteronomy 33:2 in the Greek version describes the Lord’s coming from Sinai “with myriads of holy ones, angels with him at his right hand.” See also Ps 68:17; Acts 7:38, 53; Heb 2:2. • Moses, who was the mediator: See Exod 20:19; Deut 5:24-27.

3:20 The law, given through angels and a mediator, required agreement between God and the people. The law was conditional, with blessings and curses attached to keeping or not keeping its statutes. In contrast, God gave his promise to Abraham directly; he did not use a mediator. It was God’s unilateral and unconditional commitment. • God, who is one: Paul used the basic Jewish creed (Deut 6:4) to convince Gentile Christians not to become Jewish converts.

3:21-25 See Rom 7:7-13.

3:21 No conflict of purpose exists between law and promise, or between law and faith. Law partners with the promise in bringing people to faith in Christ. Law has its proper roles of declaring people prisoners of sin (3:19, 22) and of restraining sin (3:23-25). In Galatia, the Judaizers tried to convince Gentile Christians that the law could do something it was never intended to do—give . . . new life and make people right with God. God does these things on the basis of faith in his promise, which was fulfilled in Jesus Christ (see 3:22). • God’s promises? Some manuscripts read the promises?

3:22 we are all prisoners of sin: See Rom 3:9; 7:1-13; 11:32. Keeping the law is of no use in bringing salvation; only believing in Jesus Christ can bring freedom.

3:23-29 Paul contrasts the condition of God’s people under the law before Christ with their condition now under Christ.

3:23 Because sin had imprisoned us (3:22), the law was a guard, keeping God’s people in protective custody . . . until the way of faith in Christ was revealed. It made God’s requirements explicit, and thus highlights the need for a Savior. The law also restrains sin by making the consequences of sin explicit.

3:24 The law is like a child’s guardian (Greek paidagōgos, “tutor”). In Greco-Roman culture, a guardian was a faithful slave responsible for training and protecting the heir until he came of age.

3:25 the way of faith has come: The principle of righteousness by faith was always operative (cp. 3:6-9), but the object of that faith and the means of appropriating it are now clear to everyone through Jesus Christ. • we no longer need the law as our guardian: In Greco-Roman culture, a freeborn child who came of age was no longer under the discipline of a guardian, but was free to rule himself. So, too, those who are “of age” through faith in Christ are free from the guardianship of the law. They serve Christ directly as he leads by his word and Spirit.

3:26-29 Because of Christ, our condition under faith contrasts with our condition under the law (3:23-24).

3:26 Those who are children (literally sons) of God through faith in Christ Jesus (see also 4:4-7; John 1:12; Rom 9:8) have come of age as heirs of his promises (see 3:24-25, 29) and have received the down payment of that inheritance (3:14; Eph 1:14). The Galatians were foolish (3:1) in trying to gain access to God through circumcision. As God’s children by faith, they already had the best possible access to God.

3:27 united with Christ in baptism: See Rom 6:3-4. Baptism represents death of an old life and birth into a new one. In the new life, the law’s curse no longer has any force (cp. Rom 7:1-6). • have put free, male and female. For you are all one in Christ Jesus. ²⁹And now that you belong to Christ, you are the true children of Abraham. You are his heirs, and God's promise to Abraham belongs to you.

Slavery and Freedom (4:1-5:1) God's Heirs through Christ

4 Think of it this way. If a father dies and leaves an inheritance for his young children, those children are not much better off than slaves until they grow up, even though they actually own everything their father had. ²They have to obey their ^hguardians until they reach whatever age their father set. ³And that's the way it was with us before Christ came. We were like children; we were slaves to the basic spiritual principles of this world.

⁴But when the right time came, God sent his Son, born of a woman, subject to the law. ⁵God sent him to buy freedom for us who were slaves to the law, so that he could ^hadopt us as his very own children. ⁶And because we are his children, God has sent the Spirit of his Son into our ^hhearts, prompting us to call out, ^k"Abba, Father." ⁷Now you are no longer a slave but God's own child. And since you are his child, God has made you his heir.

Serving the Law: A Return To Slavery

⁸Before you Gentiles knew God, you were slaves to so-called gods that do not even exist. ⁹So now that you know God (or should I say, now that God knows you), why do you want to go back again and become slaves once more to the weak and useless spiritual principles of this world? ¹⁰You are trying to earn favor with God by observing certain days or months or seasons or years. ¹¹I fear for you. Perhaps all my hard work with you was for nothing.

A Personal Appeal

¹²Dear brothers and sisters, I plead with you to live as I do in freedom from these things, for I have become like you Gentiles—free from those laws.

on Christ, like putting on new clothes: Literally have put on Christ. Christ covers us and gives us a new identity. Cp. Col 3:12; 1 Thes 5:8.

3:28 There is no longer: Everyone comes to Christ and receives God's promises in exactly the same way (cp. 1 Cor 12:12-13; Eph 2:14; Col 3:11). • Jew or Gentile: Literally Jew or Greek. • male and female: Cp. Gen 1:27. • you are all one: The community of believers is one body, the body of Christ (see Rom 12:4-5; 1 Cor 12:27; Eph 2:15-16, 19-22). • in Christ Jesus: See Col 2:6-3:11.

3:29 Because Christ is the ideal descendant of Abraham (3:16), it follows that those who are one with Christ (3:27-28) are children (literally seed) of Abraham, and heirs of all that was promised to him.

4:1-7 Paul supports his argument that the law's purpose for God's children was fulfilled when Christ came, so that we are no longer bound by it.

4:1-3 A child inheriting an estate might receive a large fortune, but before coming of age, the child must obey guardians and trustees until the time set by the father. Similarly, before Christ came, God's people were under the guardianship of the law (see 3:23-24).

4:3 Before Christ came, God's people were like underage heirs to a large estate (4:1-2). They would inherit a great fortune (4:5), but they were still subject to their guardian (3:23-25). • the basic spiritual principles (or powers; also in 4:9) of this world: This probably refers to the principles of law that govern the world apart from Christ; these principles were fully expressed in the law of Moses (3:23-24; cp. 4:5).

4:4-5 God set the right time in the course of history for Christ to come (cp. Luke 4:18-19; Eph 4:8-10). • Christ was fully human (born of a woman) and subject to the law. Christ fulfilled the law (see Matt 3:13-15; 5:17) so that now God's children (literally sons; also in 4:6) have freedom and are no longer bound as slaves to it. • to buy freedom: By fulfilling the law and bearing its curse, Christ ransomed us from its claims (3:13; see also Rom 3:24; Col 1:13-14). • so that he could adopt us: See also Rom 8:15-17.

4:6 The Holy Spirit provides an inner testimony to assure us that we (literally you) are God's children (see Rom 8:16; Eph 1:13-14). • Abba, Father: Abba is an Aramaic term for "father." Those who have the Spirit of his Son are able to address God as Father, just as Christ did (Mark 14:36; cp. Matt 6:9).

4:7 child: Literally son; also in 4:7b.

4:8-11 Paul reminds the Galatians of their former paganism; he argues that practicing circumcision (and the law in general) would be a return to the same kind of slavery that they experienced before they knew God.

4:8 The Gentile Galatians had previously practiced pagan idolatry; they worshiped the elements and the seasons (cp. Rom 1:25) and were slaves to the fear of offending these so-called gods (1 Cor 8:5-6).

4:9 now that you know God: Christians have a relationship with God that is like a child to a parent rather than a slave to a master (4:5-7). • why do you want to go back? Paul was perplexed (cp. 4:19-20) that Christians who had this standing would want to return to their old life of slavery. • now that God knows you: God is the agent of salvation and had taken the initiative in laying their souls bare (cp. Ps 139:1-6, 23-24; Luke 2:34-35; Heb 4:12) and forgiving them freely. • By turning to circumcision, the Galatians would be returning to the same useless spiritual principles of this world that they had known under paganism. In both cases, one must work to satisfy an unyielding master.

4:10-11 Circumcision was not the Galatians' only attempt to follow the law; it was one example of a whole way of thinking. They had also begun celebrating the Jewish festivals, thinking that it would make them more acceptable to God. To Paul, it was another indication that they did not understand, or had turned their backs on, the Good News of God's grace through Christ.

4:11 I fear for you: The Galatians were in danger of turning away from Christ by relying upon the law. If they did, Paul's hard work would have been for nothing. The Good News would have done them no good (cp. Heb 6:4-6; 2 Pet 2:20-22). See Acts 13:44-14:24 for a description of Paul's work for the sake of the Christians in that region.

4:12-20 Turning aside from scriptural arguments, Paul appeals personally to the Galatians by reminding them of their close relationship with him.

4:12 brothers and sisters: Literally brothers; also in 4:28, 31. • live as I do:

You did not mistreat me when I first preached to you. ¹³Surely you remember that I was sick when I first brought you the Good News. ¹⁴But even though my condition tempted you to reject me, you did not despise me or turn me away. No, you took me in and cared for me as though I were an angel from God or even Christ Jesus himself. ¹⁵Where is that joyful and grateful spirit you felt then? I am sure you would have taken out your own eyes and given them to me if it had been possible. ¹⁶Have I now become your enemy because I am telling you the truth?

¹⁷Those false teachers are so eager to win your favor, but their intentions are not good. They are trying to shut you off from me so that you will pay attention only to them. ¹⁸If someone is eager to do good things for you, that's all right; but let them do it all the time, not just when I'm with you.

¹⁹Oh, my dear children! I feel as if I'm going through labor pains for you again, and they will continue until Christ is fully developed in your lives. ²⁰I wish I were with you right now so I could change my tone. But at this distance I don't know how else to help you.

Hagar and Sarah, Slaves and Free

²¹Tell me, you who want to live under the law, do you know what the law actually says? ²²The Scriptures say that Abraham had two sons, one from his slave wife and one from his freeborn wife. ²³The son of the slave wife was born in a human attempt to bring about the fulfillment of God's promise. But the son of the freeborn wife was born as God's own fulfillment of his promise.

²⁴These two women serve as an illustration of God's two covenants. The first Paul, the scrupulous Jew, abandoned his own efforts at righteousness and received the free grace of God in Christ. Now he calls these Gentiles to adopt his position rather than take on the practices he had abandoned. Paul's exhortations throughout the rest of the letter (4:12-6:10) grow out of this single command. • You did not mistreat me: Likewise, the Galatians should not mistreat Paul now, but should continue in their warm acceptance of his ministry and message.

4:13-14 I was sick: Paul might have had a chronic physical ailment, but it is not certain what it was (cp. 2 Cor 12:7). Paul's condition was serious and apparently caused difficulty or even offense to the new church in Galatia. Physical trouble was often regarded by both Jews and Gentiles as a sign of God's judgment (cp. John 9:1-2; Acts 28:4). The Galatians saw past Paul's outward condition and received him as God's messenger (literally angel; Greek angelos, "angel, messenger"). • or even Christ Jesus himself: Cp. Luke 10:16.

4:15 The Galatians had been joyful and grateful in response to Paul's preaching of the Good News. • your own eyes: Some conclude from this phrase that Paul's eyes were diseased, but Paul might have been using eyes as a word-picture of a precious asset (cp. Deut 32:10; Ps 17:8; Matt 18:9). In their gratitude to Paul for the message of Good News, the Galatians would have . . . given him their most valuable possession.

4:16 The contrast couldn't be greater between the Galatians' acceptance of Paul and his message at the beginning of their Christian life, and their current suspicion or even rejection of him.

4:17 are so eager: The Greek word can have the positive meaning of zeal and eagerness or the negative meaning of jealousy and envy. The same word is also translated will pay attention and "is eager" (4:18). • They are trying to shut you off from me: Perhaps the Judaizers were so eager because they envied the Galatians' devotion to Paul and wanted it for themselves (cp. 2 Corinthians; see also Luke 11:46-52). Another possibility is that the Judaizers wanted the Galatians to become dependent on them as interpreters of the law.

4:18 Paul's statement might mean that it was fine for people to seek the Galatians' loyalty, but those other teachers were not in fact eager to do good things for them. Alternatively, this verse could be translated It is good to be always sought eagerly for good things, and not just when I'm with you. In this case it would mean that it was good for the Galatians to continue eagerly embracing Paul and his message and not change their attitude toward him in his absence.

4:19 The Galatians were Paul's spiritual children (cp. 1 Cor 4:14-15; Phlm 1:10). The process of bringing them to Christ had been like going through labor pains, a hard labor with a definite and joyful conclusion. Now Paul felt that it wasn't finished after all. • until Christ is fully developed in your lives: Paul uses wordplay, switching the metaphor so that the Galatians would give birth to Christ's image if they continued in the faith that Paul delivered to them. However, if they took up the law, they would produce a stillbirth. Paul must continue his hard work as a midwife in order to prevent this from happening.

4:20 Had Paul been personally present, he would have been able to "read" his hearers and thus shape his appeal to their exact spiritual and emotional condition. From afar, he wasn't sure if the tone he was using would be effective.

4:21-31 Paul now returns to arguing from Scripture, using the contrast between Hagar and Sarah and between their children. Paul argues for a similar contrast between those who are slaves under the law and those who are free in Christ. • Paul's argument uses the allegorical techniques of rabbinic Judaism (see note on 4:24). Having been trained as a rabbi (Acts 22:3), Paul could out-argue the Judaizers using their own methods.

4:21 do you know what the law actually says? They were trying to achieve righteousness by the law, but they did not truly understand its meaning (cp. Luke 24:25-27; 1 Tim 1:7).

4:22-23 The son of the slave-wife was Ishmael, born to Sarah's servant Hagar (see Gen 16:15). Sarah gave Hagar to Abraham in a human attempt to obtain the heir (see Gen 16:1-4) that God had promised (see Gen 15:1-6). Sarah's son, Isaac, was the son of the freeborn wife (see Gen 21:2-3); he was miraculously conceived as God's own fulfillment of his promise (see Gen 17:15-21).

4:24-25 Paul connects Abraham's human attempt to fulfill God's promises (4:23) with the human attempt in Galatia and elsewhere to attain salvation by keeping the law. Hagar's status as a slave-wife corresponds with Israel's enslaved status under the law. This status contrasts with the status of those who have faith in Christ (4:26-27).

4:24 serve as an illustration (literally are being allegorized): In allegorical woman, Hagar, represents Mount Sinai where people received the law that enslaved them. ²⁵And now Jerusalem is just like Mount Sinai in Arabia, because she and her children live in slavery to the law. ²⁶But the other woman, Sarah, represents the heavenly Jerusalem. She is the free woman, and she is our mother. ²⁷As Isaiah said,

"Rejoice, O childless woman, you who have never given birth!
Break into a joyful shout, you who have never been in labor!
For the desolate woman now has more children than the woman who lives with her husband!"

²⁸And you, dear brothers and sisters, are children of the promise, just like Isaac. ²⁹But you are now being persecuted by those who want you to keep the law, just as Ishmael, the child born by human effort, persecuted Isaac, the child born by the power of the Spirit.

³⁰But what do the Scriptures say about that? "Get rid of the slave and her son, for the son of the slave woman will not share the inheritance with the free woman's son."

³¹So, dear brothers and sisters, we are not children of the slave woman; we are children of the free woman.

Freedom in Christ

5 So Christ has truly set us free. Now make sure that you stay free, and don't get tied up again in slavery to the law.

Implications of Justification by Faith (5:2-12)

Gaining God's Favor

²Listen! I, Paul, tell you this: If you are counting on circumcision to make you right with God, then Christ will be of no benefit to you.

³I'll say it again. If you are trying to find writing, every character and event is symbolic of a deeper meaning. Allegorical interpretations often ignore the historical meaning of the text and invent fanciful meanings. Here, by contrast, Paul understood the story correctly in its historical context and recognized the story as history. But he interpreted the characters of the historical story as symbolizing the current situation. Paul's opponents were apparently also using allegorical methods of interpretation, so Paul refuted faulty allegory with true allegory (cp. 1 Cor 9:22). • God's two covenants: The old covenant was formed through Moses; the new covenant came through Jesus Christ. • Hagar represents Mount Sinai: Just as Hagar was a slave-wife who represents human effort, Mount Sinai brought slavery to following the law.

4:25 And now Jerusalem is just like Mount Sinai in Arabia: Literally And Hagar, which is Mount Sinai in Arabia, is now like Jerusalem; other manuscripts read And Mount Sinai in Arabia is now like Jerusalem. • Both Hagar and Mount Sinai were symbols of Jerusalem, which stood for Judaism in Paul's day. Judaism continued to trust in the law and in physical descent from Abraham for their status before God (cp. John 8:31-59); they rejected Christ and continued to live in slavery to the law (3:23-24; 4:1-3). • Mount Sinai in Arabia: The traditional location for Mount Sinai is in the Sinai Peninsula in Egypt. However, some have suggested that in Arabia means that Mount Sinai was in Midian, where Moses once lived (see Exod 3:1; map, p. 122).

4:26 Just as Hagar represents slavery to human effort based on Mount Sinai

(4:24-25), Sarah represents freedom in the heavenly Jerusalem, the ideal city of God. Abraham's true children by faith (3:29) now live in the reality of God's reign in Christ. • she is our mother: Sarah's child, Isaac, was the freeborn recipient of all of God's promises apart from the law. Similarly, Jews and Gentiles who live by faith in Christ are Sarah's true children—they receive God's promises to Abraham freely apart from the law (3:26-29; 4:4-7).

4:27 The quoted passage, Isa 54:1, promised Israel that they would be fruitful after the Exile. Because those who have faith in Christ are Sarah's children (4:26), they fulfill the promise that Sarah (the childless woman) would be more abundantly fruitful than the slave-wife Hagar. To the Judaizers, those who don't follow the law may have been considered "barren," but through faith they are abundantly fruitful as the bride of Christ (2 Cor 11:2; Eph 5:31-33).

4:28-31 Paul applies the allegory of Hagar and Sarah (4:21-27) to the situation in Galatia. Isaac represents those who are born through God's promise (3:8) by the power of the Spirit (3:2-5; cp. Eph 1:13-14) and who trust in God for salvation through Christ by faith alone. Ishmael represents those who believe that human effort by keeping the law will make them acceptable to God (3:10-11). This identification would have been shocking to the Judaizers, who thought of themselves as the legitimate children of Abraham because of their insistence on law-keeping.

4:29 Ishmael persecuted Isaac, the child of the promise, at Isaac's weaning ceremony (see Gen 21:9). Similarly, in Galatia, those who want you to keep the law were persecuting those who trusted in God's promise, the message of God's grace through faith in Christ alone (cp. Acts 13:50-51; 14:1-7).

4:30-31 Sarah's demand regarding Ishmael, quoted from Gen 21:10, becomes a principle (see Gen 21:12) for dealing with the current son of the slave woman—anyone who refuses to abandon slavery to the law. God does not allow those who seek righteousness through human effort to share in his inheritance (see Rom 9:30-33). Those who come to God through Christ alone, by faith and not by keeping the law, are children of the free woman who inherit God's blessings.

5:1 Paul succinctly summarizes his message to the Galatians, decrying their foolish behavior and offering a positive alternative—freedom. • So Christ has truly set us free: Christians are free to walk by faith in Christ alone (cp. Rom 8). • don't get tied up (literally don't take on a yoke): In Judaism, it was a duty and an honor to "take the yoke of the law." God's children in Christ are not called to bear this heavy burden (see Luke 11:46; Acts 15:10); instead, they enjoy Christ's yoke of freedom (Matt 11:28-30).

5:2-6 The Judaizers taught that keeping the law would earn God's favor (cp. Acts 15:1), but that path actually leads to alienation from God. Real righteousness comes to those who live in Christ by the power of the Spirit.

5:2 Paul reminded the Galatians of who was talking to them: the apostle of Christ who represented the Lord to the Gentiles and who had first proclaimed the Good News to them.

favor with God by being circumcised, you must obey every regulation in the whole law of Moses. ⁴For if you are trying to make yourselves right with God by keeping the law, you have been cut off from Christ! You have fallen away from God's grace.

⁵But we who live by the Spirit eagerly wait to receive by faith the righteousness God has promised to us. ⁶For when we place our faith in Christ Jesus, there is no benefit in being circumcised or being uncircumcised. What is important is faith expressing itself in love.

A Law-Oriented Gospel Is False

⁷You were running the race so well. Who has held you back from following the truth? ⁸It certainly isn't God, for he is the one who called you to freedom. ⁹This false teaching is like a little ^byeast that spreads through the whole batch of dough! ¹⁰I am trusting the Lord to keep you from believing false teachings. God will judge that person, whoever he is, who has been confusing you.

¹¹Dear brothers and sisters, if I were still preaching that you must be circumcised—as some say I do—why am I still being persecuted? If I were no longer preaching salvation through the cross of Christ, no one would be ^coffended. ¹²I just wish that those troublemakers who want to mutilate you by circumcision would mutilate themselves.

4. LIFE BY THE SPIRIT (5:13–6:10)

Life in the Spirit (5:13-26)

Freedom and Love

¹³For you have been called to live in ^dfreedom, my brothers and sisters. But don't use your ^dfreedom to satisfy your sinful nature. Instead, use your freedom to serve one another in love. ¹⁴For the whole ^elaw can be summed up in this one ^fcommand: "Love your neighbor as yourself." ¹⁵But if you are always biting and devouring one another, watch out! Beware of destroying one another.

5:3 Those who seek righteousness through the law must obey every regulation of it (see 2:15-16; cp. Jas 2:10).

5:4 People who think circumcision is necessary for salvation are putting faith in the law and in themselves, not in Christ. Such people are cut off from Christ, outside of his grace (cp. Rom 5:2); they are under the judgment of the law. They have fallen away from the benefits of God's grace (cp. 1:6; 1 Pet 5:12).

5:5 The alternative to living by faith in the law is to live by complete reliance on the Spirit to make us pleasing to God. • eagerly wait to receive by faith the righteousness God has promised to us (or eagerly await by faith the hope that righteousness gives us): We receive God's righteousness at our salvation (Rom 5:9-11; 10:10), in an ongoing way through the Spirit's sanctification (Rom 8:1-14), and fully at the resurrection when Christ returns (Rom 8:18-30). God's sole power provides righteousness and fulfills his promise (3:14, 22).

5:6 Faith in Christ Jesus provides access to all of God's favor and grace, so no further benefit is available through human effort. Faith is expressed by exercising love toward others (cp. Rom 13:10; 14:17-19; 2 Cor 8:8-13).

5:7 The life of faith is like running a race (cp. 1 Cor 9:24-27; Phil 3:13-14; 2 Tim 4:7-8). The law became a hindrance to the Galatians in this race rather than a help (cp. Luke 11:52).

5:8 The Galatians thought that their commitment to the law would please God, but God wasn't calling them to this slavery. God called them to freedom.

5:9 This verse was apparently a well-known adage (literally A little yeast makes the whole loaf rise; cp. Matt 13:33; 16:6, 11-12; 1 Cor 5:6-7). A little reliance on the law for acceptance by God soon results in forgetting that Christ saves by his work alone.

5:10 that person, whoever he is: Perhaps Paul did not know who the false teachers were, or perhaps he meant that their credentials were unimportant (cp. 2:6). • confusing you: The false teaching distorted the Good News, so Paul wrote to clear up their thinking.

5:11 Dear brothers and sisters: Literally Brothers; similarly in 5:13. • if I were still preaching: This statement probably refers to Paul's preaching as an ardent zealot of Judaism before his conversion to Christ (1:13-14; Acts 7:58-8:3). As a Christian, Paul had never preached that Gentiles must be circumcised. • why am I still being persecuted? If Paul had been preaching a law-based religion, the Jewish zealots who persecuted him wherever he went would not have done so. The zealots found scandalous the complete rejection of the necessity of their laws (cp. Rom 9:33; 1 Cor 1:23).

5:12 mutilate themselves (or castrate themselves, or cut themselves off from you; literally cut themselves off; cp. Phil 3:2): Paul uses biting sarcasm and wordplay with multiple levels of meaning: (1) Paul might be alluding to pagan priests in the province of Galatia who castrated themselves in devotion to pagan gods. An insistence on circumcision for Christians is essentially no different. It involved cutting the flesh to become acceptable to God by physical deeds rather than by faith in Christ. (2) Depending on circumcision mutilated the false teachers' standing before God, so they might as well mutilate themselves physically. (3) In the old covenant, emasculated men were not allowed to enter the congregation (Deut 23:1); similarly, those who rely on circumcision have no place in the new covenant community. Paul probably wished that the Judaizers would cut themselves off by removing themselves from the community.

5:13–6:10 Having shown that justification comes by faith alone, Paul now addresses the question, "If we don't keep the law, then what will guide our conduct?" His answer is that righteousness comes from the Spirit. The Judaizers probably warned that Paul's message of freedom (5:1) would put believers on a slippery slope to moral ruin. Paul argues that freedom is not a license to sin, because love guides Christians. Liberty should be used to serve one another in love (cp. 2:20; 2 Cor 5:14-15).

5:14 the whole law can be summed up (or the whole law is fulfilled): Christ's followers fulfill the law by exercising love toward every neighbor (Lev 19:18; see Matt 7:12; Luke 6:27-36; 10:25-37; John 13:34-35; 15:9-17; Rom 13:8-10).

5:15 The opposite of love is biting and devouring one another (cp. Ps 35:25; Prov 30:14; Jer 8:17). People who do not love are characterized by strife and bitterness. They will end up destroying one another, but love gives life to others (John 3:16; 15:12-13).

The Spirit's Power

¹⁶So I say, let the Holy Spirit guide your lives. Then you won't be doing what your sinful nature craves. ¹⁷The sinful nature wants to do evil, which is just the opposite of what the Spirit wants. And the Spirit gives us desires that are the opposite of what the sinful nature desires. These two forces are constantly fighting each other, so you are not free to carry out your good intentions. ¹⁸But when you are directed by the Spirit, you are not under obligation to the ^hlaw of Moses.

Results of the Sinful Nature

¹⁹When you follow the desires of your ^hsinful nature, the results are very clear: sexual immorality, impurity, lustful pleasures, ²⁰idolatry, sorcery, hostility, quarreling, jealousy, outbursts of anger, selfish ambition, dissension, division, ²¹envy, drunkenness, wild parties, and other sins like these. Let me tell you again, as I have before, that anyone living that sort of life will not inherit the Kingdom of God.

Fruit of the Spirit

²²But the Holy Spirit produces this kind of fruit in our lives: ⁱlove, joy, ^kpeace, patience, kindness, ^agoodness, faithfulness, ²³gentleness, and self-control. There is no ^hlaw against these things!

Follow the Spirit's Leading

²⁴Those who belong to Christ Jesus have nailed the passions and desires of their

5:16-26 A law-free faith will not lead to moral ruin because having the Holy Spirit to guide people's lives changes their hearts to follow the will of God and not sin (cp. Jer 31:33; Heb 8:10).

5:17 We cannot simply decide to keep the law and not sin: A war rages between God's Spirit and our sinful nature (see Rom 7:14-25; 1 Pet 2:11; cp. Gen 4:7). The answer is not human effort at law-keeping, but living by God's Spirit. When we are resurrected, we will finally be freed from sin (see Rom 8:18-25).

5:18 Those who are directed by the Spirit are under the Spirit's authority and not under obligation to the law. They do not answer to the law but to the Spirit of God. It was not Paul's intent to justify civil disobedience (see Rom 13:1-7; Titus 3:1; cp. 1 Pet 2:13-17). He was addressing the means of obtaining spiritual righteousness before God.

5:19-26 These two lists contrast life dominated by the sinful nature (5:19-21) with life led by the Spirit (5:22-26). Living by the Spirit means observing a higher ethical standard than can be achieved under the law.

5:19 When you follow . . . the results are (literally The works of the flesh are): An emphasis on law-keeping and sinful actions both flow from trying to live apart from the power of God's Spirit.
• very clear: Basic understanding of right and wrong is universal (cp. Rom 1:32; 2:14-15; 1 Cor 5:1), though some people suppress this awareness (Rom 1:18-21).
• The list begins with sexual immorality; in contrast, the list of Christian virtues begins with love (5:22). All kinds of sexual misconduct was common (cp. Rom 1:24-27; 1 Cor 5:1; 6:15-18; 2 Cor 12:21; 2 Pet 3:10, 18). It was connected in paganism with fertility worship (cp. Rev 2:14, 20).
• Moral impunity removes holiness and makes fellowship with a holy God impossible (see Matt 23:27; Rom 6:19; 2 Cor 12:21; Eph 5:3; Col 3:5; 1 Thes 4:7).

5:20 Idolatry, the worship of false gods, was common in Galatia and was often accompanied by sorcery (see Acts 19:19; cp. 1 Sam 15:23; Rev 9:21; 18:23; 21:8; 22:15) and sexual immorality (cp. 1 Cor 6:9, 15-20). • Hostility arises from angry pride rather than the Spirit's humility and love (5:22-23). • Quarreling refers not to standing up for what is right, but to stirring up discord and looking for a fight (1 Cor 3:3; 2 Cor 12:20; 1 Tim 6:4; Titus 3:9). Those who are guided by the Holy Spirit seek to speak the truth in love with a peacemaking attitude (5:22; Eph 4:15; 2 Tim 2:23-26). • Jealousy (Greek zēlos, "zeal") has both a positive sense ("passionate commitment") and, as here, a negative one ("intense desire for another's things"); cp. Jas 3:14-16.
• Outbursts of anger (or fits of rage) contrast with self-control (5:23; see, e.g., Acts 19:28; 2 Cor 12:20; 1 Tim 3:3; Titus 1:7). • Selfish ambition (or Selfishness) is the antithesis of Christian love (cp. Rom 2:8; Phil 2:3; Jas 3:14, 16). • Division (Greek haireseis, "heresies, factions, sects") refers to people using differing beliefs or practices to divide the community (cp. 1 Cor 11:17-19; 2 Pet 2:1-3).

5:21 Drunkenness has no place in the Christian life (see Luke 21:34; 1 Cor 11:20-22; Eph 5:18). • wild parties: Festivals in honor of pagan gods were often accompanied by drunken orgies (cp. 1 Pet 4:3). • other sins like these: This list is only representative of the vices of the sinful nature (cp. Mark 7:20-23; Rom 1:29-31; 1 Cor 6:9-10; Eph 5:3-5; Col 3:5-8; 1 Tim 1:9-10; 2 Tim 3:2-5; Jas 3:13-18; Rev 21:8). People living that sort of life are not living by the Spirit, and thereby demonstrate no relationship with God by faith. Such people will not inherit the Kingdom of God: They are still slaves of their sinful nature (4:8-9, 22-25; cp. Rom 6:16-22; 1 Cor 6:9-10) and are not under God's rule.

5:22 Unlike following the sinful nature (5:19-21), letting the Holy Spirit guide

(5:16) produces a life pleasing to God, which human effort and the law cannot do (cp. John 15:1-8). • These virtues directly address the factions in the church of Galatia. • love: The greatest Christian virtue encompasses all the others (1 Cor 13:4-7). Only the Spirit of God can produce in us love for those who hate us (Matt 5:43-48; Luke 6:35-36). • Joy produced by the Spirit does not depend on circumstances (Rom 15:13; 2 Cor 6:10; 8:2; 1 Thes 1:6). • Peace with God creates internal well-being (Rom 5:1; Eph 2:15; Phil 4:6-7; Col 1:20) that spills into our relationships with others so that we become peacemakers (Matt 5:9; Rom 8:6; 12:18; 14:17-19; 2 Cor 13:11; Eph 4:3; 6:15). • Patience (or tolerance, or long-suffering) gives us forbearance toward other people and endurance under unfavorable circumstances (Eph 4:2; 2 Tim 4:2; Jas 5:10-11). God is patient with us (Exod 34:6; Ps 103:8; Rom 2:4; 9:22; 1 Tim 1:16; 2 Pet 3:15) and promises his presence with those who are patient with others (Isa 57:15). • Kindness connotes generosity, a giving spirit that reflects how God treats us (Rom 2:4; 11:22; Titus 3:4-6). • goodness: Cp. Rom 15:14; Eph 5:9; 2 Thes 1:11.
• Faithfulness (or faith) means exercising good faith and fidelity in our relationships, just as God does with us (1 Cor 1:9; 10:13; 2 Thes 3:3).

5:23 Gentleness is antithetical to the vices of 5:20 and requires strength (see Prov 15:1, 4; Matt 11:28-29; Eph 4:2). • self-control: The Holy Spirit does not give moral license but empowers people to avoid sin (cp. 5:13; Rom 6:14-18; 1 Thes 4:3-7; 1 Pet 2:16; see also Acts 24:25; Titus 1:8). • There is no law against these things! Paul is stating the obvious, but also making the point that those who are virtuous by the Spirit do not need law to govern them.

5:24 Those who have faith in Christ are crucified with him (cp. 2:19-20; Rom 6) and become new people (Rom 6:1-2; sinful nature to his cross and crucified them there. ²⁵Since we are living by the Spirit, let us follow the Spirit's leading in every part of our lives. ²⁶Let us not become conceited, or provoke one another, or be jealous of one another.

Practical Exhortations (6:1-10)
Dealing with Offenders

6 Dear brothers and sisters, if another believer is overcome by some sin, you who are godly should gently and humbly help that person back onto the right path. And be careful not to fall into the same temptation yourself. ²Share each other's burdens, and in this way obey the law of Christ. ³If you think you are too important to help someone, you are only fooling yourself. You are not that important.

Work, Responsibility, and Rewards

⁴Pay careful attention to your own work, for then you will get the satisfaction of a job well done, and you won't need to compare yourself to anyone else. ⁵For we are each responsible for our own conduct.

⁶Those who are taught the word of God should provide for their teachers, sharing all good things with them.

Doing Good: Planting and Harvesting

⁷Don't be misled—you cannot mock the justice of God. You will always harvest what you plant. ⁸Those who live only to satisfy their own sinful nature will harvest decay and death from that sinful nature. But those who live to please the Spirit will harvest everlasting life from the Spirit. ⁹So let's not get tired of doing what is good. At just the right time we will reap a harvest of blessing if we don't give up. ¹⁰Therefore, whenever we have the opportunity, we should do good to everyone—especially to those in the family of faith.

Final Appeal to the Cross of Christ

¹¹NOTICE WHAT LARGE LETTERS I USE AS I WRITE THESE CLOSING WORDS IN MY OWN HANDWRITING.

¹²Those who are trying to force you to be circumcised want to look good to others. They don't want to be persecuted for teaching that the cross of Christ alone can save. ¹³And even those who advocate circumcision don't keep the whole law themselves. They only want you to be circumcised so they can boast about it and claim you as their disciples.

¹⁴As for me, may I never boast about anything except the cross of our Lord Jesus • passions and desires: As in 5:19-21.

5:25 Christians do not live by the law but follow the Spirit's leading.

5:26 The Galatian church was apparently having trouble with factions (see also note on 5:20; cp. 1 Cor 3) instead of following the Spirit's leading.

6:1-10 Living by the Spirit (5:13-6:10) results in doing good (6:1-5) and reaping rewards from one's work (6:6-10).

6:1-5 Paul outlines how to treat other Christians with love when they sin.

6:1 Dear brothers and sisters, if another believer: Literally Brothers, if a man.

• Perhaps some of the Galatians were proud of their obedience to the law or their spiritual freedom and willpower. But those who are truly godly (literally spiritual) are not proud of their accomplishments but humbly help others. • be careful: We are all susceptible to the same temptation to sin (Rom 3:9-20).

6:2 Carrying each other's burdens (6:1) fulfills the law of Christ to love one another (5:13-14; see also Lev 19:18; Matt 22:36-40; John 13:34; 15:12; 1 Jn 3:23).

6:3 Those with a proud attitude wrongly assume they are too important to help the weak (see note on 6:1).

6:4 Instead of regarding ourselves as better than others, we should examine our own work and ensure that we obey Christ in everything (cp. 1 Cor 3:12-15).

6:5 If believers carry their own load (6:4), they will have no occasion to treat a brother or sister with contempt (6:3).

6:6-10 In financially supporting those who teach them God's message (6:6), believers harvest a spiritual crop.

6:6 Supporting Christian teachers applies 5:13 and 6:2 (cp. 1 Tim 5:17-18).

6:7 you cannot mock the justice of God: God cannot be fooled by spiritual pretenses. All people will harvest the consequences of their actions (what you plant; see also Job 4:8; Ps 126:5; Prov 22:8; Hos 8:7; 10:12-15; Luke 19:21-23; 1 Cor 3:12-15; 9:11; 2 Cor 9:6).

6:8 Living to please the Spirit is only possible in the Spirit's power (3:3; 5:16). Those who trust in human effort and those who think they can do as they wish are in the same position: They live to satisfy their own sinful nature. Such people harvest decay and death. Those who live by the Spirit's power and trust in God will harvest everlasting life.

6:9 Let's not get tired: Either by letting sinful behavior creep in or by grasping for a legal code of conduct rather than being in step with the Spirit (5:25). • At just the right time we will reap: This assurance is a source of strength for Christians to continue doing good work (cp. Rom 8:28). • if we don't give up: God's promises to believers require their steadfast perseverance in faith (see also Luke 18:1; 2 Cor 4:1).

6:10 Therefore: This statement forms an inclusio (bookends) for the section (5:13-6:10) by stating the same theme as 5:13: Freedom in the Spirit compels us to do good to others in love. • Doing good to those in the family of faith demonstrates God's faithfulness to his children: He provides for all their needs.

6:11-18 Paul took up the pen from his amanuensis (secretary) and added a postscript in his OWN HANDWRITING to show that the letter was authentically his and to make a final appeal.

6:12-13 For all of their theological reasoning, the false teachers' motivation was self-serving: They felt pressure from non-Christian Jews and were more concerned with their own reputation than with honoring God.

6:14 In contrast with the false teachers (6:12-13), Paul's motivation was to increase, not his own reputation, but God's glory. Boasting about law-keeping

An enduring question of the Christian faith is, Do Christians need to keep the OT law in order to become mature followers of Christ? Does following God's law provide sanctification?

When the Christians in Galatia had received the Good News of salvation through faith in Christ, they had also received the Holy Spirit as the guarantee of their status as believers. Not only had God given his Spirit to them, but he had also worked miracles among them (3:5). They knew from experience that the Holy Spirit has the power to make them new people, and Paul had taught them to rely on the Spirit to guide them.

Shortly after Paul left Galatia, Jewish-Christian teachers arrived who taught the need to observe God's law, both to be accepted by God and to be sanctified and become mature. They argued that Paul's approach to sanctification by the Spirit would lead to lawlessness and sin.

Paul responded (5:5, 16-26) that, just as God accounts us as righteous by faith, so also he makes us righteous by faith, through the working of the Spirit. Those who rely on the Spirit and follow his leading will not sin—God's Spirit will never lead people to sin.

The real problem is not a lack of understanding regarding right and wrong. Our God-given conscience tells us when we're doing wrong, and God's law makes the requirements of his righteousness even clearer (Rom 7:7-12). The real problem is that, by nature, our hearts are hard and sinful, and we lack the wisdom to know the right thing to do in a given situation. By nature, we are unable to apply God's word in a way that is consistent with faith in his love.

The law cannot ameliorate our condition (see "The Limitations of Law" at Rom 7:1-25, p. 1905). But when the Holy Spirit guides and controls us, he changes our hearts and guides us to do the things that please God (5:22-23; Rom 8:5-14). God's Spirit guides his people to fulfill his law in its true sense and intent. But fulfillment of the law is not the goal or focus—the law is just our guardian (3:24-25). The focus is on trusting God, relying on the Spirit, and loving others. God's Spirit gives us the will and the power to do these things and please God (see also "The Holy Spirit's Work" at 1 Cor 12:1-11, p. 1945).

would detract from recognition of the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ. • In the Greco-Roman world, the cross was a senseless scandal to those who did not believe (5:11; 1 Cor 1:23; cp. John 6:53-61), but it is the basis for a Christian's faith and hope (1 Cor 1:17-18; 15:3; Phil 2:8-11; Col 1:20-22; 2:14-15). • Because of that cross: Or Because of him.

6:15 The Galatians had missed the point of the Good News, that a new creation has come in Christ by the Spirit, not by human effort (cp. 2 Cor 5:16-17).

6:16 This principle is putting trust in Christ for salvation (6:14-15) • they are the new people of God (literally and [or even] upon the Israel of God): The Greek conjunction kai is most often translated "and," but it often means "even." If it means and, then the Israel of God is a separate group from all who live by this principle; if it means even, then they are the same group. The Jewish people still have an identity before God (Rom 9:1-5; 10:1-4; 11:1-32). Gentiles who believe have been grafted in, and Jews who disbelieve have been pruned out of the spiritual Israel (Rom 11:17-24; cp. Phil 3:2-3; Col 2:11-12). Paul thus considers all Christians to be the true Israel (see Rom 2:28-29; 9:6-8; cp. Gal 4:21-31). The phrase the Israel of God does not appear elsewhere in the NT or in other literature; perhaps the false teachers promised this identification to Gentiles who would accept circumcision. If so, then Paul turned their argument on its head: The Gentiles in Galatia didn't need circumcision, for they were already God's Israel—his true people—through faith in Christ.

6:17 don't let anyone trouble me with these things: No one has a right to criticize Paul or his message because of his proven status as Christ's servant.

• Paul's scars (Greek stigmata) probably resulted from the severe persecution he had endured as a servant of Christ (see Acts 14:19; 2 Cor 6:4-10; 11:21-33). In contrast with the physical mark of circumcision that the false teachers in Galatia wanted to impose on Gentile Christians, Paul's scars of suffering were proof that he was Christ's servant (cp. Exod 21:6).

6:18 Dear brothers and sisters: Literally Brothers. • Paul prayed at the end as at the beginning (1:3-4). More than law, the Galatians needed the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ to be with their spirit.

PAUL'S LETTER TO THE Ephesians

This beautiful letter, the favorite of many, is one of the gems of the NT. Paul is taken up with the overwhelming goodness that God in Christ has showered on believers, and with his amazing plan to unite Gentiles with Jews in a new community—the church, the body of Christ. Here we have one of the finest descriptions of the Christian life in the entire NT. Though written from prison, this letter is full of joy, praise, and thanksgiving. It is a fitting reply to the wonder of God's amazing grace in Christ, poured out in abundance on those chosen to know his love—Gentiles as well as Jews.

SETTING

Paul's third missionary journey (AD 53–57) centered on Ephesus, capital and port city of the Roman province of Asia on the western coast of what we now call Turkey. In Paul's time, Ephesus was the fourth-largest city in the Roman empire, with a population of perhaps 500,000. Many people visited the city to see the famous temple of Artemis.

After an initial brief visit (see Acts 18:19–21), Paul returned to spend between two and three years in this large and flourishing city (see Acts 19:1–20:1). It was a difficult time for him: He encountered much opposition and suffered much abuse (see Acts 19:21–41; 1 Cor 15:32; 2 Cor 1:8–9; 11:23–27). But during this time, people all over the province heard the Good News of Christ for the first time, and many small groups of believers sprang up, meeting together in homes, in villages and towns across the province (the seven churches addressed by Revelation probably originated during this time). Some of these churches (at Colosse, for example) were begun by Paul's converts, and had no firsthand acquaintance with Paul.

It is not clear how accurate their understanding of the gospel was, but we know from Paul's letter to the Colossians that some of them had encountered wrong teaching and distorted perceptions. In Ephesians, Paul is concerned with a perception that Gentile

◀ The Setting of Ephesians. Paul was in prison when he wrote his letter to the Ephesians. It is unclear where he was—either in ROME, as traditionally thought, or perhaps in EPHESUS. It is also unclear exactly who were the recipients of the letter. It might have been intended for the Christians in Ephesus, or as an encyclical for all the churches in the province of Asia, including Ephesus.

Christians were inferior to or distinct from Jewish Christians, and not fully part of God's "new Israel." What gave rise to this misunderstanding is not clear—discrimination by Jewish Christians? Gentile aversion to Jewish Christians?—but it reflects traditional ethnic tensions between Jews and Gentiles throughout the Roman world. Paul was also concerned with a lack of awareness that God's people are to live in a distinctly different way from that of the surrounding world.

As spiritual father of these early converts, and as one commissioned by God to carry the Good News to the Gentiles, Paul was deeply concerned that the Ephesians have a correct understanding of all that God had given them in Christ and of the kind of life God wanted them to live in response. He writes a letter from prison that seems to be intended for several of these churches full of new converts.

Final Greetings

With a heart full of praise for all that God has done, Paul beautifully summarizes the Good News of God's saving grace in Jesus Christ—emphasizing that it is for Gentiles as well as for Jews. He also gives practical instructions on how believers are to live in response, turning away from their former lives to become truly good and like Christ. There are no major, urgent problems addressed in this letter; it is a general summary of Paul's theological and moral teachings.

SUMMARY

This letter summarizes the Good News of God's grace in Jesus Christ, emphasizing that it is for Gentiles as well as Jews (chs 1-3). It then gives specific instructions on how believers should live in response (chs 4-6).

Following a brief introduction (1:1-2), Paul praises God for the amazing grace that believers have received in Christ (1:3-14). In his sovereign love, God has chosen them, forgiven them, brought them into his family, made them his children, and promised them eternal blessings. In giving them his Spirit, he has marked them as his own so that they might praise his grace forever. Paul then prays that God will give them spiritual understanding to grasp the full depth of all that he has done for them (1:15-23). Though fully deserving of God's wrath, they have been saved by God's grace, not by anything they have done, but simply by being joined to Christ (2:1-10). As Gentiles, they were utterly alienated from God and his blessings, but in God's mercy, through the reconciling work of Christ, they have now been made members of God's family, fully equal to Jewish Christians. They are no longer outsiders (2:11-22).

Paul is the one commissioned by God to bring this wonderful Good News to them (3:1-13). His second prayer for them (3:14-21) is that God will give them spiritual power, strengthen them in their faith and love, enable them to understand Christ's saving love fully, and fill them with the life and power of God himself.

In response, they are to live a life of humility, grace, and love—a life worthy of their calling, as they use their God-given gifts to build up the body of Christ (4:1-16). They are to turn from the darkness of their former sinful ways and live an absolutely good life as children of light. Filled with kindness and love in the Holy Spirit, and following the example of Christ, their lives are to please God in all things (4:17-5:20).

All their relationships at home—between husbands and wives, parents and children, masters and slaves—are to be characterized by respect and love, as they live for Christ (5:21-6:9). Finally, they are warned to take on God's armor to protect themselves from the devil (6:10-20). Paul closes with some personal words and a benediction (6:21-24).

AUTHOR

Ephesians is traditionally ascribed to Paul, as are the other prison letters (Philippians, Colossians, and Philemon). However, on the basis of vocabulary, style, form, setting, purpose, and theological emphases, some have thought that Ephesians was written instead by a later disciple of Paul. Others see it as an original letter from Paul that has been reworked by a later editor. However, the letter is not at all incompatible with Paul's thought and style (note the similarities between Ephesians and Colossians), and there is no compelling reason to deny that Paul authored it.

The supposed differences with the undisputed letters of Paul can be explained by taking account of (1) variations in Paul's own vocabulary and style; (2) the different content of this letter (for example, chs 1-3 include extensive sections of blessing, praise, and prayer); (3) developments in Paul's own thinking; (4) Paul's use of secretaries (see Rom 16:22), who may have exercised some degree of freedom in putting his thoughts into their own words; and (5) the nature of Ephesians as a general letter sent to several churches, not just one.

Ephesians is breathtaking in its theological grasp of the scope of God's purposes in Christ for the church. It is a pastorally warm letter and spiritually sensitive in its advice, peaceable in tone and readily overflowing into joyful worship.

RECIPIENTS

Though traditionally understood to have been written to the church at Ephesus, this letter may have been written as a general letter to be circulated to a number of different churches in the Roman province of Asia. This opinion is based on (1) the omission of the introductory words in Ephesus (1:1) in many of the earliest manuscripts, and (2) the lack of personal greetings or references in Ephesians—a surprising omission if the letter was intended for the church in Ephesus, given Paul's extended stay in the city and personal acquaintance with the church there (see Acts 19:10; 20:31).

DATE AND PLACE OF WRITING

Ephesians is one of the prison letters (along with Philippians, Colossians, and Philemon), traditionally understood to have been written from Rome in AD 60-62 or shortly before Paul was executed around AD 64-65. This would place them among the last of Paul's writings. However, they might better be understood as having been written from prison in Ephesus. (In 2 Corinthians, written shortly after Paul left Ephesus, he refers to the strong opposition he encountered in the area, and mentions having been in prison many times; see 2 Cor 11:23-27.) If the prison letters were written from Ephesus, it would place them earlier in Paul's life, around AD 53-56.

MEANING AND MESSAGE

Praise for God's Grace. Perhaps more than any other book in the NT, Ephesians is filled with gratitude for the saving grace God has shown to those who believe in Jesus Christ. Solely by God's grace, believers have been chosen, forgiven, called into his family, made his children, promised his eternal blessings, and given the gift of his Holy Spirit to mark them as belonging to him forever (1:3-14). Salvation can never be viewed as something that is earned; it is a sheer gift (2:8-9). As a result, believers know they are called to praise God forever for his amazing grace (1:6, 12, 14). They can do nothing less, for they owe him everything.

The Condemned Nature of Human Beings. The awareness of grace that pervades the first three chapters of Ephesians is heightened by Paul's contrasting emphasis on sin and God's judgment upon it. What is true of his readers is true of everyone, since by nature all stand under God's judgment (see 2:1-3, 12, one of the strongest passages in the NT on how lost human beings are apart from Christ). Every human being stands guilty and condemned before the eternal judgment of God, who cannot tolerate sin. This concept seems troublingly harsh to modern ways of thinking; behind it stands a much stronger view of human sin and of the utter holiness of God than most Westerners today are used to. Since, apart from Christ, human beings are by nature driven by sin and subject to the devil, evangelism is an urgent issue in the NT (see Mark 16:15-16; cp. Rom 9:1-3; 10:1).

The Unity of the Church. With its emphasis on God's amazing plan to include Gentiles in his family (see 2:11-3:6), Ephesians reminds us that ethnic distinctions mean nothing to God and they should mean nothing to God's people (cp. Gal 3:28). Because God has joined people from all ethnic backgrounds together in his church (see 2:14-17; 3:6), believers should respond by warmly welcoming one another in humility, grace, and love, without consideration of ethnic differences (see 4:1-6; Rom 15:5-7). In the church, one's identity is defined only by one's faith in Christ.

Living Like Christ. In chs 4-6 (and Col 3-4), Paul gives us a beautiful picture of the Christian life as it ought to be lived. Believers are to turn away from the darkness of their former lives and, filled with the Holy Spirit, to live as new people of light, seeking only what is "good and right and true" (5:9). They are to express gentleness, integrity, respect, kindness, and love to others. In relation to God, their lives are to be filled with purity, praise, and thanksgiving (see 4:17-5:20). Believers are to become like Christ and to reflect him in all they do and say (see 4:13, 15; Rom 8:29). In Christ, they have been created to be like God (see 4:24; 5:1-2).

Respect and Love at Home. In 5:21-6:9 (and Col 3:18-4:1), Paul emphasizes the importance of showing respect and love to those with whom one lives. On one hand, wives are to respect their husbands, children are to honor their parents, and slaves are to obey their masters. On the other hand, husbands are to love their wives, parents are to discipline their children gently, and masters are to be gracious to their slaves. The traditional cultural relationships are maintained and honored, while believers' attitudes are to be those of Christ.

Ephesians is, within the New Testament, the magna carta of the one, holy, apostolic, and catholic church.

Spiritual War. Eph 6:10-20 gives the fullest NT account of how believers are to protect themselves in their war against the devil. In this spiritual battle, believers cannot rely on their own resources, but must use the weapons the Lord supplies. Significantly, all of the weapons described—except the short-bladed sword—are defensive weapons. There is no picture here of Christians attacking the devil. Though the devil's opposition is to be taken seriously, Paul's view of the Christian life does not center on spiritual warfare in an aggressive or offensive sense.

⁹God has now revealed to us his mysterious will regarding Christ—which is to fulfill his own good plan. ¹⁰And this is the ^hplan: At the right time he will bring everything together under the authority of Christ—everything in heaven and on earth. ¹¹Furthermore, because we are united with Christ, we have received an inheritance from God, for he ⁱchose us in advance, and

1:1-2 Paul follows the normal pattern of ancient Greek letters: He begins with a few words about himself followed by greetings. He expands this pattern in a Christian way by referring to his divine calling as an apostle, by describing his recipients as God's holy people and as faithful followers of Christ, and by his invocation of grace and peace.

1:1 The frequent emphasis on the will of God (see 1:5, 9, 11; 5:17; 6:6) underscores God's sovereignty in fulfilling his plan. • God's holy people: Literally the holy ones, who are dedicated to God (see also 1:15, 18; 2:19; 3:8, 18; 4:12; 5:3; 6:18). • The most ancient manuscripts do not include in Ephesus, and there are no personal greetings in this letter. Many scholars believe that the letter was originally sent to be circulated to a number of churches in the area rather than to the church in Ephesus alone.

1:2 Paul usually invokes God's grace and peace on those to whom he is writing. Grace is undeserved blessing that comes from God's kindness; peace is a sense of well-being and contentedness rooted in the Good News and brought about by the Holy Spirit (see Gal 5:22). Both are gifts from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ (see Rom 5:1-2).

1:3-3:21 Ephesians is divided into two sections: Chapters 1-3 praise God for his amazing grace, and chs 4-6 instruct believers on how to live in grateful response.

1:3-14 Paul praises God for all the spiritual blessings he has graciously provided through Jesus Christ, for Gentiles as well as for Jews. • This section is a single, complex sentence in Greek—one of the longest in Paul's letters, with long sentences being typical of Paul's writing (also in 1:15-23; 2:1-7, 14-16; 3:1-7, 8-12, 14-19; Col 1:3-8, 9-20, 21-23, 24-29; 2:1-3, 8-15). The interwoven nature of these sentences reflects the interconnectedness of their ideas.

1:3 Paul describes every spiritual blessing in the heavenly realms in 1:4-8, 13-14. Paul's focus is not on physical blessings, but on what God has done through Christ to bring people into a saving relationship with himself.

1:4 God's people are holy and without fault in his eyes because they trust in Christ's atoning sacrifice for their sins (see 1:7; 5:25-27; Col 1:22; Titus 3:5-7; Jude 1:24).

1:5 God decided in advance to adopt us into his own family: By his sovereign initiative, God embraces and blesses as his children those who trust in Christ. They become heirs to all the promises God has made to his people (see 1:11, 14; 2:19; Rom 8:15-17, 29-30; Gal 4:5).

1:6 Believers praise God, who has richly blessed them with his forgiving grace. • on us who belong to his dear Son: Literally on us in the beloved. The beloved is a Messianic title for Jesus; see Matt 3:17; 17:5; Col 1:13.

1:7 he purchased our freedom with the blood of his Son: Believers, who were once prisoners of sin, are free from God's judgment and from bondage to sin because of Christ's sacrificial death (see 1:14; 4:30; Rom 3:24; 1 Cor 6:20; Col 1:14; cp. Matt 26:28; Mark 10:45; Heb 9:11-12, 26; 1 Pet 1:18-19).

1:8-10 Wisdom and understanding come from the revelation of God's mysterious will regarding Christ. In Paul's writings, mysterious will (traditionally mystery) often refers to a divine truth formerly hidden but now revealed in the Good News (see 3:9). Here it refers to how God will bring everything together under the authority of Christ, so that he may be universally recognized and respected as Lord (see Phil 2:9-11; Col 1:16-20, 26-27; 2:2, 19; 4:3). Ephesians focuses specifically on the inclusion of Gentiles as well as Jews in God's redeemed people (see 3:3-6; 6:19; cp. Rom 16:25-26).

1:11 we have received an inheritance from God (or we have become God's inheritance): Paul often talks about salvation as an inheritance, something he makes everything work out according to his plan.

¹²God's purpose was that we Jews who were the first to trust in Christ would bring praise and glory to God. ¹³And now you Gentiles have also heard the truth, the ¹⁴Good News that God ¹⁵saves you. And when you believed in Christ, he ¹⁶identified you as his own by giving you the Holy Spirit, whom he promised long ago. ¹⁷The Spirit is God's ¹⁸guarantee that he will give us the inheritance he promised and that he has ¹⁹purchased us to be his own people. He did this so we would praise and glorify him.

Paul's Prayer for Spiritual Wisdom

¹⁵Ever since I first heard of your strong faith in the Lord Jesus and your love for God's people everywhere, ¹⁶I have not stopped thanking God for you. I pray for you constantly, ¹⁷asking God, the glorious Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, to give you spiritual wisdom and ¹⁸insight so that you might grow in your knowledge of God. ¹⁹I pray that your hearts will be flooded with light so that you can understand the confident ²⁰hope he has given to those he ²¹called—his holy people who are his rich and glorious inheritance.

¹⁹I also pray that you will understand the incredible greatness of God's power for us who believe him. This is the same mighty power ²⁰that raised Christ from the dead and seated him in the place of honor at God's right hand in the heavenly realms. ²¹Now he is far above any ruler or authority or power or leader or anything else—not only in this world but also in the world to come. ²²God has put all things under the authority of Christ and has made him head over all things for the benefit of the church. ²³And the church is his body; it is made full and complete by Christ, who fills all things everywhere with himself.

Made Alive with Christ

2 Once you were dead because of your disobedience and your many ²sins. ²You used to live in sin, just like the rest of the world, obeying the devil—the commander of the powers in the unseen world. He is the spirit at work in the hearts of those who refuse to obey God. ³All of us used to live promised to our spiritual ancestors and received by us (see Rom 8:17; Gal 3:29; 4:7; Col 1:12; 3:24). • Because God is sovereign, he makes everything work out according to his plan (cp. Rom 8:28-30).

1:12-13 we Jews . . . you Gentiles: Literally we . . . you; the reference to Jews and Gentiles is implied.

1:13 he identified you as his own (or he put his seal on you): Just as a seal signifies authentic ownership, the Holy Spirit in a believer's life signifies God's ownership (4:30; 2 Cor 1:22).

1:14 The Spirit is both God's guarantee of future blessings and a foretaste of eternal life and power. The believer's eternal inheritance includes everything he promised (see also 1:18; Rom 8:17; 2 Cor 1:22; 5:5; Gal 3:29; 4:7; Col 1:12; 3:24; Titus 3:7).

1:15-23 Paul prays that his readers may have the spiritual understanding to grasp the full significance of God's gifts (1:3-14).

1:15 your strong faith in the Lord Jesus and your love for God's people everywhere (some manuscripts read your faithfulness to the Lord Jesus and to God's people everywhere): Paul links faith in Christ with love for God's people. Personal faith in Christ brings salvation, and salvation is expressed, above all, by a life of love (see Gal 5:6; Col 1:4; 1 Thes 1:3; 3:6; 2 Thes 1:3; 1 Tim 1:14; 2:15; Titus 2:2).

1:17 to give you spiritual wisdom (or to give you the Spirit of wisdom): The word spirit can refer either to the Holy Spirit or to the human spirit. • Knowledge of God is to know God personally and experientially, not just to know about him intellectually (see John 17:3).

1:18 Confident hope for believers is the anticipation of Christ's return and his future blessings that they will share.

• called—his holy people who are his rich and glorious inheritance (or called, and the rich and glorious inheritance he has given to his holy people): Joined with Christ, believers become joint heirs with him of all God's promised blessings.

1:19-20 God's power for us who believe him is the power of his Spirit at work in and through his people, because they are joined to the resurrected Christ (see Rom 6:4-14; Col 2:12). Paul longed to experience the power of Christ's resurrection in his own life (Phil 3:10).

• In biblical times, the place of honor was always at a person's right hand (Ps 110:1; Acts 7:56).

1:21 he is far above: Jesus' power and authority transcend all rival powers, whether human or spiritual, in this age and the coming age (see 3:10; 6:12; John 12:31; Rom 8:38-39; 1 Cor 15:24; Col 1:13; 2:10, 15; 1 Pet 3:22; Rev 12:7-9).

1:22 under the authority of Christ (literally under his feet): In pictures from the ancient Middle East, victorious kings have their feet on the necks of their defeated enemies. Paul is graphically picturing the way Christ has defeated all his enemies and reigns as king of all things (see Ps 110:1; 1 Cor 15:25-28).

1:23 it is made full and complete by Christ, who fills all things everywhere with himself (or it is the full expression of the one who fills everything everywhere): This difficult phrase probably means that the church, as his body, is the full expression of Christ in this world. His presence, which fills the entire universe (4:10), is reflected in and works through his body.

2:1-10 Paul reflects on the terrible situation of the believers before they believed in Christ and the grace of God that has spared them.

2:1-3 Paul's readers were once like dead people before God (see 2:5; Col 2:13). Because of their disobedience and sins, driven by the power of the devil, they were condemned along with the rest of the world to suffer God's judgment.

2:2 obeying the devil—the commander of the powers in the unseen world (literally obeying the commander of the power of the air): Human sin results from our being governed by the devil, the spirit who rules both the powers of evil in the spiritual realm (see 1:21; 6:11-12; cp. Col 1:13) and human beings who refuse to obey God (2 Cor 4:4; contrast Rom 8:2-14; Gal 5:22-23).

that way, following the passionate desires and inclinations of our sinful nature. By our very nature we were subject to God's ^banger, just like everyone else.

⁴But God is so rich in ¹mercy, and he loved us so much, ⁵that even though we were dead because of our sins, he gave us life when he raised Christ from the dead. (It is only by God's ¹grace that you have been saved!) ⁶For he raised us from the dead along with Christ and seated us with him in the heavenly realms because we are united with Christ Jesus. ⁷So God can point to us in all future ages as examples of the incredible wealth of his grace and kindness toward us, as shown in all he has done for us who are united with Christ Jesus.

⁸God ^ksaved you by his ^agrace when you

^bbelieved. And you can't take credit for this; it is a gift from God. ⁹Salvation is not a reward for the good things we have done, so none of us can boast about it. ¹⁰For we are God's masterpiece. He has created us anew in Christ Jesus, so we can do the good things he planned for us long ago.

Oneness and Peace in Christ

¹¹Don't forget that you Gentiles used to be outsiders. You were called "uncircumcised heathens" by the Jews, who were proud of their circumcision, even though it affected only their bodies and not their hearts. ¹²In those days you were living apart from Christ. Christians live and die dependent on God's grace. Salvation is God's gift and can never be earned (2:8-9; Rom 9:16; 11:6). The most important things in life—forgiveness, a right relationship with God, acceptance into God's family as his child, eternal life, spiritual understanding, the transforming power of his Holy Spirit, the promise of God's blessing now and forever—are all gifts of God for those he has chosen and made his own by his grace (1:3-14). There is nothing we can do to get these things for ourselves.

In return, believers should live in recognition that they belong to God (Rom 14:7-9; 2 Cor 5:14-15). They joyfully praise God for his glorious grace (1:6, 12, 14; 1 Cor 10:31) because they know they owe God and his Son everything. Their entire lives reflect their gratitude for his grace.

Joy and thanksgiving are the appropriate response to God's grace (joy, thanksgiving, and grace are all related words in Greek). Everything in this life and the next hangs on grace. Without God's grace, we would be "without God and without hope" (2:12). That is why Paul begins and ends his letters with a prayer that God's people would have his grace and peace (e.g., 1:2; 6:22-24).

2:3 Unconverted people are naturally under the control of the passionate desires and inclinations of our sinful nature (see Rom 3:9-20, 23). Because of their sin, they are subject to God's anger, because God hates sin (see 5:6; Rom 1:18; 2:5, 8; 3:5, 19; 4:15; 5:9; 9:22; 12:19; 13:4-5; Col 3:6; 1 Thes 1:10; 2:16; 5:9).

2:4-10 By God's mercy, kindness, and love, those who are joined to Jesus Christ are saved from the terrible consequences of their sin and enjoy the benefits of Christ's resurrection.

2:5 gave us life when he raised Christ from the dead (literally made us alive together with Christ): joined with Christ, believers share in his resurrection, now and in the future (see 2:6; Rom 6:4-14; Col 3:1-4). • It is only by God's grace that you have been saved: See 1:2; 2:8-9.

2:6 united with Christ Jesus: Because of this union, believers share God's glory and blessings, and experience resurrection both now and in the future (see Rom 6:4-14; Col 2:12-13; 3:1-4).

2:7 grace: See note on 1:2.

2:8-9 This is a concise summary of how a person is saved. It is a cardinal tenet of the Good News that people are made righteous through trust in Christ rather than through their own merit (see Rom 1:16-17; 3:24-25; Gal 2:16; cp. John 3:16, 36). Salvation is not a reward for the good things we have done (see Rom 3:21-4:8; 9:16; Gal 3:2-10; 5:1-6; cp. 2 Tim 1:9; Titus 3:5). Salvation is for those who trust Christ alone to save them. As a result, none of us can boast about it (cp. Rom 3:27; 4:2; 1 Cor 1:30-31; Gal 6:14).

2:10 He has created us anew in Christ Jesus, so we can do the good things he planned for us: Good works are the result, not the cause, of salvation. God's Spirit, working through a transformed heart, produces a good life (Gal 5:22-23).

2:11-22 Paul now focuses on the grace that God has given particularly to Gentiles (non-Jews), bringing them into his family and uniting them with Jews in a new, unified, multiethnic community—the body of Christ, the church. Paul's emphasis on the inclusion of Gentiles might suggest they were experiencing discrimination from Jewish Christians.

2:11 Traditionally, Jews disdained Gentiles, considering them "uncircumcised heathens" who were excluded from God's people (see Gen 17:9-14). Paul argues that judging people by their bodies and not their hearts is superficial—in Christ, physical circumcision means nothing (see Rom 2:28-29).

2:12 Before their conversion, Gentiles had no part in God's people or the covenant promises God had made to them; they were without God and without hope (see 4:18; Col 1:21).

He united Jews and Gentiles into one people when, in his own body on the cross, he broke down the wall of hostility that separated us. ¹⁵He did this by ending the system of law with its commandments and regulations. He made peace between Jews and Gentiles by creating in himself one new peo-

More than any other NT writing, Ephesians highlights the role of the church in God's amazing eternal plan. In Jesus Christ, God has revealed his desire to unite Gentiles with Jews in a new group of people, the church (1:9; 2:14-22; 3:6). The church is the community of those who recognize the lordship of Christ and submit to him (5:21-24). The church is part of God's plan to bring everything in heaven and on earth under the authority of Christ (1:9-10). Believers do not relate to God in isolation but as part of this new family.

The NT uses a number of images to describe the church:

- The church is the Israel of God—the “new people of God” (Gal 6:16) who belong to him (1 Pet 2:9-10) and who as his “holy priests” do his work in the world (1 Pet 2:5, 9).
- The church is God's family (2:19)—the “household of God” (1 Tim 3:15), made up of those who have been adopted as God's children and designated as his heirs.
- The church is a holy temple for the Lord (2:21-22)—the place where God lives by his Spirit (2:22; 4:6; 1 Cor 3:16-17; 2 Cor 6:16; Col 1:27).
- The church is the body of Christ—the full expression of Christ in the world, and Christ is its head (1:23; 4:15; 5:23-24; 1 Cor 12:12-27; Col 1:18, 24).
- The church is Christ's pure bride—the one he died for, cares for, and cherishes, who will live in union with him forever (5:25-29).

Because the church comprises people of different ethnic groups, it is to be a community of harmony and peace as believers live together in love, bound together by the shared experience of the Spirit (4:2-6). God's goal for the church is that it will achieve the fullest possible experience of unity, faith, spiritual understanding, and Christian maturity—to the full perfection of Christ (4:13, 15; cp. Rom 8:29), the likeness of God himself (4:24, 32; 5:1). To this end God has provided people in the church with many diverse gifts to build up the body and bring it to perfection (4:11-16; Rom 12:6-8; 1 Cor 12:7-11, 28). God's intention is that the church should be a showcase of his forgiving grace (2:7; 3:10), a community in which God's glory can be seen, and one devoted to the praise of that glory (3:21; 5:18-20).

2:13 Only by being united with Christ Jesus through trust in him can a person be reconciled to God (see Rom 5:10-12; 2 Cor 5:18-21). The blood of Christ—his sacrificial death—makes this possible (see 1:7; Rom 3:24-25; 5:9; Col 1:20; cp. Heb 9:12-15; 1 Pet 1:19; 1 Jn 1:7; Rev 1:5; 5:9).

2:14 Christ himself has brought peace to us: Peace with God (2:16-17; Rom 5:1, 10-11, 18-21; Col 1:20-22) and between Jews and Gentiles (see 2:15-16; 4:3). • the wall of hostility that separated us: Social and religious practices traditionally divided Jews from Gentiles. A low wall around the Temple in Jerusalem marked the boundary beyond which Gentiles were not allowed to step (see illustration, p. 1787). It symbolized the distinction Jews drew between themselves and Gentiles.

2:15 ending the system of law: See Rom 10:4; Col 2:14; cp. Rom 6:14; 7:4-6. • The church is one new people, a community where love and acceptance are prized and ethnic distinctions are no longer a source of division (see Rom 15:7-12; Gal 3:28; cp. John 10:16).

2:16 Christ's death on the cross reconciles humans to God, and also Jews and Gentiles to each other.

2:17 far away . . . near: This verse possibly alludes to Isa 57:19. • The Greek text lacks the words Gentiles and Jews, but they are implied (see 2:13; see also note on 1:12-13).

2:18 Because of Christ's sacrifice for sins, both Jewish and Gentile believers receive the Holy Spirit, which makes it possible for them to approach God openly (see 3:12; cp. Acts 10:34-37, 44-48; 1 Pet 3:18).

2:19 Gentiles who believe are no longer strangers and foreigners (2:11-12, 17). Through Christ, they are fully accepted into God's family. They become children of God, just like believing Jews (see Rom 8:14-17).

with all of God's holy people. You are members of God's family. ²⁰Together, we are his house, built on the foundation of the apostles and the prophets. And the cornerstone is Christ Jesus himself. ²¹We are carefully joined together in him, becoming a holy temple for the Lord. ²²Through him you Gentiles are also being made part of this dwelling where God lives by his Spirit.

God's Mysterious Plan Revealed

3 When I think of all this, I, Paul, a prisoner of Christ Jesus for the benefit of you Gentiles . . . ²assuming, by the way, that you know God gave me the special responsibility of extending his grace to you Gentiles. ³As I briefly wrote earlier, God himself ⁴revealed his ⁵mysterious plan to me. ⁶As you read what I have written, you will understand my insight into this plan regarding ⁷Christ. ⁸God did not reveal it to previous generations, but now by his Spirit he has revealed it to his holy apostles and prophets.

⁹And this is God's plan: Both Gentiles and Jews who believe the Good News share equally in the riches inherited by God's children. Both are part of the same body, and both enjoy the promise of blessings because they belong to Christ Jesus. ⁷By God's grace and mighty power, I have been given the privilege of serving him by spreading this Good News.

⁸Though I am the least deserving of all God's people, he graciously gave me the privilege of telling the Gentiles about the endless ⁹treasures available to them in Christ. ⁹I was chosen to explain to everyone this mysterious ¹⁰plan that God, the Creator of all things, had kept secret from the beginning.

¹⁰God's purpose in all this was to use the church to display his wisdom in its rich variety to all the unseen rulers and authorities in the heavenly places. ¹¹This was his eternal plan, which he carried out through Christ Jesus our Lord.

¹²Because of Christ and our faith in him, we can now come boldly and confidently into God's presence. ¹³So please don't lose heart because of my trials here. I am suffering for you, so you should feel honored.

2:20 Apostles are missionary evangelists commissioned by God. • Here, prophets appear to be NT prophets, not OT ones (see 3:5; 4:11; see also 1 Cor 12:10, 28-29; 14:1-5, 22-24, 29-32, 39; cp. Acts 13:1; 19:6; 21:9, 10). In both the OT and NT, prophets are not primarily predictors of the future but are empowered to speak a message from God (see 1 Cor 12:10). • The church is built on the foundation of the apostles and the prophets (or on the foundation laid by the apostles and prophets)—that is, on their faithful witness to the saving message of Christ (see Rev 21:14; cp. Matt 16:18). However, the cornerstone is Christ Jesus himself, the Messiah, Savior, and Lord (cp. 1 Cor 3:11). The cornerstone is the most important stone in a building's foundation (see Isa 28:16; Mark 12:10; Acts 4:11; 1 Pet 2:6-7).

2:21 Joined together in Christ, Gentile and Jewish Christians become a holy temple for the Lord, because the Lord himself is among his people (see Matt 18:20; 28:20; 1 Cor 3:16; 1 Pet 2:4-5).

3:1-13 Paul now describes his own role in God's eternal plan: to proclaim God's grace to the Gentiles.

3:1 When I think of all this: Paul has written about the amazing salvation that God's grace has brought to undeserving sinners who are under his judgment, and about the incredible revelation that Gentiles can also be included in God's new family, the people of God (chs 1-2). • a prisoner of Christ

Jesus: Paul wrote this letter while imprisoned for his witness to Christ among the Gentiles. • for the benefit of you Gentiles . . . : Paul resumes this thought in v 14: "When I think of all this, I fall to my knees and pray to the Father."

3:2-13 Paul interrupts his thought in 3:1 to discuss his own role in God's plan. When Paul was first converted, he was given the special responsibility of extending God's grace to the Gentiles (see Acts 9:15-16; 22:14-15, 21; 26:17-18; Rom 1:5; 11:13-14; 15:15-18; Gal 1:15-16; 2:7-9; Col 1:25-27; 1 Tim 2:7; 2 Tim 4:17).

3:3 What Paul briefly wrote earlier is a reference either to 1:9-10 (cp. 2:11-22) or to an unknown letter. • Paul's understanding of God's mysterious plan (see note on 1:8-10) came as God himself revealed it to him (see 1:9-10; Gal 1:11-12, 15-17; cp. Acts 9:3-6; 1 Cor 12:1, 7; Gal 2:2).

3:5 his holy apostles: See 1:1. • The order of the terms apostles and prophets (see 2:20) suggests that Paul is speaking of NT, not OT, prophets. In both the OT and the NT, the gift of prophecy is less concerned with predicting the future than with speaking a special word from God (see 1 Cor 12:10).

3:6 God's plan that has now been revealed to Paul is that the Gentiles are now included in God's family, the body of Christ, just as Jews are. They share equally in God's eternal blessings. • because they belong to Christ Jesus:

Or because they are united with Christ Jesus.

3:7 grace: See note on 1:2. • serving him: Paul speaks of himself as a servant of the Good News (see also Col 1:23), of God (1 Cor 3:5; 2 Cor 6:4), of Christ (2 Cor 11:23), of the church (Col 1:25), and of the new covenant (2 Cor 3:6).

3:8 Paul considered himself the least deserving of all God's people (literally the least of God's people) because he was once an ardent persecutor of believers (see 1 Cor 15:9; 1 Tim 1:12-16). • the endless treasures available to them in Christ: See 1:3-14.

3:9 Some manuscripts do not include to everyone.

3:10 The church is meant to showcase to the entire universe God's wisdom in its rich variety, as expressed in his plan of redemption (see Rom 11:33-36). • the unseen rulers and authorities in the heavenly places: See 1:21 and note.

3:12 Because of Christ and our faith in him: Or Because of Christ's faithfulness. • We can come boldly and confidently into God's presence, not because of good deeds that we have done, but because of Christ's all-sufficient sacrifice for our sins (see 2:18; Heb 4:14-16; 10:19-23; 1 Pet 3:18; 1 Jn 4:14).

3:13 my trials here: Paul is writing from jail, as a prisoner (see 3:1). He knows that suffering is to be expected and that it works for good in a believer's life (see Rom 5:3-5; Col 1:24; 1 Thes 3:3; 2 Tim 3:12; Jas 1:2-4).

Paul's Prayer for Spiritual Growth

¹⁴When I think of all this, I fall to my knees and pray to the Father, ¹⁵the Creator of everything in heaven and on earth. ¹⁶I pray that from his glorious, unlimited resources he will empower you with inner strength through his Spirit. ¹⁷Then Christ will make his home in your hearts as you trust in him. Your roots will grow down into God's love and keep you strong. ¹⁸And may you have the power to understand, as all God's people should, how wide, how long, how high, and how deep his love is. ¹⁹May you experience the love of Christ, though it is too great to understand fully. Then you will be made complete with all the fullness of life and power that comes from God.

²⁰Now all glory to God, who is able, through his mighty power at work within us, to accomplish infinitely more than we might ask or think. ²¹Glory to him in the church and in Christ Jesus through all generations forever and ever! Amen.

3. LIVING LIKE CHRIST (4:1–6:20)

The Body of Christ (4:1-16)

Unity in the Body

4 Therefore I, a prisoner for serving the Lord, beg you to lead a life worthy of your calling, for you have been called by God. ²Always be humble and gentle. Be patient with each other, making allowance for each other's faults because of your love. ³Make every effort to keep yourselves united in the Spirit, binding yourselves together with peace. ⁴For there is one body and one Spirit, just as you have been called to one glorious hope for the future.

⁵ There is one Lord, one faith, one baptism, ⁶ one God and Father of all, who is over all, in all, and living through all.

Gifts for Building Up the Church

⁷ However, he has given each one of us a special gift through the generosity of Christ. ⁸ That is why the Scriptures say,

3:14-21 Paul closes this section (1:3–3:21) with a second prayer for his readers. The first (1:15-23) was for their spiritual understanding, the second (3:14-21) is for their spiritual growth and empowerment.

3:14 When I think of all this, I fall to my knees and pray: Paul resumes what he started to say at the beginning of the chapter (see 3:1). • the Father: Some manuscripts read the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.

3:15-16 the Creator of everything in heaven and on earth (or from whom every family in heaven and on earth takes its name): There is a play on words between Father (Greek patēr, 3:14) and family (Greek patria). God is the Creator of everything, including every family—angelic or human, Gentile or Jew (see 2:14-22; 3:6). So he is the source of glorious, unlimited resources that he gladly gives his children.

3:17 Having Christ . . . make his home in your hearts is the source of spiritual power for life and ministry (see John 14:16-17, 23; 15:4-5; Gal 2:20).

3:18 how wide, how long, how high, and how deep his love is: Christ's love is great in every dimension (cp. Rom 8:38-39).

3:19 May you experience (literally know) the love of Christ: The whole Christian life is based on the experience and personal knowledge of God's grace and love in Jesus Christ (see Rom 12:1). • it is too great to understand fully: Christ's love is much greater than ordinary human love (see Rom 5:6-8). • The believer's life is made complete when it is filled with all the fullness of life and power by the presence of Christ within (see 1:23; Gal 2:20; Col 1:27). The believer then is conformed to his image and reflects God (see 4:14, 24; 5:1-2; Rom 8:29; 2 Cor 3:16-18).

3:20-21 This doxology concludes the first section of the letter (see also Rom 16:25-27; Gal 1:5; 1 Tim 1:17; 2 Tim 4:18; Jude 1:24-25).

3:20 all glory to God: Because of the grace God has shown in Jesus Christ, he deserves nothing less. • The mighty power at work within us is the power of the living God that raised Christ from the dead (see 1:19-20). By that power, he is able to accomplish infinitely more than we might ask or think, because God is at work in the lives of his children (see Rom 8:31-39; Phil 4:13; Col 1:29).

3:21 The church—the community of believers, both Jews and Gentiles—is to be the reflection and full expression of the glory of God.

4:1-6:20 Therefore: Ephesians divides into two sections, the first devoted to explaining the Good News, the second to drawing out the implications for Christian living. This arrangement reflects Paul's belief that believers' lives should be a response of gratitude for God's grace.

4:1-6 God's saving grace for both Jews and Gentiles should be reflected in how the two groups relate to each other in the church: They are to accept each other warmly, just as God has accepted them.

4:1 I, a prisoner for serving the Lord: See note on 3:1. • Though salvation can never be earned, believers are to live in a manner worthy of their calling to salvation (see Phil 1:27; Col 1:10; 1 Thes 2:12). • called by God: See 1:4-5, 11.

4:2 humble . . . gentle . . . patient: Believers are to be like Christ in how they treat others (see Col 3:12-14; cp. Gal 6:2).

4:3 binding yourselves together with peace: Paul's emphasis on God's acceptance of Gentiles as well as Jews (2:11–3:6) is now applied ethically: Jews and Gentiles are to accept one another in the church (see Col 3:14-15).

4:4-6 These three verses might have been taken from a creedal statement. • Whatever their ethnic differences, Jewish and Gentile Christians share one Lord and one faith, so they should live together in unity. • Christ's one body is the church (see 1:23; 2:16). • one God and Father of all, who is over all: See 1 Cor 8:6; 15:28. • in all, and living through all: God is especially present in believers' lives (see 1 Cor 6:19; 2 Cor 13:5; Gal 2:20; Col 1:27; cp. John 14:16-17, 23; 15:4-5).

4:7-16 Though believers share a common faith, God has given different special abilities to each individual believer for building up the church.

4:7 a special gift: Literally a grace. He has given each one of us a gift of his grace for building up the community of believers (see 1 Cor 12:7; cp. Rom 12:6; 1 Cor 12:11).

4:8 This verse quotes Ps 68:18. • He led a crowd of captives may refer to Christ's victory over spiritual powers (see 1:21-22; Col 2:15), or to his capture of disobedient sinners and making them believers through the power of the Good News message. • Christ gave gifts to his people (see 4:11-12).

"When he ascended to the heights, he led a crowd of captives and gave gifts to his people."

⁹Notice that it says "he ascended." This clearly means that Christ also descended to our lowly world. ¹⁰And the same one who descended is the one who ascended higher than all the ⁹heavens, so that he might fill the entire universe with himself.

¹¹Now these are the gifts Christ gave to the church: the ⁹apostles, the prophets, the evangelists, and the ⁹pastors and teachers. ¹²Their responsibility is to equip God's people to do his ⁹work and build up the church, the body of Christ. ¹³This will continue until we all come to such unity in our faith and knowledge of God's Son that we will be ⁹mature in the Lord, measuring up to the full and complete standard of Christ.

¹⁴Then we will no longer be immature like children. We won't be tossed and blown about by every wind of new teaching. We will not be influenced when people try to trick us with lies so clever they sound like the truth. ¹⁵Instead, we will speak the truth in ⁹love, growing in every way more and more like Christ, who is the head of his body, the church. ¹⁶He makes the whole body fit together perfectly. As each part does its own special work, it helps the other parts grow, so that the whole body is healthy and growing and full of love.

The Light of Christ (4:17–5:14) Living as Children of Light

¹⁷With the Lord's authority I say this: Live no longer as the Gentiles do, for they are hopelessly confused. ¹⁸Their minds are full of darkness; they wander far from the life God gives because they have closed their minds and hardened their ⁹hearts against him. ¹⁹They have no sense of shame. They live for lustful pleasure and eagerly practice every kind of impurity.

²⁰But that isn't what you learned about Christ. ²¹Since you have heard about Jesus and have learned the truth that comes from him, ²²throw off your old sinful nature and your former way of life, which is corrupted by lust and deception. ²³Instead, let the Spirit renew your thoughts and attitudes. ²⁴Put on your new nature, created to be like God—truly righteous and holy.

²⁵So stop telling lies. Let us tell our neighbors the truth, for we are all parts of the same body. ²⁶And "don't sin by letting anger control you." Don't let the sun go down while you are still angry, ²⁷for anger gives a foothold to the ⁹devil.

4:9-10 to our lowly world (some manuscripts read to the lower parts of the earth): Some understand this phrase as referring to the tomb, to the world of the dead (cp. Matt 12:40; 1 Pet 3:18-20), or to the coming of the Spirit at Pentecost. Instead, it probably refers to the incarnation, when Christ . . . descended from heaven and became a man (see John 1:14; 3:13; Phil 2:7-8).

4:11 In his letters, Paul has four different lists of God's gifts (see also Rom 12:4-8; 1 Cor 12:8-10, 28), none of which is comprehensive. Here the focus is on the gifts of leadership most needed for the growth of the church. • Apostles are divinely commissioned missionary evangelists. • Prophets speak messages from God for his people (see "The Gift of Prophecy" at Acts 21:9-11, cp. 1873). • Evangelists proclaim the Good News. • Pastors (literally shepherds) care for God's people (see 1 Tim 3:1-7). • Teachers expound Scripture and God's truths to the church. • Pastors and teachers might refer to separate ministries or to two aspects of the same ministry.

4:12 God's gifts are given so that believers will build up the church (see 1 Cor 12:7; cp. 1 Pet 2:5). • to equip God's people to do his work: All believers are called to active Christian service.

4:13 The goal of ministry is for the whole Christian community to understand and experience the Christian faith more deeply and gain a deeper knowledge of God's Son. In this way, believers will be mature in the Lord (see 1 Cor 2:6; 14:20; Phil 3:15; Col 1:28; 4:12; cp. Heb 5:14; Jas 1:4; 3:2). The standard of maturity is Christ himself; the Spirit's transforming work is to make people fully like Christ (Rom 8:29).

4:14 We won't be tossed and blown about: Mature Christians, with a well-grounded knowledge of the Good News and of Christ himself, will be able to discern and resist false teaching (see Gal 1:6-7; 3:1; Col 2:8-23; 1 Tim 1:3-7; 4:1-3; 6:3-5, 20; 2 Tim 4:3-4; Titus 1:11).

4:16 Each part of the body plays an important role and helps the other parts grow. Christ, the head of the body, works through the individual parts, makes them fit together, and is the ultimate source of growth (see Col 2:19). • When all believers are ministering effectively, the whole body will be healthy and growing and full of love (cp. 1 Cor 8:1). Love is the most important factor in Christian growth (1 Cor 13:1-13).

4:17–5:20 Paul gives believers specific guidelines for living a new life in Christ.

4:17 God's people are called to a way of life that is different from that of the Gentiles (pagans, unbelievers) of the world.

4:18 Their minds are full of darkness because their minds are closed and hearts are hard (see 2 Cor 4:4).

4:19 no sense of shame: The hardness of unbelievers' hearts is reflected in their moral insensitivity and sexual immorality (see Rom 1:21-31).

4:20-24 What you learned about Christ is the truth that comes from him. He gives true understanding (cp. John 14:6) and calls his people to an entirely new way of life (cp. Rom 6:3-14; 13:12-14; Col 3:8-10).

4:24 A believer has a new nature: God's Spirit expresses his life within the believer (see Col 3:10; cp. Gen 1:26; Rom 12:1-2; Gal 5:22-23). The transforming work of God's Spirit is part of the gift of salvation (2:8-10).

4:25 Let us tell our neighbors the truth: Cp. Zech 8:16. • for we are all parts of the same body: See Rom 12:5; 1 Cor 12:12-13, 27.

4:26-27 "don't sin by letting anger control you" (literally "be angry and do not sin"): This verse quotes Ps 4:4 (Greek version). The literal form of the quotation cannot be used to justify anger, for anger gives a foothold to the devil (cp. Jas 1:20). God's people are to be gentle and gracious, not harsh or angry (see 4:31-32). • Don't let the sun go down while you are still angry: Anger must quickly be resolved, not allowed to stew.

³⁰And do not bring sorrow to God's Holy Spirit by the way you live. Remember, he has ^aidentified you as his own, guaranteeing that you will be saved on the day of ^eredemption.

³¹Get rid of all bitterness, rage, ^fanger, harsh words, and ^gslander, as well as all types of evil behavior. ³²Instead, be kind to each other, tenderhearted, forgiving one another, just as God through Christ has forgiven you.

Living in the Light

5 Imitate God, therefore, in everything you do, because you are his dear children. ²Live a life filled with love, following the example of Christ. He loved us and offered himself as a sacrifice for us, a pleasing aroma to God.

³Let there be no sexual immorality, impurity, or greed among you. Such sins have no place among God's people. ⁴Obscene stories, foolish talk, and coarse jokes—these are not for you. Instead, let there be thankfulness to God. ⁵You can be sure that no immoral, impure, or greedy person will inherit the Kingdom of Christ and of God. For a greedy person is an ^hidolater, worshiping the things of this world.

⁶Don't be fooled by those who try to excuse these sins, for the ⁱanger of God will fall on all who disobey him. ⁷Don't participate in the things these people do. ⁸For once you were full of darkness, but now you have light from the Lord. So live as people of light! ⁹For this light within you produces only what is ^jgood and ^kright and true.

The Old Life and the New Life (4:17–5:20)

Rom 6:3-14; 12:1-2
 Gal 5:19-23
 Phil 3:12-13

When people become believers in Christ, they are joined to Jesus Christ and begin to share in his experience and benefits, including his death and resurrection. Their old life dies with Christ, and they rise to new life by his power within them (see Rom 6:3-14).

This is all the work of God, who transforms them by his Spirit. Their minds are renewed (see Rom 12:2), their desires and actions change, and their lives begin to reflect the fruit of his Spirit (Gal 5:22-23). They become different people, gradually growing into the likeness of Christ.

Believers are also responsible for living out Christ's death and resurrection (see Phil 3:10-13). They are to turn away from their old life that was full of darkness and embrace a new life full of light (4:17–5:20). Using the imagery of clothing, Paul calls believers to put off the old, sinful life driven by the devil and to put on a new, pure life directed by the Holy Spirit. As they do so, they recognize their reliance on God's grace and power.

Believers must actively turn from their old lives to live in a new way that pleases God; it is God's gracious working in their hearts that gives them the desire and power to do so.

4:28 Christians are to be hard-working people who have integrity and care for others (cp. 1 Thes 4:11; 2 Thes 3:6-12).

4:29 Believers are to learn new patterns of speech to be an encouragement to others (see also 5:3-4, 12).

4:30 Believers must not alienate God's Holy Spirit, who identifies them as belonging to God (cp. Mark 3:29; Acts 5:3-5, 9; 1 Thes 4:8; Heb 6:4-8). • has identified you as his own (or has put his seal on you): The presence of the Spirit both confirms and guarantees the future redemption of believers (see 1:13-14; Rom 8:16-17; 2 Cor 1:22; 1 Jn 4:13).

4:32 Forgiving fellow believers is a natural and good response to experiencing God's forgiving grace in Christ (cp. Col 3:12-13; 1 Jn 4:19).

5:1 Imitate God . . . in everything you do: Primarily by expressing love (5:2; cp. Matt 5:44-45, 48). • because you are his dear children: Just as children follow their parents' example, believers should follow God's example (1 Cor 4:14-17).

5:2 Christ's love is shown especially in his offering himself as a sacrifice for us (cp. 5:25; John 15:13; Rom 5:8). Christian love is motivated by and modeled after Christ's sacrificial love (see Phil 2:5-8). • He loved us: Some manuscripts read He loved you. • Paul draws on OT imagery, where the smell of a burning sacrifice was a pleasing aroma to God (see Lev 1:9; 2:2; cp. Rom 12:1).

5:3-5 God's people (literally holy ones) must have a holy lifestyle, avoiding the immorality common among unbelievers (cp. 4:19; Col 3:5).

5:4 The speech of God's people is to be characterized by thankfulness to God (see 4:29; 5:3, 12).

5:5 Many similar statements describe the kind of person who will not inherit the Kingdom of . . . God: See 1 Cor

6:9-10; Gal 5:19-21; Rev 22:15; cp. Col 3:5-6. • For a greedy person is an idolater: The things greedy people desire become their gods (see Matt 6:24).

5:6 The anger of God will fall at his final judgment (see Rom 1:18; Col 3:5-6; cp. John 3:36).

5:7 Don't participate: Cp. 2 Cor 6:14–7:1.

5:8 Darkness is ignorance of God and his ways and being dominated by sin (see 4:18). • Light from the Lord is Christ's Good News (see John 8:12). As people of light, believers live in fellowship with God, in whom there is no darkness (see 1 Jn 1:5-7; 5:9; cp. Matt 5:14-16; John 8:12; 12:35-36, 46; Rom 13:12; 2 Cor 6:14; 1 Thes 5:4-8; 1 Pet 2:9).

5:9 God's people are to do what is good and right and true, in harmony with God's light (cp. Rom 12:2; some early manuscripts read Spirit instead of light; cp. 4:22-24; Matt 7:16-20; Gal 5:22-23).

¹⁰Carefully determine what pleases the Lord. ¹¹Take no part in the worthless deeds of evil and darkness; instead, expose them. ¹²It is shameful even to talk about the things that ungodly people do in secret. ¹³But their evil intentions will be exposed when the light shines on them, ¹⁴for the light makes everything visible. This is why it is said, “Awake, O sleeper, rise up from the dead, and Christ will give you light.”

Living by the Spirit's Power (5:15-20)

¹⁵So be careful how you live. Don't live like fools, but like those who are wise. ¹⁶Make the most of every opportunity in these evil days. ¹⁷Don't act thoughtlessly, but understand what the Lord wants you to do. ¹⁸Don't be drunk with wine, because that will ruin your life. Instead, be filled with the Holy Spirit, ¹⁹singing psalms and hymns and spiritual songs among yourselves, and making music to the Lord in your hearts. ²⁰And give thanks for everything to God the Father in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Relationships in Christ (5:21–6:9)

Wives and Husbands

²¹And further, submit to one another out of reverence for Christ.

²²For wives, this means submit to your husbands as to the Lord. ²³For a husband is the head of his wife as Christ is the head of the church. He is the ^aSavior of his body, the church. ²⁴As the church submits to Christ, so you wives should submit to your husbands in everything.

²⁵For husbands, this means love your wives, just as Christ loved the ^bchurch. He gave up his life for her ²⁶to make her holy and clean, washed by the cleansing of God's word. ²⁷He did this to present her to himself as a glorious church without a spot or wrinkle or any other blemish. Instead, she will be holy and without fault. ²⁸In the same way, husbands ought to love their wives as they love their own bodies. For a man who loves his wife actually shows love for himself. ²⁹No one hates his own ^cbody but feeds and cares for it, just as Christ cares for the church. ³⁰And we are members of his body.

³¹As the Scriptures say, “A man leaves his father and mother and is joined to his wife,

5:10 Carefully determine what pleases the Lord: The point is to obey God's will, not simply to understand it (cp. Rom 12:2; Phil 1:10).

5:11 expose them: By the light shining from their lives (cp. John 3:20-21; Rom 13:12; 1 Pet 2:9), not by verbally accusing or condemning people (see 1 Cor 5:9-13).

5:13-14 “Awake, O sleeper”: This might be a fragment from an unknown Christian song, perhaps based on texts in Isaiah (cp. Isa 26:19; 52:1; 60:1). It calls on God's people to turn from their sinful darkness and live in the full light of Christ.

5:15 Fools have no understanding of God and his ways, but those who are wise do know God and understand his ways (see Job 28:28; Prov 1:7; 2:1-22).

5:16 Make the most of every opportunity: See also Col 4:5. • in these evil days: See Matt 24:6-12, 15-22; 2 Thes 2:3-10.

5:18 The Holy Spirit, not wine, should dominate believers' lives (see Prov 23:29-35; cp. Acts 2:15-18). • be filled: The grammar here suggests that believers' lives are to be continuously filled with and governed by the Holy Spirit.

5:19-20 Lives filled with the Holy Spirit will be expressed in singing . . . and making music (Col 3:16-17). Joyful praise, worship, and giving thanks are fitting responses to God's saving grace.

• among yourselves: Singing together builds up the body of Christ. • The Lord hears the music in our hearts.

• in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ: Jesus Christ is our mediator and representative as we approach God (cp. John 14:13-14; 16:23-27; Rev 22:4).

5:21–6:9 Paul gives specific instructions on how believers are to relate to one another in a Christian home (see also Col 3:18–4:1; 1 Pet 2:18–3:7). Love and respect are to characterize all relationships in the body of Christ as an expression of believers' commitment to the Lord himself. • And further, submit: The verb form links it with the command to be filled (5:18).

5:21 submit to one another: This general instruction (cp. Phil 2:3) applies to all three relationships that Paul discusses: wives and husbands (5:22-33), children and their parents (6:1-4), and slaves and their masters (6:5-9). For believers, submission is not expressed out of fear or desire for personal gain, but out of reverence for Christ.

5:22-33 Christian wives are to submit to their husbands, showing them respect. At least as important, Christian husbands are to love their wives (see Col 3:18-19). Christian marriages become a reflection of the union and relationship between the Lord and the church.

5:22 Submission is part of the life to which the wives' Christian commitment calls them (see 1 Cor 11:3-10; 14:34-35; Col 3:18; 1 Tim 2:11-12; Titus 2:5; 1 Pet 3:1-6).

5:23-24 a husband is the head of his wife: To be the head is to have authority (see 1 Cor 11:3). • Christ is the head of the church: See 1:22; 4:15; Col 1:18; 2:10, 19.

5:25-33 Christian husbands are to love their wives just as Christ loved the church—that is, sacrificially, for Christ gave up his life for her (5:2; cp. Col 3:19; 1 Pet 3:7).

5:26 washed by the cleansing of God's word (literally washed by water with the word): The church has been cleansed by the message of Good News. God has forgiven the sins of his people through Christ's sacrificial death (John 15:3; cp. Titus 3:5; 1 Pet 3:21).

5:27 a glorious church without a . . . blemish: The church's sins have been forgiven through Christ's sacrifice, and her life is purified by the Holy Spirit. As a result, the church stands holy and without fault before God. Cp. 1:4; 2 Cor 11:2; Col 1:22; Rev 19:7-8; 21:2.

5:28-29 Husbands should prize and cherish their wives, for in marriage the two have become one (see 5:31).

5:31 This verse quotes Gen 2:24. The unity of husband and wife should motivate the husband to care for his wife.

and the two are united into one.” ³²This is a great ⁴mystery, but it is an illustration of the way Christ and the church are one. ³³So again I say, each man must love his wife as he loves himself, and the wife must respect her husband.

Children and Parents

6 Children, obey your parents because you belong to the Lord, for this is the right thing to do. ²“Honor your father and mother.” This is the first commandment with a promise: ³If you honor your father and mother, “things will go well for you, and you will have a long life on the earth.”

⁴Fathers, do not provoke your children to anger by the way you treat them. Rather, bring them up with the ⁴discipline and instruction that comes from the Lord.

Slaves and Masters

⁵Slaves, obey your earthly ⁸masters with deep respect and fear. Serve them ^hsincerely as you would serve Christ. ⁶Try to please them all the time, not just when they are watching you. As slaves of Christ, do the will of God with all your heart. ⁷Work with enthusiasm, as though you were working for the Lord rather than for people. ⁸Remember that the Lord will reward each one of us for the good we do, whether we are slaves or free.

⁹Masters, treat your slaves in the same way. Don’t threaten them; remember, you both have the same Master in heaven, and he has no favorites.

The Whole Armor of God (6:10-20)

¹⁰A final word: Be strong in the Lord and in his mighty power. ¹¹Put on all of God’s armor so that you will be able to stand firm against all strategies of the ¹devil. ¹²For we are not fighting against flesh-and-blood enemies, but against evil rulers and authorities of the unseen world, against mighty powers in this dark world, and against evil spirits in the heavenly places.

¹³Therefore, put on every piece of God’s armor so you will be able to resist the enemy in the time of evil. Then after the battle you will still be standing firm. ¹⁴Stand your ground, putting on the belt of truth and the 5:32 it is an illustration: Both the unity of husband and wife and the unity of Christ and the church are a great mystery (see note on 1:8-10).

5:33 Paul summarizes his teaching on the relationship between husbands and wives (5:22-33). Christian marriages should be marked by love and respect.

6:1-4 The relationship between parents and children is to be a reflection of their devotion to the Lord. Christian children are to obey their parents, and Christian parents are to discipline their children gently (see Col 3:20-21).

6:1 Children, obey your parents because you belong to the Lord: Or Children, obey your parents who belong to the Lord; some manuscripts read simply Children, obey your parents.

6:2-3 These verses quote Exod 20:12; Deut 5:16. Children who honor and respect their parents also honor and respect God himself, and blessings follow.

6:4 Fathers (or Parents) often provoke their children to anger by being harsh or unjust (see Col 3:21). Parents should give their children the discipline and instruction that comes from the Lord (or the discipline and instruction about the Lord) so that they will learn a way of living that is good and pleases God. Such discipline is not to be excessive, but loving and gentle so that children are not turned from the Lord but are drawn to him (cp. Heb 12:5-11).

6:5-9 The relationship between slaves and masters (and, by analogy, between employees and employers) is to be shaped by their commitment to the Lord and their desire to build one another up in Christ. Christian slaves are to obey their masters, and Christian masters are to treat their slaves kindly (see Col 3:22-4:1). • Paul was not promoting slavery but teaching Christians to live with it as a fact of life in that culture (for Paul’s treatment of slavery, see Philemon Introduction, “Meaning and Message,” p. 2078).

6:5 Obedient service to earthly masters expresses a Christian slave’s service to Christ (see Col 3:22-23; 1 Tim 6:1-2; Titus 2:9-10; 1 Pet 2:18-23).

6:6-7 As slaves of Christ: As those who have been bought by the blood of Christ, believers no longer belong to themselves (see 1 Cor 6:19-20; 7:22; cp. Rom 1:1; Gal 1:10; Phil 1:1). For Christian slaves, the will of God is that they honor him by serving their human masters faithfully and with enthusiasm.

6:8 The master of all believers is the Lord, and he will reward those who are faithful (see 1 Cor 3:12-15).

6:9 in the same way: That is, with integrity and concern for their welfare (see Col 4:1). • Don’t threaten them: Christian masters, too, will be held accountable by the same Master in heaven for their lives on earth. Pleasing him requires treating their slaves humanely and kindly. • he has no favorites: God judges all people by the same standard (see Deut 10:17; Acts 10:34; Rom 2:11; Col 3:25).

6:10-20 Paul’s final word is to remind the believers of the devil’s opposition and urge them to protect themselves with all of God’s armor.

6:11 Put on all of God’s armor: See Rom 13:12; 2 Cor 10:4-5. It is only by the Lord’s protection that a believer can stand firm against all strategies of the devil (cp. 1 Pet 5:8-9).

6:12 For we: Some manuscripts read For you. • Believers should not consider human beings to be their enemies. Instead, the opposition they face comes from the unseen world of spiritual evil, and Christ has authority over that realm (see 1:21-22).

6:13 God’s armor gives believers the ability to resist the attacks of the devil in the time of evil—when evil seems to prevail—and to keep standing firm.

6:14-17 Paul uses the physical armor worn by Roman soldiers as imagery for spiritual armor used by believers. Most of this equipment is to defend, not to attack. Paul’s focus is not on the precise functions of each piece but on God’s gifts. Grounding in Christ and Scripture provides protection and ability to stand your ground (cp. Jas 4:7; 1 Pet 5:8-9).

6:14 God’s righteousness: Either the righteousness God credits to those who believe in Christ, or the righteous way body armor of God's righteousness. ¹⁵For shoes, put on the peace that comes from the Good News so that you will be fully prepared. ¹⁶In addition to all of these, hold up the shield of faith to stop the fiery arrows of the devil. ¹⁷Put on salvation as your helmet, and take the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God.

¹⁸Pray in the Spirit at all times and on every occasion. Stay alert and be persistent in your prayers for all believers everywhere.

¹⁹And pray for me, too. Ask God to give me the right words so I can boldly explain God's mysterious plan that the Good News is for Jews and Gentiles alike. ²⁰I am in chains now, still preaching this message as God's ambassador. So pray that I will keep on speaking boldly for him, as I should.

The NT writers were convinced of the reality of evil and the dangers of the spiritual world. So they took Satan (the evil one, the devil) seriously as a real threat. The devil not only inhibits the work of God's people (see 1 Thes 2:18; Rev 2:10), but he "prowls around like a roaring lion, looking for someone to devour" (see 1 Pet 5:8).

The entire unbelieving world is subject to the power of sin and the devil (see 2:2; 1 Jn 5:19). As the "god of this world," the devil can blind the minds of unbelievers (see 2 Cor 4:4; cp. Matt 13:19). Although Satan opposes God and seeks to destroy his people (Rev 12:12, 17), Jesus came to destroy Satan's work (1 Jn 3:8). God turns what the devil intends for evil into good; for example, when believers are expelled from the Christian fellowship, they are exposed to the devil's destructive power so that they might repent and be saved (see 1 Cor 5:5).

Christians are to stand firm and resist the devil (4:27; Jas 4:7), praying for God's deliverance (Matt 6:13) and availing themselves of the armor that God provides for their defense (6:10-20). Those who yield to Satan's influence suffer the consequences (see Acts 5:3-5). But believers who walk with Christ are secure because they know that the cross has broken the devil's power (see Rom 8:38-39; 1 Cor 15:24; Col 1:13; 2:10, 15; 1 Pet 3:22; Rev 12:7-9) and that the Lord protects them (see 1 Jn 5:18). They also know that the Holy Spirit within them is greater than the devil (see 1 Jn 4:4). By the word of God, they can overcome the evil one (see 1 Jn 2:14; cp. Rev 12:11).

Although believers need to be wary of the devil and protect themselves from his power, they need not live in fear. The power of the devil is no match for the power of God. In the NT, the Christian life is not centered on spiritual warfare, but on a joyful life of obedience in the Spirit.

of life brought about by the transforming work of the Spirit of God in believers' lives. The one implies the other.

6:15 For shoes, put on the peace that comes from the Good News (or For shoes, put on the readiness to preach the Good News of peace with God; see Isa 52:7): In this context, the focus is on letting one's life be governed by the peace that the Good News gives (see Rom 5:1).

6:16 Faith is trust in Christ as Savior or trust in God to meet one's needs in evil times. • fiery arrows: Paul graphically pictures the nature of temptation to sin (cp. Matt 6:13; 26:41; 1 Cor 10:13; Jas 1:12-15). Arrows were sometimes dipped in pitch and ignited before being shot. • the devil: Literally the evil one.

6:17 Put on salvation as your helmet: Protect the mind with the assurance that God has indeed saved and given eternal life to those who believe in Christ. • The sword of the Spirit pictures using the word of God to respond to an attack, either with the Good News or with the spoken or written word of God more generally (cp. Jer 23:29; Heb 4:12).

6:18 Paul contrasts purely mental prayer with prayer in the Spirit, prayer that arises from the Spirit of God within (see 1 Cor 14:15; Jude 1:20; cp. Rom 8:26-27). • at all times and on every occasion: Believers are to make prayer a way of life and turn the whole of life into prayer (see Phil 4:6-7; 1 Thes 5:17)—not simply for themselves, but for all believers everywhere (literally for all of God's holy people). • Stay alert and be persistent: Because the danger of the devil is constant.

6:19-20 explain God's mysterious plan that the Good News is for Jews and Gentiles alike (literally explain the mystery of the Good News; some manuscripts read simply explain the mystery): Paul's missionary calling was primarily to the Gentiles, to help them realize that they are now accepted by God and welcomed into his church. • mysterious plan: See notes on 1:8-10; 3:3. • I am in chains now: Though writing as a prisoner (see 3:1; 4:1), Paul knew that his calling as God's ambassador (cp. 2 Cor 5:20) was to keep on speaking boldly for him.

6:21-24 Paul closes with some personal words and a benediction that repeats the desires expressed at the beginning of the letter.

PAUL'S LETTER TO THE

Philippians

How do you live as a Christian in a non-Christian world? How do you respond when those around you are hostile to your faith? Paul wrote this poignant letter to encourage the persecuted Christians of the church in Philippi and to strengthen them in the difficulties they faced. Paul wrote while in prison—he, too, was suffering for his faith—but he wrote with joy, demonstrating that a Christian can be passionate for Christ regardless of the circumstances.

SETTING

Philippi was a small Roman colony in the province of Macedonia in northeastern Greece. Located about ten miles inland from the Aegean Sea, Philippi was important because of its strategic position on the Via Egnatia, the major east–west Roman route through Macedonia.

Philippi was the first town of Greece to hear the Good News of Christ from Paul on his second missionary journey (about AD 50; see Acts 16:11–40). From the beginning, there was opposition to Paul's preaching. During his brief stay there, he was thrown into prison and then asked to leave town, but not before a group of new believers had been established (Acts 16:35–40).

Perhaps six years later (AD 56–57) on his third missionary trip, Paul visited Philippi again (see Acts 20:1–6). After that, it is possible that he never saw the Philippian Christians again (but see 1 Tim 1:3, about AD 63).

Paul later wrote Philippians while in prison. Epaphroditus had brought a monetary gift to Paul from the Philippians and was returning to Philippi, so Paul sent this warm letter of encouragement along for the church. Aware that the Philippians were being persecuted, he wanted to support and strengthen them, in part by sharing with them his experience as a prisoner for Christ's sake.

SUMMARY

This letter addresses no major theological or moral problems. It is a warm letter of encouragement sent to a church suffering for its faith.

- ◀ The Setting of Philippians. PHILIPPI was located on the EGNATIAN WAY, a major Roman trade road through MACEDONIA. Paul founded the church there on his second missionary journey (AD 50–52; Acts 15:36–18:22) and visited again during his third missionary journey (about AD 56; see Acts 20:1–2). When Paul wrote to the Philippians, he was in prison, but it is uncertain when or where.

After a brief introduction (1:1-2), Paul affirms his gratitude to God for the Philippians and prays for their spiritual growth (1:3-11). He then talks about his own experience of imprisonment and the way it has resulted in the spread of the Good News (1:12-19). Paul's greatest desire is to live and die for Christ, whatever his situation (1:20-26). The Philippians, too, must be strong in their faith as they suffer for Christ (1:27-30). They should warmly support one another, remembering the example of Christ, who gave up everything in sacrificing his life for theirs (2:1-18). Paul, too, is willing to do this.

Final Greetings

Eager to know how the Philippians are doing and to tell them how he is, Paul will soon be sending Epaphroditus and Timothy to them, both of whom have proven their willingness to suffer for Christ (2:19-30).

Paul next warns the Philippians about Jewish-Christian propaganda requiring adherence to the law of Moses (3:1-3). He recounts his own conversion from Judaism and the Mosaic law. The only important thing now is Christ—knowing Christ and his righteousness, sharing in his suffering and death, and experiencing his resurrection power both now and in the future (3:4-11). All believers are to be single-minded in pursuing full life in Christ (3:12-4:1).

In closing, Paul encourages the Philippians to fill their lives with joy, prayer, and thanksgiving, and to focus their minds on God's good gifts, even in their persecution (4:2-9). He thanks them for the gift they have sent. He tells them that he has learned to be content regardless of his circumstances, and implies that they, too, should learn to live this way (4:1-20). As usual, Paul ends his letter with praise to God, greetings to the believers, and an invocation of the Lord's grace (4:21-23).

DATE AND PLACE OF WRITING

There is no consensus on where or when the Prison Letters (Ephesians, Philippians, Colossians, and Philemon) were written, though all of them speak of having been written from prison. They have traditionally been linked to Rome, where Paul was imprisoned twice (AD 60-62 and around AD 64-65). More recently, scholars have made a case for Ephesus (AD 53-56). During Paul's two- to three-year stay in that city, he experienced much opposition and suffering (see Acts 19:23-41; 2 Cor 11:23-28).

LITERARY UNITY

In order to account for sudden changes of content and tone in the writing (see especially 3:2-4:3 and 4:10-20), some have suggested that Philippians

Joy is how believers who know Christ and whose futures are guaranteed by Christ respond in the context of present difficulties. . . . Christ is the gospel; Christ is Savior and Lord; thus Christ is our life; Christ is our way of life; Christ is our future; Christ is our joy.

MOISÉS SILVA
Philippians (2005)

is actually a combination of several different letters or fragments joined by an anonymous editor. An early Christian writer, Polycarp, also spoke of "letters" of Paul to the Philippians. Many others, however, judge this to be a single coherent letter, written by Paul, who in his letters often changes the subject unexpectedly to address new issues.

MEANING AND MESSAGE

Paul writes from prison to Christians who are experiencing opposition, encouraging them to imitate his life and attitudes. By speaking of his own courage, commitment, confidence, and contentment even in prison, Paul encourages the Philippians to respond similarly as they face opposition. In doing so, he shows us that a Christian life of joy, peace, contentment, prayer, thanksgiving, and devotion to Christ can transcend all circumstances.

Though Paul is in prison, he is not ashamed but rejoices that it has resulted in a greater spread of the Good News. He desires to be bold for Christ, whatever the consequences, for he knows he is called to live for Christ and he feels privileged to suffer for Christ (see 1:12-26).

Even in prison, Paul can say that his deepest desire is to be completely filled with Christ's life. Paul is ready to share in Christ's suffering and death, and eager to experience the full power of his resurrection. Then, whatever happens, he will one day be raised from the dead like Christ (3:7-14). Meanwhile, Paul has learned to be content whatever his lot in life. He relies on Christ and has found Christ's strength sufficient in even the most trying situations (4:11-13).

Paul urges the Philippians to be full of joy in the Lord as they experience opposition. They are not to worry about anything, but to pray for all their needs with a heart full of gratitude to God. In this way, they will experience the deep peace of God (see 4:4-9).

1. OPENING GREETINGS (1:1-11)

Greetings from Paul

1 This letter is from Paul and Timothy, ^aslaves of Christ Jesus.

I am writing to all of God's holy people in Philippi who belong to Christ Jesus, including the ^bchurch leaders and ^cdeacons.

²May God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ give you grace and peace.

Paul's Thanksgiving and Prayer

³Every time I think of you, I give thanks to my God. ⁴Whenever I pray, I make my requests for all of you with joy, ⁵for you have been my partners in spreading the Good News about Christ from the time you first heard it until now. ⁶And I am certain that God, who began the good work within you, will continue his work until it is finally

1:1-2 Paul introduces his letter by listing the names of the senders and recipients of his letter, then giving an invocation of grace and peace.

1:1 Timothy was one of Paul's most trusted co-workers and messengers (see "Timothy" at Acts 16:1-3, p. 1860). He is listed as co-sender, as he is for five other letters (2 Cor, Col, 1 Thes, 2 Thes, Phlm). • slaves of Christ Jesus: As those who belong entirely to Christ, they were completely devoted to his service (see 2:20-21). • God's holy people have been made holy in God's sight by Christ's redeeming work (see Eph 1:4, 7; 5:25-27; Col 1:22), and they are being sanctified by the transforming work of the Holy Spirit in their lives (cp. 4:21). • Philippi was a Roman colony in the province of Macedonia. The church in Philippi was the first Christian community in Greece (see Acts 16:11-40). • In the early church, church leaders (or overseers, or bishops) usually provided spiritual leadership, while deacons attended to practical matters (see 1 Tim 3:1-13). There were no professional pastors or priests as there are today (cp. 1 Cor 14:26-31).

1:2 Grace is undeserved blessing that comes from God; peace is well-being and contentedness rooted in the Good News and brought about by the Holy Spirit (see Gal 5:22). These qualities are gifts from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ (see Rom 5:1-2).

1:3-11 Following his usual practice, Paul thanks God for the recipients and prays for them.

1:4-6 Paul's joy derived from how the Philippians had joined him as partners in spreading the Good News and from his confidence that God would continue his good work in them.

1:5 Their partnership included financial support (see 4:10-20).

1:6 God, who began the good work within you: God takes the initiative finished on the day when Christ Jesus returns.

⁷So it is right that I should feel as I do about all of you, for you have a special place in my heart. You share with me the special favor of God, both in my imprisonment and in ⁴defending and confirming the truth of the Good News. ⁸God knows how much I love you and long for you with the tender compassion of Christ Jesus.

⁹I pray that your ⁹love will overflow more and more, and that you will keep on growing in knowledge and understanding. ¹⁰For I want you to understand what really matters, so that you may live pure and blameless lives until the day of Christ's return. ¹¹May you always be filled with the fruit of your salvation—the righteous character produced in your life by Jesus Christ—for this will bring much glory and praise to God.

2. PAUL'S PERSONAL CIRCUMSTANCES (1:12-26)

Paul's Joy That Christ Is Preached

¹²And I want you to know, my dear brothers and sisters, that everything that has happened to me here has helped to spread the Good News. ¹³For everyone here, including the whole palace guard, knows that I am in chains because of Christ. ¹⁴And because of my imprisonment, most of the believers here have gained confidence and boldly speak God's message without fear.

¹⁵It's true that some are preaching out of jealousy and rivalry. But others preach about Christ with pure motives. ¹⁶They preach because they love me, for they know I have been appointed to ⁶defend the Good News. ¹⁷Those others do not have pure motives as they preach about Christ. They preach with selfish ambition, not sincerely, intending to make my chains more painful to me. ¹⁸But that doesn't matter. Whether their motives are false or genuine, the message about Christ is being preached either way, so I rejoice. And I will continue to rejoice. ¹⁹For I know that as you pray for me and the Spirit of Jesus Christ helps me, this will lead to my deliverance.

Paul's Life for Christ

²⁰For I fully expect and hope that I will never be ashamed, but that I will continue to be bold for Christ, as I have been in the past. And I trust that my life will bring honor to Christ, whether I live or die. ²¹For to me, living means living for Christ, and dying is even better. ²²But if I live, I can do more fruitful work for Christ. So I really don't know which is better. ²³I'm torn between two desires: I long to go and be with Christ, which would be far better for me. ²⁴But for your sakes, it is better that I continue to live.

²⁵Knowing this, I am convinced that I will remain alive so I can continue to help all of you grow and experience the joy of your faith. ²⁶And when I come to you again, you will have even more reason to take pride in Christ Jesus because of what he is doing through me.

to work his salvation in people (see Rom 9:16; Eph 1:3-8, 11; 2:4-10), so he can be trusted to continue his work of changing people into the likeness of his Son (see Rom 8:29; Eph 4:13, 15).

1:7 You share with me the special favor of God: Perhaps their lives were blessed because of Paul's suffering and witness; perhaps they had suffered together with him (see 1:29).

1:9-10 Love is a fruit of Christ's Spirit within them (Rom 5:5; Gal 5:22). • growing in knowledge and understanding: In this way, believers can understand what really matters (see Rom 12:2) and live pure and blameless lives until the day of Christ's return (cp. 1 Thes 3:12-13; 5:23).

1:11 with the fruit of your salvation . . . by Jesus Christ: Literally with the fruit of righteousness through Jesus Christ. • Righteous character cannot be produced by human effort; it comes only through the Spirit of Christ working in people's hearts. • Glory and praise to God is the ultimate purpose for which God's people live (see Eph 1:6, 12, 14).

1:12-19 Paul rejoiced that his imprisonment had resulted in the spread of the Good News.

1:12 my dear brothers and sisters: Literally brothers, a generic term commonly used to address both men and women. • Everything that has happened to me here refers to Paul's imprisonment. • has helped to spread the Good News: See Acts 28:17-31 for an example of this.

1:13 The whole palace guard (literally including all the Praetorium) were workers in the emperor's or provincial governor's official residence (see 4:22). • Paul was in prison because of Christ—that is, because of preaching the Good News of Christ (cp. Acts 21:26-28:31).

1:14 As a result of Paul's courage and boldness, the believers (literally the brothers in the Lord; see note on 1:12) had become more daring and less fearful in proclaiming God's message (some manuscripts read the message). Paul's boldness was contagious.

1:15-18 some are preaching out of jealousy and rivalry: They evidently were believers who were critical of Paul (cp. 2 Cor 10-13; Gal 4:12-20; 5:7-12). Even so, the message about Christ was being preached, so Paul rejoiced.

1:19 this will lead to my deliverance: Paul expected to be released from prison soon (see 1:25-26; 2:24; contrast 2 Tim 4:6, written from prison at a later time when Paul expected death).

1:21 dying is even better: For believers, death holds no fear, for death leads directly into the presence of Christ (see 1:23; cp. John 5:24; 11:25-26; Rom 8:38-39).

1:23 I long to go and be with Christ: Death leads believers immediately into the Lord's presence (cp. 3:20-21; 1 Cor 15:20-23, 51-52; 2 Cor 5:1-8; 1 Thes 4:13-17).

1:25 The well-being of the church is more important to Paul than his own desire to be with Christ. • experience the joy of your faith: Believers are encouraged to find joy even in the midst of suffering (see 4:4; John 15:11, 20; 16:20-24; 1 Thes 5:16).

3. THE LIFE IN CHRIST (1:27–2:18)Live as Citizens of Heaven

²⁷Above all, you must live as citizens of heaven, conducting yourselves in a manner worthy of the Good News about Christ. Then, whether I come and see you again or only hear about you, I will know that you are standing together with one ^aspirit and one purpose, fighting together for the ^bfaith, which is the Good News. ²⁸Don't be intimidated in any way by your enemies. This will be a sign to them that they are going to be destroyed, but that you are going to be saved, even by God himself. ²⁹For you have been given not only the privilege of trusting in Christ but also the privilege of suffering for him. ³⁰We are in this struggle together. You have seen my struggle in the past, and you know that I am still in the midst of it.

Have the Attitude of Christ

2 Is there any ¹encouragement from belonging to Christ? Any comfort from his love? Any ¹fellowship together in the Spirit? Are your hearts tender and compassionate? ²Then make me truly happy by agreeing wholeheartedly with each other, loving one another, and working together with one mind and purpose.

³Don't be selfish; don't try to impress others. Be humble, thinking of others as better than yourselves. ⁴Don't look out only for your own interests, but take an interest in others, too.

⁵You must have the same attitude that Christ Jesus had.

⁶Though he was God, he did not think of equality with God as something to cling to.

⁷Instead, he gave up his divine privileges;
he took the humble position of a slave and was born as a human being.

When he appeared in human form,

⁸ he humbled himself in obedience to God

Living for Christ (1:21)

From prison Paul writes, "To me, living means living for Christ" (1:21). Why are believers called to devote their lives to Christ?

1. Believers acknowledge that they owe everything to Christ, especially their salvation. Devoting their life to his service expresses their eternal indebtedness and gratitude (see Rom 12:1).

2. Believers acknowledge Christ as their master and Lord and submit to Christ's rule in their lives. They recognize that they belong to the Lord and no longer live simply for themselves (see Rom 14:7-9; 2 Cor 5:14-15).

3. Believers now share in Christ's death and resurrection—they have died to themselves and have risen with him (see Rom 6:3-14; cp. Gal 2:19-20). They have a new identity in Christ (3:20; Rom 8:14-17; Eph 1:11, 14).

4. Believers recognize that everything of value is found in Christ. Things of the world that once seemed important have lost their attraction; nothing compares to the infinite value of knowing Christ (3:7-11; Eph 1:3-3:21; Col 1:15-3:4).

1:27-30 Paul encourages the Philippian Christians to live in a way that is worthy of the Good News (cp. Eph 4:1; Col 1:10; 1 Thes 2:12), particularly by standing strong despite persecution.

1:27 As foreigners in this world, the Philippian believers are to live as citizens of heaven (cp. 3:20; 1 Pet 2:9-11).

1:28 a sign to them that they are going to be destroyed, but that you are going to be saved: As translated, the persecutors would be convicted by the Philippians' example. The same Greek phrase could also be translated a sign to them that you are going to be destroyed, but a sign to you that you are going to be saved. By that interpretation, the persecutors would remain blind to the truth (cp. 2 Cor 2:15-16).

1:29 the privilege of suffering: What the world considers dishonorable, Christians consider an honor because it is for him—it honors Christ.

1:30 We are in this struggle together: Both Paul and the Philippians faced strong opposition—Paul was in prison, and the Philippians were being persecuted. • You have seen my struggle in the past: See Acts 16:11-40; cp. 1 Thes 2:2.

2:1-11 In the midst of their persecution, Paul encourages the Philippians to be united and to live a humble life like Christ.

2:1-2 Is there . . . ? These rhetorical questions expect positive answers. Those who have a real experience of Christ should live together in harmony and love.

2:3-4 Don't be selfish: Self-centeredness is antithetical to genuine care for others (cp. 2:20-21; 1 Cor 10:24; Gal 5:26).

2:6-11 This early Christian hymn is about Christ's preexistence and divine nature, incarnation and death, exaltation and lordship.

2:6 Though he was God: Or Being in the form of God; see John 1:1-3; 17:5; Col 1:15.

2:7 he gave up his divine privileges (literally he emptied himself): The rest of 2:7-8 explains this ultimate expression of divine self-denial (cp. 2 Cor 8:9). • the humble position of a slave (or the form of a slave): Paul might have been thinking of Isa 52:13-53:12. • and was born as a human: See John 1:14; 1 Tim 3:16. • When he appeared in human form: Some English translations put this phrase in v 8.

2:8 in obedience to God: It was God's will that Jesus die for the sins of humanity (see Isa 53:7; Matt 26:39; John 3:16; 10:17-18; Rom 5:8, 19; 8:3;

Shine Brightly for Christ

¹² Dear friends, you always followed my instructions when I was with you. And now that I am away, it is even more important. Work hard to show the results of your salvation, obeying God with deep reverence and fear. ¹³For God is working in you, giving you the desire and the power to do what pleases him.

¹⁴Do everything without complaining and arguing, ¹⁵so that no one can criticize you. Live clean, innocent lives as children of God, shining like bright lights in a world full of crooked and perverse people. ¹⁶Hold firmly to the word of life; then, on the day of Christ's return, I will be proud that I did not run the race in vain and that my work was not useless. ¹⁷But I will rejoice even if I lose my life, pouring it out like a liquid offering to God, just like your faithful ^bservice is an offering to God. And I want all of you to share that joy. ¹⁸Yes, you should rejoice, and I will share your joy.

The Divine Nature of Christ (2:6-11)

Rev 5:8-14

Philippians 2:6-11, often called the Christ Hymn, reveals early Christian beliefs about the nature of Jesus Christ. This hymn affirms that the early Christians believed in the preexistence and divine nature of Christ (see also Col 1:15-20; 2:9; cp. John 1:1-2; Heb 1:1-3). Christ is not simply another human prophet. He was present with God the Father from the very beginning, and he is the one through whom the universe was created. As the Son of God, he shares the nature of God himself.

The hymn also affirms that Jesus Christ came to earth in an act of immense humility—the infinite God became human (2:7; see Col 1:15; John 1:10-14; Heb 2:14, 17). Jesus Christ, the glorious Creator of the universe, died as a sacrificial offering for the sins of human beings so that we might be forgiven and be reconciled to God (2:8; see John 3:14-17; Rom 5:9-10; Col 1:20, 22; 2:13-14; Heb 1:3; 10:9-14), as the Scriptures had foretold (see Isa 53:3-12).

This hymn also affirms that God raised Jesus from the dead, has given him “the place of highest honor” in heaven (2:9), and conferred on him the title “Lord” (2:11; cp. Col 1:18). One day, all created beings will bow before him and acknowledge that he is Lord of the entire universe (2:9-11), deserving of the worship that God alone is worthy to receive (see Rev 5:8-14).

Heb 5:8; 1 Jn 4:9-10, 14). • a criminal's death on a cross: In the Roman empire, crucifixion was a cruel and humiliating punishment for criminals.

2:9 As a result of Christ's humble obedience, God elevated him to the place of highest honor; see Acts 1:9-10; cp. Acts 2:32-33; 7:55-56. • the name above all other names: Jesus has supreme authority and power (2:10-11; cp. Matt 28:18; John 17:5; Acts 2:33-36; Heb 2:9; 12:2).

2:10-11 The entire creation, including spiritual powers and angels, humans on earth, and those who have died, will one day acknowledge the authority of Jesus Christ as Lord (see Eph 1:9-10, 21; Col 1:20-25; 1 Pet 3:22). • every tongue declare (cp. Isa 45:23; Rom 14:11): This does not imply universal salvation, because not all will declare that he is Lord freely out of love and devotion. • Lord, a divine title representing the OT name Yahweh, is frequently applied to Jesus in the NT.

2:12-18 Paul encourages believers to remain firm in their faith and to live faithful, obedient, and pure lives modeled after Christ.

2:12 obeying God (see John 3:36; Rom 1:5): Believers must reckon with God's judgment like everyone else (cp. 1 Cor 3:10-13), so they must live before him obediently, with deep reverence and fear.

2:13 For God is working in you: God empowers and energizes believers' lives (see John 15:5; 1 Cor 12:6; 15:10; 2 Cor 3:5; 1 Thes 2:13). Both the desire and the power to do what pleases him come from God.

2:14 Complaining and arguing arise from self-centeredness (see 1 Cor 10:10; 1 Pet 4:9; Jude 1:16), whereas believers are called to sacrificial love (2:4).

2:15 shining like bright lights: Believers are to draw people to God by their lives (see Matt 5:13-16). • in a world full of crooked and perverse people: See Deut 32:5; Rom 1:18-32; 3:10-23.

2:16 Hold firmly to the word of life: Believers must maintain their faith in Christ's life-giving Good News. God is faithful, but they, too, must remain faithful (1:6; 2:12-13). • run the race: Paul frequently uses athletic language as a metaphor for the Christian life (see 3:12-14; 1 Cor 9:24, 26; Gal 2:2; 5:7; 2 Tim 4:7).

2:17-18 I will rejoice even if I lose my life, pouring it out like a liquid offering to God (literally I will rejoice even if I am to be poured out as a liquid offering): Both Jews and pagans often poured out a libation of wine either on a sacrifice or at the base of the altar in honor of the deity. Paul's entire life was an offering to God (cp. Rom 12:1; 15:16). • Faithful service is a cause for rejoicing, because nothing done for God is in vain (see 1 Cor 15:58).

4. PLANS FOR TIMOTHY AND EPAPHRODITUS (2:19-30)

Paul Commends Timothy

¹⁹If the Lord Jesus is willing, I hope to send Timothy to you soon for a visit. Then he can cheer me up by telling me how you are getting along. ²⁰I have no one else like Timothy, who genuinely cares about your welfare. ²¹All the others care only for themselves and not for what matters to Jesus Christ. ²²But you know how Timothy has proved himself. Like a son with his father, he has served with me in preaching the Good News. ²³I hope to send him to you just as soon as I find out what is going to happen to me here. ²⁴And I have confidence from the Lord that I myself will come to see you soon.

Paul Commends Epaphroditus

²⁵Meanwhile, I thought I should send Epaphroditus back to you. He is a true brother, co-worker, and fellow soldier. And he was your messenger to help me in my need. ²⁶I am sending him because he has been longing to see you, and he was very distressed that you heard he was ill. ²⁷And he certainly was ill; in fact, he almost died. But God had mercy on him—and also on me, so that I would not have one sorrow after another.

²⁸So I am all the more anxious to send him back to you, for I know you will be glad to see him, and then I will not be so worried about you. ²⁹Welcome him in the Lord's love and with great joy, and give him the honor that people like him deserve. ³⁰For he risked his life for the work of Christ, and he was at the point of death while doing for me what you couldn't do from far away.

5. WARNING AGAINST ENEMIES AND DANGERS (3:1-4:9)

The Priceless Value of Knowing Christ

3 Whatever happens, my dear brothers and sisters, rejoice in the Lord. I never get tired of telling you these things, and I do it to safeguard your faith.

²Watch out for those dogs, those people who do evil, those mutilators who say you must be circumcised to be saved. ³For we who worship by the Spirit of God are the ones who are truly circumcised. We rely on what Christ Jesus has done for us. We put no confidence in human effort, ⁴though I could have confidence in my own effort if anyone could. Indeed, if others have reason for confidence in their own efforts, I have even more!

⁵I was circumcised when I was eight days old. I am a pure-blooded citizen of Israel and a member of the tribe of Benjamin—a real Hebrew if there ever was one! I was a member of the Pharisees, who demand the strictest obedience to the Jewish law. ⁶I was so zealous that I harshly persecuted the

2:19-24 Paul commends Timothy, whom he hopes to send to the Philippians in the near future. Timothy had accompanied Paul on his first trip to Philippi (see Acts 16:1-3, 12; 17:15; 18:5; cp. Acts 19:22). Timothy stood out as a person whose whole life was sacrificially devoted to what matters to Jesus Christ and to the welfare of his people.

2:23 What is going to happen to me here possibly refers to the outcome of Paul's trial.

2:24 Paul had confidence that he would soon be freed from prison and be able to visit the Philippians (see 1:19, 25-26).

2:25-30 Paul commends Epaphroditus (see also 4:18), a messenger from the church at Philippi whom he was now sending back to them, perhaps carrying this letter. • The description fellow soldier suggests the difficulties, opposition, and dangers encountered in Christ's work.

2:27 Epaphroditus's recovery from a nearly fatal illness is attributed to God's mercy, both on Epaphroditus and on Paul, who was already suffering in prison.

2:29-30 Welcome him in the Lord's love: Literally Welcome him in the Lord.

• Epaphroditus deserved their honor, for he risked his life for Christ on their behalf (for the importance of showing honor, cp. Rom 10:12; 13:7; Eph 5:33; 6:2; 1 Tim 5:17; 6:1; 1 Pet 2:17; 3:7).

3:1 my dear brothers and sisters: Literally brothers; also in 3:13, 17. See note on 1:12. • rejoice in the Lord: This theme is resumed in 4:4 (see also 1:18; 2:17-18, 28; 4:10). • The phrase these things (literally the same things) is ambiguous: it may refer to (1) the immediately preceding encouragement to rejoice in the Lord; (2) the earlier encouragement to follow Christ's example (2:1-18); (3) Paul's exhortation in general; or (4) the following warning about threats to their faith.

3:2-11 Paul warns the believers against being influenced by Jewish Christians who argued that circumcision is necessary for salvation. He then talks about his own conversion from Judaism to Christ.

3:2 those dogs, . . . those mutilators: Here Paul reverses the traditional Jewish practice of referring to Gentiles as dogs (cp. Mark 7:27-28). Paul's strongest insults are directed against Jews who preached that Gentiles must be circumcised in order to be saved (cp. 2 Cor 11:13-15; Gal 1:6-9; 5:1-6, 12).

3:3 worship by the Spirit of God: some manuscripts read worship God in spirit; one early manuscript reads worship in spirit (cp. John 4:24). • Circumcision was understood as identifying a true man of God (see Gen 17:10-14), but those who put their trust in Christ are the ones who are truly circumcised in heart (see Rom 2:28-29; cp. Jer 4:4; Eph 2:11; Col 2:11-13).

3:4 in my own effort (literally in the flesh): Paul uses flesh for self-reliance and human effort in contrast to reliance on Christ and empowerment by the Spirit.

3:5-6 If anyone could rely on Jewish credentials, Paul could: He practiced the strictest obedience to the Jewish law and was extremely zealous for the Jewish religion.

3:5 circumcised when I was eight days old: See Gen 17:12; Lev 12:3; Luke 1:59; 2:21. • Paul was a member of the Pharisees, the Jewish sect known for its strict observance of the law (see Acts 23:6; 26:5; see also "The Pharisees" at Matt 3:7, p. 1581).

3:6 I harshly persecuted the church (see Acts 8:1-3; 9:1-2, 21; Gal 1:13):

church. And as for righteousness, I obeyed the law without fault.

⁷I once thought these things were valuable, but now I consider them worthless because of what Christ has done. ⁸Yes, everything else is worthless when compared with the infinite value of knowing Christ Jesus my Lord. For his sake I have discarded everything else, counting it all as garbage, so that I could gain Christ ⁹and become one with him. I no longer count on my own ¹⁰righteousness through obeying the law; rather, I become righteous through faith in Christ. For God's way of making us ¹¹right with himself depends on faith. ¹⁰I want to know Christ and experience the mighty power that ¹²raised him from the dead. I want to suffer ¹³with him, sharing in his death, ¹¹so that one way or another I will experience the resurrection from the dead!

Pressing toward the Goal

¹²I don't mean to say that I have already achieved these things or that I have already reached perfection. But I press on to possess that perfection for which Christ Jesus first possessed me. ¹³No, dear brothers and sisters, I have not achieved it, but I focus on this one thing: Forgetting the past and looking forward to what lies ahead, ¹⁴I press on to reach the end of the race and receive the heavenly prize for which God, through Christ Jesus, is calling us.

¹⁵Let all who are spiritually mature agree on these things. If you disagree on some point, I believe God will make it plain to you. ¹⁶But we must hold on to the progress we have already made.

¹⁷Dear brothers and sisters, pattern your lives after mine, and learn from those who follow our ¹⁸example. ¹⁸For I have told you

Christian Joy (3:1; 4:4)

John 15:11; 16:24
Rom 5:3-4; 8:28
Gal 5:22
Eph 5:18
1 Thes 5:16

In this letter to a persecuted church, Paul urges Christians to be filled with joy (see 3:1; 4:4), just as he does the persecuted Thessalonian believers ("always be joyful," 1 Thes 5:16). In the last hours of his life, Jesus also desired that his disciples "be filled with [his] joy" (see John 15:11; 16:24).

Superficial happiness is dependent on circumstances. Christian joy is clearly different; it is rooted in a person's relationship with the Lord, and it is resilient even in the midst of suffering and death. Joy comes in knowing that whatever happens, God will use everything for our ultimate good (see Rom 5:3-4; 8:28). Believers also have joy from the dynamic presence of God's Spirit in their hearts (see Gal 5:22). The real secret to a joyful life is in being continuously "filled with the Holy Spirit" (Eph 5:18). The life and attitude of believers are not defined by outward circumstances, but by their relationship with the living God.

His actions demonstrated his zeal for Judaism, to which the Good News of Jesus was seen as a threat. • Paul's righteousness, as judged by human standards, was another indication of his zeal for the law (see also Gal 1:14; for Paul's later Christian view, cp. Rom 3:23; 7:14-25).

3:7-8 As a Christian, Paul now regarded these things (3:5-6) as worthless because of what Christ has done: A believer's relationship with God is defined by knowing Christ (cp. 3:10; John 17:3) and nothing else. The only important thing is to gain Christ, thus receiving the gift of eternal salvation (cp. John 3:16; 1 Jn 5:11-13). By comparison, all other things are meaningless garbage (or excrement).

3:9 Paul here summarizes the contrast between his understanding of salvation and that of his opponents (3:2). • Believers become one with Christ by trusting him for salvation and sharing his life (cp. John 15:1-5). • We become righteous, not by observing the law of Moses, but through faith in Christ (or through the faithfulness of Christ). This is God's way of making us right with himself: Salvation cannot be earned, but only received as a free gift (see Rom 1:17; 3:21-26; 4:5-8; Gal 2:16; Eph 2:8-9).

3:10 to know Christ: In knowing him, a person knows and is accepted by God (cp. 3:7-8; John 1:12-13; 17:3). • Believers experience the mighty power that raised him from the dead, both now and in eternity (see Rom 6:4-14; 8:10-11; Col 3:1-4). • to suffer with him, sharing in his death: Joined to Christ, a believer has the privilege of experiencing his life and death (see 1:29; 2 Cor 4:10-12; Col 1:24; 1 Pet 4:13-16).

3:11 to experience the resurrection from the dead is to be saved from judgment and receive eternal life (see Rev 20:4-6). Paul was aware of God's holiness and the severity of the final judgment (Rev 20:11-15); he knew he must persevere in his pursuit of Christ and salvation (cp. Gal 5:5).

3:12-4:1 Using himself as an example, Paul encourages the Philippians to pursue Christ and the hope of heaven with determination and strength.

3:13-14 not achieved it: Some manuscripts read not yet achieved it. • the race: See note on 2:16. • Paul was willing to give up everything else for the ultimate goal, the heavenly prize of eternal life.

3:15 Those who are spiritually mature (cp. 1 Cor 2:6; 3:1) will share Paul's perspective that eternal things are most important in life (3:12-14; cp. 2 Cor 4:16-18).

3:16 hold on to the progress we have already made: There must be no slipping or reversal; as believers, our conduct must be consistent with our spiritual understanding.

3:17 pattern your lives after mine: Paul's serious pursuit of Christ and the life to which God had called him (3:7-14; 4:9; 1 Cor 4:6, 16-17; 11:1; 2 Thes 3:7-9) contrasts markedly with that of the enemies of Christ who are described next (3:18-19).

3:18 The identity of the enemies is not known; they might have been (1) Jews or Jewish Christians proud of their often before, and I say it again with tears in my eyes, that there are many whose conduct shows they are really enemies of the cross of Christ. ¹⁹They are headed for destruction. Their god is their appetite, they brag about shameful things, and they think only about this life here on earth. ²⁰But we are citizens of heaven, where the ²¹Lord Jesus Christ lives. And we are eagerly waiting for him to return as our ²²Savior. ²³He will take our weak mortal bodies and ²⁴change them into ²⁵glorious bodies like his own, using the same power with which he will bring everything under his control.

4 Therefore, my dear brothers and sisters, stay true to the Lord. I love you and long to see you, dear friends, for you are my joy and the crown I receive for my work.

Words of Encouragement

²Now I appeal to Euodia and Syntyche. Please, because you belong to the Lord, settle your disagreement. ³And I ask you, my true partner, to help these two women, for they worked hard with me in telling others the Good News. They worked along with Clement and the rest of my co-workers, whose names are written in the Book of Life.

⁴Always be full of joy in the Lord. I say it again—rejoice! ⁵Let everyone see that you are considerate in all you do. Remember, the Lord is coming soon.

⁶Don't worry about anything; instead, pray about everything. Tell God what you need, and thank him for all he has done. ⁷Then you will experience God's ⁸peace, which exceeds anything we can understand. His peace will guard your hearts and minds as you live in Christ Jesus.

⁸And now, dear brothers and sisters, one final thing. Fix your thoughts on what is true, and honorable, and right, and pure, and lovely, and admirable. Think about things that are ⁹excellent and worthy of praise. ¹⁰Keep putting into practice all you learned and received from me—everything you heard from me and saw me doing. Then the God of ¹¹peace will be with you.

6. THANKS FOR THEIR GIFTS (4:10-20)

¹⁰How I praise the Lord that you are concerned about me again. I know you have always been concerned for me, but you circumcision (as in 3:2), whose emphasis on observant Judaism contradicted the cross of Christ; (2) pseudo-believers living a worldly, immoral life (cp. 3:19); or (3) professing believers who had rejected Paul's cross-centered view of the Good News. Christ's crucifixion as a criminal was scandalous and offensive to many (see 1 Cor 1:23; cp. Rom 9:33; 1 Pet 2:8).

3:19 Their god is their appetite may refer to their greed, their sensuality, or their self-interest (cp. Rom 16:18). • they brag about shameful things: This is best understood as a reference to immorality rather than to pride in being circumcised. • Eternal destruction is the ultimate judgment of God for those who reject Christ and live self-centered, sinful lives (see 2 Thes 1:8-9; cp. Phil 1:28; Matt 7:13; Rom 9:22; 1 Cor 1:18; 2 Thes 2:10; 1 Tim 6:9; 2 Pet 2:3, 13; Jude 1:10; Rev 11:18). • They are unable to see beyond this life (cp. John 12:25; 1 Jn 2:15-17).

3:20 By contrast, believers who know their home is in heaven (see Eph 2:19) with the Lord Jesus Christ fill their minds with thoughts of heaven (see Col 3:1-2; cp. 1 Cor 15:19; 1 Pet 2:11) and Christ's return (see 1 Cor 1:7; Titus 2:13).

3:21 change them into glorious bodies: See 1 Cor 15:42-54; cp. Rom 8:23. • he will bring everything under his control: See 1 Cor 15:24-27.

4:1 my dear brothers and sisters:

Literally brothers; also in 4:8. See note on 1:12. • stay true to the Lord (literally stand in the Lord): Cp. 1:27. • Their continuing faithfulness to Christ was a deep source of joy to Paul and the crown for his hard work (see 1 Thes 2:19-20).

4:2-9 Before closing, Paul addresses a small conflict in the church and writes a few words of encouragement.

4:2 because you belong to the Lord, settle your disagreement: The Lord's people are to live together in harmony (see 2:2; 1 Cor 1:10; Eph 4:1-3, 31-32; Col 3:12-15). The nature of the dispute between Euodia and Syntyche is unknown.

4:3 my true partner or loyal Syzygus: The Greek word suzuge is either a proper name or a description; this person is unknown. • Nothing more is known of Clement. • Those whose names are written in the Book of Life are true believers, destined to receive eternal life (see Luke 10:20; Rev 3:5; 13:8; 17:8; 20:12, 15; 21:27; cp. Exod 32:32; Ps 69:28; Dan 12:1).

4:4-6 rejoice! . . . pray . . . thank him: Cp. 1 Thes 5:16-18; both passages are addressed to persecuted churches; see also Rom 12:12.

4:4 In Paul's letters, joy and rejoicing are a response to the Good News (see Eph 5:19-20). Joy is not dependent on circumstances; believers find joy in the Lord even in the midst of suffering.

• rejoice! See 2:18; 3:1; Rom 12:12, 15; 1 Thes 5:16.

4:5 Believers are to be considerate in their responses to others, even in persecution. They can afford to leave justice in God's hands because they know the Lord is coming soon (literally the Lord is near; cp. Jas 5:8-9).

4:6 Believers need not worry about anything because the heavenly Father loves his children and cares about their needs, and he has invited his children to pray about everything (see Matt 6:25-34; 7:9-11; Rom 12:12; Eph 6:18; 1 Thes 5:17; 1 Pet 5:7).

4:7 The life of trusting God (4:6) brings God's peace (see also Isa 26:3; John 14:27; Col 3:15).

4:8 Paul urges the Philippians to focus on God's good gifts so that, even during suffering and persecution, their lives will be exemplary and their minds and hearts will be filled with peace (4:7, 9).

4:9 all you learned and received from me: Everything Paul had taught them by word or example about the kind of life God desires (see 3:17; 1 Cor 4:6, 16-17; 2 Thes 3:7-9).

4:10-20 In closing, Paul thanks the Philippians for the gift they had sent him by the hand of Epaphroditus.

4:10 Why they didn't have the chance to help him earlier is not clear.

didn't have the chance to help me. ¹¹Not that I was ever in need, for I have learned how to be content with whatever I have. ¹²I know how to live on almost nothing or with everything. I have learned the secret of living in every situation, whether it is with a full stomach or empty, with plenty or little. ¹³For I can do everything through Christ, who gives me strength. ¹⁴Even so, you have done well to share with me in my present difficulty.

¹⁵As you know, you Philippians were the only ones who gave me financial help when I first brought you the Good News and then traveled on from Macedonia. No other church did this. ¹⁶Even when I was in Thessalonica you sent help more than once. ¹⁷I don't say this because I want a gift from you. Rather, I want you to receive a reward for your kindness.

¹⁸At the moment I have all I need—and more! I am generously supplied with the gifts you sent me with Epaphroditus. They are a sweet-smelling sacrifice that is acceptable and pleasing to God. ¹⁹And this same God who takes care of me will supply all your needs from his glorious riches, which have been given to us in Christ Jesus.

²⁰Now all glory to God our Father forever and ever! Amen.

7. FINAL GREETINGS (4:21-23)

²¹Give my greetings to each of God's holy people—all who belong to Christ Jesus. The brothers who are with me send you their greetings. ²²And all the rest of God's people send you greetings, too, especially those in Caesar's household.

²³May the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit.

4:11-12 As a slave of Christ, Paul has learned to be content with every situation, whether he had plenty or little. His life was filled with the joy that comes from doing the will of God whatever the cost.

4:13 through Christ (literally through the one): With Christ's help, Paul had the strength to do everything. In everything, especially while enduring suffering, Paul relied on the strength of Christ, who lived in him and worked through him (see 2 Cor 1:8-10; 4:7-12; 12:8-10; Gal 2:20; Col 1:27).

4:14 The Philippians' generosity and care were commendable, especially given Paul's present difficulty in prison.

4:15 the only ones who gave me financial help: By contrast, Paul determined not to accept financial help from the Corinthians because it would have damaged the reputation of the Good News in their eyes (1 Cor 9:11-18; 2 Cor 11:7-12). He did not face such a problem with the Philippians. • when I first brought you the Good News: See Acts 16:11-40.

4:16 After leaving Philippi (4:15) Paul had gone to Thessalonica (see Acts 17:1-8; cp. 1 Thes 2:1-14).

4:17 I don't say this because I want a gift from you: Paul preferred to support himself (see Acts 18:3; 1 Cor 4:12; 9:3-18; 2 Cor 11:7-11; 12:14-15). • The reward would be a blessing from God.

4:18 Epaphroditus (see also 2:25-30) had carried the gifts from Philippi. • Their gifts were a sweet-smelling sacrifice: In the OT, acceptable offerings were a pleasant fragrance to God (see Lev 1:9, 13, 17; 2:2, 9; 3:5, 16; cp. Rom 12:1; Eph 5:2).

4:20 Having reflected on God's glorious blessings, Paul concludes appropriately with an expression of praise to God.

4:22 Those in Caesar's household were believers employed in the service of the Roman government—perhaps those whom Paul had evangelized while in prison. They might have been especially close to Paul and concerned for him in prison (see 1:13).

4:23 In closing, Paul usually invokes the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ on those to whom he writes (see also 1:2). Believers depend on Christ's grace to save and sustain them.

• The spirit is the part of the person that relates directly to God. • Some manuscripts conclude this verse with Amen.

PAUL'S LETTER TO THE Colossians

The letter to the Colossians is a beautiful blend of theology and practice. It combines some of the deepest and most sublime teaching about Christ with very basic instruction. As strongly as any other book in the NT, Colossians reminds us that Christ must always be preeminent in a Christian's affections and worship.

SETTING

The city of Colosse was located about 120 miles (193 kilometers) east of Ephesus, in Asia Minor (modern-day Turkey).

Paul mentions Epaphras as the one who first brought the Good News to the Colossians (1:7). Epaphras was probably converted during Paul's three-year ministry in Ephesus. Ephesus was the commercial and governmental center for the whole province, which included Colosse. Luke tells us that during Paul's time in Ephesus, "people throughout the province of Asia . . . heard the word of the Lord" (Acts 19:10). While Paul had not visited Colosse (2:1), he was the spiritual "father" of Epaphras and thus the spiritual "grandfather" of their church. So he wrote with both apostolic authority and personal concern.

When Colossians was written, Epaphras was visiting Paul in prison (4:12). He had told Paul about some of the difficulties the young church was going through. He was especially concerned about some false teachers in Colosse who were emphasizing the importance of "spiritual rulers and authorities" (2:15) and "spiritual powers of this world" (2:8, 20), and thus were detracting from Christ's preeminence. Paul wrote to address these issues.

SUMMARY

Colossians divides into two parts, with chs 1–2 focused on theology and chs 3–4 on practical matters.

Paul's greetings (1:1–2) are followed by a thanksgiving section (1:3–14), a typical way of opening a NT letter. Then, to make his key theological point, Paul quotes and adapts a hymn about the supremacy of Christ (1:15–20), then makes a practical application (1:21-23) before discussing his own ministry as apostle to the Gentiles (1:24-2:5). He then returns to his main point, urging the Colossians to maintain their allegiance to Christ Jesus, the one who provides for their spiritual life (2:6-15). The theological part of the letter concludes with a warning not to become preoccupied with rules as a means to spiritual fulfillment (2:16-23).

The more practical part of the letter (chs 3-4) opens with a general call to turn from sin and embrace the new life in Christ (3:1-11). Paul follows this with instructions for the Christian community (3:12-17) and family life (3:18-4:1). The letter concludes with an exhortation to prayer (4:2-6) and remarks about co-workers and other Christians (4:7-18).

DATE AND OCCASION OF WRITING

Remember my chains.

Colossians 4:18

Colossians, along with Ephesians, Philemon, and Philippians, are called "prison letters." All four were written while Paul was in jail for preaching about Jesus Christ (see 4:18). Ephesians, Colossians, and Philemon are closely related, having probably been written from the same place at about the same time (either Rome or Ephesus—see Ephesians Introduction, "Date and Place of Writing," p. 1996). These three letters share common themes and vocabulary and were written to people in the same part of the world: Colosse was only about 120 miles east of Ephesus in the Roman province of Asia Minor, and Philemon was a resident of Colosse.

Paul mentioned some of the same co-workers in each of the prison letters. In his letter to Philemon, he explained why he was sending Onesimus, Philemon's runaway slave, back to him. Onesimus also traveled with the letter to the Colossians (4:9). In both Colossians (4:7) and Ephesians (Eph 6:21), Paul said that Tychicus would give the churches more detailed information about Paul's situation. So Tychicus was probably the messenger who carried these three letters to their destinations in Asia Minor.

THE FALSE TEACHING

Paul wrote to the Colossians because false teachers were disturbing the church. Colosse was an important commercial center on one of the main Roman roads in its region, so the city would have been exposed to ideas from many religions and philosophies. Like many false teachings, the "Colossian heresy" was probably a mixture of various attitudes and ideas that were in the air at the time. We cannot identify these false teachers or the details of their particular teaching, but we can see some characteristics: (1) The false teachers were apparently insisting on the observance of Sabbath and new moon festivals (2:16), which suggests some Jewish input in their viewpoint; (2) they were preoccupied with following various rules, particularly pertaining to the body (asceticism); and (3) their emphasis on spiritual beings was typical of many religious movements of the period. The basic problem is clear: The teaching did not regard Christ as the center and origin of all religious experience. Any teaching or philosophy that fails to do so is not the Good News.

MEANING AND MESSAGE

In his letter to the Colossians, Paul steers a young Christian church back to the apostles' message of the Good News about Christ. To counter the influence of false teaching, Paul insisted that Christ is supreme (literally firstborn; see note on 1:15) over all beings in creation, both spiritual and physical. Jesus is the one in whom the very fullness of God resides. Jesus is also the only ultimate source of spiritual growth, the center from which all true spiritual experience must radiate (2:19). The false teachers were deriving their emphasis on rules from something other than Christ, and this meant that the rules could not produce spiritual benefit (2:23). In this case, Paul argues, addition means subtraction: Trying to add anything to Christ leads to subtracting the power that he alone gives to lead the Christian life.

Christ has reconciled us to the God in whom we now live, so all of our spiritual needs are fulfilled by Christ. We need no one and nothing else for true spiritual fulfillment.

Paul urged the Colossians to avoid putting too much stock in ritual practices (2:16-23). Instead, all Christians should identify with Christ in his death and resurrection (2:11, 19-20; 3:1-4) and let the Good News, as preached by the apostles, mold their thinking and behavior. Colossians reminds us that we must keep Christ at the center of all that we do, in our own spiritual journey and in the life of the church. Adding to Christ is inevitably a distortion of true Christian faith.

1. INTRODUCTION: GREETINGS FROM PAUL (1:1-2)

1 This letter is from Paul, chosen by the will of God to be an apostle of Christ Jesus, and from our brother Timothy.

²We are writing to God's holy people in the city of Colosse, who are faithful brothers and sisters in Christ.

May God our Father give you grace and peace.

2. THE GOOD NEWS ABOUT CHRIST (1:3-2:23)

Paul's Thanksgiving and Prayer

³We always pray for you, and we give thanks to God, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.

⁴For we have heard of your faith in Christ Jesus and your love for all of God's people, ⁵which come from your confident ^ahope of what God has reserved for you in heaven.

You have had this expectation ever since

1:1 Timothy was one of Paul's closest co-workers (see "Timothy" at Acts 16:1-3, p. 1860). So close was their relationship and so significant Timothy's ministry that Paul included him as one of the senders of this letter as well as of 2 Corinthians, Philippians, 1 and 2 Thessalonians, and Philemon.

1:2 Colosse was situated in the Lycus River valley in western Asia Minor, about 120 miles (193 kilometers) east of Ephesus and about 20 miles (32 kilometers) southeast of Laodicea. Its location on an important Roman road meant that it was influenced by the social and religious currents of the time. • brothers and sisters: Literally brothers, a generic term commonly used to refer to both men and women.

1:3-14 This opening section begins with a thanksgiving, typical of NT letters. Paul thanks God for the Colossians' progress in the faith and prays that they might understand it even better. With this prayer, Paul hints at his concern about the influence of false teachers.

1:4 God's people (literally holy ones, or saints): In the NT, all Christians are saints, people who have been specially set apart by God as his own holy people (3:12).

1:5 The Colossian Christians' confident hope gives them a secure foundation for their faith and love (1:4). • What God has reserved for believers has not yet been fully revealed, but it already exists in heaven.

you first heard the truth of the Good News.

⁶This same Good News that came to you is going out all over the world. It is bearing fruit everywhere by changing lives, just as it changed your lives from the day you first heard and understood the truth about God's wonderful grace.

⁷You learned about the Good News from Epaphras, our beloved co-worker. He is Christ's faithful ^bservant, and he is helping us on your behalf. ⁸He has told us about the love for others that the Holy Spirit has given you.

⁹So we have not stopped praying for you since we first heard about you. We ask God to give you complete knowledge of his will and to give you spiritual wisdom and understanding. ¹⁰Then the way you live will always honor and please the Lord, and your lives will produce every kind of good fruit. All the while, you will grow as you learn to know God better and better.

¹¹We also pray that you will be strengthened with all his glorious power so you will have all the endurance and patience you need. May you be filled with joy, ¹²always thanking the Father. He has enabled you to share in the inheritance that belongs to his people, who live in the light. ¹³For he has rescued us from the kingdom of darkness and transferred us into the Kingdom of his dear Son, ¹⁴who ^cpurchased our freedom and forgave our sins.

Christ Is Supreme

¹⁵ Christ is the visible image of the invisible God.

He existed before anything was created and is ^dsupreme over all creation, ¹⁶ for through him God created everything in the heavenly realms and on earth.

He made the things we can see and the things we can't see—such as thrones, kingdoms, rulers, and authorities in the unseen world. Everything was created through him and for him.

¹⁷ He existed before anything else, and he holds all creation together.

¹⁸ Christ is also the head of the ^echurch, which is his body.

He is the beginning, ^fsupreme over all who rise from the dead.

So he is first in everything.

¹⁹ For God in all his fullness was pleased to live in Christ,

1:6 bearing fruit everywhere by changing lives: The Good News is effective to change lives and bring about spiritual growth (cp. 1:10).

1:7 Epaphras (see also 4:12-13; Phlm 1:23) was probably converted when Paul ministered in Ephesus (see Acts 19:10) and then returned to Colosse to bring the Good News to his own town. • he is helping us on your behalf: Or he is ministering on your behalf; some manuscripts read he is ministering on our behalf.

1:9-10 Paul prays that God would grant his readers deeper understanding of the Good News and its full expression in their lives. Spiritual growth yields a clearer and deeper comprehension of Christian truth and conduct that pleases the Lord, through which a believer will have the endurance and patience to stand firm against evil (1:11).

1:11 all the endurance and patience you need. May you be filled with joy: Or all the patience and endurance you need with joy. The Greek can be interpreted either way.

1:12-13 always thanking the Father: Humble gratitude to God for salvation is a powerful antidote to the lure of false teaching (see also 2:7; 3:17; 4:2). • The inheritance is what God has promised his people (e.g., see Deut

3:28; Ps 33:12; Ezek 44:28). In the NT, the inheritance consists of salvation and final deliverance (see also Eph 1:11; Titus 3:7; Heb 9:15).

1:14 who purchased our freedom: Some manuscripts add with his blood.

1:15-20 Paul presents Jesus as the supreme creator (1:15-17) and redeemer (1:18-20). The series of short statements, the exalted conceptions of Christ, and the parallelism in language and thought strongly suggest that these verses quote an early Christian hymn about Jesus that Paul applied to the situation of the Colossian Christians.

1:15 visible image: In the Greek translation of the OT, eikōn ("image, representation") is used to refer to human beings having been made in the image of God (Gen 1:26-27) and also to the wisdom figure in Jewish writings (see Wisdom 7:25-26). The NT writers speak about Christ as God's wisdom to help explain his significance (cp. 1 Cor 1:24, 30). • He existed before anything was created and is supreme over all creation (or He is the firstborn of all creation): This phrase figured prominently in early Christian debates about the nature of Christ. Firstborn does not mean he was created; it is a title, drawn from the OT, indicating supremacy of rank and priority in time (see, e.g., Ps 89:27).

1:16 Thrones, kingdoms, rulers, and authorities in the unseen world refer to various spiritual powers. This line emphasizes Christ's supremacy over these beings who were getting so much attention from the false teachers (see 2:18). • Everything was created through him and for him: Christ is both the one through whom all things were created and the goal of all creation.

1:18 head of the church: The Greek word kephalē (head) usually has the sense of authority over or chief when Paul uses it as a metaphor (see also 2:10, 19; 1 Cor 11:3-10; Eph 4:15; 5:23). • which is his body: The metaphor of the church as Christ's body expresses the essential unity of Christ and the church (see also 1:24; 2:19; 3:15; Eph 1:23; 2:16; 4:4, 12; 5:23, 30). • supreme over all who rise from the dead (or the firstborn from the dead): See note on 1:15.

1:19 God in all his fullness emphasizes that God has chosen to reveal himself fully in Jesus Christ. Seeing Jesus and understanding him therefore means seeing and understanding God (see John 14:6-11). The false teachers seemed to be saying that Christians needed to look to other spiritual beings to find out more about God (see 1:16, 20). But Christ is sufficient for all our knowledge of God (cp. 2:8-9).

²⁰and through him God reconciled everything to himself.
He made peace with everything in heaven and on earth by means of Christ's blood on the cross.

Reconciliation in Christ

²¹This includes you who were once far away from God. You were his enemies, separated from him by your evil thoughts and actions.
²²Yet now he has reconciled you to himself through the death of Christ in his physical body. As a result, he has brought you into his own presence, and you are holy and blameless as you stand before him without a single fault.

²³But you must continue to believe this truth and stand firmly in it. Don't drift away from the assurance you received when you heard the Good News. The Good News has been preached all over the world, and I, Paul, have been appointed as God's ⁸servant to proclaim it.

Paul's Work for the Church

²⁴I am glad when I suffer for you in my body, for I am participating in the sufferings of Christ that continue for his body, the church.
²⁵God has given me the ^hresponsibility of serving his church by proclaiming his entire message to you. ²⁶This message was kept ^hsecret for centuries and generations past, but now it has been revealed to God's people.
²⁷For God wanted them to know that the riches and glory of Christ are for you Gentiles, too. And this is the secret: Christ lives in you. This gives you assurance of sharing his glory.

²⁸So we tell others about Christ, warning everyone and teaching everyone with all the wisdom God has given us. We want to present them to God, perfect in their relationship to Christ. ²⁹That's why I work and struggle so hard, depending on Christ's mighty power that works within me.

2 I want you to know how much I have agonized for you and for the church at Laodicea, and for many other believers who have never met me personally. ²I want them to be ^hencouraged and knit together by strong ties of love. I want them to have complete confidence that they understand God's mysterious plan, which is Christ himself. ³In him lie hidden all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge.

⁴I am telling you this so no one will deceive you with well-crafted arguments. ⁵For though I am far away from you, my heart is with you. And I rejoice that you are living as you should and that your faith in Christ is strong.

Freedom from Rules and New Life in Christ

⁶And now, just as you accepted Christ Jesus as your Lord, you must continue to follow him. ⁷Let your roots grow down into him, and let your lives be built on him. Then your faith will grow strong in the truth you were taught, and you will overflow with thankfulness.

⁸Don't let anyone capture you with empty philosophies and high-sounding nonsense

1:20 Through Christ, God has reconciled everything to himself, reestablishing his rule over all creation, including both the spiritual and the earthly realms.

1:21-23 Paul applies the truth of 1:15-20 to the Colossian Christians. As people who have been reconciled to God, they enjoy a new spiritual status and need to stand firm in the truth they have been taught.

1:21 The phrase once far away from God probably refers to their condition as Gentiles (see Eph 2:12).

1:22 The Colossians, like all believers, were holy and blameless in God's sight not because of their own perfection but because they had been reconciled with God through Christ's death.

1:23 preached all over the world (literally preached to every creature under heaven): The point of Paul's hyperbole (exaggeration for emphasis) is that centers for preaching the Good News had been established in key cities throughout the Roman world (see also 1:6).

1:24-2:5 Paul considers his own role in the widespread preaching of the Good News (1:23).

1:24 I am participating in the sufferings of Christ (literally I am filling up what is lacking in the sufferings of Christ): While the redemptive suffering of Christ is unique and completely finished, Christ still suffers through his people in a world hostile to the message of redemption. Christ and his church will continue to suffer until God's purposes in this world are complete (see also Mark 13:19-23; Rom 8:17-18; 1 Thes 3:3).

1:26 The concept of a secret, hidden at one time and then revealed, is based upon Jewish apocalyptic ideas. Jewish thinkers conceived of God's entire plan as already existing in heaven, hidden until God should draw back the curtain and reveal it. The Good News, especially for the Gentiles, had been kept secret until it was revealed in Christ. See "The Secret of the Good News," facing page.

1:28 perfect: Or mature.

2:1-5 Paul introduces his concern to strengthen his relationship with the Colossians, whom he had not met, and to counter the heretical ideas which threatened their Christian community.
• Laodicea was located twenty miles northwest of Colosse.

2:2 God's mysterious plan: See 1:26; Christ himself personifies this plan.

2:3 Paul builds on 1:15-20: Christ alone is sufficient for our spiritual understanding.

2:6-15 In the face of the false teachers' enticing arguments, Paul exhorts the Colossians to stand firm in their faith in Christ, for in Christ lives all the fullness of God and their spiritual experience is complete in him.

2:8 The Greek word philosophia referred to everything from the metaphysics of Plato to the religious teaching of cults. Paul does not condemn philosophy per se, but only empty philosophical speculation that stands opposed to the Good News. • the spiritual powers of this that come from human thinking and from the spiritual powers of this world, rather than from Christ. ⁹For in Christ lives all the fullness of God in a human body. ¹⁰So you also are complete through your union with Christ, who is the head over every ruler and authority.

¹¹When you came to Christ, you were “circumcised,” but not by a physical procedure. Christ performed a spiritual circumcision—the cutting away of your sinful nature. ¹²For you were buried with Christ when you were ^kbaptized. And with him you were raised to new life because you trusted the mighty power of God, who raised Christ from the dead.

¹³You were dead because of your sins and because your sinful nature was not yet cut away. Then God made you alive with Christ, for he forgave all our sins. ¹⁴He canceled the record of the charges against us and took it away by nailing it to the cross. ¹⁵In this way, he disarmed the spiritual rulers and authorities. He shamed them publicly by his victory over them on the cross.

Rom 11:25; 16:25
1 Cor 2:1, 7; 15:51
Eph 1:9; 3:1-9; 5:32;

In Paul’s letters, the word secret (sometimes translated mystery) is applied to the Good News. Sometimes secret is used as an abbreviation for the Good News itself (2:2; 4:3; 1 Cor 2:1; Eph 1:9; 6:19). Frequently, as in 1:26, Paul claims that the secret had been hidden in the past but has now been revealed (see also Rom 16:25; 1 Cor 2:7; Eph 3:9). Paul does not mean by this that the Good News is a secret that has to be probed. He adapts the term from Jewish apocalyptic teaching (the term apocalyptic is from a Greek word that means “uncovering” or “revelation”; the same word is used as the name for the book of Revelation). In the apocalyptic perspective, the plan God has mapped out for all of history already exists in his mind but is hidden from human eyes until God chooses to disclose it. For Paul, the secret plan has now been disclosed in Christ, and it is broadcast through the world by his apostles.

Through the OT prophets, God foretold many elements of the Good News, but he kept some aspects of it hidden until he revealed them in the NT era. These include the full participation of Gentiles as fellow-heirs with Jews (1:27; Eph 3:1-9); the indwelling of Christ in believers (1:27; 2:2); and the union of Christ and the church, as illustrated by the union of husband and wife (Eph 5:32). But some elements of God’s plan are still hidden and await further revelation, such as the salvation of all Israel (Rom 11:25) and the transfiguration of Christians at the time of Christ’s return (1 Cor 15:51).

world: or the spiritual principles of the world; also in 2:20): This phrase may refer to elementary teaching that is characteristic of this world (see Heb 5:12), or to spiritual beings who were thought to have a decisive influence on the course of events (see also 2:15, 20; Gal 4:3).

2:9 in Christ lives all the fullness of God in a human body: Or in him dwells all the completeness of the Godhead bodily. The Greek can be interpreted either way.

2:11 Christ performed a spiritual circumcision: Spiritual conversion to Christ is the Christian counterpart to physical circumcision. • the cutting away of your sinful nature (literally the cutting away of the body of the flesh): Just as Jewish boys have the flesh of their foreskin cut off to mark their initiation into the people of God, so believers have metaphorical flesh (translated sinful nature) cut off when they come to Christ.

2:12 you were buried with Christ when you were baptized: As in a roughly parallel passage (Rom 6:3-6), Paul assumes a strong identity between believers and Christ. In God’s sight, we really were with Christ when he was buried and raised, so we experience the benefits of what Christ did for us. Paul can link that identification with Christ to baptism because water baptism was so closely related to conversion in the early church.

2:14 the record of charges against us: The Greek phrase suggests an IOU that we have all signed. Since we are unable to pay what we owe, it stands against us. The law of God required obedience that people are unable to give, but God has forgiven our debt through the work of Christ (2:13).

2:15 he disarmed: Or he stripped off. • He shamed them publicly (literally he led [them] in triumphal procession): The Roman army would celebrate a great victory with a triumphal procession. The victorious Roman general would lead the humiliated captives from his campaign into the conquered city. The image vividly captures the glorious victory that God, through the cross of Christ, has won over all hostile spiritual powers (see also Eph 4:7-11).

2:16-23 Paul repudiates the false teachers and their demands, explaining why their appeal comes from human teachings (see 2:8). They advocated various rules of conduct that had no basis in Christ.

2:16 what you eat or drink: Religious teachings that prohibited certain kinds of food and drink were widespread in the ancient world. The OT does not prohibit drinking alcohol, but many pious Jews who lived in pagan cultures did abstain (cp. Dan 1:8-16). • Many ancient religious groups, including the Jews, celebrated the new moon with various ceremonies (see Num 10:10; Ps 81:3; Isa 1:13). • Jewish Sabbaths were set forth in the law of Moses and celebrated by Jews as an essential part of their religion (see chart, p. 235). Christians could continue to observe the Sabbath if they wanted to, but Paul insists that Christians have liberty on this matter (see Rom 14:5) and that it is wrong for anyone to insist on Sabbath observance as a necessary expression of Christian piety.

or Sabbaths. ¹⁷For these rules are only shadows of the reality yet to come. And Christ himself is that reality. ¹⁸Don't let anyone condemn you by insisting on pious self-denial or the worship of ^aangels, saying they have had visions about these things. Their sinful minds have made them proud, ¹⁹and they are not connected to Christ, the head of the body. For he holds the whole body together with its joints and ligaments, and it grows as God nourishes it.

²⁰You have died with Christ, and he has set you free from the spiritual powers of this world. So why do you keep on following the rules of the world, such as, ²¹"Don't handle! Don't taste! Don't touch!"? ²²Such rules are mere human teachings about things that deteriorate as we use them. ²³These rules may seem wise because they require strong devotion, pious self-denial, and severe bodily discipline. But they provide no help in conquering a person's evil desires.

3. LIVING THE NEW LIFE IN CHRIST

Living the New Life

3 Since you have been raised to new life with Christ, set your sights on the realities of heaven, where Christ sits in the place of honor at God's right hand. ²Think about the things of heaven, not the things of earth.

³For you died to this life, and your real life is hidden with Christ in God. ⁴And when Christ, who is your life, is revealed to the whole world, you will share in all his glory.

⁵So put to death the sinful, earthly things lurking within you. Have nothing to do with sexual immorality, impurity, lust, and evil desires. Don't be greedy, for a greedy person is an ^bidolater, worshiping the things of this world. ⁶Because of these sins, the anger of God is coming. ⁷You used to do these things when your life was still part of this world. ⁸But now is the time to get rid of ^canger, rage, malicious behavior, ^dslander, and dirty language. ⁹Don't lie to each other, for you have stripped off your old sinful nature and all its wicked deeds. ¹⁰Put on your new nature, and be renewed as you learn to know your Creator and become like him.

¹¹In this new life, it doesn't matter if you are a Jew or a Gentile, circumcised or uncircumcised, barbaric, uncivilized, ^eslave, or free. Christ is all that matters, and he lives in all of us.

New Relationships

¹²Since God chose you to be the holy people he loves, you must clothe yourselves with tenderhearted mercy, kindness, humility, gentleness, and patience. ¹³Make allowance for each other's faults, and forgive anyone

2:17 The reality of Christ was anticipated by the OT rituals, which Paul calls shadows (see also Heb 10:1).

2:18 the worship of angels (or worshiping with angels): People in the first century were fascinated with spiritual beings. Some Jews believed that angels were present during their times of worship, and some might even have worshiped them. • The false teachers were evidently saying they had had visions that established certain rituals as requirements for the community.

2:20 You have died with Christ: Christ's death on the cross marked his victory over the spiritual powers (2:15), so we who participate in his death have likewise been set free from the evil spiritual powers of this world (see 2:8).

2:23 they provide no help: Not only are such rules rooted in the world rather than in Christ (2:19), they are also ineffective in conquering a person's evil desires.

3:1-11 Paul summons the Colossians to a new way of thinking that results in a new lifestyle.

3:1 set your sights on the realities of heaven: Christians live on earth, but because they have been raised with Christ, their true being is oriented to the spiritual realm over which Christ rules. In contrast, the rules and regulations of the false teachers focused on the earthly realm (2:22).

3:3-4 you died to this life: See 2:20.

• What is now hidden will one day be revealed (cp. 1:26). We cannot now see that Christ is enthroned at the right hand of God and that we have been raised to new life with Christ. But by faith in the Good News, we know that these things are true. When Christ returns in glory, his supremacy will be evident to all and our relationship to him will be a direct experience.

3:4 your life: Some manuscripts read our life.

3:5 So put to death: Our death to this life (3:3) must be made real in the way that we live day by day. • a greedy person is an idolater: Greedy people pursue the objects of their greed—money, sex, power, possessions—in the place of God, with the hope of finding satisfaction in those things.

3:6 coming: Some manuscripts read coming on all who disobey him. In the Greek text, these words occur verbatim in Eph 5:6, so it is possible that an early scribe added them here, either intentionally or accidentally.

3:8 get rid of (literally take off): Taking off clothes is a metaphor for ridding our lives of practices that interfere with our walk with the Lord (see Rom 13:12; Eph 4:22, 25; Heb 12:1; Jas 1:21; 1 Pet 2:1).

3:9-10 your old sinful nature . . . your new nature: Paul contrasts old and new identities (see also Rom 5:12-21; 6:6; Eph 4:22-24). Believers strip off their old life and put on Christ's new life, allowing him to be Lord and to guide the way they live.

3:11 a Gentile: Literally a Greek. • barbaric, uncivilized: Literally Barbarian, Scythian. The Greeks mocked people from other cultures for their inability to speak Greek well, claiming they could only say "bar bar" (hence the word barbarian). The Scythians were tribes that had settled on the north coast of the Black Sea and were widely viewed as fierce and crude (see Josephus, Against Apion 2.38). All such distinctions do not matter in our relationship with God through Christ.

3:12-17 Paul describes the nature of the new life of people who have been raised with Christ (3:1). Their virtues and activities contribute to the peace and strength of the Christian community.

who offends you. Remember, the Lord forgave you, so you must forgive others. ¹⁴Above all, clothe yourselves with ¹⁴love, which binds us all together in ¹⁴perfect harmony. ¹⁵And let the ¹⁵peace that comes from Christ rule in your hearts. For as members of one body you are called to live in peace. And always be thankful.

¹⁶Let the message about ¹⁶Christ, in all its richness, fill your lives. Teach and counsel each other with all the wisdom he gives. Sing psalms and hymns and spiritual songs to God with thankful hearts. ¹⁷And whatever you do or say, do it as a representative of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks through him to God the Father.

Instructions for Christian Households

¹⁸Wives, submit to your husbands, as is fitting for those who belong to the Lord.

¹⁹Husbands, love your wives and never treat them harshly.

²⁰Children, always obey your parents, for this pleases the Lord. ²¹Fathers, do not aggravate your children, or they will become discouraged.

²²Slaves, obey your earthly masters in everything you do. Try to please them all the time, not just when they are watching you. Serve them ²²sincerely because of your reverent fear of the Lord. ²³Work willingly at whatever you do, as though you were working for the Lord rather than for people. ²⁴Remember that the Lord will give you an inheritance as your reward, and that the Master you are serving is Christ. ²⁵But if you do what is wrong, you will be paid back for the wrong you have done. For God has no favorites.

4 Masters, be just and fair to your slaves. Remember that you also have a Master—in heaven.

Legalism (2:16-23)

Matt 23:13-33
 Mark 7:1-15
 Gal 2:14-21

At the time of Christ and the early church, Jews made much of rules and laws in their understanding of religion. This was natural to them because God had given his law to the Jewish people as a mark of his favor upon them and as a way for them to ratify the covenant agreement he had made with them. However, many Jews added to the laws that God had given his people, trying to develop rules for virtually every situation in which they might find themselves. Their motivation was often a positive desire not to transgress any of God's laws. As Jesus often pointed out, however, the rules developed by rabbis sometimes became obstacles to obeying God's rules (Mark 7:1-15). Furthermore, many Jews thought that following the law would automatically endear them to God.

Paul apparently confronted a situation of this kind in 2:16-23. False teachers, influenced by Jewish beliefs, were insisting that Christians follow certain rules as a way of expressing their faith. Paul criticized this in light of faith in Christ. As the culmination of all God's plans and purposes, Christ is the center of all true piety. This does not mean that rules for conduct are inherently bad. Some rules, such as the prohibition on lying (3:9), clearly manifest an aspect of Christ's character. Paul also had no problem with individual Christians imposing rules on themselves that they think are conducive to their own growth in Christ (cp. Rom 14:5; 1 Cor 8). But they must not require others to obey these self-imposed rules.

3:15 Just as Christ is one, so there can be only one body of Christ (see 1:18; Eph 4:4-6). Allegiance to Jesus as Lord must transcend differences and will result in peace (harmonious relationships).

3:16 Psalms and hymns and spiritual songs are songs of praise and worship (see 1 Cor 14:26; Eph 5:19). The prototype is the book of Psalms.

3:17 as a representative of the Lord Jesus (literally in the name of the Lord Jesus): In the Bible, a person's name represents that person. To do something in the name of the Lord Jesus is therefore to act in a way that is in harmony with his identity and under his authority.

3:18-4:1 This series of exhortations is called a household code. Paul gives instructions to wives (3:18), husbands (3:19), children (3:20), fathers (3:21), slaves (3:22-25), and masters (4:1). Such codes appear in Greco-Roman writers and elsewhere in the NT (see Eph 5:22-6:9; 1 Pet 2:18-3:7).

3:18 To submit is to recognize one's place under someone else in a social order. Such submission always implies that God is at the top and that his will is paramount (cp. Acts 4:19-20; 5:29).

3:19 The exhortation to wives to submit to their husbands is immediately followed by a command to the husbands to love their wives (see also Eph 5:25-30; 1 Pet 3:7).

3:22-24 Slaves have earthly masters whom they must obey. Slavery was central to the life and economy of the ancient world, and the NT never attacks the practice as such. However, Christian faith establishes relationships that change the nature of the social structure (see Phlm 1:15-16). • and that the Master you are serving is Christ: Or and serve Christ as your Master. All Christians, both slave and free, serve a higher Master, whose will is paramount.

4:1 Masters: Christian slave owners had to recognize that they, too, were slaves bound to obey Jesus Christ, their Master in heaven who treats all people with dignity and grace.

An Encouragement for Prayer

²Devote yourselves to prayer with an alert mind and a thankful heart. ³Pray for us, too, that God will give us many opportunities to speak about his ⁴mysterious plan concerning Christ. That is why I am here in chains. ⁴Pray that I will proclaim this message as clearly as I should.

⁵Live wisely among those who are not believers, and make the most of every opportunity. ⁶Let your ^aconversation be gracious and attractive so that you will have the right response for everyone.

4. CONCLUSION: PAUL'S FINAL INSTRUCTIONS AND GREETINGS (4:7-18)

⁷Tychicus will give you a full report about how I am getting along. He is a beloved brother and faithful ⁸helper who serves with me in the Lord's work. ⁸I have sent him to you for this very purpose—to let you know how we are doing and to encourage you. ⁹I am also sending Onesimus, a faithful and beloved brother, one of your own people. He and Tychicus will tell you everything that's happening here.

¹⁰Aristarchus, who is in prison with me, sends you his greetings, and so does Mark, Barnabas's cousin. As you were instructed before, make Mark welcome if he comes your way. ¹¹Jesus (the one we call Justus) also sends his greetings. These are the only Jewish believers among my co-workers; they are working with me here for the Kingdom of God. And what a comfort they have been!

¹²Epaphras, a member of your own fellowship and a servant of Christ Jesus, sends you his greetings. He always prays earnestly for you, asking God to make you strong and perfect, fully confident that you are following the whole ^cwill of God. ¹³I can assure you that he prays hard for you and also for the believers in Laodicea and Hierapolis.

¹⁴Luke, the beloved doctor, sends his greetings, and so does Demas. ¹⁵Please give my greetings to our brothers and sisters at Laodicea, and to Nympha and the ^dchurch that meets in her house.

¹⁶After you have read this letter, pass it on to the church at Laodicea so they can read it,

4:2-6 NT letters often end with an exhortation to pray, along with requests for prayer.

4:2 with an alert mind: The Greek verb behind this phrase is used in the NT of the need for Christians to be watchful in light of Christ's return (Matt 24:42; 25:13; Mark 13:35, 37; 1 Thes 5:6; Rev 3:3; 16:15).

4:3 that God will give us many opportunities (literally that God might open for us a door): An open door is a metaphor for an opportunity to proclaim the Good News (see also Acts 14:27; 1 Cor 16:9; 2 Cor 2:12). • his mysterious plan concerning Christ: See 1:26-27; 2:2.

• That is why I am here in chains: Paul's dedication to preaching the Good News had led to his imprisonment (see Colossians Introduction, "Date and Occasion of Writing," p. 2021).

4:5 make the most of every opportunity (literally buy up the time): Like people who are buying up a product offered at a good price, Christians are to "buy up" every opportunity God gives them to share the Good News and to serve others.

4:6 attractive (literally seasoned with salt): Salt is both a seasoning and a preservative (see Matt 5:13). Paul might be encouraging Christians to speak to unbelievers in words that are well chosen and winsome. The rabbis occasionally referred to wisdom as salt, so Paul might also be exhorting Christians to speak wisely.

4:7-18 Most NT letters end with a series of greetings and references to co-workers and travel plans, but this part of Colossians is longer than normal. Paul, being unable to travel, might have been seeking to ensure that the Colossians maintain connections with his co-workers. This would help them not to fall for the enticements of the false teachers.

4:7 Tychicus was from the province of Asia, where Colosse was located (Acts 20:4). He worked with Paul especially in that province (Eph 6:21; 2 Tim 4:12). He was later sent to work with Titus in Crete (Titus 3:12). Tychicus probably carried this letter along with the letters known as Ephesians and Philemon.

4:9 Onesimus was the runaway slave whom Paul was sending back to his master Philemon (see Philemon).

4:10-14 Of the six people named, five are also mentioned in Phlm 1:23-24.

4:10 Aristarchus was a common name, but he was probably the same man from Thessalonica (Acts 19:29; 20:4) who accompanied Paul on his voyage to Rome (Acts 27:2). Acts does not suggest that Aristarchus was also under arrest, so perhaps he was in prison with Paul voluntarily, sharing his confinement in order to encourage him and assist him in ministry. • Mark, Barnabas's cousin, had gone with Barnabas and Paul on their first missionary journey, but had left them before the journey was finished (Acts 13:13). That desertion led to a split between Paul and Barnabas as the second journey was about to begin (Acts 15:37-40). Paul and Mark were apparently now reconciled (see also 2 Tim 4:11; Phlm 1:24). • As you were instructed before: There is no other record of this communication.

4:11 Jesus (the one we call Justus) is mentioned only here in the NT. The surname Justus is included because Jesus (which means the Lord saves) was a common name among Jews in the first century.

4:13 Laodicea and Hierapolis were the two most important cities in the Lycus River valley. The fact that Epaphras prayed for the believers in Colosse and in these nearby cities suggests that he was the pioneering evangelist in all three cities.

4:14 Luke, the beloved doctor, is well known as the author of Acts and the gospel bearing his name (see "Luke" at Acts 16:10, p. 1861). This verse is the sole evidence for two facts about Luke: He was a doctor, and he was not a Jewish believer (see 4:10-11). • In contrast to the other people mentioned in this passage, no details are given about Demas. Perhaps Paul did not know him well. Demas later deserted Paul (2 Tim 4:10).

4:15 brothers and sisters: Literally brothers. • Nympha and the church that meets in her house: In the first two centuries of the Christian church, almost all believers met for worship in private homes. Nothing else is known of Nympha.

4:16 you should read the letter I wrote to them: Various attempts have been made over the years to identify the letter to the Laodiceans with a NT letter or fragment, but it is most likely that Paul's letter to the Laodicean church has been lost.

4:17 Archippus: See also Phlm 1:2. We have no way of knowing more about the ministry the Lord gave him.

4:18 HERE IS MY GREETING IN MY OWN HANDWRITING—PAUL: Like most ancient letters, Colossians was probably dictated by Paul to a scribe, or amanuensis, who would have been trained to write neatly and compactly. As a way of authenticating the letter, Paul added his own handwritten greeting at the end (cp. Paul's comment in 2 Thes 2:2).

PAUL'S FIRST LETTER TO THE Thessalonians

What chance did the Thessalonian church have? As recent converts to Christianity, they lacked a full understanding of the faith and suffered severe persecution. Could the fledgling believers withstand the antagonistic social climate? First Thessalonians tells of new believers who remained firm in their faith despite tremendous opposition and great disadvantages. The letter reminds us that faithful leaders, good teaching, and obedience are important, and it presents a clear vision of God as powerfully active in the lives of those he has called through the Good News of Jesus Christ.

SETTING

Thessalonica, the major city of Macedonia, enjoyed the good will of Rome and the Roman citizens who settled there. The city was not subject to Roman taxation, could mint its own coins, and was not obliged to garrison Roman troops within the city walls. It prospered as a political and commercial center whose influence extended throughout the province of Macedonia and beyond.

The mixed population of Thessalonica included Macedonians, Romans, Jews, and other peoples who traveled through the city. Many of the Romans who settled there became wealthy benefactors in the town. The Jewish population was large enough to have a synagogue (Acts 17:1).

Luke reported the evangelization of Thessalonica in Acts 17:1-9.

When Paul preached in the synagogue, some Jews converted to Christ. Most of the converts in Thessalonica, however, were Roman or Macedonian Gentiles who abandoned idolatry to follow Christ (1:9).

The Jews who did not accept the Good News started a riot against the apostles

◀ The Setting of 1–2 Thessalonians, about AD 50. During his second missionary journey (shown), Paul established the church in THESSALONICA as he made his way through MACEDONIA, but he was forced to leave the city very quickly (see Acts 17:1-9). He probably wrote 1 Thessalonians from CORINTH after being encouraged by Timothy's report (3:1-8). Not long after, Paul wrote 2 Thessalonians to address further issues that had arisen.

and accused Paul and Silas of causing civil disturbance (Acts 17:4-7). The accusation was calculated to generate maximum opposition by taking advantage of the Romans' intolerance of social unrest. As a consequence, Paul and his companions were forced to leave the city after a short time.

Paul left a church that was at most a few months old in the faith. It was already experiencing persecution (1:6; 2:14; 3:3-4). The Christians in Thessalonica had not received all the teaching they needed, nor did they have mature leadership to oversee the church. As Paul traveled on to Berea, Athens, and finally Corinth (Acts 17:10-18:1), he was deeply concerned about the welfare of the Thessalonian church. His repeated attempts to return to the city were blocked by severe circumstances that he attributed to Satan (2:17-18).

While in Athens, Paul could no longer bear his anxiety over the church. He sent Timothy back to Thessalonica to strengthen the believers and to be sure that they had not abandoned their faith (3:1-2, 5). While Paul was in Corinth, Timothy returned from Thessalonica with the good news that the Thessalonian believers continued in faith and love and were standing firm despite the opposition they faced (3:6-8; Acts 18:5). First Thessalonians explodes with the joy Paul experienced upon hearing this report. It expresses his thankfulness to God for their faithfulness and his prayer that he might return to see them again and establish them more fully in the faith (3:9-11).

SUMMARY

First Thessalonians is a letter of thanksgiving to God for the faith, love, and hope of the young Thessalonian church (1:2-3; 2:13; 3:9). Paul, however, also presents some of his concerns. Paul and his companions had preached the Good News in the city, then left abruptly and failed to return. In the ancient world there were many traveling orators who only sought money and fame. In 2:1-3:13, Paul defends his motives and ministry—he had not come looking for fame or fortune. He sincerely cared for the Thessalonian believers. He longed to see the church and had tried unsuccessfully to “come back” (2:17-20). Paul also affirms his care by reminding them that he had sent Timothy back to strengthen them and to find out about their welfare (3:1-5). Paul recounts how greatly comforted he was by the news Timothy brought (3:6-8), and he tells the church about his thanksgiving to God for them and his prayer that he might see them again (3:9-13).

Timothy's report also informed Paul that some in the congregation had ignored Paul's teaching about sexual morality. In response, Paul emphasizes God's will for them to be holy (4:1-8). In addition, certain individuals within the church were refusing to work, ignoring the teaching and example of the apostles in this regard (4:11-12; 5:14; see 2 Thes 3:6-15).

Timothy's report also included some questions from the Thessalonians. First, what would happen to believers who died before Christ's return? Paul answers that such people will be the first to be raised from the dead and will be caught up with the living to meet the Lord at the time of his royal appearing (4:13-18). Second, the Thessalonians wanted to know when Christ would return and bring about the final consummation. Paul replies that the day will come at an unexpected moment, like a thief in the night (5:1-11). They should be prepared by living in faith, love, and hope.

The letter closes with several exhortations on living a life that pleases God. Paul reminds the church to honor its emerging leaders (5:12-13). In addition, Paul instructs the Thessalonians that they should not reject prophecies but evaluate them (5:19-22). The letter concludes with a blessing that expresses Paul's absolute confidence in God's faithfulness and work in their lives (5:23-24).

AUTHOR

First Thessalonians opens (1:1) with the names of Silas and Timothy, cofounders of the church in Thessalonica, alongside the name of Paul, the apostle to the Gentiles (Rom 11:13; Gal 1:16). The letter is mostly written in the first person plural ("we"), indicating that Silas and Timothy might have had a real part in the letter's composition. Paul only occasionally steps out individually to express his particular concerns (2:18; 3:5; 5:27). Joint composition of letters was known in the ancient world. For example, in his letter Ad Atticum, Cicero refers to "letters—both that which you wrote in conjunction with others and the one you wrote in your own name." However, the final command in 5:27 suggests that Paul had the major hand in writing, whatever the role of his companions may have been.

DATE AND OCCASION OF WRITING

Paul wrote this epistle from Corinth during his second missionary journey (Acts 16–18) after Timothy returned from visiting the Thessalonian church (3:6; Acts 18:5). Gallio was named as proconsul of the Roman province of Achaia in AD 51, during Paul's stay in Corinth (Acts 18:11-12). Therefore, Paul probably wrote this letter during the latter part of AD 50. First Thessalonians is one of Paul's earliest epistles, second only to Galatians.

MEANING AND MESSAGE

First Thessalonians provides a look into the life and struggles of a new congregation of believers. These new converts were greatly disadvantaged because the founders of their church were absent. The new believers were experiencing great hostility from their own countrymen because of their faith (1:6; 2:14; 3:3-4). Paul believed they were under attack by Satan, the tempter (3:5), who had also hindered him from visiting them again (2:18). When Timothy returned from visiting them, Paul was overjoyed to discover that the Thessalonians were exhibiting the character of people truly converted to Christ. Their lives were marked by faith, love, and hope (1:3; 3:6; 5:8). They helped to spread the Good News throughout the surrounding regions (1:8) and became examples for other believers of true faith in the midst of suffering (1:6-7).

Perhaps the most important issue that makes this letter timely is its disarming awareness of God.
First Thessalonians is about faith, love, and hope, not as human attributes but as gifts that spring from God alone. It is God who calls into faith, God who enables human love, and God toward whom hope is directed.

First and Second Thessalonians, p. 9

What enabled the Thessalonians to stand firm in faith in the face of great adversity? Some might attribute such perseverance to simple resolve, good upbringing, or just “blind faith.” Paul emphasizes that believers are chosen by God (1:4). The Good News is the divine message and witness of God’s power (1:5). When people receive this message, it continues to work powerfully in them (2:13). Genuine conversion means turning to the true God in repentance and serving him while awaiting the return of his Son from heaven (1:9-10). Although the Christians in Thessalonica were young in the faith, separated from their church founders, and suffering for their conversion to Christ, God was at work in them. Such strength of faith is the work of Christ (3:8, 13).

Still, these new Christians needed to grow in moral character and theological understanding. Paul had warned the Thessalonians about sexual immorality, but some dismissed his teaching (4:3-8). They did not understand that their belief in Christ’s resurrection was their source of hope in the face of the bitter reality of death (4:13-18). They were confused about when Christ would return (5:1-11). Some in the church did not heed Paul’s teaching about work (4:11; 5:14), and others were not properly respecting the emerging leaders in the church (5:12-13). Some Thessalonians were repressing prophecy in the church (5:19-22).

Although correction may seem distasteful, we need it for proper moral and theological growth. Paul, as a wise pastor, writes this letter to help the Thessalonian believers with these issues. His hope is that the letter will address these problems until he is able to return (3:10). In the end, every leader should entrust believers to God’s work in their lives (5:23) since he is faithful (5:24).

1. GREETINGS (1:1)

Greetings from Paul

1 This letter is from Paul, Silas, and Timothy.

We are writing to the church in Thessalonica, to you who belong to God the Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

May God give you grace and peace.

2. OPENING THANKSGIVING (1:2-10)

²We always thank God for all of you and pray for you constantly. ³As we pray to our God and Father about you, we think of your

⁴We know, dear brothers and sisters, that God loves you and has chosen you to be his own people. ⁵For when we brought you the Good News, it was not only with words but also with power, for the Holy Spirit gave you full assurance that what we said was true. And you know of our concern for you from the way we lived when we were with you. ⁶So you received the message with joy from the Holy Spirit in spite of the severe

1:2-10 After thanking God for the faith, love, and hope of the Thessalonian believers (1:2-3), Paul recalls how the Good News was proclaimed to them (1:4-5) and how they accepted its message (1:6-10). Paul returns to these themes in 2:1-12 and 2:13-16.

1:2 We always thank God for all of you is the first of three thanksgivings for the church (see 2:13; 3:9).

1:3 The reason for Paul’s gratitude was the Thessalonians’ faithful work, loving deeds, and enduring hope (or confidence; see 3:6; 5:8; 2 Thes 1:3-4).

1:4 dear brothers and sisters: Literally brothers, a generic term that refers to both male and female believers.

1:5 God called the Thessalonians through hearing the Good News (2 Thes 2:13-14). The Holy Spirit convinced the hearers that the message was true (1 Cor 2:4-5; 1 Pet 1:12). • with power, for the Holy Spirit gave you full assurance: Or with the power of the Holy Spirit, so you can have full assurance.

1:6 Because they accepted the Good News, the Thessalonians experienced severe suffering from their contemporaries (2:14; 3:3-4). Yet as they followed the model of the apostles and of the suffering it brought you. In this way, you imitated both us and the Lord.⁷ As a result, you have become an example to all the believers in Greece—throughout both Macedonia and Achaia.

⁸And now the word of the Lord is ringing out from you to people everywhere, even beyond Macedonia and Achaia, for wherever we go we find people telling us about your faith in God. We don't need to tell them about it, ⁹for they keep talking about the wonderful welcome you gave us and how you turned away from idols to serve the living and true God. ¹⁰And they speak of how you are looking forward to the coming of God's Son from heaven—Jesus, whom God raised from the dead. He is the one who has rescued us from the terrors of the coming judgment.

3. THE RECEPTION OF THE GOOD NEWS IN THESSALONICA (2:1–3:13)

Paul Defends the Character of His Visit

2 You yourselves know, dear brothers and sisters, that our visit to you was not a failure. ²You know how badly we had been treated at Philippi just before we came to you and how much we suffered there. Yet our God gave us the courage to declare his Good News to you boldly, in spite of great opposition. ³So you can see we were not preaching with any deceit or impure motives or trickery.

⁴For we speak as messengers approved by God to be entrusted with the Good News. Our purpose is to please God, not people. He alone examines the motives of our hearts. ⁵Never once did we try to win you with flattery, as you well know. And God is our witness that we were not pretending to be your friends just to get your money! ⁶As for human praise, we have never sought it from you or anyone else.

⁷As apostles of Christ we certainly had a right to make some demands of you, but instead we were like children among you. Or we were like a mother feeding and caring for her own children. ⁸We loved you so much that we shared with you not only God's Good News but our own lives, too.

⁹Don't you remember, dear brothers and sisters, how hard we worked among you? Night and day we toiled to earn a living so that we would not be a burden to any of you as we preached God's Good News to you. ¹⁰You yourselves are our witnesses—and so is God—that we were devout and honest and faultless toward all of you believers. ¹¹And you know that we treated each of you as a father treats his own children. ¹²We pleaded with you, encouraged you, and urged you to live your lives in a way that God

Lord himself (Matt 5:11-12; Rom 8:17; 12:12; Phil 2:17); they received joy from the Holy Spirit (1 Pet 4:13-14).

1:7-8 ringing out: The example of the Thessalonians' faith and their proclamation of the Good News was heard throughout the provinces of Macedonia and Achaia (the northern and southern regions of Greece).

1:9 Among the Gentiles, the message of the apostles was an exhortation to turn from false idols to serve the living and true God, who created all things (Acts 14:11-18; 17:22-31; 19:23-41). In a pluralistic religious environment, the call to forsake ancestral gods was unusual (cp. Jer 10:8-10; 1 Cor 8:4-6).

1:10 The resurrection of Jesus from the dead was the core of the apostles' preaching (4:14; Acts 2:32; 3:15; 10:40; 13:29-30; 1 Cor 15:3-8) and the foundation for confidence in Jesus' return (see 5:9; 2 Thes 1:6-10).

2:1-3:13 The body of this letter begins by discussing Paul's and his associates' character (2:1-12) and the way the Thessalonians received the Good News (2:13-16). It then emphasizes Paul's sincere care for the church, telling of his attempts to return to visit them (2:17-20) and his decision to send Timothy to them when he himself could not come (3:1-5). Finally, it tells of Paul's joy over Timothy's good report (3:6-9) and his prayers to get back to the church himself (3:10-13). This lengthy defense is Paul's response to criticisms of his abrupt departure and prolonged absence.

2:1 dear brothers and sisters: Literally brothers; also in 2:9, 14, 17. See note on 1:4. • The Greek word translated visit often refers to entry into a city. Ancient orators were known for their grand entrances into a town. Paul's entrance to Thessalonica should be judged by its credible results rather than its lack of pomp or ceremony.

2:2 Despite the dishonor and pain Paul and Silas had suffered in Philippi (Acts 16:19-40), they showed courage by preaching confidently in Thessalonica.

2:4 In the ancient world, those entrusted with a public office had to be tested and approved. The Thessalonians (2:3) and God served as two witnesses to the purity of Paul's motives.

2:5 Flattery was a common means of getting financial gain from others. Paul denies that he flattered the Thessalonians in order to be given money. He again calls both the Thessalonians and God as witnesses (cp. 2:10; Deut 19:15; 2 Cor 13:1; 1 Tim 5:19).

2:7 we were like children: Some manuscripts read we were gentle. Paul and his associates did not wield their apostolic authority to make demands (cp. Matt 20:25-28).

2:9 Paul and his associates engaged in manual labor to support themselves while in the city (cp. Acts 18:1-4; 1 Cor 9:12-18) as an example to the Thessalonians (2 Thes 3:8-9) and to avoid becoming an economic burden to them.

2:10 Both God and the Thessalonians were witnesses (see 2:5) that Paul's conduct was devout and honest, terms used in ancient literature to describe obedience to both divine and human laws.

2:11 In the ancient world, the moral instruction of children was a fundamental obligation of fathers. Roman fathers could be harsh, but Plutarch advised Greek fathers to use praise, reason, exhortations, and good counsel when teaching children to avoid vice and embrace virtue. Paul describes himself as this kind of father to the Thessalonians.

would consider worthy. For he called you to share in his Kingdom and glory.

The Thessalonians Receive the Good News

¹³Therefore, we never stop thanking God that when you received his message from us, you didn't think of our words as mere human ideas. You accepted what we said as the very word of God—which, of course, it is. And this word continues to work in you who believe.

¹⁴And then, dear brothers and sisters, you suffered persecution from your own countrymen. In this way, you imitated the believers in God's churches in Judea who, because of their belief in Christ Jesus, suffered from their own people, the Jews. ¹⁵For some of the Jews killed the prophets, and some even killed the Lord Jesus. Now they have persecuted us, too. They fail to please God and work against all humanity ¹⁶as they try to keep us from preaching the Good News of salvation to the Gentiles. By doing this, they continue to pile up their sins. But the anger of God has caught up with them at last.

Paul's Desire to Return to Thessalonica

¹⁷Dear brothers and sisters, after we were separated from you for a little while (though our hearts never left you), we tried very hard to come back because of our intense longing to see you again. ¹⁸We wanted very much to come to you, and I, Paul, tried again and again, but *Satan prevented us. ¹⁹After all, what gives us hope and joy, and what will be our proud reward and crown as we stand before our Lord Jesus when he returns? It is you! ²⁰Yes, you are our pride and joy.

Paul Sends Timothy to Thessalonica

3 Finally, when we could stand it no longer, we decided to stay alone in Athens, ²and we sent Timothy to visit you. He is our brother and God's co-worker in proclaiming the Good News of Christ. We sent him to strengthen you, to encourage you in your faith, ³and to keep you from being shaken by the troubles you were going through. But you know that we are destined for such troubles. ⁴Even while we were with you, we warned you that troubles would soon come—and they did, as you well know. ⁵That is why, when I could bear it no longer, I sent Timothy to find out whether your faith was still strong. I was afraid that the ⁶tempter had gotten the best of you and that our work had been useless.

Timothy Returns and Reports to Paul

⁶But now Timothy has just returned, bringing us good news about your faith and love. He reports that you always remember our visit with joy and that you want to see us as much as we want to see you. ⁷So we have been greatly encouraged in the midst of our troubles and suffering, dear brothers and sisters, because you have remained strong

(4:7) to share his Kingdom and glory (Rom 8:17-18; Col 1:27; 2 Thes 2:14).

2:13 Paul gives thanks a second time (see 1:2; 3:9) because the Thessalonians accepted the message of the apostles—not just as a human philosophy, but as the very word of God (1:5; 2 Thes 2:14; 2 Cor 5:20).

2:14 The evidence that the Thessalonian believers accepted the word of God was that they suffered persecution (1:6). This followed the pattern of the apostles, the churches in Judea (Acts 8:1), and Christ himself.

2:15 Paul was not anti-Jewish; out of love for his own people, he prayed for their salvation (Rom 9:1-5; 10:1). But he was aware of the role some of the Jews had in the deaths of God's messengers, including Jesus (1 Kgs 19:10; Acts 7:52). Now they had persecuted the apostolic messengers in Thessalonica (Acts 17:10; 2 Cor 11:26).

2:16 The mission to the Gentiles was one of the most important issues in the early church (Acts 11:18; 13:46-49; 28:28; Rom 1:16). • Judgment comes when sins pile up to their complete measure (Gen 15:16; Dan 8:23; cp. Matt 23:31-36).

2:17 separated: Paul describes his unplanned departure from Thessalonica (see Acts 17:10) as depriving these new believers of their spiritual parents. However, this absence was not neglect. As evidenced by Paul's attempts to return to the church, the separation was unintentional (cp. Phil 1:7; Col 2:5).

2:18 again and again: Paul made repeated attempts to return to the Thessalonian church. Despite the opposition of Satan (see Rom 16:20; 2 Cor 2:11; Eph 6:10-12), both Timothy (3:2, 5) and Paul (Acts 20:1-3) were eventually able to visit the church again.

2:19 In the Greek and Roman world, a crown was given to those who received great civic honor or who were victorious in athletic games.

2:20 Paul views the Thessalonian believers—not his own accomplishments—as the source of his pride, or renown, and his joy (3:9).

3:1-5 After preaching in Berea, Paul had departed from Macedonia and sailed to Athens, instructing Silas and Timothy to join him soon (Acts 17:13-15). Timothy returned to Thessalonica (3:2), as Paul's anxiety for the Thessalonian church had intensified (3:1, 5).

3:2 and God's co-worker: Other manuscripts read and God's servant; still others read and a co-worker, or and a servant and co-worker for God, or and God's servant and our co-worker.

3:3 we are destined for such troubles: Suffering for the faith is often part of a Christian's life (1:6; 2:14; Phil 1:29; 1 Pet 1:6; 2:21; 3:17; 4:19).

3:5 Paul was concerned that Satan, the tempter (Mark 1:13; 1 Cor 7:5), had undermined the Thessalonians' faith (3:2, 6, 8) and rendered his work among them futile (Gal 2:2; Phil 2:16).

3:6 Paul wrote 1 Thessalonians from Corinth just after Timothy returned from Thessalonica (3:2, 5; Acts 18:5). Timothy's report provided good news about the Thessalonians' faith and love, steadfastness (3:8), and hope (1:3; see also 5:8; 2 Thes 1:3-4).

3:7 dear brothers and sisters: Literally brothers. See note on 1:4.

in your faith. ⁸It gives us new life to know that you are standing firm in the Lord.

⁹How we thank God for you! Because of you we have great joy as we enter God's presence. ¹⁰Night and day we pray earnestly for you, asking God to let us see you again to fill the gaps in your faith.

Paul Prays to Return to Thessalonica

¹¹May God our Father and our Lord Jesus bring us to you very soon. ¹²And may the Lord make your ⁸love for one another and for all people grow and overflow, just as our love for you overflows. ¹³May he, as a result, make your hearts strong, blameless, and holy as you stand before God our Father when our Lord Jesus ^hcomes again with all his holy people. Amen.

4. EXHORTATIONS AND TEACHINGS

Living to Please God (4:1–2)

4 Finally, dear brothers and sisters, we urge you in the name of the Lord Jesus to live in a way that pleases God, as we have taught you. You live this way already, and we encourage you to do so even more. ²For you remember what we taught you by the authority of the Lord Jesus.

Avoiding Sexual Sin (4:3–8)

³God's will is for you to be ^hholy, so stay away from all sexual sin. ⁴Then each of you will control his own body and live in ^hholiness and honor—⁵not in lustful passion like the pagans who do not know God and his ways. ⁶Never harm or cheat a fellow believer in this matter by violating his wife, for the Lord avenges all such sins, as we have solemnly warned you before. ⁷God has called us to live ^hholy lives, not impure lives. ⁸Therefore, anyone who refuses to live by these rules is not disobeying human teaching but is rejecting God, who gives his Holy Spirit to you.

Paul Responds to the Thessalonians'

Questions (4:9–5:11)

Love in God's Family

⁹But we don't need to write to you about the importance of loving each other, for God himself has taught you to love one another. ¹⁰Indeed, you already show your love for all

3:8 Paul was distressed by his present circumstances (3:7) and deeply concerned for the church (3:1, 5). He was relieved to learn that the Thessalonians remained strong and were standing firm in the Lord even though they were also suffering (2:14; 3:3-4).

3:11 Paul's prayer to return to Thessalonica very soon (3:10) is directed both to the Father and the Lord Jesus, implying Jesus' divinity.

3:12 A characteristic of this church was their love for one another as members of God's family (4:9; 2 Thes 1:3-4). Paul prays that their love will grow and overflow toward those outside the Christian community (cp. 5:15; Gal 6:10; 2 Tim 2:24; Titus 3:2) even in the face of persecution.

3:13 In the final part of this prayer (3:11-13), Paul prays that their hearts—their conduct and moral resolve (Matt 5:8; Acts 15:9; Heb 10:22)—might be strong, blameless, and holy. • When Jesus comes, he will be accompanied by all his holy people, possibly a reference to angels (Deut 33:2; Ps 89:5, 7; Dan 4:13; 8:13; Matt 13:41; Mark 8:38; 13:26-27; 2 Thes 1:7).

4:1–5:22 The second part of the body of the letter concerns Timothy's news about the church and the questions the believers had for Paul. Paul addresses the problem of sexual immorality (4:3-8) before responding to the Thessalonians' questions about love for other Christians (4:9-12), the destiny of believers who have died (4:13-18), and the timing of the day of the Lord (5:1-11). Paul takes up a variety of exhortations on topics such as leadership and community relations (5:12-15), relationship with the Lord (5:16-18), and prophecy (5:19-22).

4:1-2 dear brothers and sisters: Literally brothers; also in 4:10, 13. See note on 1:4. • we urge you: Paul's exhortation in the name of the Lord Jesus emphasizes the authority of his teaching. • you remember what we taught: Ancient letters frequently included reminders of what the recipients already knew. Paul reminds the Thessalonians of matters that required their obedience (4:11; 2 Thes 3:4, 6, 10, 12).

4:3 God's will is for you to be holy: The foundation of Christian ethics is not philosophical speculation about virtue but doing God's will (Rom 12:1-2; Eph 6:6; Heb 10:36; 13:20-21). Holiness (4:4, 7) embraces all of a person's life (5:23); here it involves staying away from sexual sin (Greek porneia, any sexual union outside marriage).

4:4 will control his own body: Or will know how to take a wife for himself; or will learn to live with his own wife; literally will know how to possess his own vessel. • Self-control brings honor from others (Rom 12:10) and from God (Rom 2:7; 1 Pet 5:4, 6).

4:5 Willful ignorance of God and his ways is the root of moral corruption (Rom 1:18-32; Eph 4:17-18). • lustful passion: Sexual immorality was tolerated in the Mediterranean world. Prostitution was allowed, but sexual relations with another man's wife were prohibited. Roman marriage customs barred women, but not men, from extramarital affairs. By contrast, Jewish and Christian authors alike prohibited all sexual involvement outside of marriage (Acts 15:20; 1 Cor 6:12-20; Col 3:5-6).

4:6 Never harm or cheat a fellow believer in this matter: Literally Never harm or cheat a brother in this matter.

4:7 holy . . . not impure: Cp. 1:4; 2:12; 5:23-24; 2 Thes 2:13-14; 1 Pet 1:15-16.

4:8 Rejecting Paul's teaching on these matters was the same as rejecting God. • The Holy Spirit empowers Christians to live in accord with God's will (Ezek 36:27; Rom 8:1-4; Gal 5:16; 1 Jn 3:24).

4:9–5:11 Paul responds to a series of questions from the Thessalonians (cp. 1 Cor 7:1) concerning love for one another (4:9-12), the destiny of deceased believers (4:13-18), and when the day of the Lord would come (5:1-11).

4:9 about the importance of loving each other: Literally about brotherly love. • God himself has taught you to love one another (cp. Isa 54:13) through the teaching of Jesus (John 13:34-35), the cross (Rom 5:8; Eph 5:1-2), and the Holy Spirit (Rom 5:5; Gal 5:22).

4:10 The Thessalonian believers demonstrated love toward all the believers (literally all the brothers; see note on 1:4) in the province of Macedonia (Philippi and Berea; see also 1:7-8) through economic aid (cp. 2 Cor 8:1-5).

the believers throughout Macedonia. Even so, dear brothers and sisters, we urge you to love them even more.

¹¹Make it your goal to live a quiet life, minding your own business and working with your hands, just as we instructed you before. ¹²Then people who are not believers will respect the way you live, and you will not need to depend on others.

Believers Who Have Died

¹³And now, dear brothers and sisters, we want you to know what will happen to the believers who have died so you will not grieve like people who have no hope. ¹⁴For since we believe that Jesus died and was raised to life again, we also believe that when Jesus returns, God will bring back with him the believers who have died.

¹⁵We tell you this directly from the Lord: We who are still living when the Lord ^breturns will not meet him ahead of those who have died. ¹⁶For the Lord himself will come down from heaven with a commanding shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trumpet call of God. First, the believers who have died will rise from their graves. ¹⁷Then, together with them, we who are still alive and remain on the earth will be caught up in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air. Then we will be with the Lord forever. ¹⁸So encourage each other with these words.

The Last Things (4:13–5:11)

2 Thes 2:1-12

The Thessalonian believers heartily embraced Paul's teaching about the day of the Lord and Christ's second coming, but this instruction generated questions and speculations about the end times. What would happen to believers who died before Jesus' return (4:13-18)? When would the day of the Lord come (5:1-11)? Would believers suffer the wrath of God (1:10; 5:9)? Paul calms the congregation by clarifying the points in question (4:13–5:11) and reminding them of the teaching they had already received.

Although Paul expected Jesus' return to happen during his lifetime (4:15), he also recognized that the final event would come at an unpredictable moment, "like a thief in the night" (5:2). The way to be ready for the end is not by knowing the date but by living with Christian alertness. The Thessalonians also needed to understand the deaths of fellow believers. Paul says nothing about the condition of believers between their death and the return of Christ. Instead, he emphasizes the resurrection of believers. Just as Christ was raised, those who died as believers will be raised when he returns. In fact, they will rise from the dead first and then be caught up together with the living believers to meet Christ in his royal coming.

Despite Paul's efforts to clarify the Christian hope, the Thessalonian believers became confused by false teaching that the day of the Lord had already begun (2 Thes 2:2). As a counterpoint to this false teaching, Paul addressed the issue further in his second letter to the young church (see 2 Thes 2:1-12).

4:11 To live a quiet life is to be respectable and not cause problems in the community. • working with your hands: Paul had previously instructed through his teaching (see 2 Thes 3:10) and personal example (2 Thes 3:7-9) that they should earn their own living.

4:12 Self-sufficiency and decorum would win the recognition and respect of people who are not believers (see Rom 13:13; 1 Cor 5:12-13; Col 4:5).

4:13 the believers who have died (literally those who have fallen asleep; also in 4:14): Sleep was a common euphemism for death in Greek, Jewish, and Christian literature (Dan 12:2; Matt 27:52). Personal existence continues after death (Luke 23:40-43; Acts 7:55-60; 2 Cor 5:6-10; Phil 1:20-24; Rev 6:9-11); those who have died await the resurrection (1 Cor 15:23). • grieve like people who have no hope: Ancient letters of comfort exhorted mourners not to be overcome with grief because they could do nothing to avert death. Paul does not prohibit grief (cp. John 16:6, 20; Phil 2:27) but calls Christian mourners to abandon the kind of grief typical of those who have no hope in God.

4:14 The central Christian creed, that Jesus died and was raised to life again, is the foundation for hope in the face of death, guaranteed by the resurrection of Christ (1 Cor 15). • God will bring back refers to the resurrection of believers (4:16).

4:15 directly from the Lord: Jesus' own teaching provided the source of Paul's assurance for the Thessalonians (see Matt 24:29-31, 40-41). • not . . . ahead: Paul wants the Thessalonians to know that, when the Lord returns, the dead will not be at a disadvantage but will participate equally in the resurrection. • In referring to Jesus' coming, Paul uses a Greek term (parousia) commonly used to describe the coming of the emperor to a city with great pomp and celebration (see 4:17).

• those who have died: Literally those who have fallen asleep. See note on 4:13.

4:16 with the trumpet call of God: God's trumpet will herald the resurrection, just as it previously announced the rescue of Israel (Zeph 1:16; Zech 9:14). In the future it will announce the gathering of God's chosen people from the "farthest ends of the earth and heaven" (Matt 24:31; cp. 1 Cor 15:52). • the believers who have died: Literally the dead in Christ.

4:17 to meet: This alludes to the custom of sending an official delegation to greet a visiting dignitary and accompany him as he enters the city (Matt 25:6, 10; Acts 28:15-16).

4:18 The purpose of Paul's teaching about the end is so believers will encourage each other in the face of death. He is not promoting speculation about the end times.

The Day of the Lord

5 Now concerning how and when all this will happen, dear brothers and sisters, we don't really need to write you. ²For you know quite well that the day of the Lord's return will come unexpectedly, like a thief in the night. ³When people are saying, "Everything is peaceful and secure," then disaster will fall on them as suddenly as a pregnant woman's labor pains begin. And there will be no escape.

⁴But you aren't in the dark about these things, dear brothers and sisters, and you won't be surprised when the day of the Lord comes like a thief. ⁵For you are all children of the light and of the day; we don't belong to darkness and night. ⁶So be on your guard, not asleep like the others. Stay alert and be clearheaded. ⁷Night is the time when people sleep and drinkers get drunk. ⁸But let us who live in the light be clearheaded, protected by the armor of faith and love, and wearing as our helmet the confidence of our salvation.

⁹For God chose to ^dsave us through our Lord Jesus Christ, not to pour out his anger on us. ¹⁰Christ died for us so that, whether we are dead or alive when he returns, we can live with him forever. ¹¹So ^eencourage each other and build each other up, just as you are already doing.

Final Exhortations (5:12-22)

¹²Dear brothers and sisters, honor those who are your leaders in the Lord's work. They work hard among you and give you spiritual guidance. ¹³Show them great respect and wholehearted love because of their work. And live peacefully with each other.

¹⁴Brothers and sisters, we ^furge you to warn those who are lazy. Encourage those who are timid. Take tender care of those who are weak. Be patient with everyone.

¹⁵See that no one pays back evil for evil, but always try to do good to each other and to all people.

¹⁶Always be joyful. ¹⁷Never stop praying.

5:1 Questions such as how and when all this will happen occupied the thoughts of both Jewish and Christian people (Dan 12:6; Matt 24:3; Luke 17:20; Acts 1:6; 1 Pet 1:10-11). • dear brothers and sisters: Literally brothers; also in 5:4, 12, 14, 25, 26, 27.

5:2 For you know quite well: Paul reminds them of the teaching they had already received (3:3-4). • The day of the Lord's return is the time when God will come to judge humanity (Isa 13:6, 9; Ezek 30:3) and save his people (Joel 2:21-32; 3:18; Zech 14:1-21). • like a thief in the night: Cp. Matt 24:43-44; Luke 12:39-40; 2 Pet 3:10; Rev 3:3; 16:15.

5:3 "Everything is peaceful and secure": The expression "peace and safety" was common during the era of the pax Romana (Roman peace). One ancient author spoke of "comfort in the time of peace and security in the time of war." God's ultimate judgment, however, comes without warning and is inescapable.

5:4 The day of the Lord will not surprise believers—not because they know the date of his coming, but because they are spiritually prepared. • comes like a thief: Some manuscripts read comes upon you as if you were thieves.

5:5 As children of the light, the Thessalonian believers were saved from darkness (John 12:36; Acts 26:18; Eph 5:8; 1 Pet 2:9). • of the day: They belong to God's new order (Rom 13:12). • darkness and night: These refer to an immoral life (see 5:6-8).

5:6 Stay alert and be clearheaded echoes Jesus' call to be morally prepared because the disciples will not know the day of his return (Matt 24:42, 44; 25:13; cp. 1 Pet 1:13).

5:7 Sleep refers to moral indifference (5:6) and drunk is a metaphor for those who do not exercise self-control; they will be surprised by the day of the Lord (5:4; Matt 24:48-51).

5:8 Armor . . . helmet (Isa 59:17; Eph 6:11-17): The armament is the moral life (Rom 13:12; 2 Cor 6:7; 10:3-5; 2 Tim 2:3-4). The Christian soldier is equipped with the virtues of faith, love, and confidence (see 1:3; 3:6; 1 Cor 13:13; 2 Thes 1:3-4).

5:9 God's anger (1:10; 2:16; Rom 5:9; cp. 2 Thes 1:6-10; 2:8) represents the carrying out of his judgment against evil. However, God destined believers for salvation, not wrath (2 Thes 2:13-14), and they will escape the terrors of the day of the Lord (5:1-3).

5:10 The promise that believers will live with him forever is based on Christ's resurrection (4:14). • dead or alive: A reference to living and deceased believers (4:13-15) rather than people's moral condition (as in 5:6-7).

5:11 Paul wants the Thessalonians to use the instruction about the end to encourage and build each other up (see 4:18), not to fuel speculation about the timing of the Lord's return.

5:12 honor (or know): This may be a call either to honor church leaders or to recognize the emerging leaders in the church (1 Cor 16:15-16). True leaders . . . work hard (1 Tim 4:10; 5:17) and govern to serve (Matt 20:25-28). They preside over, as well as help and protect, the church (Rom 16:1-2; 1 Tim 3:4-5, 12). • give you spiritual guidance: Leaders correct both moral and doctrinal errors (Acts 20:31; 1 Cor 4:14; Col 1:28).

5:13 Leaders were to receive honor and love not because of their high position but because of their work. • live peacefully: Teaching about community peace and harmony was a standard topic in ancient moral instruction. Harmony between believers and leaders was especially important because of the persecution the church suffered (2:14).

5:14 The responsibility for the moral progress of the congregation does not rest solely with the leaders (4:18; 5:11). Paul urged the church to warn those who are lazy, that is, those who were "disorderly," and who did not live by the apostles' instructions (see 2 Thes 3:6-15). • Take tender care of those who are weak, or those who have no economic or social power. Greek society denigrated the weak. • Instead of being irritable, believers should be patient in their relationships (Gal 5:23; Eph 4:2).

5:15 Jesus and the apostles warned against retaliation (Matt 5:38-48; Luke 6:27-36; Rom 12:17-21; 1 Pet 3:9). The Roman author Seneca, by contrast, considered revenge legitimate and necessary as a way of restoring social honor lost because of ill treatment from others. Paul calls Christians to do good—both to members of the church (each other) and to those outside the Christian community (to all people), including their persecutors (2:14; see 3:12; Gal 6:10).

5:17 Never stop praying means not giving up (1:2; Luke 18:1; Rom 12:12; Eph 6:18); it does not mean praying at every moment.

5. FINAL PRAYERS AND GREETINGS (5:23-28)

²³Now may the God of peace make you holy in every way, and may your whole ^bspirit and soul and body be kept blameless until our Lord Jesus Christ ^ccomes again. ²⁴God will make this happen, for he who calls you is faithful.

²⁵Dear brothers and sisters, pray for us.

²⁶Greet all the brothers and sisters with a sacred kiss.

²⁷I command you in the name of the Lord to read this letter to all the brothers and sisters.

²⁸May the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you.

5:18 Be thankful: God is sovereign and can redeem any situation (Rom 8:28).

5:19 Do not stifle the Holy Spirit: Paul exhorts the Thessalonian believers not to put out the Spirit's fire (Matt 3:11; Acts 2:3; 2 Tim 1:6) by prohibiting prophecy in the church (Jer 20:9; 1 Jn 4:1-2).

5:20-21 Prophecy, meant to build up the church (1 Cor 14:1-4), should not be rejected. Instead, the Thessalonians should test the prophecies (1 Cor 12:10; 14:29) to discern their origin, to check their agreement with the teaching of the apostles (2 Thes 2:2; 1 Jn 4:1-3), and to gauge the character of those who utter the prophecies (Matt 7:15-20). Early Christian teaching said, "Not every one who speaks about spiritual things is a prophet, but only if the person's conduct is like the Lord" (Didache 11:8).

They should hold on to what is good—namely, prophecies that have been tested and found to be genuine.

5:22 They should reject every kind of evil, especially false prophecies (5:19-21).

5:23-28 Greek and Roman letters ended with a wish for the good health of the recipient. Jewish letters concluded with a peace blessing. Paul closes with a Christian variation on these practices.

5:23 God enables Christians to live a holy life (3:11-13). His sanctifying work extends to the spirit and soul and body, the totality of human life (cp. Matt 10:28; Mark 12:30; 1 Cor 7:34).

5:24 God will make this happen: Paul bases his confidence on the faithful character of God (1 Cor 1:9; 2 Thes 3:3; 2 Tim 2:13; 1 Jn 1:9).

5:26 with a sacred kiss (see also Rom 16:16; 1 Cor 16:20; 2 Cor 13:12; 1 Pet 5:14): Kissing on the cheek or forehead was a common form of greeting that reflected such sentiments as honor, friendship, and love among family members (Mark 14:44-45; Luke 7:36-47; 15:20; Acts 20:37).

5:27 read this letter: Public reading of Scripture was practiced both in the synagogue (Luke 4:16; Acts 13:15) and the church (1 Tim 4:13). Similarly, Paul's letters were to be read aloud to the whole congregation (Col 4:16).

5:28 Paul improves the customary greeting by adding a blessing of grace at the end of his correspondence (Rom 16:20; 1 Cor 16:23; Gal 6:18; Eph 6:24; 2 Thes 3:18).

PAUL'S SECOND LETTER TO THE

Thessalonians

The believers in Thessalonica had faced persecution since their conversion, but now it was more severe. A false teaching declared that the day of the Lord had already come, and some believers even quit working. What do you say to people whose lives move from bad to worse? Paul's second letter to this new church addresses their troubling problems.

SETTING

From the time of their conversion, the Thessalonian Christians had experienced hostility (1 Thes 1:6; 2:14), and Paul had worried whether they would retain their faith (1 Thes 3:5). When Paul wrote 1 Thessalonians, they had stood firm in faith, love, and hope (1 Thes 1:3; 3:6-8).

After Paul sent his first letter, the situation in the Thessalonian church deteriorated and the persecution intensified. What Paul had previously written was being countered by a false teaching that said that the day of the Lord had already come (2:2). Paul wrote 2 Thessalonians after receiving this news (2:2; 3:11) in order to give this church a divine perspective.

SUMMARY

Second Thessalonians opens with the customary greeting (1:1-2), then quickly moves to thanksgiving for their faith, love, and persevering hope, which had become a model for other congregations (1:3-4). Noting their suffering, Paul says that God will judge their persecutors and bring reward to the Thessalonians (1:5-10). Paul gives thanks for this church and prays that God will continue to make them worthy of his calling (1:11-12). In spite of their troubles, Paul is confident in God's work among them.

Paul counters the false teaching that "the day of the Lord has already begun" (2:1-2) and urges the church not to be deceived by this doctrine (2:3). He outlines events that will precede Christ's coming, when the church will be gathered to meet him (2:1-12). First, there will be rebellion against God (2:3). Then will come "the man of lawlessness," who will claim to be divine and demand worship (2:3-4). Although he will be empowered by Satan and will deceive many, Jesus will destroy him (2:8-12).

Although many will be deceived by the man of lawlessness, Paul is confident that God chose and called the Thessalonian Christians, and he urges them to stand firm (2:13-15). Paul concludes his discussion on final events with a prayer for the church (2:16-17) and a request that they pray for him as he preaches the Good News (3:1-2). His confidence in the church is based on God's handiwork in them (3:3-5).

In the closing section (3:6-18), Paul returns to an issue that he had addressed in the first letter. Some believers were refusing to work, despite Paul's instruction and example, so Paul calls on the church to discipline them (3:6-10). He also addresses these idle members directly, telling them to get to work (3:11-12). He commands the church to treat these slackers as errant Christians rather than hostile enemies (3:14-15) and he encourages the church to continue its generosity toward those in genuine need (3:13). He closes the letter with prayers and a final greeting (3:16-18).

Paul's name is in the letter opening (1:1), and at the conclusion, Paul adds a note in his own hand to guarantee the letter's authenticity (3:17). As in

Final Blessing and Greetings

1 Thessalonians, the names of Silas and Timothy, the cofounders of this church, are included alongside Paul's, indicating that they stood behind the contents of the letter and probably shared in its writing. Most of the first person pronouns in the letter are plural ("we"), suggesting that Silas and Timothy had real input into the letter and that their names were not included simply as a courtesy. However, the final greeting in Paul's own writing emphasizes that he is the primary author, personally responsible for the contents of the letter.

The early church unanimously affirmed that 2 Thessalonians was a genuine letter of the apostle Paul. The book is in harmony with Paul's other writings. Nearly all scholars today recognize Paul as the author of this letter.

RECIPIENTS

The recipients of the letter were the same as those who received 1 Thessalonians: "the church in Thessalonica, . . . you who belong to God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ" (1:1). Many were artisans who earned their living by manual labor (3:6-12) or were clients of rich patrons (see "Work and Patronage" at 3:6-10, p. 2045). They were not people who had great wealth.

MEANING AND MESSAGE

Wars are often fought on multiple fronts. This was certainly the case with the conflict in the church at Thessalonica. With persecutors assailing the church, false doctrine circulating, and unruly members refusing to work, the battle lines were numerous. In his response, however, Paul never embraces despair or exasperation. He is very clear in his teaching and correction. He intends for his words to strengthen the troubled church, stop the false teaching, and correct the errant members.

The value of Paul's second letter to the Thessalonians is not merely in figuring out how events will occur at the end of human history. Such has often been the approach to the second chapter of this letter. Second Thessalonians is primarily a pastoral letter from Paul that provides hope and confidence in God when the world has gone mad. Christ reigns now, and Christ will be triumphant in the end.

1. GREETINGS (1:1-2)

1 This letter is from Paul, Silas, and Timothy.

We are writing to the church in Thessalonica, to you who belong to God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

²May God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ give you grace and peace.

2. OPENING THANKSGIVING (1:3-12)

Encouragement during Persecution

³Dear brothers and sisters, we can't help but thank God for you, because your faith is flourishing and your love for one another is growing. ⁴We proudly tell God's other churches about your endurance and faithfulness in all the persecutions and hardships you are suffering. ⁵And God will use this persecution to show his justice and to make you worthy of his Kingdom, for which you are suffering. ⁶In his justice he will pay back those who persecute you.

⁷And God will provide rest for you who are being persecuted and also for us when the Lord Jesus appears from heaven. He will come with his mighty angels, ⁸in flaming fire, bringing judgment on those who don't know God and on those who refuse to obey the Good News of our Lord Jesus. ⁹They will be punished with eternal destruction, forever separated from the Lord and from his glorious power. ¹⁰When he comes on that day, he will receive glory from his holy people—praise from all who believe. And this includes you, for you believed ^awhat we told you about him.

Prayer for the Thessalonians

¹¹So we keep on praying for you, asking our God to enable you to live a life worthy of his ^bcall. May he give you the power to accomplish all the ^cgood things your faith prompts you to do. ¹²Then the name of our Lord Jesus will be honored because of the way you live, and you will be honored along with him. This is all made possible because of the ^dgrace of our God and Lord, Jesus Christ.

3. THE TIME OF THE DAY OF THE LORD (2:1-17)

Response to False Teaching

2 Now, dear brothers and sisters, let us clarify some things about the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ and how we will be gathered to meet him. ²Don't be so easily shaken or alarmed by those who say that

1:1-2 Paul follows ancient letter writing customs, but instead of the normal greeting (Greek chairein) he blesses them with grace (Greek charis) and peace.

1:1 Silas: Greek Silvanus, the Greek form of the name.

1:2 God our Father (some manuscripts read God the Father) and the Lord Jesus Christ are coequal as the source of grace and peace. The Thessalonians' hope was bound to God's grace (2:16), and even in persecution they could experience God-given peace (3:16).

1:3-10 After thanking God for the Thessalonian church (1:3-4), Paul writes about persecution (1:4), which had intensified since his first letter (1 Thes 1:6; 2:14; 3:3-4). God will relieve their suffering (1:5-10) and judge their persecutors.

1:3 Dear brothers and sisters: Literally Brothers, a generic term that refers to both male and female believers. • thank God: Paul begins with thanksgiving for the Thessalonians' faith, love, and "endurance" (1:4). These fundamental Christian virtues (see 1 Cor 13:13; Col 1:4-5; Heb 10:21-24; 1 Pet 2:1-22) were maturing in the church despite the persecution they endured (1:5).

1:4 Paul's boasting to other churches about the Thessalonians' endurance and faithfulness would stimulate the church's resolve to endure and remain faithful in the face of great hostility (1 Thes 2:14; 3:3-4).

1:5 Those called by God to enter his Kingdom will suffer for it (Acts 14:22; 1 Thes 2:12).

1:7 rest: Relief from suffering. • Elsewhere, Paul speaks of Christ's "coming" (2:1; 1 Thes 2:19; 3:13; 4:15; 5:23); here, he speaks of the event as the "appearing" or "unveiling" of the Lord Jesus, who cannot currently be seen physically (cp. 1 Pet 1:7-8; 4:13).

1:9 They will be punished for rejecting the message about Christ (1:8). • Eternal destruction (see 1 Thes 5:3; 1 Tim 6:9) is irrevocable. • Separated from the Lord refers to the source of the judgment to come (Isa 2:10, 19, 21).

1:10 that day: The day of the Lord (2:2; 1 Thes 5:2-4).

1:11-12 Paul assures the Thessalonian believers of God's promised justice, both for them and their persecutors (1:5-10). Because future deliverance means carrying out present responsibilities, Paul prays that they will be found worthy at Christ's return.

1:11 enable you to live a life worthy of his call: Paul had previously reminded the Thessalonians that God called them to conduct themselves "in a way that God would consider worthy" (1 Thes 2:12; see also Eph 4:1; Phil 1:27; Col

1:10). • Paul prayed that God would give the Thessalonian Christians power to live and work in a manner that would please God.

1:12 Though the name of our Lord Jesus was rejected by the Thessalonians' persecutors (1:8), Jesus will ultimately be glorified because of the lives of the believers. Further, they will be honored along with him (2:14; 1 Thes 2:12; cp. Rom 8:17-18; Col 3:4). Cp. Isa 66:5. • of our God and Lord, Jesus Christ: Or of our God and our Lord Jesus Christ.

2:1-12 False teaching about the day of the Lord had disturbed the Thessalonian church (2:1-2). Paul reminds them (2:5) that two events will precede that day: a great apostasy and the unveiling of the man of lawlessness (2:3-12). Christ will destroy this man when he returns (2:3, 8), and those who have been deceived will also be judged (2:9-12).

2:1 dear brothers and sisters: Literally brothers; also in 2:13, 15. See note on 1:3. • At the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ (1:7-10; 1 Thes 2:19; 3:13; 4:15-5:2, 23), all of his people will be gathered to meet him. This will occur at the resurrection and rapture of the church (1 Thes 4:13-18).

2:2 The Thessalonian Christians previously asked Paul when the day of the

the day of the Lord has already begun. Don't believe them, even if they claim to have had a spiritual vision, a revelation, or a letter supposedly from us. ³Don't be fooled by what they say. For that day will not come until there is a great rebellion against God and the man of lawlessness is revealed—the one who brings destruction. ⁴He will exalt himself and defy everything that people call god and every object of worship. He will even sit in the temple of God, claiming that he himself is God.

⁵Don't you remember that I told you about all this when I was with you? ⁶And you know what is holding him back, for he can be revealed only when his time comes. ⁷For this lawlessness is already at work secretly, and it will remain secret until the one who is holding it back steps out of the way. ⁸Then the man of lawlessness will be revealed, but the Lord Jesus will slay him with the breath of his mouth and destroy him by the splendor of his coming.

"He Will Come" (1:7-10)

2 Thes 2:1-12
Matt 25:1-46
Acts 1:6-7
1 Thes 4:13-5:11

When Christ comes, he will destroy the enemies of the Good News and rescue persecuted believers (1:7-10). This future event calls for a present response. Those who obey the Good News can have confidence of rescue. Those who disobey will experience everlasting destruction.

Although Paul carefully lays out the events that will precede the day of the Lord, such as apostasy and the appearing of the man of lawlessness (2:1-12; 1 Thes 4:13-18), he does not fix the Thessalonians' attention here. Rather, he reminds them of these events (2:5) in order to refute the false teaching circulating among them. Paul assures the Thessalonian Christians that the Lord will judge evil (2:8) and that those who have believed the lie will perish (2:9-12).

God's choosing and calling of believers is their hope and comfort (2:13-14). They can stand firm in the present as they face the future (2:14-15). The final consummation of all things—the "day of the Lord" (2:2)—will come when least expected, like "a thief in the night" (1 Thes 5:2). Only the Father knows when that day will be (Acts 1:6-7). The present is not a time for speculation but for hope and solid confidence. Setting dates and times is not the way Christians should approach questions about the end. Scripture teaches about final things (eschatology) to give hope in the midst of trouble and perspective on present life and conduct.

Lord would come (1 Thes 5:1-11). Now a false teaching that this day had already begun (cp. 2 Tim 2:18) was causing them to waver in faith and become frightened. • a spiritual vision, a revelation, or a letter: The source of the teaching might have been a false prophecy (cp. 1 Jn 4:1-2), an erroneous sermon, or a letter falsely attributed to Paul.

2:3 Two events will precede that day of the Lord (2:2). • Both Jewish and Christian theology predicted a great rebellion against God before the end (Matt 24:11-14; 1 Tim 4:1). • The man of lawlessness (some manuscripts read the man of sin) is without or against law; his character is defined by sin. • the one who brings destruction (or the one destined for destruction): The emphasis is on the lawless man's own destruction (2:8) rather than on the destruction he brings.

2:4 exalt himself: Like other Roman cities, Thessalonica constructed temples for the worship of the emperor. This cult was the prototype of the worship described here. • He will even sit in the temple of God: The profaning of the Temple in Jerusalem by Antiochus Epiphanes in 167 BC (see Dan 9:27; 11:31; 12:11) may have prefigured the event predicted here (Matt 24:15; Mark 13:14). Or it may refer to the attempt of the emperor Caligula, called "the new god manifest," to erect his own image in the Temple in AD 40. Alternatively, the temple may be an imperial temple (of God could be of the god) erected in honor of the lawless man and not necessarily a rebuilt temple in Jerusalem. • claiming that he himself is God (Ezek 28:2-10): The ascription of divine titles to the emperor was common in the first century.

2:6 what is holding him back: This has been variously identified as God, the Holy Spirit, the church, the gospel, Paul, the emperor, the Roman empire, or the government. Alternatively, the term may refer to something or someone who comes before the man of lawlessness, an agent of the lawlessness active at that time (2:7-8); in Greek literature, this term could describe demonic possession. This figure would prepare the way for the man of lawlessness when his time comes (2:3, 8).

2:7 The power of the coming man of lawlessness (2:3-6) is already at work secretly, like the antichrists of 1 Jn 2:18. • secretly (Greek mustērion): A description commonly used of rituals in the mystery religions (see 2:6). • at work: This connotes supernatural intervention, whether divine (1 Thes 2:13) or, as here, evil (2:9; Eph 2:2). • The one who is holding it back could refer to one who is in opposition to the man of lawlessness; to one who is possessed; or to Satan, the one who possesses (2:9; see note on 2:6).

2:8 Paul announces the doom of the man of lawlessness (cp. 2:3). Although this figure claims to be divine, places his cult above all other worship (2:4), and receives power from Satan (2:9), the Lord Jesus will violently and utterly destroy him (Isa 11:4). • splendor: A reference to Christ's epiphany (1 Tim 6:14; 2 Tim 1:10; 4:1, 8; Titus 2:13), an alternative description of Christ's coming (2:1; 1 Thes 2:19; 3:13; 4:15; 5:23) or unveiling (1:7). In ancient literature, an epiphany was the appearance of a deity or a demonstration of divine power that evoked worship.

2:9 As Christ will appear in royal and divine power (his parousia; 2:1, 8; 1 Thes 2:19; 3:13; 4:15; 5:23), this figure similarly will come (parousia) with a royal entrance. • To do the work implies supernatural, Satanic action (see note on 2:7; 1 Thes 2:13, 18; 3:5).

Satan with counterfeit power and 'signs and miracles. ¹⁰He will use every kind of evil deception to fool those on their way to destruction, because they refuse to love and accept the truth that would save them. ¹¹So God will cause them to be greatly deceived, and they will believe these lies. ¹²Then they will be condemned for enjoying evil rather than believing the truth.

Thanks for God's Calling

¹³As for us, we can't help but thank God for you, dear brothers and sisters loved by the Lord. We are always thankful that God chose you to be among the first to experience ⁸salvation—a salvation that came through the Spirit who makes you ⁹holy and through your belief in the truth. ¹⁴He called you to salvation when we told you the Good News; now you can share in the glory of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Call to Stand Firm

¹⁵With all these things in mind, dear brothers and sisters, stand firm and keep a strong grip on the teaching we passed on to you both in person and by letter.

A Blessing

¹⁶Now may our Lord Jesus Christ himself and God our Father, who loved us and by his grace gave us eternal comfort and a wonderful hope, ¹⁷comfort you and strengthen you in every good thing you do and say.

4. REQUEST FOR PRAYER (3:1-5)

3 Finally, dear brothers and sisters, we ask you to pray for us. Pray that the Lord's message will spread rapidly and be honored wherever it goes, just as when it came to you. ²Pray, too, that we will be rescued from wicked and evil people, for not everyone is a believer. ³But the Lord is faithful; he will strengthen you and guard you from the evil one. ⁴And we are confident in the Lord that you are doing and will continue to do the things we commanded you. ⁵May the Lord lead your hearts into a full understanding and expression of the love of God and the patient endurance that comes from Christ.

5. DISORDERLY CHRISTIANS (3:6-15)

Paul's Exhortation and Example

⁶And now, dear brothers and sisters, we give you this command in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ: Stay away from all believers who live idle lives and don't follow the tradition they received from us. ⁷For you know that you ought to imitate us. We were not idle when we were with you. ⁸We never accepted food from anyone without paying

2:11 As seen elsewhere in Scripture (Exod 9:12; 2 Chr 18:22), God sometimes hands people over to the power of the sin or deception they have desired in place of the truth (Rom 1:24, 26, 28; 11:8).

2:12 They will be condemned (see 1:6-9) by God's judicial verdict for not believing the truth (2:10), instead believing the lie of the man of lawlessness (2:9-10).

2:13 chose you to be among the first: Some manuscripts read chose you from the very beginning.

2:14 He called you to salvation: God calls his chosen ones to himself (1:11; 1 Thes 2:12; 4:7; 5:24) through the preaching of the Good News. • Those who suffer because of their faith will ultimately share in the glory of our Lord Jesus Christ (Rom 5:2; 8:17-18; Col 1:27; 1 Thes 2:12).

2:15 Ever since the founding of the Thessalonian church, Paul had been concerned for the stability of their faith (1 Thes 3:2, 5, 8; 4:1-2) and their adherence to his teaching (3:6; 1 Cor 11:2; 15:3; see Jude 1:3).

2:16 Eternal comfort and . . . hope transcend both death and uncertainty about the immediate future.

2:17 Paul's prayer echoes the purpose of Timothy's visit to the church—to strengthen and encourage the Thessalonian believers in their faith (1 Thes 3:2). • To comfort you does not merely mean to console, but to exhort or encourage them because of their fears and doubts (2:1-12; 1 Thes 4:18; 5:11).

3:1-5 Before taking up the final topic of the letter (3:6-15), Paul requests prayer (3:1-2) and assures the Thessalonians of God's providence in troubles (3:3-5).

3:1 dear brothers and sisters: Literally brothers; also in 3:6, 13. See note on 1:3. • pray: The prayer that the gospel would spread rapidly recalls Ps 147:15. Paul merges the image with reference to the games (see 1 Cor 9:24-26; Gal 2:2) in which a victor was honored.

3:2 Paul, too, suffered for the Good News (2 Cor 6:5; 11:23-26; 1 Thes 2:2). His prayer to be rescued echoes Isa 25:4.

3:3 The sufferings the Thessalonians faced were caused by the evil one (or by evil; see 2:9; cp. 1:4-6; 1 Thes 1:6; 2:14).

3:5 The prayer that God would lead (literally make straight) their hearts reflects an OT expression (1 Chr 29:18; Prov 23:19). Christians are expected to love as God loves and practice patient endurance as Christ endured.

3:6-15 In his previous letter, Paul had addressed the problem of lazy members of the church who refused to work (1 Thes 4:11-12; 5:14). Some had ignored his message and example, so he gives additional instruction for dealing with these members.

3:6 Paul's command is given by the authority of the Lord Jesus Christ (1 Thes 4:2). • Church members should shun Christians who live idle lives (see 3:7, 11-13; 1 Thes 5:14). To stay away from the lazy would make a strong impression on them (Matt 18:17; Rom 16:17; 1 Cor 5:9-13), promoting shame (3:14) and repentance, but stopping short of excommunication (3:15). • from all believers: Literally from every brother. See note on 1:3. • they received: Some manuscripts read you received.

3:7 Teaching by example was highly regarded in the ancient world. Paul himself provided an example by working for his own food (3:8; 1 Thes 2:9).

3:8 without paying for it: Although Paul taught that workers in the Christian church could receive pay for their labor (3:9; see Matt 10:10; 1 Cor 9:7-14; 1 Tim 5:17-18), he did not take advantage of that privilege (1 Thes 2:9). See "Work and Patronage," facing page.

Matt 10:10
1 Cor 9:13-16
Phil 4:15-16
1 Thes 2:5, 9; 4:11-12; 5:14

When Paul first visited Thessalonica, he taught the believers to work for a living rather than being dependent by demanding support or becoming clients of non-Christian patrons.

Yet some of the Thessalonians refused to work. Paul dealt with these idle Christians in his first letter (1 Thes 4:11-12; 5:14) but they remained entrenched and had not changed their ways. Why did they refuse to work? Possibly, these believers so vividly expected a quick return of the Lord that they gave up all work. Paul's teaching about the coming of the Lord, however, never contradicted his basic instruction about the necessity of work (3:6, 10).

These idle Christians may have been clients of prominent patrons. Patronage was a fundamental feature of the Roman economic world. Rich patrons often supported numerous clients in various ways, such as by giving them food or money and by representing them in public assembly. Having numerous clients increased the honor of a patron. However, being a client brought social obligations that Paul would have wanted the Thessalonian believers to avoid, especially because their patrons were most likely not Christians.

Paul set for the Thessalonians an example of self-reliance. While he was among them, he supported himself (3:7-8; 1 Thes 2:9). Although Paul believed that "those who work deserve to be fed" (Matt 10:10; 1 Cor 9:13-16), he did not receive support from the Thessalonians (he did accept offerings from the Philippians, Phil 4:15-16). Paul wanted the Thessalonians to know that he did not come to them as a smooth talker hoping for monetary gain (1 Thes 2:5, 9). He wanted them to understand from his example how they themselves should live.

3:9 Paul had distanced himself from others in the culture who were motivated by fame and money (1 Thes 2:5).

3:10 Work is the appropriate way to gain a living (see Gen 3:17-19; Ps 128:2; Prov 10:4). Paul absolves the church of the responsibility of feeding other believers who refuse to work.

3:12 Paul underscores the strength of the command by appealing to the authority of the Lord Jesus (as in 3:6; 1 Thes 4:1-2). • settle down: i.e., lead a quiet life instead of being involved in meddlesome activities (see 1 Thes 4:11).

3:13 doing good: The Thessalonians were exhorted to reach out and help those in genuine need (see Gal 6:9-10), in contrast with those who are lazy and dependent (3:7-8, 10).

3:14 Paul hoped that the disobedient Christians would be ashamed and repent (see note on 3:6) in response to being shunned by the community.

3:15 Don't think of them as enemies: In the ancient world, social relations with enemies were broken off and punitive action was initiated against them. Paul warns the Thessalonians that discipline against disobedient Christians (3:14) should not result in this kind of attack. Rather, the church should treat them as members of the family, with the hope that they would correct their conduct (1 Thes 5:12, 14). • a brother or sister: Literally as a brother. See note on 1:3.

3:16 The final prayer echoes Jesus' blessing in John 14:27 (cp. Num 6:26) and contrasts with the situation these believers faced in Thessalonica (1:4-10; 1 Thes 2:14). Paul was always conscious of the Lord Jesus' presence with his people (Rom 15:33; Phil 4:9).

3:17 A secretary had written this letter for Paul (Rom 16:22; 1 Pet 5:12). Now Paul takes the pen to add a final greeting in his own hand (cp. 1 Cor 16:21; Gal 6:11; Col 4:18; Phlm 1:19). Because he suspected that a letter he had not written was circulating under his name (2:2), he emphasizes this authenticating procedure TO PROVE this letter is from him.

3:18 Ancient letters frequently ended with a wish for health or prosperity, but Paul's blessing is much grander: He calls on the Lord Jesus Christ to grant grace to the recipients (see 1 Thes 5:28).

INTRODUCTION TO PAUL'S LETTERS TO TIMOTHY AND TITUS

The "Pastoral Epistles" (1–2 Timothy and Titus) were written following Paul's release from the imprisonment described in Acts 28. They are the only letters from Paul that survive from this last period of his life. In 1 Timothy and Titus, Paul works through two of his associates to stabilize churches in Ephesus and Crete. In 2 Timothy, Paul is again in a Roman prison. Aware that his life is nearing its end, he is concerned that the mission he began should continue after he is gone.

SETTING

Having been released from prison in Rome (Acts 28, AD 60–62), Paul resumed his apostolic mission, continuing his earlier activities in Dalmatia, Greece, and east to Asia and Galatia. Paul was conscious that his apostolic career was closing, and he sought to set the churches in order before his departure (1 Tim 3:15).

AUTHORSHIP

A widespread view is that these letters were not written by Paul. There are several good reasons, however, to believe that Paul is the author.

(1) Until the 1800s, there was no hesitation in ascribing these letters to Paul. This includes early church fathers whose native language was Greek and who were very familiar with Paul's other letters.

(2) The early church would never have accepted these letters had they suspected the letters of being falsely signed in Paul's name.

(3) Paul's style in these letters is different from elsewhere, but it might be a result of the distinctive situations Paul was addressing. It also might result from the use of a different amanuensis (scribe) for these letters.

These letters, from a distinctive period of Paul's life and career, are still true to Paul and complement his other writings. It is reasonable to affirm Paul's authorship and overreaching to exclude it.

DATE OF WRITING

In 2 Timothy, Paul is jailed in Rome at the end of his life. This would seem to place the letters of 1 Timothy and Titus—written while Paul was still moving freely—in the time leading up to his arrest. How do these details fit with Acts?

One possibility is that 2 Timothy was written during the Roman imprisonment of Acts 28. In this case, all three letters would fit into Luke's historical account in the book of Acts, and Paul would have been executed at the end of that imprisonment (Acts 28:30; AD 62).

There are early reports, however, that Paul was released from the Roman imprisonment (e.g., 1 Clement 5:6–7, AD 95~97; see also Eusebius, Church History 2.22, AD 325). He engaged in further work, possibly went to Spain, and was then rearrested and executed in Rome during Nero's persecution of Christians (about AD 64~65). The letters to Timothy and Titus were then written during this later period.

In support of this approach, there is no reason that these letters must be fitted into the history recorded in Acts. Also, the activities of Paul and his delegates in 1 Timothy and Titus do not correspond to the details in Acts, nor does the imprisonment of 2 Timothy sound like the imprisonment of Acts 28. Finally, the distinctive style and content of these letters is less puzzling if they were written at a different time from Paul's other letters.

THE FALSE TEACHERS

It is very difficult to draw a clear picture of the false teachers, but there are clues. Their teaching had ascetic elements (see 1 Tim 4:3; Titus 1:15) and a Jewish focus (see 1 Tim 1:7; Titus 1:10, 14; 3:9). It claimed special knowledge (1 Tim 6:20; Titus 1:16), asserted that the resurrection of the believers had already taken place (2 Tim 2:18), disrupted relationships (2 Tim 3:6–7; Titus 1:11), and might have emphasized salvation by works (2 Tim 1:9; Titus 3:5). Paul's strong response suggests a need to make corrections regarding the doctrine of Christ (see 1 Tim 2:5–6; 3:16; 2 Tim 2:8) and the last days (see 1 Tim 4:1–5; 2 Tim 2:18; 3:1–9; Titus 2:11–14). The false teachers opposed Paul's message, promoted immorality, and undercut the church's mission. Thus, good leaders were needed (see Titus 1:10–13; 2:6–8, 15).

MEANING & MESSAGE

The letters to Timothy and Titus are not handbooks of church government, but they do provide insight into the organization of the earliest churches. They are rare snapshots of church leadership making adaptations in response to needs.

These letters incorporate summaries of essential apostolic doctrines (e.g., 1 Tim 3:16; Titus 3:4–7), which Paul wanted his readers to preserve faithfully and make central to their lives.

In these letters, Paul makes a strong appeal to live the new life in Christ. He challenges the whole church to carry the Good News forward faithfully, proclaiming the message and living out God's presence in the world.

PAUL'S FIRST LETTER TO Timothy

During the final phase of Paul's apostolic career, a serious disruption was troubling a long-established Christian church: Some church leaders had become false teachers. Paul had warned that this would happen (Acts 20:29-31), and now their impact was threatening the life and well-being of the community. A skillful person was needed to restore order to God's household. Paul gave this task to Timothy, his trusted delegate.

SETTING

Paul's first contact with Ephesus, during his second missionary journey (Acts 18:19-21), gave no opportunity for significant work. During his third journey, he returned to the city and served a couple of years (Acts 19, around AD 53~56). Later, when Paul was on his way to Jerusalem, he had opportunity to stop at Miletus and speak to the elders from Ephesus, who met him there (Acts 20:17-38). Paul traveled to Jerusalem, was arrested, was later transferred to Caesarea, and was then sent to Rome, where he stayed under house arrest for approximately two years (Acts 21-28; AD 60-62). When he was released from prison, he reembarked on his missionary journeys, possibly directed toward Spain (see Rom 15:24, 28), although it is just as possible that the imprisonment changed Paul's orientation back eastward.

Paul was still involved with the Ephesian church during this period. Timothy had accompanied Paul for much of his original ministry there (Acts 19:22) and had now been delegated the task of dealing with new and troubling developments in Ephesus (1:3). False teachers were upsetting households (cp. 2:15; 3:4-5; 5:11-15; Titus 1:11). Repercussions in the surrounding society (see 2:2) were bringing the church and the gospel into disrepute. Paul wrote Timothy to guide him in correcting errant behavior and in preventing false teachers from gaining another foothold.

◀ The Setting of 1 Timothy, about AD 63. Timothy had accompanied Paul on his second missionary journey (Acts 16:1-3; 17:14-15; 18:5) and was with Paul in Ephesus during his third journey (Acts 19:22). After Paul's imprisonment in Rome (AD 60-62), he evidently sent Timothy back to Ephesus while Paul himself went to visit the churches in Macedonia (see 1:3). Paul then wrote to Timothy to help him make corrections in the Ephesian church (3:14-15).

SUMMARY

After directing Timothy to deal with the would-be teachers of the law (1:3-20), Paul gives guidance on conduct in God's household with respect to prayer, women's teaching, and leadership (2:1-3:13). These three areas had been harmed by the false teachers. Paul makes clear what he is trying to accomplish and explains why and how it must be done (3:14-4:16). Then he resumes his instructions on godly conduct concerning old and young people, widows, elders, and masters (5:1-6:2). These areas, too, had been distorted by false teaching. Finally, Paul returns to the need to deal with the false teachers themselves, this time centering on issues of wealth and profit (6:2-21).

DATE OF WRITING

Most likely, 1 Timothy was written after Paul's first imprisonment in Rome (Acts 28). If, however, 1 Timothy is dated within the time frame of Acts, then Acts 20:1-3 provides a possible window. Another option is during a possible time gap between Acts 19:20, 21. On balance, however, these earlier periods are less plausible for 1 Timothy than a time period after Acts 28 (see Introduction to Paul's Letters to Timothy and Titus, "Date of Writing," p. 2047).

LITERARY GENRE

This letter has characteristics similar to a Greco-Roman mandatum principis ("commandment of a ruler"), in which "a superior writes to a representative or delegate with instructions concerning the delegate's mission."¹ Though addressed to the delegate, such mandates were intended to be public rather than private. This literary form was commonly used in situations such as Timothy's. It authorized the delegate and established a public norm of conduct to which he could be held accountable by those in his charge. Though Paul and Timothy had a close personal relationship, the content and formal tone of 1 Timothy are in keeping with its literary genre.

MEANING AND MESSAGE

First Timothy is not primarily an essay on church government and gender policies. It is a passionate and masterful advocacy for the Good News of Jesus Christ, its ongoing progress in the world, and the new life which it creates and promotes (see 3:14-16).

The need for wise dealing with questions of church arrangements and Christian discipline is ever present, and [the Pastoral] Epistles have constantly supplied Christian leaders with sober practical advice in these matters.

God's household was Paul's immediate concern. Just as the surrounding society expected orderly conduct in the family household—with roles and decorum and notions of honor and shame—so it was with the household of God. God's household adapts to the social and economic structures of society, reflecting widely accepted standards of honor and propriety as well as the social structures themselves. At the same time, where proper and necessary, God's household runs counter to society, reflecting very different and even countercultural values and practices. The formation of God's household is dynamic, not mathematical. Salvation is begun but is not complete. God's household is in the world, but not of it. That world remains God's good creation (4:3-4; 6:17), but the world is transient and is in its last, difficult, evil-ridden days (4:1; 2 Tim 3:1). God's household exists in the world and reflects the new creation.

Paul's primary concern was with the mission of the church to advance the Good News in the world and promote the will of God (see 2:4-7). God's people should do what supports that mission (2:1-3; 13; 5:1-6:2; see 1 Cor 9:19-23). The false teachers were, by contrast, talking foolishness and damaging the integrity of the church, so Paul directed most of his words toward right conduct. The condensed summaries of the Good News (1:15; 2:5-6; 3:16; 6:13-16) indicate what was actually under assault—the right understanding of salvation in the present age. This "deposit" (see note on 6:20) is what must be preserved, skillfully taught, and passed along with godly life as its outcome.

1. SALUTATION FROM PAUL (1:1-2)

1 This letter is from Paul, an apostle of Christ Jesus, appointed by the command of God our Savior and Christ Jesus, who gives us hope.

²I am writing to Timothy, my true son in the faith.

May God the Father and Christ Jesus our Lord give you grace, mercy, and peace.

2. DEALING WITH FALSE TEACHING (1:3-17)

Silencing False Teachers

³When I left for Macedonia, I urged you to stay there in Ephesus and stop those whose teaching is contrary to the truth. ⁴Don't let them waste their time in endless discussion of myths and spiritual pedigrees. These things only lead to meaningless

1:1-2 This opening has the standard components of a letter: sender, recipient, and greeting. Additions to the basic pattern underscore Paul's authoritative message (see also Rom 1:1-7; 1 Cor 1:1-3; Gal 1:1-5; Titus 1:1-4).

1:1 Our Savior, here used of God, applies equally to Christ Jesus (1:15; 2:3-4; see 2 Tim 1:9-10; Titus 1:3-4; 2:10, 13). • Hope is based on God in contrast to other objects such as wealth (4:10; 5:5; 6:17).

1:2 Timothy was currently in Ephesus as Paul's delegate (see 1 Timothy Introduction, "Setting," p. 2048). See also "Timothy" at Acts 16:1-3, p. 1860. • Timothy was Paul's true son in the faith (see Phil 2:20; cp. Titus 1:4), but probably not Paul's direct convert (see Acts 16:1).

1:3-11 Paul's greetings are usually followed by thanksgiving or blessing to God; Greco-Roman letters often did the same. First Timothy and Titus probably do not include this because of their character as official letters authorizing a delegate (see 1 Timothy Introduction, "Literary Genre," p. 2049). Instead, Paul first addresses his concern to silence the false teachers.

1:3 stop those . . . contrary to the truth: Just as Paul had previously warned (Acts 20:29-31), false teachers came into the church in Ephesus; this letter was written to help Timothy to deal with them.

1:4 in endless discussion . . . meaningless speculations (literally in myths and endless genealogies, which cause speculation): Paul might be dismissing their teaching as trivial, or he might be rejecting the fanciful nature of their interpretations (1:7; see also 2 Tim 4:3-4; Titus 1:14; 3:9; 2 Pet 1:16) and their justification of immoral behavior (1:8-11; 4:1-2, 7; see also Titus 1:15-16). • spiritual pedigrees (literally endless genealogies): In Judaism, one's genealogy established one's spiritual pedigree; the false teachers might have been preoccupied with this. They were probably also exploiting OT genealogies (Gen 2-4, 5) in fanciful interpretations of the law. • which don't help people live a life of faith in God (literally rather than a stewardship of God in faith): The Greek uses an important word ("stewardship," "household management") that has to do with the household (see 3:15); this phrase can be translated in a number of ways, such as faithfulness to God's household management or faithfulness in managing God's household.

speculations, which don't help people live a life of faith in God.

⁵The purpose of my instruction is that all believers would be filled with love that comes from a pure heart, a clear conscience, and genuine faith. ⁶But some people have missed this whole point. They have turned away from these things and spend their time in meaningless discussions. ⁷They want to be known as teachers of the law of Moses, but they don't know what they are talking about, even though they speak so confidently.

⁸We know that the law is good when used correctly. ⁹For the law was not intended for people who do what is right. It is for people who are lawless and rebellious, who are ungodly and sinful, who consider nothing sacred and defile what is holy, who kill their father or mother or commit other murders. ¹⁰The law is for people who are sexually immoral, or who practice homosexuality, or are slave traders, liars, promise breakers, or who do anything else that contradicts the wholesome teaching ¹¹that comes from the glorious Good News entrusted to me by our blessed God.

Parenthesis: Gratitude for God's Mercy

¹²I thank Christ Jesus our Lord, who has given me strength to do his work. He considered me trustworthy and appointed me to serve him, ¹³even though I used to blaspheme the name of Christ. In my insolence, I persecuted his people. But God had mercy on me because I did it in ignorance and unbelief. ¹⁴Oh, how generous and gracious our Lord was! He filled me with the faith and love that come from Christ Jesus.

¹⁵This is a trustworthy saying, and everyone should accept it: "Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners"—and I am the worst of them all. ¹⁶But God had mercy on me so that Christ Jesus could use me as a prime example of his great patience with even the worst sinners. Then others will realize that they, too, can believe in him and receive eternal life. ¹⁷All honor and glory to God forever and ever! He is the eternal King, the unseen one who never dies; he alone is God. Amen.

3. THE RESPONSIBILITY TO ACT (1:18-20)

¹⁸Timothy, my son, here are my instructions for you, based on the prophetic words spoken about you earlier. May they help you fight well in the Lord's battles. ¹⁹Cling to your faith in Christ, and keep your conscience clear. For some people have deliberately violated their consciences; as a result, their faith has been shipwrecked. ²⁰Hymenaeus

1:5 The purpose of my instruction: Paul seeks godliness that flows out of sound faith and renewal (see Titus 3:5; see also 1 Cor 13; Col 3:14). • In 1 Timothy and Titus, all allusions to a clear conscience are in contrast to the false teachers' dead consciences (e.g., 1:19; 4:2; Titus 1:15).

1:6-11 Paul now elaborates on the false teachers and turns their subject matter against them.

1:6 Some people is probably a put-down, demoting the false teachers to a general class of opponents of the Good News (cp. Rom 3:8; 1 Cor 4:18; 2 Cor 3:1; Gal 1:7). • They were professing believers who had missed the whole point of the Good News and had turned away.

1:7 Their aspirations to be teachers of the law of Moses were ironic; their handling of the law was deficient in the light of the Good News, and they neither understood nor fulfilled the law (see 1:8-11).

1:8 See Rom 7:11-16; Gal 3:19-4:7; 2 Tim 3:15-17.

1:9 the law was not intended for people who do what is right: As a general principle, the virtuous person needs no law. For Christians, a righteous life results from faith apart from the law (see Gal 5:16-26; Eph 2:11-14; Titus 2:11-14; cp. Rom 8:1-17; Jas 2:14-16).

1:10 This list portrays the ultimate tendencies of the false teachers' teachings, their underlying spiritual state, and the superior righteousness of the Good News (see Matt 5:20; Gal 5:22-23). • slave traders: Or kidnappers. • that contradicts the wholesome (or sound, healthy) teaching: See also 6:3-4; 2 Tim 1:13; 4:3; Titus 1:9, 13; 2:1, 8. This addition to the list is both a closing generalization and a powerful assertion. Righteousness is now defined more perfectly by the Good News than by the law, but law still speaks to all that is opposed to the Good News. The false teachers' reliance on the law, therefore, underscores their departure from Paul's teaching.

1:11 Titus 2:11-14 gives a fuller version of Paul's idea here.

1:12-17 This expression of gratitude is a parenthesis from Paul's charge to Timothy (1:3-11, 18-20). Triggered by the mention of Paul's role (1:11), it gives perspective on the source of Paul's thankfulness and provides a model for its readers. When talking about his own work, Paul directs glory to God and makes it plain that he is doing God's work (see also 2 Cor 1:21-22; 2:14-17; 3:4-6; 4:7; 12:9-10).

1:15 This is a trustworthy saying: This expression recurs only in the letters to Timothy and Titus (3:1; 4:8-9; 2 Tim 2:11-13; Titus 3:4-8). These sayings are probably quotations from tradition that Paul has adapted to the current situation; here, in addition to the way the saying underscores the mercy shown to Paul, it probably corrects the false teachers. The emphasis of this saying falls on Christ's entrance into history for the salvation of sinners, which was probably being marginalized by the false teachers, who emphasized law (1:7), special knowledge (6:20; cp. Titus 1:16), and stipulations such as those in 4:3 (cp. Col 2:16-23).

1:18-20 Paul continues his charge to Timothy (1:3-11), who is to draw upon available resources, remain faithful, and consider two bad examples. The church (also part of the audience; see 1 Timothy Introduction, "Literary Genre," p. 2049) should expect Paul's delegate to do these things.

1:18 the prophetic words spoken about you earlier: This was probably about Timothy's commissioning (see 4:14; 2 Tim 1:6; cp. Acts 13:2-3).

1:19 See also 1:5-6; 6:20-21; 2 Tim 2:15-18. Conscience is viewed as a kind of gyroscope; keeping it clear (or good) means ensuring that it is not destroyed (see note on 4:2).

4. RIGHT CONDUCT IN GOD'S HOUSEHOLD (2:1–3:13)

Holy Prayer and Right Teaching

2 I urge you, first of all, to pray for all people. Ask God to help them; intercede on their behalf, and give thanks for them. ²Pray this way for kings and all who are in authority so that we can live peaceful and quiet lives marked by godliness and dignity. ³This is good and pleases God our Savior, ⁴who wants everyone to be saved and to understand the truth. ⁵For,

There is one God and one Mediator who can reconcile God and humanity—the man Christ Jesus. ⁶He gave his life to ^dpurchase freedom for everyone.

This is the ^emessage God gave to the world at just the right time. ⁷And I have been chosen as a preacher and ^fapostle to teach the Gentiles this message about faith and truth. I'm not exaggerating—just telling the truth.

⁸In every place of worship, I want men to pray with holy hands lifted up to God, free from anger and controversy.

⁹And I want women to be modest in their appearance. They should wear decent and appropriate clothing and not draw attention to themselves by the way they fix their hair or by wearing gold or pearls or expensive clothes. ¹⁰For women who claim to be devoted to God should make themselves attractive by the good things they do.

1:20 Hymenaeus and Alexander might have been elders in Ephesus (see also 2 Tim 2:17; 4:14; cp. Acts 19:33; 20:29-31). • Paul handed them over to Satan by removing them from the church, the realm of the Spirit's oversight (see also 2 Tim 2:25-26; Job 2:6; Matt 18:17-20; 1 Cor 5:2-5; 2 Cor 2:5-11). • blaspheme God: They attacked and defamed the true Good News, and thus God himself (see 1:13; cp. 6:1; Titus 2:5; 2 Pet 2:2).

2:1–3:13 Paul moves to the areas of conduct in God's household that were affected by the false teachers (3:15). Community life had been corrupted in worship and gender roles (2:1-15) and leadership (3:1-13).

2:1-15 This unit deals first with prayer (2:1-7) and with the deportment of men and women (2:8-10). It closes with the question of women and teaching (2:11-15).

2:1-7 Here, prayer focuses on the church's mission, which suggests that the false teachers had brought the church into disrepute in the wider society (cp. 3:6-7; 6:1; Titus 2:5) and hampered its mission to the Gentiles.

2:1 all people: The prayers of the false teachers and their disciples were evidently not consonant with God's will to save all kinds of people (2:3-4).

2:2 all who are in authority: Those who had the power to persecute or to protect the church (see also Rom 13:1-7; 1 Pet 2:13-17). • live peaceful and quiet lives: The point was not for Christians to blend in and be unnoticed, but to display the beauty of the Good News and allow the church's mission to proceed without unnecessary complications (cp. 2 Tim 3:12; 1 Pet 3:13-17). • The word godliness and its cognates (also at 3:16;

4:7-8; 5:4; 6:3, 5-6, 11) sum up the beliefs, attitudes, and lifestyles that accord with right and reverential knowledge of God, obedience, and authentic worship.

2:5-6 Compact teachings, as in this passage, occur throughout the letters to Timothy and Titus (see also 3:16; 2 Tim 1:9-10; 2:8, 11-13; Titus 3:4-7). They might be adapted bits of creeds, hymns, or prayers that were known to the churches. The doctrines referenced probably relate to Paul's trouble with the false teachers; it appears that their teaching undercut the universal appeal of the Good News and the effectiveness of the Gentile mission. The false teachers also had a deficient understanding of Jesus and his salvation.

2:5 There is one God and therefore one mission encompassing all people (Rom 3:29-30; Gal 3:26-29). Using the phrase one God suggests a fundamental declaration of Christian faith, analogous to the basics of Jewish faith (Deut 6:4). • There is one Mediator of God's covenant, the man Christ Jesus. He is fully human and fully God, and thus able to reconcile God and humanity (see 1 Cor 8:6; Eph 4:5-6).

2:6 See Mark 10:45; Gal 4:4-5; Titus 1:3; 2:14.

2:8 Genuine prayer had evidently deteriorated among the Ephesians due to the false teachers' influence (see 6:4-5; 1:4; cp. 2 Tim 3:1-5; Titus 3:9-11). • holy hands lifted up: Cp. Isa 1:15-17. An ancient posture of praise and supplication (see Exod 9:29; 1 Kgs 8:22, 54; Neh 8:6; Ps 28:2; Luke 24:50). • free from anger and controversy: Cp. Jas 3:8-12.

2:9-10 The subject is still community prayer. • to be modest in their appearance (or to pray in modest apparel): Christian women must praise God rather than seek to be praised by people (cp. 1 Pet 3:3-5). They are to do good deeds for others, not focus on enhancing their appearance or being sexually seductive. Jewelry and expensive clothes imply wealth (see 6:5-10, 17-19), which might have played into the power struggles Timothy had to combat (2:11-15).

2:11-15 Paul is still talking about women in the assembly—here, in their relationship to public teaching (cp. 1 Cor 11:2-16; 14:33-36; 2 Cor 11:3).

2:12 teach men or have authority over them: The relationship between teaching and authority depends on how both are understood. Women did teach (Titus 2:3-5), but there are no clear NT examples or endorsements of women teaching men in church meetings (cp. Acts 18:26; 1 Cor 14:34-35; Phil 4:3). We know it was happening in some of the churches only by way of Paul's opposing responses. Women did prophesy (Acts 2:17-18; 21:9; 1 Cor 11:5), but some types of prophecy might not have been seen as authoritative teaching (Acts 11:28; 21:10-11; 1 Cor 14:29). • have authority over them (or usurp their authority): This verb can denote either a domineering attitude or simply the exercise of authority.

2:13 The most common understanding of this verse is that Paul believes social roles are attached to the man being created first (Gen 2:7, 22; 1 Cor 11:8-12). Paul's logic has usually been tied to the leading role of the firstborn son in the OT. However, there are exceptions to the rule of firstborn even in Scripture (see Gen 27-28). And while gender retains its distinctions in the NT, there is also an element of equality in Christ (Gal 3:28; see also 1 Cor 11:11-12; 12:13; Eph 5:21; Col 3:11). • It is also possible that the heretics asserted a reversal of gender status in Christ rela-

Women's Roles in the NT Church (2:11-15)

Gen 2:23-24
 Acts 18:26
 Rom 16:1-7
 1 Cor 11:2-16;
 14:34-35
 Gal 3:28

Paul's words regarding women's roles in the church were intended to correct what was happening in Ephesus, but the extent to which this passage applies to other situations is a subject of discussion. The possible understandings include the following three.

Universal Interpretation. Galatians 3:28 ("There is no longer . . . male and female") does not negate creational gender distinctions and roles. Even if Gal 3:28 represents the ideal of equality in God's eternal Kingdom, gender roles should still be ordered as outlined in 1 Tim 2:11-15 for as long as this creation continues. By way of comparison, Matt 22:30 discusses the status of marriage in the new creation—it differs from the structure of this creation outlined in Gen 2:23-24, and it applies to the present life only in a special and limited sense (see 4:3-5; Matt 19:11-12; 1 Cor 7:29-35). The structure of the new creation will be fully realized in the coming age, and it is not the ideal for the present time. Therefore, Christian women in all times and places must recognize their role in the created order of God. They must not teach men or exercise authority over men in the church (see also 1 Cor 11:2-16; 14:34-35).

Polemical Interpretation. Paul was addressing a particular situation created by the false teaching within the Ephesian church (see 1:18-20; 4:1-5; cp. 2 Tim 3:6). Evidence suggests that this teaching was disturbing family relationships (see 2:15; 4:3; Titus 1:11). It is possible that Ephesian women, caught up in the local heresy, were abusing Gen 1–3 in their teaching. They might have been asserting female domination in the final resurrection (which, according to some of the Ephesians, had already occurred; 2 Tim 2:18) and accentuated Adam's blame for the Fall. Paul corrects their misreadings by alluding to the biblical text, but his point is not to make a universal statement about the status of women in the church. His concern is merely to silence the false teachers in Ephesus, including the women among them. First Timothy 2:11-15 entails a rebuke with loss of privilege specifically for those false teachers.

Cultural Interpretation. Paul's argument was not necessarily directed to a local problem in Ephesus, but it presupposes a strongly patriarchal society, both in concern for public decorum (women in their place, showing proper honor to men) and in handling Gen 2:7, 22. This shows that Christians must respect cultural norms insofar as possible in their evangelistic mission (1 Cor 9:19-23). In addition, most women in that society had limited training as teachers. Their society, in contrast to many 21st century societies, usually educated women poorly. Because of that culture's patriarchal structure, women would not normally have qualified as teachers and leaders. First Timothy 2:11-15, therefore, shows that properly qualified people should lead and teach. At the same time, there is a tendency in Paul (e.g., Gal 3:28; 1 Cor 11:5) and in the early church (e.g., Acts 18:26; Rom 16:1-7) toward the full engagement of women in ministry, which makes it unlikely that Paul was issuing a universal limitation here. Cultures that do not operate according to patriarchal norms would apply Paul's principle in very different ways. An egalitarian culture, as in contemporary western society, would see men and women as sharing equal roles in the church.

tive to the surrounding culture, giving an objectionable dominance to women. Paul's allusion would then function to discredit this assertion and reestablish balance.

2:14 See Gen 3:6, 13; cp. 2 Cor 11:3.

2:15 will be saved through childbearing (or will be saved by accepting their role as mothers, or will be saved by the birth of the Child): The most likely explanation for this statement is that the false teachers had stirred up trouble in households (see 1 Timothy Introduction, "Setting," p. 2048), and Paul was calling these women back to proper relations within their homes, in keeping with the truth of the Good News (see 1:4-5; 4:1-5). In so doing they would be saved in the ultimate sense (see 4:16; cp. 3:13). This verse might allude to Gen 3:15-16, suggesting a reversal of the curse, either through normal childbirth or the birth of the Messiah.

3:1-13 The topic shifts to church leadership by elders (3:1-7) and deacons (3:8-13). Timothy's role in the appointments is less clear than that of Titus (see

5:17-22; Titus 1:5), possibly because the church in Ephesus was more mature and thus better able to manage the process (cp. Acts 6:2-6). The criteria listed here pertain to character rather than function and are partly a response to the local heretics. Reading this letter in the churches would make the criteria public and demonstrate the unfitness of the heretics for leadership.

3:1 trustworthy saying: See note on 1:15. • a church leader (or an overseer, or a bishop; also in 3:2, 6): The translation uses "church leader" for a word desires an honorable position.”² So a church leader must be a man whose life is above reproach. He must be faithful to his wife. He must exercise self-control, live wisely, and have a good reputation. He must enjoy having guests in his home, and he must be able to teach. ³He must not be a heavy drinker or be violent. He must be gentle, not quarrelsome, and not love money. ⁴He must manage his own family well, having children who respect and obey him. ⁵For if a man cannot manage his own household, how can he take care of God’s church?

⁶A church leader must not be a new believer, because he might become proud, and the devil would cause him to fall. ⁷Also, people outside the church must speak well of him so that he will not be disgraced and fall into the devil’s trap.

⁸In the same way, deacons must be well respected and have integrity. They must not be heavy drinkers or dishonest with money. ⁹They must be committed to the mystery of the faith now revealed and must live with a clear conscience. ¹⁰Before they are appointed as deacons, let them be closely examined. If they pass the test, then let them serve as deacons.

¹¹In the same way, their wives must be respected and must not slander others. They must exercise self-control and be faithful in everything they do.

¹²A deacon must be faithful to his wife, and he must manage his children and household well. ¹³Those who do well as deacons will be rewarded with respect from others and will have increased confidence in their faith in Christ Jesus.

5. RIGHT TEACHING AND TIMOTHY’S TASK (3:14–4:16)

The Truths of Our Faith

¹⁴I am writing these things to you now, even though I hope to be with you soon, ¹⁵so that if I am delayed, you will know how people must conduct themselves in the household of God. This is the church of the living God, which is the pillar and foundation of the truth.

¹⁶Without question, this is the great mystery of our faith:

Christ was revealed in a human body and vindicated by the Spirit.
He was seen by angels and announced to the nations.

that might be more specifically translated “overseer” (see Titus 1:5-7). In the Greco-Roman world, an overseer was a religious, civic, or military supervisor.

3:2 whose life is above reproach: This is the most general prerequisite for a community leader and public representative (see 3:7, 10; 5:7; 6:14; Titus 1:6-7; 2:8). • must be faithful to his wife (or must have only one wife, or must be married only once; literally must be the husband of one wife; also in 3:12): This assumes but does not require a married male. It mainly addresses purity and faithfulness in the marriage relationship, something that could not be taken for granted in the surrounding culture; it probably does not prohibit remarriage after the death of a spouse (see 5:9), nor does it address the issue of polygamy. See also 3:12; Titus 1:6; cp. 1 Tim 5:9. • enjoy having guests in his home (literally be hospitable): Hospitality was an important duty and a respected virtue in the ancient world. Any traveling Christian would seek out and probably stay with fellow believers (see 2 Jn 1:10-11; 3 John). In addition, first-century churches often met in private homes (see Col 4:15; Phlm 1:2).

3:3 must not be a heavy drinker: Literally must not drink too much wine; similarly in 3:8.

3:4-5 The church as a household (3:15) overlapped with the family household. An overseer’s capacity to manage in one sphere reflected his capability in the other (see also 3:12; 5:17; Rom 12:8; 1 Thes 5:12). • The Greco-Roman household was united by familial bonds characterized by mutual responsibilities, roles, and stewardship. The household included the blood relatives living together along with other dependents, such as household servants.

3:6 he might become proud, and the devil would cause him to fall: Or he might fall into the same judgment as the devil.

3:7 Paul expected Christians to live in a way that could be respected by people outside the church (see also 1 Tim 6:1; Titus 2:5-10). • The trap might pertain to the false teachers (see 1:20; 5:14-15; 6:9; 2 Tim 2:26).

3:8-13 The Greek word translated deacon (“servant, assistant, courier, agent”) and its cognates (“service, to serve”) are commonly used for service of any kind (e.g., 4:6; Matt 22:13; John 2:5; 12:26; Rom 13:4; 1 Cor 3:5). As designating an office in the church, it occurs only in 3:8-13; Phil 1:1; and (maybe) Rom 16:1. This passage concentrates on character rather than activities. See also note on Acts 6:1-6.

3:8 must not be . . . dishonest with money (3:3): Greed is disreputable and improper (6:6-10, 17-19; Eph 5:3; Col

3:5), especially for those who lead in the church (3:9; see Titus 1:7).

3:11 their wives (or the women deacons; the Greek word can be translated women or wives): In favor of their wives, 3:8-13 is a discussion of male deacons; switching to “women deacons” would disrupt the flow of thought. However, there might have been women deacons in the early church (see Rom 16:1). In that case, this verse might parallel 3:8.

3:14-4:16 This section addresses how Timothy should occupy himself until Paul arrives (3:14-15; 4:13).

3:15 household of God: The earliest churches were house churches (Rom 16:5; 1 Cor 16:19; Col 4:15; Phlm 1:2) that reflected the codes of conduct of Greco-Roman households (see note on 3:4-5). Violating these norms brought disrepute, disgrace, and shame on the entire household and its head. The same is true for the church (cp. Eph 2:19-22; Heb 3:6; 10:21; 1 Pet 4:17). • the church . . . is the pillar and foundation of the truth: This idea may anticipate the transition from the time of the apostles to the period after their deaths (cp. Gal 2:9; Rev 3:12). The church must be active rather than defensive in upholding the truth in the world (cp. 2 Cor 10:3-6).

The Holy Spirit's Warning about False Teachers

4 Now the Holy Spirit tells us clearly that in the last times some will turn away from the true faith; they will follow deceptive spirits and teachings that come from ^εdemons. ²These people are hypocrites and liars, and their consciences are dead.

³They will say it is wrong to be married and wrong to eat certain foods. But God created those foods to be eaten with thanks by faithful people who know the truth. ⁴Since everything God created is good, we should not reject any of it but receive it with thanks. ⁵For we know it is made acceptable by the word of God and prayer.

The Heart and Life of the Servant of Christ Jesus

⁶If you explain these things to the brothers and sisters, Timothy, you will be a worthy 'servant of Christ Jesus, one who is nourished by the message of ^εfaith and the good teaching you have followed. ⁷Do not waste time arguing over godless ideas and old wives' tales. Instead, train yourself to be godly. ⁸"Physical training is good, but training for godliness is much better, promising benefits in this life and in the life to come." ⁹This is a trustworthy saying, and everyone should accept it. ¹⁰This is why we work hard and continue to struggle, for our hope is in the living God, who is the ^ηSavior of all people and particularly of all believers.

The NT Household (3:5)

Eph 5:21-6:9
Col 3:18-4:1
Titus 2:1-3:8
1 Pet 2:13-3:7;
4:17; 5:1-5

The household was the basic unit of Greco-Roman society; it was believed that the stability of the state rested upon the stability of the household. Roles and responsibilities were well defined and deeply ingrained. The central concern was to maintain the "natural" ordering of authority and subordination, the violation of which would lead to degradation and corruption. In this framework, the husband-father-master was over all. The public space of society and government belonged to men, the private space of the home belonged to women. It was not uncommon for Greco-Roman orators to accuse new foreign cults (as Christianity was perceived) of corrupting and destabilizing society, precisely by threatening the structure of the household.

The NT household codes (see 2:8-15; 5:1-2; 6:1-2; Titus 2:1-3:8; cp. Eph 5:22-6:9; Col 3:18-4:1; 1 Pet 2:13-3:7; 5:1-5) were therefore not innovations, even if these catalogs were adapted by the apostles to fit the Christian faith and to address particular needs. In practice, the Christian faith would result in the significant modification of cultural norms. Yet wisdom and loving restraint were needed, because heedlessly violating cultural norms created destructive upheaval and threatened to bring disrepute, disgrace, and shame on the entire household—including Christ, its head. This was precisely the effect of the false teachers in Ephesus. In this context, the NT household codes guided Christian communities toward a life that (1) silenced the accusations of unbelievers that Christianity was a threat to the state; and (2) served as a compelling, winsome witness to the truth.

of early Christian worship. • mystery of our faith (or mystery of godliness): See note on 2:2. • Christ (literally He who; other manuscripts read God): Jesus Christ is the only source of godliness. • vindicated by the Spirit (or vindicated in his spirit): Christ's resurrection (Rom 1:4) answers the apparent weakness of his life and death as a human, and affirms his teaching. • seen by angels: This emphasizes Jesus' sovereign rule in the heavenly realm (see also Eph 1:21; Phil 2:9-11; Heb 1:3-4; 1 Pet 3:22; Rev 5:8-14). • announced to the nations: Christ's provision of salvation and sovereign rule must be proclaimed and accepted in the earthly realm as well (cp. 2:1-7). • believed in throughout the world: The mission to the nations is successful, but it does not guarantee universal acceptance. • Christ was taken to heaven (Luke 24:51; Acts 1:2, 11, 22) and was exalted in glory (cp. Acts 7:55-56). Christ's saving work is crowned with success in the world and with glory in heaven.

4:1-5 Paul's sound teaching (3:16) contrasts with the false teachings that he denounces.

4:1 The early church regarded itself as already in the last times (see Acts 2:16-17; Heb 1:2; cp. 2 Thes 2:7; 1 Jn 2:18-23).

4:2 are dead (literally are seared): Dead consciences either don't function or function wickedly, rendering judgments that oppose the truth of the gospel (see also Titus 1:15; Rom 1:28-32).

4:5 made acceptable: Or made holy.

4:6-16 Timothy must respond to the false teachers (cp. 2 Tim 3:1-4:5).

4:6 brothers and sisters: Literally brothers, a generic term that refers to both male and female believers. • The training of the worthy servant involves a whole pattern of conduct, modeled by Paul and based on sound doctrine. Good teaching unifies word and deed, belief and behavior (cp. 3:10, 14-15; Phil 4:9).

4:8-9 physical training . . . godliness: Cp. 1 Cor 9:24-27; Col 2:23. • benefits in this life . . . the life to come: Cp. 4:16; 6:6-8; Mark 10:29-30; Eph 6:2-3. • trustworthy saying: See note on 1:15.

4:10 continue to struggle: Some manuscripts read continue to suffer. • God . . . the Savior: See note on 1:1.

¹¹Teach these things and insist that everyone learn them. ¹²Don't let anyone think less of you because you are young. Be an example to all believers in what you say, in the way you live, in your love, your faith, and your purity. ¹³Until I get there, focus on reading the Scriptures to the church, encouraging the believers, and teaching them.

¹⁴Do not neglect the spiritual gift you received through the prophecy spoken over you when the elders of the church laid their hands on you. ¹⁵Give your complete attention to these matters. Throw yourself into your tasks so that everyone will see your progress. ¹⁶Keep a close watch on how you live and on your teaching. Stay true to what is right for the sake of your own salvation and the salvation of those who hear you.

6. RIGHT CONDUCT IN GOD'S HOUSEHOLD (5:1-6:2a)

Honoring Older People and Spiritual Siblings

5 Never speak harshly to an older man, but appeal to him respectfully as you would to your own father. Talk to younger men as you would to your own brothers. ²Treat older women as you would your mother, and treat younger women with all purity as you would your own sisters.

Honoring Widows

³Take care of any widow who has no one else to care for her. ⁴But if she has children or grandchildren, their first responsibility is to show godliness at home and repay their parents by taking care of them. This is something that pleases God.

⁵Now a true widow, a woman who is truly alone in this world, has placed her hope in God. She prays night and day, asking God for his help. ⁶But the widow who lives only for pleasure is spiritually dead even while she lives. ⁷Give these instructions to the church so that no one will be open to criticism.

⁹A widow who is put on the list for support must be a woman who is at least sixty years old and was faithful to her husband. ¹⁰She must be well respected by everyone because of the good she has done. Has she brought up her children well? Has she been kind to strangers and served other believers humbly? Has she helped those who are in trouble? Has she always been ready to do good?

¹¹The younger widows should not be on the list, because their physical desires will overpower their devotion to Christ and they will want to remarry. ¹²Then they would be guilty of breaking their previous pledge. ¹³And if they are on the list, they will learn to be lazy and will spend their time gossiping from house to house, meddling in other people's business and talking about things they shouldn't. ¹⁴So I advise these younger widows to marry again, have children, and take care of their own homes. Then

4:14 laid their hands on you: The gesture signified recognition, authorization, and blessing (see Acts 13:1-3; 6:6). This was probably the same event as in 2 Tim 1:6-7 (see 1:18; cp. Rom 12:6-8; 1 Cor 12:7-11; Eph 4:7-13). Paul's ministry and that of his delegates was under the authority of the church.

5:1-6:2a Conduct in God's household (see 3:15) relates to old and young (5:1-2), widows (5:3-16), elders (5:17-25), and slaves (6:1-2a). Proper honor within the household cuts across social boundaries.

5:1 an older man: Or an elder.

5:3-16 A widow without wealth or family was alone in a world that did not provide for her. The Christian community was expected to care for such widows among its members (see Deut 10:17-19; Isa 1:17; cp. Acts 6:1-6; Jas 1:27). There is no certain evidence of a religious order of widows in the first-century church, only of a ministry of care for community members without means.

5:3 Take care of: Or Honor.

5:5 The only recourse for a widow who was truly alone was hope in God (Ps 68:5; 146:9).

5:6 Some widows in Ephesus were living only for pleasure, more interested in receiving than in giving (see also 6:17-19; Jas 5:5). They did not need support.

5:8 Faith is not mere belief but a whole way of life (see Jas 2:14-26).

5:9 at least sixty: Young widows required a different approach (5:11-15). Young and old were customarily divided at around forty; elders would probably have been over fifty (see Titus 2:2).

• was faithful to her husband (literally was the wife of one husband): The grammar is identical in 3:2, 12; Titus 1:6.

5:10 and served other believers humbly (literally and washed the feet of God's holy people): See Gen 18:4; Luke 7:44; John 13:1-17.

5:11-15 Young widows still in their childbearing years required a different approach. Paul was concerned that the false teachers were leading them astray.

5:11-12 If Paul was concerned about remarriage to unbelievers (cp. 5:14), their previous pledge would refer to their Christian faith, which they would surrender upon entering a pagan marriage; such a marriage would probably have alienated them from Christ. It is also possible that Paul and the church recognized a special category of "sacred widowhood" (see 5:5; cp. Acts 9:36-37), entered by a vow that Paul refers to as the previous pledge.

5:13 Too seldom do those who are fully supported by the church invest their lives in remarkable piety (cp. 2:9-10; 5:10). Abusing the church's support does not help them or the Good News (cp. 5:14). • talking about things they shouldn't: The wording suggests involvement in the false teaching (5:15; cp. 2 Thes 3:11-13; Titus 1:11).

the enemy will not be able to say anything against them. ¹⁵For I am afraid that some of them have already gone astray and now follow Satan.

¹⁶If a woman who is a believer has relatives who are widows, she must take care of them and not put the responsibility on the church. Then the church can care for the widows who are truly alone.

Rewarding and Disciplining Church Elders

¹⁷Elders who do their work well should be respected and paid well, especially those who work hard at both preaching and teaching.

¹⁸For the Scripture says, "You must not muzzle an ox to keep it from eating as it treads out the grain." And in another place, "Those who work deserve their pay!"

¹⁹Do not listen to an accusation against an elder unless it is confirmed by two or three witnesses. ²⁰Those who sin should be reprimanded in front of the whole church; this will serve as a strong warning to others.

²¹I solemnly command you in the presence of God and Christ Jesus and the highest angels to obey these instructions without taking sides or showing favoritism to anyone.

²²Never be in a hurry about appointing a church leader. Do not share in the ^asins of others. Keep yourself pure.

²³Don't drink only water. You ought to drink a little wine for the sake of your stomach because you are sick so often.

²⁴Remember, the sins of some people are obvious, leading them to certain judgment. But there are others whose sins will not be revealed until later. ²⁵In the same way, the good deeds of some people are obvious. And the good deeds done in secret will someday come to light.

Honoring Masters

6 All slaves should show full respect for their masters so they will not bring shame on the name of God and his teaching. ²If the masters are believers, that is no excuse for being disrespectful. Those slaves should work all the harder because their efforts are helping other believers who are well loved.

7. DEALING WITH FALSE TEACHING (6:2b-21a)

Godliness and Contentment

Teach these things, Timothy, and encourage everyone to obey them. ³Some people may contradict our teaching, but these are the wholesome teachings of the Lord Jesus Christ. These teachings promote a godly life.

⁴Anyone who teaches something different is arrogant and lacks understanding. Such a person has an unhealthy desire to quibble over the meaning of words. This stirs up arguments ending in jealousy, division, 12; cp. 2:15). • not . . . say anything against them: Their actions were hurting their testimony for the Good News (see 1 Thes 4:11-12; Titus 2:8).

5:15 now follow Satan: They had committed apostasy, renouncing Christ, probably in connection with the false teachers (1:6-7; cp. 3:6-7; Heb 2:1) and their self-indulgence (5:6, 13).

5:16 Individual Christian households maintained their function and identity within the church (cp. 2:15; 3:15). They were not eclipsed by the church, although the household of God is primary to the identity of the believing community (see Mark 3:31-35).

5:17-25 As in Judaism, elders (see 3:1-7; Titus 1:5-9) were usually older men who were leaders in the community. The letters to Timothy and Titus recognize an office of elders, as here (see also 4:14; Titus 1:5), but the word is also used generally for older men in the community (as in 5:1). See "Church Leaders" at Titus 1:5-9, p. 2071.

5:17-18 should be respected and paid well (literally should be worthy of double honor): Cp. Gal 6:6. There is no evidence of a paid clergy at this time; the word used here is never used for a continuous salary, though it does imply something beyond a show of respect. The quotations from Scripture (Deut 25:4; Luke 10:7) suggest gifts of money.

5:19-21 The climate created by the false teachers may have led to spurious charges against the leaders of the community. This passage follows the outline of Deut 19:15-21. • two or three witnesses: See Deut 17:6; 19:15; Matt 18:16; 2 Cor 13:1; Heb 10:28.

5:20 Those who sin: This term refers either to one who is (rightly) accused or to one making a (false) accusation (Deut 19:16-19). • The others are either the other elders or the rest of the church (cp. Deut 19:20; Acts 5:1-11).

5:21 God and Christ Jesus and the highest angels constitute three witnesses (5:19). Angels are associated with God's judgment (Dan 7:9-10; Matt 13:49; 25:31, 41; Luke 9:26; 2 Thes 1:7).

5:22 about appointing a church leader: Literally about the laying on of hands; see 4:14. • Do not share in the sins of others: Those who commission an elder are responsible for his conduct.

5:23 Possibly the concern with purity (5:22) was being taken too far with respect to wine (see 3:3; Num 6:1-21) or food (1 Cor 10:21). Wine may have been considered medicinal.

5:24-25 These two proverbial statements summarize 5:17-23 and point to God's judgment.

6:1 Both unbelieving and believing masters should be treated with respect, which will bring honor rather than shame to God's name (see note on 5:1-6:2).

6:2a other believers: Literally brothers; see note on 4:6.

6:2b-21 The last major section of the letter returns to the need for Timothy to confront the false teachers. The whole section has a similar structure to 1:3-20.

6:2b-10 This paragraph exposes the false teachers' desire to become wealthy.

6:4 This stirs up arguments: This is the same problem as in 1:4 (see also 2 Tim 2:23-24; Titus 3:9).

slander, and evil suspicions. ⁵These people always cause trouble. Their minds are corrupt, and they have turned their backs on the truth. To them, a show of godliness is just a way to become wealthy.

⁶Yet true godliness with contentment is itself great wealth. ⁷After all, we brought nothing with us when we came into the world, and we can't take anything with us when we leave it. ⁸So if we have enough food and clothing, let us be content.

⁹But people who long to be rich fall into temptation and are trapped by many foolish and harmful desires that plunge them into ruin and destruction. ¹⁰For the love of money is the root of all kinds of evil. And some people, craving money, have wandered from the true faith and pierced themselves with many sorrows.

Parenthesis: The Charge to Timothy

¹¹But you, Timothy, are a man of God; so run from all these evil things. Pursue righteousness and a godly life, along with faith, love, perseverance, and gentleness. ¹²Fight the good fight for the true faith. Hold tightly to the eternal life to which God has called you, which you have declared so well before many witnesses. ¹³And I charge you before God, who gives life to all, and before Christ Jesus, who gave a good testimony before Pontius Pilate, ¹⁴that you obey this command without wavering. Then no one can find fault with you from now until our Lord Jesus Christ comes again. ¹⁵For,

At just the right time Christ will be revealed from heaven by the blessed and only almighty God, the King of all kings and Lord of all lords. ¹⁶He alone can never die, and he lives in light so brilliant that no human can approach him. No human eye has ever seen him, nor ever will. All honor and power to him forever! Amen.

Managing for Life

¹⁷Teach those who are rich in this world not to be proud and not to trust in their money, which is so unreliable. Their trust should be in God, who richly gives us all we need for our enjoyment. ¹⁸Tell them to use their money to do good. They should be rich in good works and generous to those in need, always being ready to share with others. ¹⁹By doing this they will be storing up their

6:5 have turned their backs on the truth: Literally having been robbed of the truth; see 2 Tim 2:18; 3:7, 8; 4:4; Titus 1:14. • a show of godliness is just a way to become wealthy (see 2:2; 3:8; 4:8; 6:3; see also 2 Tim 3:2; Acts 8:9-25): Just how these false teachers thought they would profit is not clear. In the wider culture there were many itinerant teachers who taught for pay. Abuse was common and often deserved the accusation that someone's teaching was for "gain and glory." Perhaps the false teachers of 1 Timothy were bringing this practice into the church or espousing some version of a prosperity gospel. They appear to have had an influence on wealthy believers (6:17-19), and possibly on women in particular (2:9; 5:6).

6:6 with contentment: This is not just a philosophical outlook but real dependence on the sufficiency of Christ. See 4:8; 2 Cor 9:8; 12:7-10; Phil 4:10-13; Heb 13:5.

6:11-16 Before ending the discussion of wealth, Paul exhorts Timothy to live beyond reproach, commanding him to flee from desire for wealth.

6:12 The promise of eternal life moderates the appeal of wealth (cp. 6:19). • Paul is probably referring to the time when Timothy declared his faith at baptism.

6:13 Paul emphasizes the historical nature of Christ's mediating work (see 2:5-6). The testimony of Christ Jesus at his trial before Pontius Pilate (Matt 27:11-14; Luke 23:1-4; John 18:33-38; 19:9-11) holds up his example as an incentive for Timothy to remain steadfast under pressure.

6:14 until our Lord Jesus Christ comes again (literally until the appearance of our Lord Jesus Christ): Christ's comings, both past (2 Tim 1:10; Titus 2:11) and future (2 Tim 4:1, 8; Titus 2:13), are described in the letters to Timothy and Titus as "epiphanies" or "appearances." An epiphany is a divine intervention in a particular historical moment. The church is positioned between these past and future appearances of Christ. Christ's first, saving epiphany made possible a new life; his future epiphany will achieve final salvation. Though the present is evil (the "last days," 4:1-3; 2 Tim 3:1-9), our anticipation of Christ's appearance creates accountability for living a godly life in the present. By contrast, the false teachers advocated sinful behaviors because they assumed the resurrection had already occurred (2 Tim 2:18). In response, Paul makes clear that salvation has begun but is not yet complete. The conduct of God's household requires responsible living in the light of Christ's past, present, and future saving work (3:15-16; Titus 2:11-14).

6:15-16 At just the right time (cp. 2:6), God will complete the salvation promised to us before the world began (2 Tim 1:9; Titus 1:2), which Christ enacted in his first appearance (2:6; Titus 1:3). The saving work of Christ is positioned within God's sovereign and eternal purposes. This thought expands into worship of God our Savior (cp. 1:17). • This material might be quoted from a baptismal confession (see note on 6:12).

6:17-19 In light of 6:11-16, it is folly to treasure the transient wealth of this age (Jas 5:3). It is better to store up treasure for the coming age through trust in God and by being rich in good works and generous in love for others (see 1:5).

6:17-18 for our enjoyment: Christian hope does not lead to asceticism or communism but to the management of resources (Gen 1:28-30; 2:15), which we are to use for enjoyment (see 4:3-5; Ps 145:16; Acts 14:17) and for sharing Christ's love with others (see Luke 12:16-34; 2 Cor 8-9).

6:20-21 This brief but pointed exhortation summarizes and shows the importance of Timothy's task in Ephesus (cp. 1:18-20; 2 Tim 1:13-14).

6:20 what God has entrusted to you (literally the deposit): The Good News is a deposit entrusted to the church and its leaders for safekeeping (1:15; 2:5-6; 3:16). It encompasses the whole pattern of conduct that follows from it (2 Tim 1:13-14; 3:10-11). It stabilizes and puri-treasure as a good foundation for the future so that they may experience true life.

Guarding the Deposit

²⁰Timothy, guard what God has entrusted to you. Avoid godless, foolish discussions with those who oppose you with their so-called knowledge. ²¹Some people have wandered from the faith by following such foolishness.

fies the church when it is buffeted by counterfeits in the polluted environment of difficult times (2 Tim 3:1). The deposit belongs to the "tradition" of the church (see 2 Tim 2:2; 1 Cor 11:23-25; 15:1-8; 2 Thes 2:15; 3:6). It requires creative and faithful interpretation to ~~meet~~ changing circumstances and problems (see 2 Tim 1:12-14).

6:21 The letter closes abruptly. Evidently there was no need of directions for the mission (cp. Titus 3:12-14) and greetings were unnecessary or unsuitable (cp. Titus 3:15; Rom 16:3-16). • you all: The letter was sent to Timothy but was intended to be read to the whole church (see 1 Timothy Introduction, "Literary Genre," p. 2049).

PAUL'S SECOND LETTER TO Timothy

Back in a Roman prison, Paul realized that he had reached the end of his race. His life, modeled on the death and resurrection of Jesus Christ, was nearing its conclusion, so Paul commissioned his delegate Timothy to carry on his work. When Paul died at the hands of the Romans, he had composed this letter as his own epitaph (see 4:7-8) and empowered the church to carry on in his absence. The mission of the Good News would continue.

SETTING

Following Paul's conversion (Acts 9:1-19), his work as an apostle to the world extended from Jerusalem in the east to as far west as Italy (Acts 28:30-31; Rom 15:19), including considerable time in Asia Minor, and especially Ephesus (Acts 19:1-20:1, 31). This period ended when Paul was arrested in Jerusalem (Acts 21:27-36), detained in Caesarea (Acts 23:23-26:32), and imprisoned in Rome (Acts 28:16-31). Paul was eventually released and engaged in further ministry; he wrote 1 Timothy and Titus during this time. He was then arrested and imprisoned in Rome a second time (2 Tim 1:8, 16-17; 2:9).

This letter, written from prison in Rome, came during the concluding episode of Paul's life (see 4:6-18). It was written to Timothy, Paul's faithful co-worker and delegate. Timothy was in the province of Asia at that time, probably in Ephesus (4:13, 19). Paul was asking him to come to Rome as soon as possible. If Timothy proved faithful, he would experience suffering and persecution also.

SUMMARY

After the traditional salutation (1:1-2), thanksgiving, and prayer (1:3-4), Paul charges Timothy to suffer with him for the Good News (1:5-18). The resources for doing so include Timothy's spiritual heritage and the Good News itself, as illustrated by Paul's life and by both good and bad examples.

Paul then charges Timothy again (2:1-13) to be strong and to endure suffering along with Paul. Again, Timothy's obedience is to be motivated by reflection on the Good News and on Paul's example. Paul instructs Timothy on conducting his ministry among the false teachers (2:14-26).

◀ The Setting of 2 Timothy, AD 64-65. When Paul wrote his second letter to Timothy, he had been imprisoned in Rome for the second time and was facing execution. He wrote to Timothy, who was probably still in Ephesus (see 1 Timothy Introduction, p. 2048), to summon Timothy to Rome.

The perspective then broadens to set Timothy's task in the context of the last days (3:1-4:8). These days will be difficult, but God will deal with troublemakers just as he has in the past. Timothy is to stay on track with the faith he has inherited and remain rooted in the Scriptures. He is to carry out his ministry with a sense of urgency in light of his hope and the increasing resistance of his listeners. He is not to be afraid of suffering for the Lord, and he is to consider Paul's work as completed. Timothy must step into the gap and regard Paul as an example to follow.

The letter closes with an appeal for Timothy to come to Rome as soon as possible (4:9-18). Paul gives greetings, news, and a final urging for Timothy to make his journey to Rome before winter (4:19-21). Then Paul closes with a blessing (4:22).

DATE OF WRITING

It is possible that 2 Timothy was written during Paul's first imprisonment in Rome (Acts 28).

The evidence, however, gives stronger support to a later date, during a second imprisonment in Rome that resulted in Paul's death (see Introduction to Paul's Letters to Timothy and Titus, "Date of Writing," p. 2047).

OCCASION

We do not know the details of Paul's second arrest. Possibly Alexander (4:14-15), a heretic that Paul had disciplined earlier (1 Tim 1:20), had a hand in the arrest (see 4:16-18). It might have occurred in Asia Minor (1:15); if so, Paul's heretical opponents—the false teachers discussed in 1 Timothy and Titus—were not just making idle threats. The struggle in which Paul and Timothy were engaged (2:3; 4:7; 1 Tim 1:18; 6:12) was not simply metaphorical or spiritual. The directions on prayer for civil authorities (1 Tim 2:1-7; cp. Titus 3:1) may be understood as relating to wider problems created for the churches by false teachers, problems that resulted in Paul's final arrest and execution for the Good News. The false teachers were still on the prowl (2:14-3:9; 4:14-15). Paul viewed his ministry as being completed and knew that his death was imminent (4:6-8), so he was summoning Timothy to Rome to receive his mantle of leadership.¹

The Good News gives rise to a way of life that takes up the cross and follows Jesus in the life-giving power of his resurrection. 1. SALUTATION FROM PAUL (1:1-2)

1 This letter is from Paul, chosen by the will of God to be an apostle of Christ Jesus. I have been sent out to tell others about the life he has promised through faith in Christ Jesus.

²I am writing to Timothy, my dear son.

May God the Father and Christ Jesus our Lord give you grace, mercy, and peace.

2. THANKSGIVING AND PRAYER (1:3-4)

³Timothy, I thank God for you—the God I serve with a clear conscience, just as my ancestors did. Night and day I constantly remember you in my prayers. ⁴I long to see you again, for I remember your tears as we parted. And I will be filled with joy when we are together again.

3. CHARGE TO BE FAITHFUL (1:5-18)

Timothy's Spiritual Heritage

⁵I remember your genuine faith, for you share the faith that first filled your grandmother Lois and your mother, Eunice. And I know that same faith continues strong in you. ⁶This is why I remind you to fan into flames the spiritual ^agift God gave you when I laid my hands on you. ⁷For God has not given us a spirit of fear and timidity, but of power, love, and self-discipline.

The Commission of the Good News

⁸So never be ashamed to ^btell others about our Lord. And don't be ashamed of me, either, even though I'm in prison for him. With the strength God gives you, be ready to suffer with me for the sake of the Good News. ⁹For God ^csaved us and called us to live a holy ^dlife. He did this, not because we deserved it, but because that was his plan from before the beginning of time—to show us his grace through Christ Jesus. ¹⁰And now he has made all of this plain to us by the ^eappearing of Christ Jesus, our ^fSavior. 1:1 the life he has promised: See Rom 4:13-17. This letter to Timothy celebrates Christ's resurrection (2:8) and the life which results from it (1:10) as the answer to the suffering and death of the godly (3:12). Paul's own life demonstrates this hope (4:17-18).

1:3-4 Thanksgiving and prayer are standard sections of Paul's letters (e.g., Rom 1:8-12; Col 1:3-14; contrast Gal 1:6-10).

1:3 just as my ancestors did: See Phil 3:5; cp. Deut 6:4-9. • with a clear conscience: This might be in relation to heresy (see 2:17-18; see also 1 Tim 1:5) or to Paul's previous legal self-defense (see Acts 23:1; 24:14-16).

1:4 Paul begins urging Timothy to come to him (see note on 1:5-14). • your tears: The two may have last parted when Paul was transferred to Rome under arrest (cp. Acts 20:37-38; 21:12-14).

1:5-14 Paul gently but firmly summons

Timothy to Rome (see also 4:9, 21; cp. 1 Tim 1:3-11, 12-17). Suffering seemed certain if Timothy remained faithful, and Paul wanted to strengthen Timothy's resolve. • The allusions to the Spirit in 1:6-7 and 1:14 form an inclusio (literary bookends) around this section.

1:5 On Timothy's parentage, see Acts 16:1-3; 1 Tim 1:2. • Faith means Christian faith, but Timothy's Jewish heritage through his grandmother and mother explains how he was rooted in OT instruction (3:14-15). Their Christian faith was an example for him to follow.

1:6 fan into flames: The Spirit's work is not automatic—it must be cultivated (see Eph 5:18-21; 1 Thes 5:19-20; cp. Acts 4:31; 7:55; 13:9). • The spiritual gift is the Holy Spirit's enablement for ministry (see 1 Cor 12-14; cp. Acts 6:3, 5; 11:24). • when I laid my hands on you: Paul and the elders (1 Tim 4:14) had ordained Timothy for ministry with the ceremonial laying on of hands.

1:8 This verse summarizes the letter. Timothy would probably experience suffering (2:3; 3:12; 4:5; see Heb 13:23) both in coming to Rome and in his subsequent ministry as Paul's successor.

1:9-10 This passage underscores the importance of obedience (1:8) and strengthens Timothy for it (cp. 1 Tim 1:15; 2:5-6). • God saved us . . . Christ Jesus, our Savior: God and Christ are described interchangeably in the role of Savior (see 1 Tim 1:1; 2:3-4). • called us to live a holy life: Salvation and godliness are linked (see 1 Tim 3:14-16; 5:8; Titus 2:11-14; 3:4-7; Eph 2:10). • not because we deserved it: We deserve condemnation (see Rom 3:23-24; 5:6-11; Eph 2:8-9; Titus 3:5). • that was his plan from before the beginning of time: See Titus 1:2; John 17:24; Eph 1:4, 11; 1 Pet 1:20; Rev 13:8. Salvation is completely removed from human merit and located exclusively in the gracious working of God.

broke the power of death and illuminated the way to life and immortality through the Good News. ¹¹And God chose me to be a preacher, an apostle, and a teacher of this Good News.

Paul's Pattern

¹²That is why I am suffering here in prison. But I am not ashamed of it, for I know the one in whom I trust, and I am sure that he is able to guard what I have entrusted to him until the day of his return.

¹³Hold on to the pattern of wholesome teaching you learned from me—a pattern shaped by the faith and love that you have in Christ Jesus. ¹⁴Through the power of the Holy Spirit who lives within us, carefully guard the precious truth that has been entrusted to you.

Examples, Bad and Good

¹⁵As you know, everyone from the province of Asia has deserted me—even Phygelus and Hermogenes.

¹⁶May the Lord show special kindness to Onesiphorus and all his family because he often visited and encouraged me. He was never ashamed of me because I was in chains. ¹⁷When he came to Rome, he searched everywhere until he found me. ¹⁸May the Lord show him special kindness on the day of Christ's return. And you know very well how helpful he was in Ephesus.

4. CHARGE TO BE STRONG AND ENDURE SUFFERING (2:1-13)

Be Strong in Grace and Faithfulness

2 Timothy, my dear son, be strong through the ⁸grace that God gives you in Christ Jesus. ²You have heard me teach things that have been confirmed by many reliable witnesses. Now teach these truths to other trustworthy people who will be able to pass them on to others.

Endure Suffering

³Endure suffering along with me, as a good soldier of Christ Jesus. ⁴Soldiers don't get tied up in the affairs of civilian life, for then they cannot please the officer who enlisted them. ⁵And athletes cannot win the prize unless they follow the rules. ⁶And hardworking farmers should be the first to enjoy the fruit of their labor. ⁷Think about what I am saying. The Lord will help you understand all these things.

Suffer with Christ, As Paul Has Done

⁸Always remember that Jesus Christ, a descendant of King David, was raised from the dead. This is the Good News I preach. ⁹And because I preach this Good News, I am suffering and have been chained like a criminal. But the word of God cannot be chained. ¹⁰So I am willing to endure anything if it will bring ⁹salvation and eternal glory in Christ Jesus to those God has chosen.

1:10 God's gift of grace has been made . . . plain in history by Christ Jesus (see Rom 16:26; 1 Pet 1:20). • by the appearing: See note on 1 Tim 6:14. • broke the power of death: See 1 Cor 15:26; 2 Thes 2:8; Heb 2:14. • the way to life: See 1:1; 1 Cor 15:53-54; Titus 1:2. • through the Good News: Salvation is provided by Christ, but its effects are mediated through proclamation of the Good News (see Titus 1:2-3; Rom 1:16-17; 10:14-15).

1:12 Paul had complete confidence as he faced his own death (see 4:17-18; Rom 1:16; 2 Cor 4:8-9; Phil 1:20); it was an example for Timothy to follow (see 1:8). • what I have entrusted to him (or what has been entrusted to me; literally my deposit): My deposit might be either the Good News that had been entrusted to Paul (see 1 Tim 6:20) or Paul's life and ministry that he had committed to God.

1:14 Timothy must guard the precious truth (literally guard the good deposit; see notes on 1:12; 3:10-11) by faithfully proclaiming it and preventing false teachers from distorting it (see note on 2:2; see also 1 Tim 6:20).

1:15-18 Using the examples of others, both negative and positive, Paul continues urging Timothy to be faithful and to come to Rome without fear.

1:15 everyone . . . has deserted me: The desertion took place either in Rome or in the province of Asia when Paul was arrested. Paul might have seen this as another way his life followed the pattern of Christ's (see Matt 26:31, 56). • Phygelus and Hermogenes are otherwise unknown. The context (1:11-14) might imply that they were church leaders who sided with Paul's opponents.

2:1-13 Timothy is again told to be strong and to endure suffering along with Paul (2:1-7; see 1:8). Timothy's obedience should be motivated by reflecting on the Good News and on Paul's example (2:8-13).

2:1 Timothy, my dear son (literally Therefore you, my child): In the Greek, therefore links this phrase back to 1:15-18 and the emphatic you is in contrast to those examples.

2:2 The many reliable witnesses would confirm the validity and veracity of Paul's teaching (see also 3:10-11).

• teach these truths (literally entrust these things): This verb is a cognate of deposit (1:12, 14). Timothy's own guarding of the deposit includes entrusting it to faithful people.

2:4-7 In rapid-fire sequence, Paul quotes maxims about single-minded struggling and laboring.

2:8-13 Paul's suffering (1:12) reflects the suffering of Jesus Christ and points to the cross and resurrection as the inner meaning of that Good News (see 1:8). Paul's suffering, like Christ's, was instrumental in bringing salvation to others. Christ gives his approval to those who suffer and endure with him.

2:8 Jesus Christ, a descendant of King David, was raised from the dead: Cp. Rom 1:3-4. Suffering with Christ should be viewed from the perspective of the resurrection to come.

2:9 like a criminal: Paul was identifying with Jesus' death (2:11; Phil 3:10-11). • the word of God cannot be chained: Both Paul and the Good News would be victorious through the power of Christ's resurrection (see 4:17-18; see also 2 Cor 12:8-10; Phil 1:12-14).

¹¹This is a trustworthy saying:

If we die with him,
we will also live with him.

¹²If we endure hardship,
we will reign with him.

If we deny him,
he will deny us.

¹³If we are unfaithful,
he remains faithful, for he cannot deny who he is.

5. DEALING WITH OPPOSITION (2:14-26)

Avoid Useless Words

¹⁴Remind everyone about these things, and command them in God's presence to stop fighting over words. Such arguments are useless, and they can ruin those who hear them.

¹⁵Work hard so you can present yourself to God and receive his approval. Be a good worker, one who does not need to be ashamed and who correctly explains the word of truth. ¹⁶Avoid worthless, foolish talk that only leads to more godless behavior. ¹⁷This kind of talk spreads like cancer, as in the case of Hymenaeus and Philetus. ¹⁸They have left the path of truth, claiming that the resurrection of the dead has already occurred; in this way, they have turned some people away from the faith.

God's Truth

¹⁹But God's truth stands firm like a foundation stone with this inscription: "The LORD knows those who are his," and "All who belong to the LORD must turn away from evil."

Stay Pure

²⁰In a wealthy home some utensils are made of wood and silver, and some are made of wood and clay. The expensive utensils are used for special occasions, and the cheap ones are for everyday use. ²¹If you keep yourself pure, you will be a special utensil for honorable use. Your life will be clean, and you will be ready for the Master to use you for every good work.

²²Run from anything that stimulates youthful lusts. Instead, pursue righteous living, faithfulness, love, and peace. Enjoy the companionship of those who call on the Lord with pure hearts.

Patiently Teach

²³Again I say, don't get involved in foolish, ignorant arguments that only start fights.

²⁴A servant of the Lord must not quarrel but must be kind to everyone, be able to teach, and be patient with difficult people.

²⁵Gently instruct those who oppose the truth. Perhaps God will change those people's hearts, and they will learn the truth.

See also Rom 3:3-4; 1 Cor 10:13; 1 Jn 1:9.

2:14-26 Timothy must insist on the teaching of 2:8-13 and steer clear of the teaching and conduct of the false teachers. The heresy was probably the same as in 1 Tim 6:20-21.

2:15 who correctly explains (literally who guides along a straight path): The NLT relates this verse to right interpretation of the word of truth. Another possibility is that Timothy should keep to his purpose in teaching the word (see 1 Tim 1:4) and not turn aside by engaging in the false teachers' controversies (2:16).

2:17 cancer: Literally gangrene. • Hymenaeus was earlier teamed with Alexander (1 Tim 1:20); both of them were still wreaking havoc (4:14-15). • Philetus was Hymenaeus's new accomplice.

2:18 claiming that the resurrection of the dead has already occurred: Cp. 2 Thes 2:2. These false teachers might have twisted Paul's own teaching on the resurrection of the dead (Rom 6:5; Gal 2:20; Eph 1:3; 2:6; 5:14; Col 2:12; 3:1-4) by teaching that they already fully participated in the heavenly life, and perhaps that physical resurrection would not occur. They could have concluded from this that one's conduct in the body (i.e., morality) was irrelevant, since their mortal bodies could have no impact on their eternal spirits. Or, they could have gone the other way, toward world-denying asceticism (1 Tim 4:3; see Col 2:8, 16-23), with the idea that enjoyment of material things is inappropriate for resurrected, spiritual persons. These teachers might have understood from Jesus' teachings (see Matt 19:10-12; 22:30) that marriage should be prohibited (1 Tim 4:3). Their teachings on the OT law (1 Tim 1:7-11) might have led to the promotion of certain taboos. Their teachings might have involved an overly aggressive promotion of equality (see 3:6; cp. Gal 3:28; 1 Tim 2:11-15) in the belief that the age to come was already here. Their teaching might have focused exclusively on resurrection power, which would contradict Paul's message of suffering and the cross (see 1:8, 12; 2:8-13; cp. 1 Cor 4:8-13; 2 Cor 12:8-10).

Whatever its exact form, Paul describes their teaching as "worthless, foolish talk" (2:16).

2:19 Paul assures Timothy that the false teaching will not win (see 3:9), and he reinforces the call to purity. • foundation stone: This metaphor emphasizes immunity to destruction (Isa 28:16) and might reflect a temple (see also 1 Tim 3:15; 1 Cor 3:11; Eph 2:20; 1 Pet 2:4-7; Rev 21:14). • The LORD knows: This quotation alludes to Num 16:5 (Greek version). • All who belong to the LORD must turn away from evil: See Isa 52:11; cp. Num 16:26-27; Lev 24:16; Ps 6:8.

2:20-21 Building on 2:19, Paul uses imagery about the utensils in a wealthy home (see Rom 9:21). Within God's household one should endeavor to be like a utensil that is cherished rather than one that is treated with contempt.

2:22 those who call on the Lord: Cp. Ps 99:6; Joel 2:32; Acts 2:21; 9:14, 21; 22:16; Rom 10:12-13; 1 Cor 1:2. • with pure hearts: Cp. 1 Tim 1:5.

2:24 A servant of the Lord: See Titus 1:1; cp. Isa 42:1-2; 50:6; 53:7; Matt 12:14-21. • be able to teach, and be patient: See 1 Tim 3:2-3; Titus 3:2.

2:25 Gently instruct: Cp. 1 Cor 4:21; 2 Cor 10:1; 1 Thes 5:14; 2 Thes 3:14-15; Titus 3:10-11; Jude 1:22-23.

6. CHARGE IN LIGHT OF THE LAST DAYS (3:1-4:8)

Understand the Dangers of the Last Days

3 You should know this, Timothy, that in the last days there will be very difficult times. ²For people will love only themselves and their money. They will be boastful and proud, ³scoffing at God, disobedient to their parents, and ungrateful. They will consider nothing sacred. ³They will be unloving and unforgiving; they will ^bslander others and have no self-control. They will be cruel and hate what is good. ⁴They will betray their friends, be reckless, be puffed up with pride, and love pleasure rather than God. ⁵They will act religious, but they will reject the power that could make them godly. Stay away from people like that!

⁶They are the kind who work their way into people's homes and win the confidence of vulnerable women who are burdened with the guilt of sin and controlled by various desires. ⁷(Such women are forever following new teachings, but they are never able to understand the truth.) ⁸These teachers oppose the truth just as Jannes and Jambres opposed Moses. They have depraved minds and a counterfeit faith. ⁹But they won't get away with this for long. Someday everyone will recognize what fools they are, just as with Jannes and Jambres.

Remain Faithful to What You Know

¹⁰But you, Timothy, certainly know what I teach, and how I live, and what my purpose in life is. You know my faith, my patience, my love, and my endurance. ¹¹You know how much persecution and suffering I have endured. You know all about how I was persecuted in Antioch, Iconium, and Lystra—but the Lord rescued me from all of it. ¹²Yes, and everyone who wants to live a godly life in Christ Jesus will suffer persecution. ¹³But evil people and impostors will flourish. They will deceive others and will themselves be deceived.

¹⁴But you must remain faithful to the things you have been taught. You know they are true, for you know you can trust those who taught you. ¹⁵You have been taught the holy Scriptures from childhood, and they have given you the wisdom to receive the ‘salvation that comes by trusting in Christ Jesus. ¹⁶All Scripture is inspired by God and is useful to teach us what is true and to make us realize what is wrong in our lives. It corrects us when we are wrong and ‘teaches us to do what is ‘right. ¹⁷God uses it to prepare and equip his people to do every good work.

Charge to Carry Out the Ministry

4 I solemnly urge you in the presence of God and Christ Jesus, who will someday judge the living and the dead when

3:1-4:8 Timothy must stay on course through difficult times ahead.

3:1-5 Paul describes what people will be like in the last days (see also 1 Tim 4:1-5; 2 Pet 2:1-22; 3:3; Jude 1:18), which had already begun (3:5, 6-9).

3:5 People like that (3:2-4) had rejected sound teaching and cut themselves off from the power that could make them godly (see 1 Tim 1:5-11; Col 2:16-23).

3:6-7 and win the confidence of (literally and take captive): The effect of the false teachers on households and women is a consistent concern of the letters to Timothy and Titus (Titus 1:11; see 1 Tim 2:11-15; 3:4-5; 5:14-15). Whether or not the false teachers targeted women, they apparently were successful with some of them.

3:8 Jannes and Jambres are, according to tradition, the names of the Egyptian sorcerers who opposed Moses (see Exod 7:8-13; 8:18; 9:11).

3:11 Timothy was from Lystra, near Antioch and Iconium, so he knew all about what Paul had suffered (see Acts 13:14, 45-51; 14:1-8, 19-22), though he was recruited after these events (Acts 16:1-3). • the Lord rescued me: Paul could attest from his own life that the Lord would accomplish his purposes through his faithful servant (see 4:6-8, 17-18; Ps 22:19-22; 34:19; Dan 3:17-18; 2 Cor 1:8-10; 2 Pet 2:7-9).

3:14-15 from childhood: Timothy's Jewish grandmother and mother, Lois and Eunice (see Acts 16:1-3), provided his education in the OT Scriptures (see 1:5), and their lives reinforced their teaching.

• The OT Scriptures give the wisdom to receive . . . Christ Jesus. In turn, Jesus Christ is needed to understand the OT Scriptures fully.

3:16-17 These verses elaborate on 3:15 by explaining Scripture's effectiveness, its source, and the ways that it gives wisdom to live out our salvation. Paul was speaking of the OT, but his statement applies to all Scripture, including the NT (see, e.g., 2 Pet 3:15-16).

3:16 The fact that Scripture is inspired by God (literally God-breathed, breathed out by God's own speech; see also Heb 4:12-13; 2 Pet 1:20-21) does not negate the active involvement of the human authors. But it does affirm that God is fully responsible for his word. Scripture is true, reliable, authoritative, permanent, and powerful because it comes from God himself. Its message is coherent, and it is consistent in its testimony about Jesus Christ (see Luke 24:25-27, 44; John 5:39-40; Acts 3:24; 1 Cor 15:3-4). Thus it has the power to bring salvation and elicit faith. It must not be abused, as the false teachers had been doing (4:2-4; 1 Tim 1:4-7; cp. 2 Pet 3:16), but must be taught properly (2:2, 15). • As a consequence of inspiration, all Scripture is useful. Both the OT and the NT are together our guide and teacher in life.

3:17 Paul makes it clear that salvation (3:15) results in godliness (see Gal 1:4; 5:16-26; Eph 2:8-10).

4:1-8 Timothy stood in the presence of God and was to work in view of Jesus' coming to judge and set up his Kingdom (see 1 Tim 5:21; 6:13-14). Christ's appearing will bring cleansing (2:19), accountability (3:8-9), salvation, vindication, and reward (4:8, 18). See also 1 Cor 3:10-15; 4:4-5; 2 Cor 5:10.

4:1 judge the living and the dead: See Matt 25:31-46; Acts 10:42; Rom 14:7-12;

he comes to set up his Kingdom: ²Preach the word of God. Be prepared, whether the time is favorable or not. Patiently correct, rebuke, and ³encourage your people with good teaching.

³For a time is coming when people will no longer listen to sound and wholesome teaching. They will follow their own desires and will look for teachers who will tell them whatever their itching ears want to hear. ⁴They will reject the truth and chase after myths.

⁵But you should keep a clear mind in every situation. Don't be afraid of suffering for the Lord. Work at telling others the Good News, and fully carry out the ⁶ministry God has given you.

⁶As for me, my life has already been poured out as an offering to God. The time of my death is near. ⁷I have fought the good fight, I have finished the race, and I have remained faithful. ⁸And now the prize awaits me—the crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, will give me on the day of his return. And the prize is not just for me but for all who eagerly look forward to his appearing.

7. PAUL'S FINAL WORDS (4:9-22)

Appeal for Timothy to Come

⁹Timothy, please come as soon as you can. ¹⁰Demas has deserted me because he loves the things of this life and has gone to Thessalonica. Crescens has gone to Galatia, and Titus has gone to Dalmatia. ¹¹Only Luke is with me. Bring Mark with you when you come, for he will be helpful to me in my ministry. ¹²I sent Tychicus to Ephesus. ¹³When you come, be sure to bring the coat I left with Carpus at Troas. Also bring my ¹⁴books, and especially my papers.

Warning about Alexander

¹⁴Alexander the coppersmith did me much harm, but the Lord will judge him for what he has done. ¹⁵Be careful of him, for he fought against everything we said.

Account of Paul's First Trial

¹⁶The first time I was brought before the judge, no one came with me. Everyone abandoned me. May it not be counted against them. ¹⁷But the Lord stood with me and gave me strength so that I might preach the Good News in its entirety for all the Gentiles to hear. And he rescued me from certain

4:5-8 Paul effectively hands the mantle of leadership to Timothy (cp. Deut 31:7-8; 34:9; 2 Kgs 2:1-18).

4:5 This final charge summarizes what has been said before (1:6-14; 2:1-15, 24-26; 3:12).

4:6-8 Paul's faithfulness, vindication, and reward are a model and a challenge to others—particularly Timothy—to follow Paul's example after he is gone.

4:6 Paul pictures his death as a drink offering that is poured out . . . to God (see Exod 29:40-41; Lev 23:13; Num 28:7; Phil 2:17); this offering participates in Christ's own sacrifice (see Col 1:24; see also Rom 12:1).

4:7 Paul had remained faithful to the trust that was committed to him (see notes on 1:12; 1 Tim 6:20; cp. Acts 20:24). He had preserved the integrity of the Christian faith and wanted Timothy to follow his example (see 2:3-7; 1 Tim 1:18; 6:12; cp. Rom 15:30-31; 1 Cor 9:25-27; Heb 12:1; Jude 1:3).

4:8 Only one thing remained for Paul: the victor's crown (see also Jas 1:12; 1 Pet 5:4; Rev 2:10; 3:11). • If we live expecting that Christ is indeed coming again, we can eagerly look forward to his appearing (see 1 Tim 6:14) to set up his kingdom (4:1). If we don't follow Christ's commands, we cannot look forward to his coming as Judge and King.

4:9 Paul makes explicit his summons for Timothy to come to Rome (see 1:4).

4:10 Demas: See Col 4:14; Phlm 1:24. • deserted: See also 4:16-17; cp. Ps 22:1; Mark 15:34. • Loving the things of this life contrasts with the anticipation of Christ's glorious return (4:8). • Crescens is otherwise unknown; his and Titus's absence seems to have heightened Paul's isolation. • Titus was Paul's effective and reliable co-worker (see "Titus" at Titus 1:4; 2:1, p. 2073). Perhaps he had gone to Dalmatia (northwest of modern-day Greece) on a mission for Paul.

4:11 Luke, the author of Luke and Acts (see Luke and Acts Introductions, "Authorship," pp. 1696, 1822), accompanied Paul in his journeys at various times (see "Luke" at Acts 16:10, p. 1861). It is often supposed that Luke was with Paul as his physician (Col 4:14). Luke was the only one of Paul's co-workers who was continuously present with him. Thus Paul wished for Timothy to come quickly. • Mark: See "John Mark" at Acts 13:4-5, 13, p. 1852. • Paul's assessment that he will be helpful to me tells a story of forgiveness and redemption (see Acts 13:13; 15:36-40; see also Col 4:10; Phlm 1:24).

4:12 Tychicus was apparently a Greek (implied in Col 4:7-8, 10-11) from Asia Minor (see also Acts 20:4; Eph 6:21-22; Col 4:7-8; Titus 3:12). He was possibly going to Ephesus to deliver the present letter and take over for Timothy (assuming that Timothy was in Ephesus; see notes on 4:13, 19).

4:13 Paul's arrest and transfer to Rome apparently did not allow him to gather his things. • the coat: Winter was coming (4:21). • Carpus might have been Paul's host in Troas. The reference to Troas implies that Timothy was still in Ephesus and would travel through Troas, a port town. • my books . . . my papers: These writings may have included Scriptures, personal notes, letters addressed to Paul, copies of Paul's own letters, and other Christian and Jewish materials. • my papers: Literally the parchments.

4:14 Alexander was a common name (cp. Mark 15:21; Acts 4:6; 19:33). Alexander the coppersmith was probably the same person as in 1 Tim 1:20. • did me much harm: Apparently he did more than merely oppose Paul's teaching. Perhaps he had a hand in Paul's arrest.

4:16 The first time I was brought before the judge: A Roman trial was divided between an initial, preliminary investigation and the trial proper. Paul was probably referring to the first of these. It could also refer to his first imprisonment in Rome (Acts 28; see 2 Timothy Introduction, "Date of Writing," p. 2061). • Everyone abandoned me: See note on 4:10.

Final Greetings and Blessing

¹⁹Give my greetings to Priscilla and Aquila and those living in the household of On-esiphorus. ²⁰Erastus stayed at Corinth, and I left Trophimus sick at Miletus.

²²May the Lord be with your spirit. And may his grace be with all of you.

The Mantle of Leadership (4:1-5)

Pattern your lives after mine, and learn from those who follow our example. Philippians 3:17

Titus 2:7
Heb 6:12; 13:7
1 Pet 2:21; 5:1-4

For Paul, the essence of good leadership was to provide an example that mirrored Christ's own example. The cross of Christ was central for Paul, and it had a total claim on his life. When he said, "I want to suffer with him, sharing in his death" (Phil 3:10; see Col 1:24), he was speaking of more than emotional turmoil or even of dealing with sin. He meant suffering violently and bodily. Paul endured suffering for the sake of those to whom he proclaimed the Good News, always putting their salvation before his own physical well-being (2:10; 2 Cor 4:8-12). Paul's life was a proclamation of Christ crucified, of God's power through Paul's weakness (2 Cor 12:8-10), and of God's wisdom despite human foolishness (1 Cor 1:18-31). As Paul summoned Timothy to take up the mantle of leadership (4:1-5), he was also summoning Timothy to suffer with him (1:8; 2:3; 4:5), scorning the shame of the cross (1:8, 12, 16).

The mantle of Christian leadership is the garb of a servant who suffers for those he leads (Mark 10:35-45). If leadership does not orbit faithfully around Christ as its self-giving center, it ceases to be leadership in Christ and fails to understand the Good News. But leadership that is modeled after Christ gains a reward at Christ's future coming, when those who have died with him will live with him and those who endure hardship will reign with him (2:11-12).

News: Paul had turned his defense in court into proclamation of the Good News—just as in his earlier experiences (Acts 22–24; 26:1–29; see also 2 Tim 2:9–10; Phil 1:12–14). • for all the Gentiles to hear: Paul sensed that he had completed his task (4:7–8). The OT specifically anticipates the conversion of the nations (e.g., Ps 22:27–29). • from certain death (literally from the mouth of a lion): The lion is often a metaphor for enemies (see Ps 7:2; 35:17; cp. Dan 6; Heb 11:33). Here, it might refer to literal lions in the amphitheater, to the emperor, to the false teachers, or to Satan (1 Pet 5:8; cp. Ps 22:21).

4:18 God would continue to strengthen Paul and keep him strong in the faith (4:7) to the end of his life (see 1:12). • The Lord's heavenly Kingdom contrasts with the earthly kingdom that was about to pass judgment on Paul (see also 4:1; 1 Cor 15:48–49; Heb 12:18–29). • All glory . . . Amen: Paul's doxology in the face of execution expresses confidence that God's glory will be upheld (cp. 1 Tim 1:17; 6:15–16). • to God (literally to him): The Greek suggests that this praise is ascribed to "the Lord" of the preceding sentence—namely, to Jesus (cp. Titus 2:13).

4:19–21 As in several of Paul's epistles, the letter closes with greetings and final instructions (e.g., Rom 16:1–23; 1 Cor 16:19–21; 2 Cor 13:12).

4:19 Priscilla and Aquila had been in Ephesus (Acts 18:26; 1 Cor 16:19) and were probably there at this time (see "Priscilla and Aquila" at Acts 18:1–3, p. 1865). They had also lived in Rome (Acts 18:2; Rom 16:3), where Paul currently was. This might imply that Timothy was still in Ephesus (see 1 Tim 1:3). • Paul appreciatively mentions Onesiphorus in 1:16 as having ministered to him in prison.

4:20 Erastus was a resident of Corinth (Acts 19:22; Rom 16:23). Modern excavations have found an inscription at Corinth mentioning an Erastus who was the city treasurer; he was probably the same man. • Trophimus (Acts 20:4; 21:29) was an Ephesian associated with Tychicus (4:12).

4:21 before winter: Paul was probably concerned there would be an extended delay if Timothy missed this chance to travel in the fall (see 1:4; 4:9). Winter closed travel across the Adriatic Sea from November to March (see Acts 27:12). Paul might also have been concerned to receive his coat (4:13) for the unheated prison. Eubulus is not mentioned elsewhere in the NT, but he was obviously well known to Timothy. • Pudens was a name used in upper class families. • Eusebius and Irenaeus later identified Linus as the first bishop of Rome. • Claudia is not mentioned elsewhere in the NT. • brothers and sisters: Literally brothers, a generic term that refers to both male and female believers.

4:22 The precise phrasing here is unique, perhaps to emphasize what had already been said in 1:6–8; 2:1 (cp. Gal 6:18; Phil 4:23; Phlm 1:25). • with all of you: This letter would be read publicly.

PAUL'S LETTER TO Titus

The letter to Titus gives us a powerful understanding of the church in Crete as it was beginning to grow and also an insightful glimpse into Paul's work there. These people were new converts in a culture where conduct was very crude. Paul, the aged missionary, demonstrates a mature finesse in adapting the Good News to the spiritual condition and circumstances of these believers in Crete.

SETTING

A group from Crete had been in Jerusalem during Pentecost at the birth of the Christian church (Acts 2:11). Some of these might have carried the Christian faith back to the island at that time, but this letter to Titus suggests that the church on Crete had been recently founded as a result of Paul's mission (see 1:5; 3:15). The only other mention of Crete in the NT comes during Paul's transfer to Rome as a prisoner (Acts 27:7-21), but he did not have an opportunity to become active in Crete at that time. Most likely, Paul's work in Crete began after the events of Acts 28 (AD 60-62) and before his final Roman imprisonment (about AD 64-65?).

As during his first missionary journey out of Antioch, Paul had begun the church in Crete without appointing leaders. As with those earliest churches, he now wanted leaders to be established (cp. Acts 14:23), although in this case he delegated the responsibility to Titus, a longtime co-worker. Paul was headed for Nicopolis on the west coast of modern Greece, and he wanted Titus to join him there when Artemas or Tychicus had arrived on the island of Crete (3:12). Paul's plan to winter at Nicopolis suggests that he planned to sail westward from there when spring arrived (see 2 Tim 4:21), probably heading for Italy and possibly Spain (Rom 15:24, 28).

◀ The Setting of Titus, about AD 63. Paul wrote to Titus, who was stationed in CRETE, around the same time as he wrote his first letter to Timothy in EPHESUS (see 1 Timothy Introduction, p. 2048). Paul's instructions to Titus reflect the rough cultural environment in which he was working.

On Crete, the degenerate culture was negatively influencing the believers in the young church. False teachers were also troubling the community, seemingly like those mentioned in 1 and 2 Timothy. As Paul's delegate to Crete, Titus had to set this church in order before the arrival of Artemas or Tychicus. Above all, he needed to assign elders in each city. When this was completed, he would depart and join Paul.

SUMMARY

The letter to Titus is all business, setting the tone for Titus himself to follow. Each section of the body (1:5–3:11) is composed in a pattern of command, rationale, and charge. Paul consistently repeats this pattern—whether addressing the appointment of elders (1:5–16), right conduct among members of the household of faith (2:1–15), or right conduct in society at large (3:1–11). The rationale for Paul's commands in the first section, on leadership, is that the community is threatened by false teachers and needs decisive leadership. In the next two sections, on right conduct, the commands are based on the rationale of God's grace and mercy and its provisions.

OUTLINE

DATE OF WRITING

All three of the letters to Timothy and Titus were written at about the same time, addressing three distinct situations and yet sharing significant historical and theological elements. It is possible that Paul wrote these letters, including the one to Titus, during the period prior to his arrest in Acts 21, but a date sometime after the

SITUATION AT CRETE

The study of Greek mythology at Crete has given us insight into the situation Paul faced there.¹ According to Cretan mythology, the god Zeus was once a mere human who lived and died on Crete but who had achieved godhood through the benefits he gave to humans (see note on 1:12). The idea of a great human benefactor being exalted to the status of god by virtue of good deeds contradicts the Good News. God graciously lowered himself to humanity in Jesus Christ—"our great God and Savior" (2:13)—and offers salvation through pure mercy (3:5).

LITERARY GENRE

Like 1 Timothy, this letter has characteristics similar to a Greco-Roman mandatum principis ("commandment of a ruler")—see 1 Timothy Introduction, "Literary Genre," p. 2049.

COMPARISON WITH 1 & 2 TIMOTHY

Although Crete is some distance from the church in Ephesus (the recipients of 1 & 2 Timothy), there are some intriguing parallels between the two situations. The characterization of the false teachers and their teaching (1:10-16) suggests that quite similar teachings were being confronted in both places (see 1 Tim 1:4-7; 4:1-4; 2 Tim 3:1-7; 4:3-4).

That said, the situation on Crete as addressed in Titus is not identical to that of Ephesus in 1 & 2 Timothy. The church in Crete was new, whereas the church in Ephesus was long established. Crete was socially less civilized than Ephesus. The newness of the church in Crete might explain the absence of a widows list (1 Tim 5:3-16) and deacons (1 Tim 3:8-13). The differences in the troublemakers might account for silence on the subject of women teachers (see 1 Tim 2:11-15). The criteria for leaders (1:6-9), as well as the standards of conduct for members of the community (see 2:3-4), might represent a lowering of the bar to accommodate new converts from an uncouth background. Finally, the stress on guarding the "deposit," so important in Timothy (1 Tim 1:18; 6:20; 2 Tim 1:12-14; 2:2), is absent in Titus.

MEANING AND MESSAGE

Central to this letter is the realization that the Christian community should enact God's saving grace, which has been shown to the world in the person and work of Jesus Christ. The community's behavior among its members, and in relation to those outside, should be consistent with the way that God had dealt with it. Christians must embody God's grace in the world and toward the world. In so doing, they will advance the Good News within their territory and culture (2:10-11; 3:2-3, 8; see Matt 5:14-16).

The drama of the divine salvation of humanity invites participation. As Christ's followers, we must become players in this performance of grace. Our communities should promote godly lives because the appearance of grace, in the person of Christ, has taught us how to live and has made such living possible (2:1-15). As believers, we must also conduct ourselves properly in a fallen world, with hearts bent on the salvation of others. We must bear in mind our former lives—remembering how God has dealt with us, has given us salvation, and has provided for our godliness (3:1-11).

1 This letter is from Paul, a slave of God and an apostle of Jesus Christ. I have been sent to proclaim faith to those God has chosen and to teach them to know the truth that shows them how to live godly lives.² This truth gives them confidence that they have eternal life, which God—who does not lie—promised them before the world began.³ And now at just the right time he has revealed this message, which we announce to everyone. It is by the command of God our "Savior that I have been entrusted with this work for him.

1:2 The confidence that they have eternal life enables God's people to live in the present in light of the future (see 2:11-14; 3:7-8). • God—who does not lie: The true God contrasts with popular Cretan conceptions (see note on 1:12). This statement also underlines God's plan of salvation as unchanging (1:1): God can be trusted to fulfill his promises (see Num 23:19; 1 Sam 15:29; Rom 3:3-4).

1:3 at just the right time: The initiative is entirely with God, who carries out his plan on his own timetable by his own will (see 3:5; 1 Tim 2:6; 2 Tim 1:10). • God our Savior: In 1:4, Jesus is also called "our Savior," identifying Jesus with God (see 2:10, 13; 3:4, 6).

2. LEADERSHIP IN CRETE (1:5-16)

Command: Appoint Leaders

⁵I left you on the island of Crete so you could complete our work there and appoint elders in each town as I instructed you. ⁶An elder must live a blameless life. He must be faithful to his wife, and his children must be believers who don't have a reputation for being wild or rebellious. ⁷A church leader is a ^amanager of God's household, so he must live a blameless life. He must not be arrogant or quick-tempered; he must not be a heavy drinker, violent, or dishonest with money.

⁸Rather, he must enjoy having guests in his home, and he must love what is good. He must live wisely and be just. He must live a devout and disciplined life. ⁹He must have a strong belief in the trustworthy message he was taught; then he will be able to encourage others with wholesome teaching

Church Leaders (1:5-9)

Titus 2:15
Acts 6:1-6; 13:1-3;
14:23; 15:4-35
1 Cor 12:28-30;
14:26-33
Eph 4:11-13
1 Tim 3:1-13; 4:11-16; 5:17-22
2 Tim 2:2, 25-26

Spontaneity and spiritual giftedness characterized the first church gatherings (see 1 Cor 11:4-5; 14:26-33). The apostles exercised general oversight of the Christian communities (Acts 6:2; 8:14; 14:23) together with the elders in Jerusalem (Acts 15:4, 6, 22-23), whose function was drawn from the Jewish synagogue and Greco-Roman models. The titles and functions of Christian leaders in communities outside of Jerusalem appear to have been fluid (e.g. Acts 6:1-6; 13:1-3), but local leaders were dependent on the apostles when possible. Teachers and prophets also had important roles in guiding the church (see Acts 2:17-18; 11:27-30; 1 Cor 14:26-40). Churches were often founded before their leaders were appointed (1:5; Acts 14:23). Such appointments were almost certainly related to spiritual gifting (e.g. 1 Cor 12:28-30; Eph 4:11) and (in some situations) to age.

There were always community leaders, whether or not they occupied a formal office. In the letters to Timothy and Titus, however, there is a strong emphasis on elders (see note on 1 Tim 5:17), overseers (see note on 1:7), and deacons (see note on 1 Tim 3:8-13). How these offices developed over the years is unclear, and even the practices described in 1 Timothy and Titus might not have been universal. Elders in Ephesus and on Crete may have carried more of the teaching role because the false teachers had to be decisively counteracted. Otherwise, the norms of 1 Cor 14:26-40 might have prevailed. These letters are more concerned with ensuring that the Good News be faithfully transmitted than with perpetuating a form of government (see note on 1 Tim 6:20).

The apostle Paul exercised influence and control over his entire mission field, but there is no evidence that he intended to build or leave a regional or mission-wide infrastructure of governance. Apparently the overseers were to carry on the teaching and disciplinary role of Paul and his delegates without the wider responsibilities and authority of the apostles. As leaders of the local church, they wielded real and distinctive authority (see 1 Tim 4:11-16; 5:19-22; 2 Tim 2:14-19, 25-26; Titus 2:15; 3:10-11; 1 Cor 5:3-5).

1:4 Titus was Paul's delegate in dealing with the church in Crete. • my true son: The wording authorizes the delegate (as in 1 Tim 1:2).

1:5-16 Strong, faithful leadership was needed in the churches of Crete to address the danger of false teachers (1:10-16). This part of Titus's task dovetails with the larger concern of the letter: to shape a community that bears witness to Christ by embodying God's grace in its conduct. Cp. 1 Tim 3:1-7.

1:5-9 Titus was directed to appoint leaders in order to complete our work there—i.e., to establish the church (cp. 1 Tim 3:1-13). Deacons are not mentioned, possibly because these were new, small churches. • These leadership qualities might be an accommodation to the newness of these converts and the roughness of their culture. It is assumed that the elders will be male (see 1 Tim 3:4-5).

1:5 Crete was located in the Mediterranean, south of the Aegean Sea. It was an important location for travel and trade by sea, so it had a mix of influences, including a Jewish population. Some from Crete had been at Pentecost (Acts 2:11), but this letter seems to deal with an infant church. • elders in each town: There may have been more than one house church in a given town and possibly more than one elder in a given house church. Clearly, there were churches in at least two towns and the leadership was specific to each town.

1:6 must live a blameless life: See 1 Tim

3:2, 10. • must be faithful to his wife: Or must have only one wife, or must be married only once; literally must be the husband of one wife. See note on 1 Tim 3:2. • children: See 1 Tim 3:4-5, 12. • wild or rebellious: This probably reflects Cretan culture with its low moral standards (1:12).

1:7 A church leader (or An overseer, or A bishop) is a manager of God's household: See 1:11; 2:2-10; 1 Tim 1:4; 3:4-5, 12, 15; 2 Tim 2:20-21. • These qualities indicate that an elder should not be running with the Cretan masses (see 1:12). • must not be a heavy drinker: Literally must not drink too much wine.

1:9 The elders had a leading role in teaching the community. This may have been necessary in dealing with the and show those who oppose it where they are wrong.

Rationale: The Rebellion of False Teachers

¹⁰For there are many rebellious people who engage in useless talk and deceive others. This is especially true of those who insist on circumcision for salvation. ¹¹They must be silenced, because they are turning whole families away from the truth by their false teaching. And they do it only for money. ¹²Even one of their own men, a prophet from Crete, has said about them, "The people of Crete are all liars, cruel animals, and lazy gluttons."

Charge: Reprove Them! (1:13-16)

¹³This is true. So reprimand them sternly to make them strong in the faith. ¹⁴They must stop listening to Jewish myths and the commands of people who have turned away from the truth.

¹⁵Everything is pure to those whose hearts are pure. But nothing is pure to those who are corrupt and unbelieving, because their minds and consciences are corrupted.

¹⁶Such people claim they know God, but they deny him by the way they live. They are detestable and disobedient, worthless for doing anything good.

3. RELATIONSHIPS IN THE CHURCH (2:1-15)

Command: Promote Right Conduct in God's Household

2As for you, Titus, promote the kind of living that reflects wholesome teaching. ²Teach the older men to exercise self-control, to be worthy of respect, and to live wisely. They must have sound faith and be filled with love and patience.

³Similarly, teach the older women to live in a way that honors God. They must not slander others or be heavy drinkers. Instead, they should teach others what is good. ⁴These older women must train the younger women to love their husbands and their children, ⁵to live wisely and be pure, to work in their homes, to do good, and to be submissive to their husbands. Then they will not bring shame on the word of God.

immediate threat to these particular communities (as also in Ephesus; see 1 Tim 3:1). • Only with a strong belief in the Good News would an elder be able to provide wholesome teaching. Paul's specific concerns are addressed in 2:1–3:11, in light of the problems mentioned in 1:10–16 and 3:9–11 (see also 1 Tim 1:10). • Titus had a similar role (cp. 1:13; 2:15; 3:10–11). The local leadership would carry on where Paul and his delegates left off. • Those who oppose it are described in 1:10–16.

1:10–16 In a native population of troublemakers, Titus would need to exercise a firm hand to rid these Christian communities of corruption and make them healthy in the faith (1:13–16).

1:10 rebellious people: The same Greek word is used of children in 1:6. • those who insist on circumcision for salvation (literally those of the circumcision): This probably refers to Jewish Christians; the Greek phrase leaves open whether or not they required circumcision of Gentiles. The Jewish flavor of this false teaching is suggested in 1:14–15 and 3:9.

1:11 turning whole families away: This also happened in Ephesus (cp. 1 Tim 4:3; 2 Tim 2:18; 3:6). • only for money: Elders must not have this characteristic (1:7; see also 1 Tim 6:5–10; 2 Cor 2:17; 1 Pet 5:2).

1:12 one of their own men, a prophet from Crete has said: This quotation is from Epimenides of Knossos, a philosopher who lived on Crete around the 500s bc. • all liars: This charge was directed specifically at the Cretan claim to have Zeus's tomb on the island. According to Cretan mythology, the god Zeus was once a mere human who lived and died on Crete (his tomb was said to be there) but who had achieved godhood through his patronage (i.e., gifts and benefits) to humans. Some Greek moralists opposed this legend and characterized it as a lie. A quote from Alexandria in the 200s bc reads: "Cretans are always liars. For a tomb, O Lord, Cretans build for you; but you do not die, for you are forever." One of Crete's own prophets (Epimenides) had the same assessment, and Paul cites his voice of conscience approvingly (1:13; see Acts 17:28), for the God who does not lie (1:2) stands in opposition to the lies of such myths. • liars . . . animals . . . gluttons: It was believed that Cretan immorality resulted from their belief about Zeus; religious lies had given rise to moral corruption. Paul later counters these vices by presenting the contrasting virtues (2:12). He calls the Cretans to reach ethical ideals that are extolled in human society generally but were absent on Crete, as bemoaned by their own prophet. They would reach these ideals only through the gospel of Jesus Christ (2:11–14). • lazy gluttons: Cretans were known to do anything for a little cash. They were famous as mercenaries and as insatiate consumers. They reputedly saw no shame in greed (see Phil 3:19). • Paul applies the quotation more directly to the current false teachers than to Cretan culture generally; the false teachers carried on this Cretan tradition of immorality built on falsehood.

1:13 This is true: See note on 1:12. • Being strong in the faith is here defined as rejecting false teachings (cp. 1:9).

1:14 Jewish myths: See 3:9; 1 Tim 1:4; 4:7; 2 Tim 4:4. • have turned away from the truth: This was apostasy, not mere unbelief. See 1 Tim 1:6–7.

1:15–16 These two verses comment on the people of 1:14 and their commands, while transitioning to a discussion of wholesome teaching (2:1–3:11).

1:15 Cp. 1 Tim 4:3–5.

1:16 Sound teaching and godliness are always linked together in the letters to Timothy and Titus (see 1 Tim 1:7–11; 3:15–16; 5:24–25; 2 Tim 3:5, 9). Similarly, the ungodly way they live is connected with false teaching. • anything good: This contrasts with 3:1.

2:1–15 Wholesome teaching was especially urgent on account of the false teachers, who had wreaked havoc on "whole families" (1:11). In 2:1–10, Paul addresses different groups within the household of faith, showing his concern for the public testimony of the church (2:5, 8, 10; see also 1 Tim 5:1–6:2). Paul then elaborates on the coming of Christ (2:11–14) before giving a direct charge to Titus (2:15).

2:3 be heavy drinkers: Literally be enslaved to much wine.

2:4–5 Cp. 1 Tim 5:9–10.

2:5 to work in their homes: Some manuscripts read to care for their homes.

⁶In the same way, encourage the young men to live wisely. ⁷And you yourself must be an ⁶example to them by doing good works of every kind. Let everything you do reflect the integrity and seriousness of your teaching. ⁸Teach the truth so that your teaching can't be criticized. Then those who oppose us will be ashamed and have nothing bad to say about us.

⁹Slaves must always obey their masters and do their best to please them. They must not talk back ¹⁰or steal, but must show themselves to be entirely trustworthy and good. Then they will make the teaching about God our Savior attractive in every way.

Rationale: The Instruction of God's Grace

¹¹For the ⁸grace of God has been revealed, bringing salvation to all people. ¹²And we are ^hinstructed to turn from godless living and sinful pleasures. We should live in this evil world with wisdom, ¹righteousness, and devotion to God, ¹³while we look forward with ⁱhope to that ^kwonderful day when the glory of our great God and Savior, Jesus

2 Tim 4:10

Titus was a Gentile convert who served as one of Paul's trusted assistants. One of Paul's last letters was addressed to him, when Titus was helping to consolidate the church in Crete. Titus is an example of the Gentile converts who were so deeply touched by the Good News of Christ that they left their homes and devoted their lives to assisting Paul in the proclamation of the Good News.

We know nothing about Titus's background or conversion; his name is not mentioned in Acts. We first hear of him as a Gentile believer who accompanied Paul and Barnabas to Jerusalem (Gal 2:1). Significantly, Paul emphasized that Titus was not compelled to be circumcised (Gal 2:3).

Later, as a trusted member of Paul's team, Titus was sent on special assignments. He was the one sent by Paul to Corinth to deal with a difficult situation there (apparently carrying the demanding letter mentioned in 2 Cor 2:4, 9; 7:8-9). This task required both tact and strong leadership (Titus's personality seems to have been stronger than Timothy's; see 1 Cor 16:10-11; 2 Cor 7:15). When Titus returned to Paul with good news (2 Cor 7:6-7, 13-15), Paul sent him back to Corinth carrying the letter we call 2 Corinthians to encourage the believers to complete their money-raising project for the poor believers in Jerusalem. It was an assignment he eagerly accepted because of his love for the Christians in Corinth (2 Cor 7:15; 8:6, 16-17). Paul speaks of him as a person of integrity, like Paul himself (2 Cor 8:23; 12:18).

A few years later, following Paul's first trial in Rome and subsequent release, Paul left Titus on the island of Crete to help consolidate the church. While Titus was there, Paul wrote his letter to Titus, giving him advice on choosing church leaders and encouraging him to teach and model godly behavior. Paul then asked Titus to meet him at Nicopolis (in Achaia), where Paul hoped to spend the winter (3:12). Later, shortly before he was killed in Rome, Paul wrote that Titus had gone to Dalmatia (along the Adriatic coast, northwest of modern-day Greece), probably for ministry there (2 Tim 4:10).

The church historian Eusebius refers to the early tradition that Titus eventually settled in Crete, serving as the bishop there until he was quite old (Eusebius, Church History 3.4.6).

2:9-10 The purpose of these commands is to make the teaching about God . . . attractive (see 1 Tim 6:1-2).

2:11-15 For: The commands of 2:1-10 are here grounded in the past and future coming of Christ. God's grace is a model for the church's own conduct, even as salvation by grace makes a good life possible and creates people devoted to good works (see also 3:3-7).

2:11 has been revealed (literally has appeared): See note on 1 Tim 6:14.

• salvation to all people: Paul intends that God's grace will fully accomplish its ends among the Cretans and that, in doing so, it will enlist them into God's saving work of evangelism (2:12; see 1 Tim 2:1-7; 4:10).

2:12 we are instructed: The emphasis of this instruction falls on the positive virtues: wisdom, righteousness, and devotion to God. In Greco-Roman writings, these three virtues represent virtuous conduct in general. These virtues counter the Cretan vices listed in 1:12 and are transformed into thoroughly Christian qualities (see 2:13). • Paul exhorts the Cretans to bring these virtues to life, in order to make plain to their compatriots that a virtuous life derives only from the appearance of God's grace in Jesus Christ.

2:13 we look forward: This implies hope as well as future accountability, both of which stimulate godly conduct in the present. • will be revealed: This phrase translates a prominent Greek word in the letters to Timothy and Titus ("epiphany" or "appearing"; also 2:11; see note on 1 Tim 6:14). • great God and Savior: This is one of the few places in the NT where Jesus Christ is called "God" outright (see also John 1:1; 20:28; Rom 9:5; Heb 1:8; 2 Pet 1:1; possibly John 1:18). Yet this claim is entirely consistent with the roles and attributes of Christ and the worship that he receives. Possibly this designation is used here to insist that Christ is not a mere human promoted to membership in the pantheon of gods (see note on 1:12). At the time of this Christ, will be ^arevealed. ¹⁴He gave his life to ^bfree us from every kind of sin, to cleanse us, and to make us his very own people, to-tally committed to doing good deeds.

Charge: Teach and Encourage ¹⁵You must teach these things and ^cencourage the believers to do them. You have the authority to correct them when necessary, so don't let anyone disregard what you say.

4. RELATIONSHIP WITH SOCIETY (3:1-11)

Command: Promote Right Conduct in Society

3 Remind the believers to submit to the government and its officers. They should be obedient, always ready to do what is good. ²They must not slander anyone and must avoid quarreling. Instead, they should be gentle and show true humility to everyone.

Rationale: The Example of God's Mercy

³Once we, too, were foolish and disobedient. We were misled and became slaves to many lusts and pleasures. Our lives were full of evil and envy, and we hated each other. ⁴But—

When God our Savior revealed his kindness and love, ⁵he ^dsaved us, not because of the righteous things we had done, but because of his ^emercy. He washed away our sins, giving us a new birth and new life through the Holy Spirit. ⁶He generously poured out the Spirit upon us through Jesus Christ our ^fSavior. ⁷Because of his grace he made us right in his sight and gave us confidence that we will inherit eternal life.

Charge: Insist on Wholesome Teaching, Reject Quarrels

⁸This is a trustworthy saying, and I want you to insist on these teachings so that all who trust in God will devote themselves to doing good. These teachings are good and beneficial for everyone.

⁹Do not get involved in foolish discussions about spiritual pedigrees or in quarrels and fights about obedience to Jewish laws. These things are ^guseless and a waste of time. ¹⁰If people are causing divisions among you, give a first and second warning. After that, have nothing more to do with them. ¹¹For people like that have turned away from the truth, and their own sins condemn them.

letter, Christians were insisting more and more that Christ alone, rather than rulers and emperors, should be called divine.

2:14 Salvation produces a people who have the desire and capacity for the good deeds outlined in 2:2-10. • He gave his life: See also 1 Tim 2:6. • to free us: See Gal 3:22; 4:4-5; cp. Exod 6:6-8.

• The phrase his very own people recalls the formation of Israel as a nation (see Exod 19:5; Deut 7:6; 14:2). Those who follow Christ are now God's people—his nation—and the Spirit leads them to keep God's covenant. • totally committed to doing good deeds: See 1:16; Eph 2:10.

3:1-11 The emphasis on wholesome teaching (1:9; 2:1) continues; Paul turns now to the relationship of the Christian community with society at large (cp. 1 Tim 2:2-4). As in 2:1-15, God's instructions for his people (3:1-2) are based on his dealings with them (3:3-7; cp. note on 2:11-15). Paul then instructs Titus to avoid fruitless disputes and to insist on beneficial teaching (3:8-11).

3:1 Paul might be telling the believers to make a clear distinction between themselves and the unruly common masses. Alternatively, the trouble-makers (1:10-15; 3:10) might have adopted unruly behaviors that stemmed from their erroneous teachings (as is likely the case in 1 Tim 2:1-7).

• On relations to government . . . officers, see 1 Tim 2:2; Rom 13:1-7.

3:3 Humility (3:2) is fitting, considering our state when God's kindness and love came to us (3:4; see Eph 2:1-4; 5:8; Col 3:7; 1 Pet 4:3).

3:4-7 This passage might be a summary or quote from traditional teaching (see 1 Tim 1:15; 2:5-6).

3:4 We should behave toward our compatriots as God acted toward us—in kindness and love. God's salvation makes this possible. • revealed (literally appeared): The Greek word relates to the coming of Christ (also in 2:11, 13; see note on 1 Tim 6:14).

3:5 not because . . . but because: The contrast is between human actions that might be thought to merit salvation and God's grace (see Gal 2:16). Salvation is through faith in God's mercy alone (Eph 2:8). • He washed away our sins, giving us a new birth (literally He saved us through the washing of regeneration): See Ezek 16:9; John 3:1-15; Eph 5:26; Heb 10:22; 2 Pet 1:9. • and new life through the Holy Spirit (literally and renewing of the Holy Spirit): This signifies a complete departure from the life of sin and death and a transfer into the realm of life and purity (see also Rom 12:2; 2 Cor 5:17; Col 3:10).

3:6 Christ our Savior: Cp. 3:4; see note on 1:3.

3:7 The first half of this verse sums up 3:4-6. The second half supplies the purpose for what God did. • made us right in his sight: See Rom 3:20-28; Gal 2:16-17. • inherit eternal life: The Spirit (3:5) is often linked with our status as heirs (see Rom 8:15-17; 1 Cor 6:9-11; Gal 4:6-7; Eph 1:13-14).

3:8 The trustworthy saying is 3:4-7 (cp. 1 Tim 1:15).

3:9-11 See 1:10-16; cp. 1 Tim 1:4, 7.

3:9 spiritual pedigrees: Or spiritual genealogies.

3:10-11 have nothing more to do with . . . people like that: This refers to incorrigibly quarrelsome and divisive people (see 1:11, 13).

3:12-15 The letter closes with news (3:12), a final exhortation (3:13-14), greetings, and a blessing (3:15).

3:12 Evidently Artemas or Tychicus would be Titus's replacement on Crete. Since Tychicus was in fact sent to Ephesus (see 2 Tim 4:12), Artemas might have been the one who went to Crete. • Nicopolis: Several cities had this name; this was most likely a major city on the western coast of the Greek peninsula. Paul had possibly worked here before (see Rom 15:19, which mentions Paul's activity even further west).

5. PAUL'S CLOSING (3:12-15)

Final Instructions

¹²I am planning to send either Artemas or Tychicus to you. As soon as one of them arrives, do your best to meet me at Nicopolis, for I have decided to stay there for the winter. ¹³Do everything you can to help Zenas the lawyer and Apollos with their trip. See that they are given everything they need.

¹⁴Our people must learn to do good by meeting the urgent needs of others; then they will not be unproductive.

Greetings and Blessing

¹⁵Everybody here sends greetings. Please give my greetings to the believers—all who love us.

May God's grace be with you all.

3:13 Zenas and Apollos were involved in spreading the Good News, and they might have been the couriers of this letter to Titus. • Zenas was probably an expert in Roman law or a Roman jurist (the same word for lawyer is in Luke 7:30; 10:25); his pagan name ("gift of Zeus") makes it unlikely that he was an expert in Jewish law. • Apollos is presumably the same man as in Acts 18:24; 19:1; 1 Cor 1:12; 3:4-6, 22; 4:6; 16:12 (see "Apollos" at Acts 18:24-19:1, p. 1867). • everything they need: See 1 Tim 3:2; 3 Jn 1:5-8; cp. Rom 15:24; 1 Cor 16:6, 11; 2 Cor 1:16.

3:14 This final exhortation is connected to the responsibility to take care of Zenas and Apollos (see Rom 12:13; Eph 4:28; 1 Thes 4:11; 1 Tim 5:8, 16; 6:18).

• Our people must involve themselves in the life-giving ministry of the Good News rather than in the unproductive speculations of the false teachers.

3:15 you all: The letter was addressed to Titus (1:4), but the whole church was the audience for the letter (see Titus Introduction, "Literary Genre," p. 2069).

PAUL'S LETTER TO

Philemon

This little letter, the shortest and most personal of Paul's letters, shows how attitudes and relationships are transformed by Christ. It was written on behalf of Onesimus, a runaway slave, as he returned to Philemon, his master. Paul encouraged Philemon to go beyond the traditional master-slave relationship by welcoming Onesimus back as a beloved brother in Christ. With these reconciling words, Paul reminds us that all relationships among Christians, regardless of a person's social standing, are transformed by the love of Christ.

SETTING

A slave named Onesimus seems to have run away from his Christian master, Philemon. His master resided in Colosse, a small town in the Roman province of Asia (now western Turkey) about 100 miles (160 kilometers) east of Ephesus. When Onesimus ran away, he might have stolen some of his master's things. Somehow Onesimus came into contact with Paul, who was in prison, and became a believer through Paul's ministry. When Paul became aware that Onesimus was a runaway slave, he encouraged him to return to his master.

Slavery was widespread in the Roman world and, by law, captured runaways had to be returned to their owners. They often faced severe punishment, such as whipping, branding, or execution, as an example to other slaves. However, Philemon was a well-respected Christian leader and a gracious, loving person. Paul wrote this letter to Philemon from prison and sent it with Onesimus to ensure a warm Christian welcome for the runaway on what might have been a rather fearful return to his master. The letter resembles a letter of recommendation and carries the full weight of Paul's apostolic authority.

We do not know what happened when Onesimus returned. Some fifty or sixty years later, however, in a letter written to the Christians at Ephesus by the Christian martyr Ignatius, the name

◀ The Setting of Philemon. Onesimus, a slave, had run away from his master, Philemon, a believer in Colosse. Paul, who was in prison, was now sending Onesimus back to Philemon with this personal note. Onesimus traveled with Tychicus, who carried Paul's letter to the Colossians (see Col 4:7-9).

Onesimus appears again, this time as the name of the highly-regarded bishop of the province of Asia. We cannot be sure it was the same person, but it is quite possible that, because of his close association with Paul, the young slave rose to prominence in the church and eventually became bishop of the entire province. It is a reminder that traditional class distinctions are of no significance in the church of Jesus Christ.

SUMMARY

Paul encourages Philemon to treat Onesimus no longer simply as a slave but as a genuine brother in Christ. Using his traditional opening (vv 1-3), Paul introduces himself, greets Philemon, his family, and the church that meets in their home, and invokes grace and peace upon them. Paul then thanks God for the good things he has heard about Philemon, especially his trust in the Lord Jesus and the love he has shown to so many of God's people (vv 4-7).

Paul then makes his appeal for Onesimus (vv 8-22). Though formerly a runaway, Onesimus has now become a believer in Christ and has proven himself to be a changed person.

Paul asks Philemon to be gracious and forgiving in welcoming his slave back. Paul's real desire is for Onesimus to stay with him, to assist him in his ministry from prison. Although he has the apostolic authority to demand that Philemon release him for that purpose, he refuses to use that authority, desiring that such an expression of mercy come from Philemon himself and not be forced. But Paul clearly hints that Philemon should consider freeing his slave for the work of the Good News.

The letter ends in a customary way (vv 23-25). Paul sends greetings to Philemon from various Christians, then invokes the grace of Christ upon him and all those in his home.

OCCASION OF WRITING

Though the traditional interpretation is that Onesimus was a runaway slave, other possibilities have been posed. For example, Onesimus might have been sent as a messenger to Paul or he might have turned to Paul to mediate a problem that had arisen between him and his master. In reality, we do not know why he left his master's home, but the traditional interpretation fits the letter well.

DATE AND PLACE OF WRITING

It is traditionally believed that Paul wrote the prison letters (Ephesians, Philippians, Colossians, and Philemon) when he was in prison in Rome (AD 60-62 or about AD 64-65). It is also quite possible that these letters were written from Ephesus during an earlier imprisonment. See Ephesians Introduction, "Date and Place of Writing," p. 1996.

The Christian liberty of which Paul was the outspoken champion certainly had its social consequences, but it existed only "in Christ." Such liberty was not to be attained by any superficial changes in the structure of Graeco-Roman social and economic life.

Preface to the Epistle of Saint Paul to Philemon

MEANING AND MESSAGE

This letter is a vivid illustration of the way that attitudes and relationships are transformed in Christ. Those who know Christ are to see people through the eyes of love and to express that love in their relationships with others.

Paul's appeal to Philemon reminds us that, as Christians, we must always be willing to forgive one another. No matter how much we have been wronged by others, we must be quick to give them a warm-hearted welcome and show them our acceptance and love.

In the church of Christ, traditional social distinctions, such as the relationship between slave and master, must be transcended. We must show genuine love to all Christians, regardless of their economic or cultural status, education, ethnicity, or gender (cp. Gal 3:28; Col 3:11). Paul's desire to reconcile Philemon and Onesimus is an example of such love.

Many people have wondered why Paul did not explicitly call for Onesimus's freedom or for the abolition of slavery as an institution. In the Roman world, slavery was widespread; it was an integral part of society, and the whole of society was built on it. Paul, like most early Christians, seems to have accepted the traditional structures of society, including slavery. The mission of the early Christians was not to overthrow the structures of society but to see people converted and built up in Christ. Proclaiming the Good News of salvation would result in lives and relationships being transformed by Christ within the fellowship of the church.

Though Paul did not call explicitly for Onesimus's release, he clearly hinted that he would like to see him freed for the work of the Good News. In his consistent emphasis on the importance of Christians living together in forgiveness and mutual love, he was planting the seeds that would one day result in the overthrow of slavery as an institution.

Introduction and Greetings from Paul (vv 1-3)

This letter is from Paul, a prisoner for preaching the Good News about Christ Jesus, and from our brother Timothy.

I am writing to Philemon, our beloved co-worker,² and to our sister Apphia, and to our fellow soldier Archippus, and to the church that meets in your house.

³May God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ give you grace and peace.

Paul's Thanksgiving and Prayer (vv 4-7)

⁴I always thank my God when I pray for you, Philemon, ⁵because I keep hearing about your faith in the Lord Jesus and your ⁶love for all of God's people. ⁶And I am praying that you will put into action the vv 1-3 Paul usually begins with a short introduction followed by greetings and the invocation of grace and peace.

v 1 Paul, a prisoner: It is traditionally thought that Paul was writing from prison in Rome, but it is also possible that he was writing earlier from Ephesus, much closer to Philemon's home in Colosse (see Philemon Introduction, "Date and Place of Writing," p. 2077).

• Timothy was one of Paul's closest co-workers (see "Timothy" at Acts 16:1-3, p. 1860). • co-worker: Philemon was active in ministry for Christ.

v 2 This is not a private letter to Philemon alone but is addressed also to his family and church. • Apphia was probably Philemon's wife. • soldier: The servant of Christ is involved in a war and must be prepared to stand firm in the face of opposition (Eph 6:10-17).

• Archippus was probably Philemon's son (also mentioned in Col 4:17). • the church that meets in your house: The early Christians met together in private homes (see also Rom 16:5; 1 Cor 16:19; Col 4:15). • Throughout this letter, you and your are singular except in vv 3, 22, 25.

v 3 You is plural, referring to all those mentioned in v 2. • Grace and peace represent traditional Greek and Hebrew greetings, respectively; they are now understood as gifts from God (cp. Rom 5:1-2).

vv 4-7 In his letters, Paul usually thanks God for the faith and love of his readers and mentions his prayers for them (Rom 1:8-12; 1 Cor 1:4-9; 2 Cor 1:3-11; contrast Gal 1:6-10). Ancient Greek letters occasionally included a section of thanksgiving following the greeting.

v 5 It is by faith in Christ that we are saved, and it is by love for fellow Christians that we live out our salvation.

v 6 This verse can be translated in different ways. Paul is hinting that Philemon should be gracious toward Onesimus in light of God's goodness to Philemon (cp. vv 10, 17-19).

Paul's Appeal for Onesimus (vv 8-22)

⁸That is why I am boldly asking a favor of you. I could demand it in the name of Christ because it is the right thing for you to do. ⁹But because of our love, I prefer simply to ask you. Consider this as a request from me—Paul, an old man and now also a prisoner for the sake of Christ Jesus.

¹⁰I appeal to you to show kindness to my child, Onesimus. I became his father in the faith while here in prison. ¹¹Onesimus hasn't been of much use to you in the past, but now he is very useful to both of us. ¹²I am sending him back to you, and with him comes my own heart.

¹³I wanted to keep him here with me while I am in these chains for preaching the Good News, and he would have helped me on your behalf. ¹⁴But I didn't want to do anything without your consent. I wanted you to help because you were willing, not because you were forced. ¹⁵It seems you lost

Onesimus for a little while so that you could have him back forever. ¹⁶He is no longer like a ^cslave to you. He is more than a ^cslave, for he is a beloved brother, especially to me. Now he will mean much more to you, both as a man and as a brother in the Lord.

¹⁷So if you consider me your partner, welcome him as you would welcome me. ¹⁸If he has wronged you in any way or owes you anything, charge it to me. ¹⁹I, PAUL, WRITE THIS WITH MY OWN HAND: I WILL REPAY IT. AND I WON'T MENTION THAT YOU OWE ME YOUR VERY SOUL!

²⁰Yes, my brother, please do me this favor for the Lord's sake. Give me this encouragement in Christ.

²¹I am confident as I write this letter that you will do what I ask and even more! ²²One more thing—please prepare a guest room for me, for I am hoping that God will answer your prayers and let me return to you soon.

Paul's Final Greetings (vv 23-25)

²³Epaphras, my fellow prisoner in Christ Jesus, sends you his greetings. ²⁴So do Mark, Aristarchus, Demas, and Luke, my co-workers.

²⁵May the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit.

vv 8-9 The reason why Paul was asking a favor was Philemon's reputation as a gracious, loving person (vv 5-7). Paul could demand it by his authority as Christ's apostle, but love leads Paul to request rather than demand. • Paul, an old man: Paul appeals to the respect due to older people as well as to his status as a prisoner for the sake of Christ Jesus (or a prisoner of Christ Jesus), which would only increase a fellow Christian's respect.

v 10 show kindness: In the Roman world, runaway slaves could be treated harshly with whipping, branding, or even execution, at the owner's discretion. • Onesimus was Paul's spiritual child because he became a believer through Paul's ministry.

v 11 Onesimus means "useful." • hasn't been of much use (literally useless) . . . very useful: This might be a play on words (cp. v 20). Onesimus was now serving others and proclaiming the Good News. At last he had become what his name means.

vv 13-14 Paul hints at his desire that Philemon choose to free Onesimus to serve as Paul's helper (also v 21). The Christian life is a free response to God's grace (Rom 12:1; Eph 4:1; Col 3:12-13).

v 15 you lost Onesimus (literally he went away): This might be a euphemism for running away, in order not to mention Onesimus's offense directly. • so that you could have him back forever: It is implied that God providentially arranged events to lead to Onesimus's salvation.

v 16 Though Onesimus was still legally Philemon's slave, Philemon must think of him as a beloved brother and be committed to his well-being. • both as a man and as a brother in the Lord: Brotherhood in Christ must now transform their whole relationship in both the natural and spiritual realms.

v 18 Onesimus might have stolen some things from Philemon's home or had a debt to pay off when he ran away.

v 19 Paul guarantees his promise with his signature. He typically dictated his letters to a secretary; on occasion, as here, he wrote something in his OWN HAND. • YOUR VERY SOUL: That is, his salvation. Philemon owed Paul much more than anything Onesimus might have owed him. Whether this means Philemon was converted directly or indirectly through Paul's preaching is not clear (cp. Col 1:7).

v 20 do me this favor: Or let me have this benefit; Greek onaimēn ("favor, benefit") might be a play on the name

v 21 and even more: Paul might be hinting that he would like to see Onesimus released (cp. vv 13-14), or he might simply be expressing confidence in Philemon's kindness.

v 22 Paul's request for a guest room in anticipation of his visit reinforces his request that Philemon treat Onesimus kindly. At his coming, he would see how Onesimus had been treated.

vv 23-25 Paul usually closes his letters with greetings from others and a benediction. Cp. Col 4:7-18; Paul's letters to the Colossians and to Philemon were probably carried to Colosse at the same time by Tychicus and Onesimus.

v 23 Epaphras was a native of Colosse who first brought the Good News to Philemon and his family (Col 1:7; 4:12).

v 24 These men are also mentioned at the end of Colossians (Col 4:10, 14). • co-workers: They helped Paul spread the Good News. • Mark: See "John Mark" at Acts 13:4-5, 13, p. 1852. • Aristarchus was a faithful associate of Paul for many years (Acts 19:29; 20:4; 27:2).

• Demas was a co-worker who later abandoned Paul (2 Tim 4:10). • Luke: See "Luke" at Acts 16:10, p. 1861.

v 25 grace: See note on v 3.

THE LETTER TO THE Hebrews

Have you ever known a person who turned his or her back on Christ and the church and simply walked away? Perhaps you have struggled to maintain your own Christian commitment in the face of disillusionment, spiritual confusion, or loss of perspective. The book of Hebrews renews our perspective by pointing us to Christ. It provides light to help struggling Christians see Jesus clearly.

SETTING

As Christianity spread throughout the Mediterranean world, the first followers of Jesus Christ faced grave challenges. The pagan society misunderstood and mistrusted both Christians and Jews and considered them “atheists” because they did not believe in the Greek or Roman gods. Opposition to Christianity also arose from within traditional Judaism. Many Jews rejected Jesus as the Messiah and held interpretations of the OT Scriptures that conflicted with those embraced by the Christian movement. Those who converted to faith in Christ from various backgrounds often paid a high price in their jobs, family connections, friendships, and other social associations. Persecution of Christians was common.

The believers to whom Hebrews was addressed probably belonged to a group of house churches in Rome in the early 60s AD. The Christian community in Rome was founded in the AD 30s when those present at Pentecost (Acts 2:10) made their way home. Rome had over a million people, including a large population of Jews (40,000–60,000). Roman believers had demonstrated courage and endurance (10:32–34), but by the time Hebrews was written, the spiritual fervor of some had grown cold (5:11–14), and their theological perspective was skewed (2:1). Some had even abandoned Christ and the church (6:4–8).

SUMMARY

Hebrews was written as an energetic and highly crafted pastoral response to the needs of struggling people. In the style of a first-century sermon, the author alternates between exposition on the person and work of Christ and exhortation of the hearers to respond with obedience and endurance. By a detailed exposition on God’s Son, and with warnings, challenges, examples, and reminders of God’s faithfulness, the author calls his readers to endure in following Christ.

◀ The Setting of Hebrews. The letter to the Hebrews was probably written to Christians in Rome (see “Recipients,” p. 2082). Many of the recipients were Jewish Christians who were being tempted to return to Judaism. It is uncertain who wrote the letter or where its author was located at the time.

Following an introduction to the whole sermon (1:1-4), the author's exposition of Christ's superiority develops in two great movements. The first movement (1:5-2:18) explains the Son's relationship to the angels. The angels are servants (1:6-7, 14), but the exalted Son (1:13), with his unique relationship with the Father (1:5), is the Lord, creator, and sustainer of the universe—indeed, he is God (1:8-12). The author exhorts the hearers to pay careful attention to the message of salvation they have been taught (2:1-4), then resumes his exposition. The exalted Christ's position was temporarily lower than the angels when he became human (2:5-9); Jesus took on flesh and blood in order to die to set us free (2:10-18).

Benediction and Conclusion

The first movement is followed by an exhortation (3:1-4:13) focusing primarily on the need for faithful obedience and a continued promise of rest for God's people.

The second movement of the exposition (4:14-10:18) addresses the position of the Son, our High Priest, in relation to the OT sacrificial system, with 4:14-16 as the introduction. The author addresses the Son's appointment as the superior High Priest (5:1-10) and confronts the community with their spiritual immaturity (5:11-6:20). A discussion of Melchizedek's superiority to the Levitical priests (7:1-10) lays the groundwork for presenting Jesus as the superior High Priest according to the order of Melchizedek (7:11-28). In short, Jesus was not appointed according to the conventions of the OT law, which said that priests should come from the tribe of Levi. Rather, he was appointed by God, with an oath, on the basis of his indestructible life. The book then considers the superior offering of this appointed High Priest (8:3-10:18). Like the earthly priests, this superior priest had to make an offering for sins, but his offering was a new covenant offering (8:7-13) that was superior to the old (9:1-10:18).

The final main section (10:19-13:25) is an exhortation challenging the hearers to respond in faithfulness to the message about Christ. The book ends with a benediction and a formal conclusion (13:20-25).

AUTHORSHIP

Unlike many other letters of the NT, Hebrews does not begin by identifying its author and recipients; many scholars today believe that this is because the book was originally written as a sermon. Since the earliest centuries of the church, the question of Hebrews' authorship has been much discussed. The book circulated with Paul's letters, and some church fathers in the eastern half of the Mediterranean world (such as Origen and Clement of Alexandria) argued that Paul was the author. Others, especially around Rome, did not think Paul had written the book.

Hebrews 1-8, p. xlvii

Almost all scholars today agree that Paul was not the author of Hebrews. First, In 2:3, the author depicts himself as having received the Good News from the original witnesses who followed Christ, and this does not sound at all like Paul (see Rom 1:1; 1 Cor 15:8; Gal 1:11-16). Second, the style, theological images, and vocabulary are quite different from Paul's; for example, Hebrews uses 169 words not found elsewhere in the NT.

Through the centuries, many other possible authors for the book have been suggested, such as Philip, Priscilla, Luke, Barnabas, Jude, and Clement of Rome. One of the most popular ideas, since Martin Luther first made the suggestion, is that Apollos wrote it. Luke describes Apollos in Acts 18:24-26 as an eloquent man from Alexandria who was a powerful orator and preacher of the OT.

Although we cannot identify the author of Hebrews with certainty, a careful study of the book reveals much about him. First, the excellent Greek in which the book is written and its expertly crafted forms of expression point to a highly educated person. Second, the author of Hebrews must have been a dynamic preacher, one trained in interpretation and exposition, who had memorized large portions of the OT. Third, and most importantly, this author was a deeply concerned Christian leader who addressed his readers urgently and with passion. Hebrews is not simply a theological treatise, but a pastoral appeal that vies for the hearts and minds of those who are challenged in their Christian commitment.

RECIPIENTS

In 13:24, the author writes, "Greet all your leaders and all the believers there. The believers from Italy send you their greetings." The author seems to have been writing back to Italy, and probably to Rome, sending greetings from Italian Christians who had traveled abroad.

Those addressed in this letter seem to have had some background in Jewish worship. The author's use of the OT and his theological concepts would have been familiar to those of the synagogue in the Mediterranean world. This does not necessarily mean that all of the recipients were Jews, since many Gentiles were in the synagogue as "God-fearers" who worshiped the God of Israel.

OCCASION OF WRITING

Some in the Christian community were evidently struggling to maintain their commitment as they were being persecuted. Passages such as 10:32-39 suggest that this group of believers, which had faced persecution in the past, was facing it again. In the crucible of having to stand for Christ and the church in the face of public opposition, some were faltering spiritually and others had apparently turned their backs on the faith altogether. The author thus challenges this group of professed Christ-followers to endure in their public profession of Christ.

If we are correct that Rome is the destination for this book, this word of exhortation might have been precipitated by the persecution that occurred under the emperor Nero, whose intense persecution and martyrdom of Christians in the mid-60s AD is well-known. It is also possible that Hebrews was written after AD 70. At the time Hebrews was written, none in the community had faced martyrdom (12:4), but the pressure of persecution was on the rise.

Hebrews remains something of a sleeping giant, a neglected tour de force within the New Testament canon. It is undeniably one of the most difficult New Testament books, and whether in spite of that or because of it, one of the most rewarding.

MEANING AND MESSAGE

God has spoken about his Son and through his Son (1:1-3), and there are dire consequences for those who do not listen and respond with obedience to that word (2:1-3). In the end, Jesus, the creator and sustainer of the universe (1:2-3), will put away the created order like a person rolls up an article of old clothing (1:10-12).

Jesus is supremely worthy of our commitment, worship, and endurance in the faith, superior to the angels (1:5-14), to Moses (3:1-6), and to the Levitical priesthood of the old covenant (5:1-10; 7:1-28).

Jesus has made a new, heavenly covenant, offering himself once for all through his own death (8:3-10:18). Therefore, Jesus provides us with a superior basis for persevering in the Christian life. In his incarnation he endured as a faithful Son (3:1-6; 5:7-8; 12:1-2), and in his exaltation he reigns as the supreme Lord of the universe (1:2-4, 8-13); both give us hope for our future.

We can look to positive examples of others who have been faithful in their journey to God's eternal city (see 6:13-15; 10:32-39; 11:1-40), and to negative examples of those who fell through disobedience (see 3:7-19; 6:4-8). And we can embrace God's promises to us concerning our inheritance as his children (4:3-11; 6:13-20; 12:22-24).

Because of Jesus, we can live as faithful members of the Christian community in our relationships and in our worship (13:1-17). Our perseverance in the Christian faith will be directly proportional to the clarity with which we understand who Jesus is and what he has accomplished on our behalf.

1. INTRODUCTION: THE SON IS GOD'S FINAL WORD (1:1-4)

1 Long ago God spoke many times and in many ways to our ancestors through the prophets. ²And now in these final days, he has spoken to us through his Son. God promised everything to the Son as an inheritance, and through the Son he created the universe. ³The Son radiates God's own glory and expresses the very character of God, and he sustains everything by the mighty power of his command. When he had cleansed us from our sins, he sat down in the place of honor at the right hand of the majestic God in heaven. ⁴This shows that the Son is far greater than the ^aangels, just as the name God gave him is greater than their names.

1:1-4 Ancient sermons often began with an introduction meant to grab the hearer's attention and introduce the sermon's main topics. In Hebrews, the first four verses form a single, eloquent Greek sentence built around the main clause, God . . . has spoken. Most English translations present these verses as several sentences for ease of reading.

1:1-2 Long ago . . . And now: These verses deal with two time periods in which God has spoken, addressing the differences between the two eras in parallel fashion.

1:1 Long ago, in Jewish theology, referred to the time before the Messiah's coming. For the author of Hebrews, this primarily meant the OT era. Throughout that past era, God spoke many times and in many ways—through dreams, visions, mighty acts, stories, commands, exhortations, angelic appearances, and appearances of God himself. • The prophets were all those through whom God gave his revelation (see 2 Pet 1:19-21).

1:2 These final days refers to the historical era inaugurated at Christ's coming (see Isa 2:2; Acts 2:17). Whereas the revelation of the OT era came in a wide variety of forms over time, God's ultimate revelation was given through his Son, Jesus (see 2:3-4). • as an inheritance: Christ is God's royal heir; the author probably had Ps 2:8 in mind.

1:3 The word translated radiates, found only here in the NT, includes an idea of intense brightness. God's own glory is the glorious manifestation of his presence (Exod 16:7; 33:18; Isa 40:5). The Son's glory is an expression of God's glory—the Son of God manifests the person and presence of God (Luke 9:32; John 1:14; 2:11; 17:5; Rom 8:17).

• The term translated expresses, used only here in the NT, was used of a distinguishing mark imprinted on an object such as a coin. The Son gives a clear picture of the very character of God (John 1:18; Phil 2:6; Col 1:15). • the mighty power of his command (literally his powerful word): God's word is the powerful, dynamic force that created and governs the world (11:3; Ps 33:6-11). Elsewhere the Son is called "the Word of God" (Rev 19:13; see also John 1:1-18). • cleansed us from our sins: See 9:11-10:18. • he sat down: This clause is an allusion to Ps 110:1 (see also 1:13; 8:1; 10:12; 12:2), which foretold the exaltation of Christ after his suffering (see Matt 22:44; Acts 2:33; 1 Cor 15:25). The right hand of God indicates high honor, rank, and position (see 1 Kgs 2:19; Ps 16:11; 45:4, 9; 80:17).

1:4 The Son's exalted position shows that the Son is far greater than the angels in status or rank. First-century Jews were fascinated with angels and held them in high esteem, so the

The Superiority of the Son (1:1-14)

Heb 3:1-6;
7:1–10:18, 34;
11:16, 35, 40
Ps 110:1

The author of Hebrews argues for the superiority of the Son as to his person and his ministry. The superiority of the Son's person is presented primarily in 1:1–3:6. In the book's introduction (1:1-4), the Son is presented as the creator, sustainer, and heir of the universe (1:2-3), one who “radiates God’s own glory and expresses the very character of God” (1:3), and the exalted one, who has achieved the cleansing of sins and now has a status “far greater than the angels” (1:4).

In 1:5-14 and 2:5-18, the Son is shown to be superior to the angels. He has a unique relationship with the Father (1:5) and is the ruler, creator, and terminator of the created order (1:8-12). The angels have a status that is inferior to him, and they worship him (1:6-7). Scripture exalts him to the highest possible position of honor at the Father's right hand (1:13; Ps 110:1), so now he has authority over all things (2:5-8).

In 3:1-6, the author builds on the hearers' great respect for Moses to make the case for the even greater respect due the Son. Like Moses, the Son was faithful in his ministry to the people of God. Yet the Son deserves more glory and praise than Moses, for he is identified with God the Father and is the ultimate builder of God's house (3:3-4). The Son is ultimately in charge of God's people (3:5-6).

The passages that focus on the superiority of the Son's ministry are found primarily in 7:1–10:18. Through his superior high priesthood, Jesus has brought in a “better hope” (7:19), grounded in a “better covenant” (7:22), based on “better promises” (8:6), through which he performs a ministry “superior” to that of the priests of the old covenant (8:6). His ministry under the new covenant is a “better system” because of the superiority of Christ's sacrifice (9:10, 23; see also 12:24). His ministry causes new covenant believers to anticipate “better things” in terms of their inheritance (10:34), a “better . . . heavenly homeland” (11:16), and a “better life after the resurrection” (11:35). For new covenant believers in Christ, God has something “better” that could only be anticipated by their old covenant counterparts (11:40).

author of Hebrews establishes the Son's superiority to them. • just as the name . . . is greater: Cp. 2 Sam 7:8-14. Some commentators believe that the title “Son” is the name implied here. Others think the name is Yahweh, the covenant name of God in the OT (Exod 3:14-15; cp. Phil 2:9-11).

1:5-14 In these ten verses, the author uses a variety of OT texts to show that Jesus is superior to the angels. Among ancient Jewish and Christian interpreters, OT passages were strung together one after the other in “chain quotations” (called “pearl stringing”) to convince the hearers or readers of a certain theological point by presenting a lot of scriptural evidence together.

1:5 God . . . said: This verse quotes Ps 2:7 and 2 Sam 7:14. By exalting Jesus to his right hand (see Acts 1:9-11; 2:32-36; 7:55-56), the Father proclaimed his unique relationship with the Son.

• Today I have become your Father (or Today I reveal you as my Son): Jesus did not become the Son at the exaltation—he had been involved in creation (1:2)—but the exaltation verified his identity to all.

1:6 when he brought his supreme Son into the world, God said (or when he again brings his supreme Son [or firstborn Son] into the world, God will say): The supreme (or firstborn) Son shared the authority of the father, inherited most of his property, and was especially favored. In the NT, “firstborn” most frequently refers to Christ's supremacy both in the church and in the created order; his resurrection is often given as the evidence for this status (Acts 13:33; Rom 1:4; 8:29; Col 1:15, 18; Rev 1:5; cp. Heb 12:23, where believers are called firstborn children). • “Let all of God's angels worship him”: This quotation from Deut 32:43 demonstrates the lower status of the angels in that they worship the Son (see also Ps 97:7).

1:7 This verse quotes Ps 104:4 (Greek version) to show that the angels are messengers or servants and, therefore, of a lesser rank than the Son, whom they serve. • In the OT, angels are sometimes associated with winds and fire (see Exod 3:2; Judg 6:21; 13:16, 20; 2 Sam 22:11; Ps 18:10; 35:5), which is why angels are mentioned in connection with God's lordship over nature.

1:8-9 These verses, quoting Ps 45:6-7, proclaim the Son as the divine, just, eternal, anointed King of the universe. • to the Son he says: Jesus is addressed

A Warning against Drifting Away

2 So we must listen very carefully to the truth we have heard, or we may drift away from it. ²For the message God

Consequences of Apostasy (2:1-4)

Ezek 8
Matt 24:10-13
Gal 1:6-9

1 Jn 2:18-19

Although it is not a popular theme, the Bible is clear that disobeying God has severe consequences (see, e.g., Gen 9:5-6; Num 35:16-21; Lev 20:10; Zech 5:4). Those who oppose God's will and rule will ultimately be excluded from his life-giving presence (Isa 66:14-24). Sadly, opposition to God is not limited to those outside the community of faith; the Bible tells of many people who seemed to know God but turned away (Num 16; Deut 13; 2 Kgs 17:5-23; Ezek 8). God brings just consequences to those who turn away from him (Job 11:20; Prov 1:24-31; Jer 11:11). Jesus also spoke of those who fall away and their judgment (Matt 5:22; 16:27; 23:13; 24:10-13; 25:41-46), and the writers of the NT follow his lead (Gal 1:6-9; 2 Tim 3:1-9; 2 Pet 2; 1 Jn 2:18-19).

Several passages in Hebrews warn that those who fail to take God's word seriously are in deep spiritual trouble and will face the judgment of God (see 2:1-4; 4:12-13; 6:4-8; 10:26-31; 12:25-29). Scholars have understood the nature of the apostasy (falling away) and judgment described in the "warning passages" of Hebrews in various ways, including: (1) Some have understood the warnings to be hypothetical, suggesting that the harshness serves simply to shock the hearers out of spiritual lethargy, with no impending judgment in view. (2) A second position holds that those with whom the author was concerned were Jewish and had not yet converted to Christianity. Thus they were under God's judgment because they were not yet a part of the new covenant. (3) A third view proclaims that the "apostates" in view were Christians who, because of their spiritual condition, faced God's judgment as believers, but were in no danger of actually losing their salvation. (4) A fourth view suggests that the apostates had been full members of the Christian community and had experienced the full reality of the Christian faith but had now turned their backs on Christ and the Church. (5) A fifth view is that, rather than having been true believers, the apostates showed that they never really knew Christ in the first place.

Ultimately, warnings of judgment are an expression of God's grace, seeking to turn the rebellious person to the ways of God. Taking the consequences of rebellion seriously can help us build resolve in faithfully following Jesus.

as God; in 1:9, your God is a reference to God the Father. • pouring out the oil of joy: Olive oil was used to anoint kings of Israel at the inauguration of their rule (1 Sam 10:1; 1 Kgs 19:15-16). God has anointed his Son, Jesus Christ, as King.

1:10-12 These verses, quoting Ps 102:25-27, celebrate the Son as both the creator and the one who brings the created order to an end. All created things will wear out like old clothing, and the Son will discard them (cp. 2:5;

2 Pet 3:13; Rev 21:1). By contrast, the Son of God will live forever.

1:13 In climactic fashion, the author ends his string of OT quotations (see note on 1:5-14) by quoting from Ps 110:1 in celebration of Christ's exaltation (see also notes on Luke 20:42-43; 22:69; 1 Cor 15:25; Eph 1:19-22).

• The image of the Son's enemies as a footstool under his feet represents their absolute subjugation (see 2:8). In the ancient world, a victorious king would place his foot on the neck or back of an enemy as a symbolic act of domination.

1:14 Therefore, angels are only servants: The author restates his conclusion. God sends out the angels to care for his people, who will inherit salvation at the end of the age (see 9:28).

2:1-4 The author makes an argument from lesser to greater: If, in the lesser situation of the OT era, people who rejected God's word as delivered by angels were severely punished, how delivered through angels has always stood firm, and every violation of the law and every act of disobedience was punished.³ So what makes us think we can escape if we ignore this great salvation that was first announced by the Lord Jesus himself and then delivered to us by those who heard him speak? ⁴And God confirmed the message by giving ^esigns and wonders and various miracles and gifts of the Holy Spirit whenever he chose.

Jesus, the Man (2:5-18)

The Son Temporarily Lower Than Angels

⁵And furthermore, it is not angels who will control the future world we are talking about. ⁶For in one place the Scriptures say,

“What are mere mortals that you should think about them, or a son of man that you should care for him?”

⁷ Yet for a little while you made them a little lower than the angels and crowned them with glory and honor.

⁸ You gave them authority over all things.”

Now when it says “all things,” it means nothing is left out. But we have not yet seen all things put under their authority. ⁹What we do see is Jesus, who for a little while was given a position “a little lower than the angels”; and because he suffered death for us, he is now “crowned with glory and honor.” Yes, by God’s grace, Jesus tasted death for everyone.

The Son of God Became Human

¹⁰God, for whom and through whom everything was made, chose to bring many children into glory. And it was only right that he should make Jesus, through his suffering, a perfect leader, fit to bring them into their salvation.

much greater the punishment will be for those who now reject the word of salvation that has been delivered by the Son himself and confirmed by the Holy Spirit.

2:1 The truth we have heard is the message of salvation delivered through Christ (2:3). • Drift away pictures a ship getting off course. Here it speaks of getting off track spiritually due to not listening very carefully to the Good News.

2:2 According to Jewish tradition, the message God delivered, the law given on Mount Sinai (see Acts 7:38; Gal 3:19), was delivered through angels.

• Violation of the law was punished (see Exod 22:19; Lev 20:10; Num 35:16-21), and punishment was inescapable (Prov 1:24-31; Jer 11:11).

2:3 So what makes us think we can escape? Here the author presses the full force of the danger of turning away from Christ and his salvation. There is no escape from punishment for those who walk away, and the punishment will be of the greatest severity (cp. 6:4-12; 10:26-31; 12:29; Rom 2:5; 1 Thes 2:16). • Salvation refers to God’s acts on behalf of his people. For example, God saved his people through the exodus from Egypt (Deut 26:5-9). In the NT, salvation primarily refers to Christ’s work of rescuing people from the penalty of sin and giving them new life by his sacrificial death on the cross (5:9-10). This salvation was first announced by the Lord Jesus himself (e.g., Matt 4:17; 9:35; Mark 1:15; Luke 13:1-5). He then delivered (or validated) the message through those who heard him speak (e.g., Mark 6:12; Acts 2:38; 3:19-20).

2:4 God confirmed the message (literally God bore witness): God himself confirmed the validity of the message of Christ and his followers by giving signs and wonders and various miracles and gifts of the Holy Spirit (see Acts 2:22; Rom 15:19; 2 Cor 12:12).

2:5-9 The author of Hebrews uses Ps 8:4-6 to transition from the discussion of Christ’s exalted divinity (1:5-14) to the discussion of his humanity (2:10-18). Ps 8 is often presented with Ps 110:1 (see 1:13) to speak of the submission of created things to Christ (see 1 Cor 15:25-27; Eph 1:20-23). Christ is the consummate human being. In his exaltation, he fulfills what fallen humanity could not: true dominion over the created order.

2:5 it is not angels: Cp. 1:13.

2:6-8 These verses quote Ps 8:4-6 (Greek version). Ps 8 speaks of the position God has given humanity, but the author of Hebrews applies it as a prediction about Christ, who is the fulfillment and representative head of humanity.

2:6 What are mere mortals: These two lines of the psalm proclaim God’s special attention to human beings. • a son of man (or the Son of Man): The phrase son of man speaks of human existence; it parallels mere mortals in the previous line. In the Gospels Jesus referred to himself with this phrase (see “The Son of Man” at Matt 8:18-22, p. 1593).

2:7 them: Literally him. This refers to humanity in general and is applied specifically to Christ (see note on 2:6-8).

• For a little while Christ became a little lower than the angels, like other human beings (see also Phil 2:5-8). As a result of his suffering, he was crowned . . . with glory and honor (see 2:9; Phil 2:9-11). • At the end of this verse some manuscripts add You gave them charge of everything you made.

2:8 You gave them authority over all things (literally You have put all things under his feet): See note on 2:6-8.

• nothing is left out: All things are ultimately subject to Christ and the church, but we have not yet seen the complete expression of this reality—it will be consummated at the end of the age.

2:9 What we do see is Jesus: How can the church persevere when evil and death are still in the world? We look to Jesus both in his human life in a position “a little lower than the angels” and in his exaltation, now “crowned with glory and honor.” His suffering as a human being led to his exaltation (see Phil 2:5-11; cp. Isa 52:13-53:12). See also 12:1-13.

2:10-18 At least four reasons why the Son of God became human are implied in this passage. First, it was only right: It is consistent with what we know of God’s character that he would accomplish salvation in this way (2:10). Second, Jesus had to become human to die (2:14). Third, high priests, as detailed in the OT law, had to come from among God’s people (2:17). Fourth, Jesus became a sympathetic priest, experiencing the suffering and testing we know as humans (2:18).

2:10 children (literally sons): The author plays off his use of the title Son for Jesus throughout the section, here referring to the people of God as sons. The translation children makes it clear that this term refers to all God’s people, male and female. • The term translated leader had a wide range of meanings in the ancient world, including founder, hero, champion, prince, captain, leader, or scout. Jesus is a leader in that he blazed a trail for those who are saved, leading them to glory.

¹¹So now Jesus and the ones he makes holy have the same Father. That is why Jesus is not ashamed to call them his brothers and sisters. ¹²For he said to God,

"I will proclaim your name to my brothers and sisters.
I will praise you among your assembled people."

¹³He also said,

"I will put my trust in him," that is, "I and the children God has given me."

¹⁴Because God's children are human beings—made of flesh and blood—the Son also became flesh and blood. For only as a human being could he die, and only by dying could he break the power of the devil, who had the power of death. ¹⁵Only in this way could he set free all who have lived their lives as slaves to the fear of dying.

¹⁶We also know that the Son did not come to help angels; he came to help the descendants of Abraham. ¹⁷Therefore, it was necessary for him to be made in every respect like us, his brothers and sisters, so that he could be our merciful and faithful High Priest before God. Then he could offer a sacrifice that would take away the sins of the people. ¹⁸Since he himself has gone through suffering and testing, he is able to help us when we are being tested.

3. EXHORTATIONS TO FAITHFULNESS (3:1–4:13)

Jesus Is Greater Than Moses

3 And so, dear brothers and sisters who belong to God and are partners with those called to heaven, think carefully about this Jesus whom we declare to be God's messenger and High Priest. ²For he was faithful to God, who appointed him, just as Moses served faithfully when he was entrusted with God's entire house.

³But Jesus deserves far more glory than Moses, just as a person who builds a house deserves more praise than the house itself. ⁴For every house has a builder, but the one who built everything is God.

⁵Moses was certainly faithful in God's house as a servant. His work was an illustration of the truths God would reveal later. ⁶But Christ, as the Son, is in charge of God's entire house. And we are God's house, if we keep our courage and remain confident in our hope in Christ.

2:11 have the same Father (literally are all out of one): Based on the family terminology in the context, the phrase can be understood as referring to God. However, the author might have been thinking of Abraham as a common ancestor (see 2:16) or of human nature as a common experience (out of one nature). • brothers and sisters Literally brothers; also in 2:12; see note on 3:1.

2:12 This verse quotes Ps 22:22, commenting on the phrase brothers and sisters in 2:11. Psalm 22 contains profound messianic prophecies concerning the sufferings of Christ (Ps 22:1, 7-8, 16-18; see Matt 27:35, 43; John 19:23-24, 31-36). Psalm 22:22 shows the solidarity of the righteous sufferer (Jesus) with the people of God in praising God for his help.

2:13 This verse quotes Isa 8:17-18, which comes from a broader messianic context (cp. Isa 8:14 with Rom 9:33; 1 Pet 2:8). • I will put my trust in him here declares Jesus' trust in the Father. • I and the children God has given me indicates a close relationship between Jesus and the children of God.

2:14-15 The death of the Son of God as a sacrifice for sin served to break the power of the devil: It made the devil's power of death ineffective (1 Cor 15:56). • who had: Or who has. • Philo, a first-century Jewish philosopher, wrote that "nothing is so calculated to enslave the mind as fearing death" (Philo, That Every Good Person Is Free 3.22). Through his sacrificial death, Christ set free those who were slaves to the fear of dying.

2:16 descendants of Abraham: Jesus' sacrifice on the cross was for the heirs of God's promises to Abraham, rather than for the angels.

2:17-18 These verses introduce Jesus' role as our merciful and faithful High Priest, which is fully discussed in the central section of Hebrews (4:14–10:25). • It was necessary for him to share our humanity (see 5:1). • like us, his brothers and sisters: Literally like the brothers; see note on 3:1.

3:1-6 The author compares Jesus to Moses, setting Jesus forward as the supreme example of faithfulness. The great status of Moses, a revered figure in Judaism, is used to show the incomparable greatness of Jesus.

3:1 And so, dear brothers and sisters who belong to God: Literally And so, holy brothers. Speakers and writers of the ancient world often addressed religious gatherings as "brothers," referring to both men and women. • think carefully about this Jesus: Focusing on Jesus is a primary means of persevering in the faith (2:9; 12:1-2). • God's messenger (literally God's apostle): This description might be highlighting the Son's role in bearing a proclamation of God's name and message (2:12; Matt 10:40; Mark 9:37; Luke 10:16).

3:2 Jesus was faithful to God and to the task to which the Father had appointed him (5:7-10; 12:1-3; Phil 2:5-11), just as Moses had been (Num 12:7). Many Jews of the first century regarded Moses as the greatest person in history, of even higher status than the angels. • entire house: Some manuscripts do not include entire.

3:3-6 Jesus deserves far more glory for two reasons. First, a person who builds a house deserves more praise than the house itself. The Messiah is the one who builds God's house (see 2 Sam 7:13). The implication is that Moses is part of the house (i.e., God's people) that God has built. Second, whereas Moses was a servant in God's house, Christ, as the Son, is the heir in charge of God's entire house. Sons have greater status than household servants.

3:6 We are part of Christ's house if we keep our courage. The author could not give unqualified assurance to those who were drifting away from Christ and the church. Those who persevere in the faith have assurance that they are part of God's house (see 3:14; Rom 8:9, 17; 11:22; 2 Cor 13:5; Col 1:22-23). • Some manuscripts add faithful to the end at the end of this verse.

Do Not Be Like the Rebels in the Wilderness

⁷That is why the Holy Spirit says,

"Today when you hear his voice,

⁸ don't harden your hearts
as Israel did when they rebelled, when they tested me in the wilderness.

⁹ There your ancestors tested and tried my patience, even though they saw my miracles for forty years.

¹⁰ So I was angry with them, and I said,
'Their hearts always turn away from me.
They refuse to do what I tell them.'

¹¹ So in my anger I took an oath:
'They will never enter my place of rest.'

¹² Be careful then, dear brothers and sisters.
Make sure that your own hearts are not evil and unbelieving, turning you away from the living God. ¹³ You must ⁸warn each other every day, while it is still "today," so that none of you will be deceived by sin and hardened against God. ¹⁴ For if we are faithful to the end, trusting God just as firmly as when we first believed, we will share in all that belongs to Christ. ¹⁵ Remember what it says:

"Today when you hear his voice,
don't harden your hearts
as Israel did when they rebelled."

¹⁶ And who was it who rebelled against God, even though they heard his voice?
Wasn't it the people Moses led out of Egypt?
¹⁷ And who made God angry for forty years?
Wasn't it the people who sinned, whose corpses lay in the wilderness? ¹⁸ And to whom was God speaking when he took an oath that they would never enter his rest?
Wasn't it the people who disobeyed him?
¹⁹ So we see that because of their unbelief they were not able to enter his rest.

Promised Rest for God's People

4 God's promise of entering his rest still stands, so we ought to tremble with fear that some of you might fail to experience it. ² For this good news—that God has prepared this rest—has been announced to us just as it was to them. But it did them no good because they didn't share the faith of those who listened to God. ³ For only we who believe can enter his rest. As for the others, God said,

*Ps 95:11

3:7-19 This passage presents, "as a warning to us" (1 Cor 10:6), the negative example of those who wandered in the wilderness for forty years and died there. The wilderness wanderings represent disobedience to God and its consequences (see Num 32:7-11; Deut
1:19-35; Ps 106:24-26).

3:7-11 These verses quote Ps 95:7-11.

3:8 Israel . . . rebelled and tested God in places such as Massah and Meribah, where there was a shortage of water (Exod 17:1-7; Num 20:2-13), and especially at Kadesh, where the disobedient Israelites refused to enter the Promised Land (3:10; see Num 14:1-25; Deut
1:19-46; Ps 106).

3:9-10 Despite seeing the miracles God had performed on their behalf, the people of Israel tested God's patience by refusing to trust him in the wilderness (Num 14:11, 22). The essence of their rebellion was that their hearts always turned away from God—they did not desire to obey him. The result was that God was angry with them.

3:11 Rebellion has consequences.

• God's anger is not merely an emotional reaction; it is his just displeasure toward sin (John 3:36; Rom 1:18;
1 Thes 2:16). • God's oath (see 6:13-20; 7:20-22, 28) was that they would never enter Canaan, the place of rest from their wanderings (Deut 1:19-46; 3:20; 12:10; Josh 1:13).

3:12-19 The author of Hebrews discusses the terms heart, day, today, hear, enter, rest, unbelief, and oath, all drawn from Ps 95. Bible teachers of the ancient world would cite and then explain an OT text, often highlighting significant words from the text, just as preachers do today. This form of exposition was called midrash.

3:12 dear brothers and sisters: Literally brothers; see note on 3:1. • hearts . . .
not evil and unbelieving: An evil heart stubbornly sets its will against the Lord due to unbelief, causing a person to turn away from the living God.

3:13 Using the word "today" from Ps
95:7, the author challenges his hearers to warn each other every day against the deceptive and hardening power of sin.

3:14 For if we are faithful: Those who persevere in the faith have assurance that they are indeed part of God's family (see 3:6; Rom 8:9, 17; 11:22; 2 Cor 13:5; Col 1:22-23).

3:15 This verse again quotes Ps 95:7-8, the exhortation from that portion of the psalm. It sums up the author's own exhortation in 3:12-14, focusing on the importance of listening and responding favorably to God's voice.

3:16-19 These verses contain a rapid-fire series of questions and answers, a common rhetorical technique. The three questions follow the progression of ideas found in Ps 95:8-11: The people of Israel rebelled against God,

God was angry, and God took an oath that they would never enter his rest.
The answers are taken from other OT passages that focus on the Israelites' rebellion in the wilderness (Num 14; Deut 9; Ps 106). The author drives home the terrible cost of disobedience to God.

3:19 Unbelief and disobedience are closely associated in Hebrews and in the OT passages being discussed (Num 14:11; Deut 9:23; Ps 78:22, 32). As a consequence of disobedience, they were not able to enter his rest by entering the land of Canaan (Deut 3:20; 12:10; Josh 1:13).

4:1-2 The author transitions to the promise that the faithful will enter God's rest and exhorts his listeners to take this promise seriously. Hearing is not enough: It must be combined with faith.

4:1 To fear God means to experience an appropriate reverence, even awe, for God and his will. It would be the worst of tragedies to fail to experience what God has promised.

4:2 This good news is the message of salvation (2:3-4). • they didn't share the faith of those who listened to God: Some manuscripts read they didn't combine what they heard with faith. In either case, the hearers were deficient in faith, distrusting God's word of promise.

4:3 People who believe the Good News are the true heirs of God's rest, the salvation that God offers through Christ's sacrifice. • God said: The quotation of

"In my anger I took an oath:
"They will never enter my place of rest,"

even though this rest has been ready since he made the world. ⁴We know it is ready because of the place in the Scriptures where it mentions the seventh day: "On the seventh day God rested from all his work." ⁵But in the other passage God said, "They will never enter my place of rest."

⁶So God's rest is there for people to enter, but those who first heard this good news failed to enter because they disobeyed God. ⁷So God set another time for entering his rest, and that time is today. God announced this through David much later in the words already quoted:

"Today when you hear his voice,
don't harden your hearts."

⁸Now if Joshua had succeeded in giving them this rest, God would not have spoken about another day of rest still to come. ⁹So there is a special rest still waiting for the people of God. ¹⁰For all who have entered into God's rest have rested from their labors, just as God did after creating the world. ¹¹So let us do our best to enter that

God's Sabbath Rest (4:1-11)

The concept of God's Sabbath rest, found in 4:1-11, has been a theological puzzle for commentators. The concept has various connotations from the OT, including the Promised Land as a place to rest from slavery and wandering and the Sabbath day as a weekly day of rest. In 3:7-19, the author of Hebrews expounds on Ps 95:7-11, offering the wilderness wanderers as an example of those who failed to enter God's rest because of their disobedience. Yet, what is this "rest" they failed to enter, which still remains for the people of God (4:1-3)? The author of Hebrews clearly had more in mind than the physical land as the place of "special rest" (4:8-9).

The author adds Gen 2:2, another passage that speaks of "God's rest," to the discussion (4:4). God's "special rest" is something that he prepared since the foundation of the world (4:3) and it relates to ceasing from one's own work as God did from his (4:10). Further, the rest can be entered by those who "hear his voice," don't harden their hearts, and believe the Good News (4:1-3, 7). What is this rest that the author has in mind?

In the OT, the Day of Atonement is called a "Sabbath day of complete rest" (Lev 16:29-31). On that day, people ceased completely from their own work. In the new covenant, Jesus as our Great High Priest has offered a once-for-all sacrifice that decisively dealt with sin (5:1-4; 9:7, 11-28). He has provided the final Day of Atonement sacrifice, and he thus offers people a spiritual rest, which they enter by believing this Good News.

God's rest that is available through Jesus has two aspects. First, those who believe in him have ceased from their own works—they no longer work for God's acceptance, but they trust in Christ's finished work (Eph 2:8-9) and enjoy the blessings of peace with God (John 14:27; Acts 10:36; Rom 5:1; 2 Cor 5:19-21). Second, they look forward to an eternal life of rest and enjoyment in God's presence (Isa 26:19; Rev 14:13). Jesus Christ gives complete and perfect rest (Matt 11:28-30).

Ps 95:11 reminds the reader that the unbelieving rebels in the wilderness would never enter God's place of rest (cp. 11:8, 10, 14-16; 12:22-24). • since he made the world: God's rest means much more than physical entry into Canaan (see note on 4:4).

4:4 This verse quotes Gen 2:2 to demonstrate that the promised rest was established when God rested at creation.

4:5 This quotation of Ps 95:11 reiterates the point made in 4:3.

4:6 So God's rest is there: Building on the discussion in 4:3-5, the author is about to argue that the promised rest is still available (4:7-10). But those who wandered in the wilderness, even though they heard the good news that the Promised Land was open to them, failed to enter because they disobeyed God (see Num 14:1-25; Deut 1:19-46; Ps 106).

4:7 So God set another time . . . and that time is today: The logic here is that David wrote Ps 95 much later than the wilderness debacle, so God's rest cannot be limited to that earlier generation. The words already quoted are from Ps 95:7-8; these words encourage us not to harden our hearts when hearing God's voice so that we might enter the rest that the people in the wilderness were denied. This opportunity is available today (see 3:13).

4:8 Joshua is the same name as Jesus (Greek Iēsous, Hebrew Yehoshua). It is normally translated Joshua in the OT and Jesus in the NT (see also note on Exod 17:9). The author is making a wordplay on Jesus' and Joshua's shared name. Joshua did lead God's people into the Promised Land (Josh 3-4), but God had more in mind when he promised his people rest. God's ultimate rest is provided by Jesus (3:13-14; 4:3, 9-11, 14-16).

4:9 a special rest (or a Sabbath rest): Jesus' sacrifice functioned as a Day of Atonement sacrifice (5:1-3; 9:13-22; see Lev 23:26-28, 32). Through Christ's sacrifice, God's promised rest for his people is available.

4:10 have rested from their labors: See Exod 20:8-11. • just as God did: Gen 2:2.

4:11 let us do our best to enter: Failure to respond to the Good News with active obedience to God's voice (4:1-2) rest. But if we disobey God, as the people of Israel did, we will fall.

¹²For the ^hword of God is alive and powerful. It is sharper than the sharpest two-edged sword, cutting between soul and ⁱspirit, between joint and marrow. It exposes our innermost thoughts and desires. ¹³Nothing in all creation is hidden from God. Everything is naked and exposed before his eyes, and he is the one to whom we are accountable.

4. THE SON AND THE SACRIFICIAL SYSTEM (4:14–10:18)

Christ Is Our High Priest (4:14–16)

¹⁴So then, since we have a great ^hHigh Priest who has entered heaven, Jesus the Son of God, let us hold firmly to what we believe. ¹⁵This High Priest of ours understands our weaknesses, for he faced all of the same ^ktestings we do, yet he did not sin. ¹⁶So let us come boldly to the throne of our gracious God. There we will receive his mercy, and we will find grace to help us when we need it most.

Christ Is a Priest in the Line of Melchizedek (5:1–7:28)

The Son Appointed as High Priest

5 Every ^ahigh priest is a man chosen to represent other people in their dealings with God. He presents their gifts to God and offers sacrifices for their sins. ²And he is able to deal gently with ignorant and wayward people because he himself is subject to the same weaknesses. ³That is why he must offer sacrifices for his own sins as well as theirs.

⁴And no one can become a high priest simply because he wants such an honor. He must be called by God for this work, just as Aaron was. ⁵That is why Christ did not honor himself by assuming he could become ^bHigh Priest. No, he was chosen by God, who said to him,

“You are my Son.

Today I have become your Father.”

⁶And in another passage God said to him, will have an outcome analogous to the outcome for the wilderness wanderers: we will fall. • us . . . we . . . we: Obedience is not simply a personal matter; God's people have a communal responsibility for obedience and should support each other in that endeavor (cp. 3:13; 10:25; 12:15).

4:12-13 Echoing the call to hear God's voice (3:7, 15; 4:7; quoted from Ps 95:7), the author gives a beautiful epigram on the power and penetration of God's word. • alive and powerful: God's word is an active, effective force. The word that created and governs the cosmos (1:2-3) can deal powerfully with people. • the sharpest two-edged sword: God's word is able to penetrate the darkest recesses of people's lives, exposing their innermost thoughts and desires (cp. Eph 6:17; Rev 1:16; 2:12, 16; 19:15).

4:13 To be naked and exposed speaks figuratively of being vulnerable, helpless, or unprotected. The guilty are not able to hide from God's penetrating word of judgment (cp. Rev 3:17).

4:14-16 These key verses conclude the exhortation begun at 3:1 and introduce the lengthy treatment of Jesus' role as High Priest (4:14–10:25).

4:14 This verse effectively summarizes the whole message and challenge of Hebrews; the high priesthood of Jesus the Son of God is the basis for endurance in the Christian faith. • a great High Priest: Israel's high priest was the main leader in the worship of God and the primary mediator between God and the people (see Exod 31:10; Lev 4:3; 2 Kgs 12:10; 2 Chr 26:20). • who has entered heaven: The earthly high priests entered God's presence in the Most Holy Place once a year on the Day of Atonement (Lev 16:1-25). By contrast, Jesus, our High Priest, has entered God's presence in heaven, and there he remains (7:26; 9:11-12, 23-26). • let us hold firmly: An enduring commitment to active belief in and allegiance to Jesus (see also Col 2:19; 2 Thes 2:15; Rev 2:13, 25; 3:11).

4:15 Our High Priest understands our weaknesses, our human pull toward sin, because he faced all of the same testings we do. He was tempted with all the essential aspects of sin, such as lust, greed, unforgiveness, and dishonesty. This makes him compassionate as our High Priest (5:2). • yet he did not sin: Jesus is unlike the earthly high priests, who had to make offerings for their own sins before they could make offerings for the people (5:3; 7:26-28; see also 1 Pet 2:22-23).

4:16 The verb translated let us come could be translated to indicate ongoing action: let us continually come. • As our compassionate High Priest, Jesus has opened the way for people to enter God's presence boldly (see 6:19-20; 10:19-23), where we can obtain his mercy and grace to help us when we need it most.

5:1-10 This section addresses the appointment of the Son of God as a superior High Priest. The focal text is Ps 110:4, which reveals God's oath that the Son would be a priest forever in the order of Melchizedek.

5:1 Every high priest: This phrase introduces requirements for high priests in general. • a man: The high priest was one of the people, so Jesus had to become human (see 2:17-18). • A second requirement for high priests was that they would represent other people by offering sacrifices on their behalf (7:25-28). Only the high priest could offer the sacrifice on the Day of Atonement (Exod 29:1-46; Lev 16:1-25).

5:2 A high priest was able to deal gently with those who sin because he himself was subject to the same weaknesses, i.e., he was sinful (5:3; cp. 4:15).

5:3 On the Day of Atonement the high priest was required to offer sacrifices for himself and his household prior to offering sacrifices for the people (Lev 16:11).

5:4 The role of high priest is by God's appointment rather than human enlistment (see Exod 28:1; Lev 8:1-12; Num 16:1-26).

5:5-6 The author brings Ps 2:7 and Ps 110:4 together based on shared language—both passages have God speaking to his Son. The exalted Son, who came to earth as a human (chs 1–2), is the one God has appointed to a unique high priesthood.

5:5 This verse quotes Ps 2:7. • Today I have become your Father: Or Today I reveal you as my Son.

7While Jesus was here on earth, he offered prayers and pleadings, with a loud cry and tears, to the one who could rescue him from death. And God heard his prayers because of his deep reverence for God. 8Even though Jesus was God's Son, he learned obedience from the things he suffered. 9In this way, God qualified him as a perfect High Priest, and he became the source of eternal salvation for all those who obey him. 10And God designated him to be a High Priest in the order of Melchizedek.

A Call to Spiritual Growth

11There is much more we would like to say about this, but it is difficult to explain, especially since you are spiritually dull and don't seem to listen. 12You have been believers

so long now that you ought to be teaching others. Instead, you need someone to teach you again the basic things about God's word. You are like babies who need milk and cannot eat solid food. 13For someone who lives on milk is still an infant and doesn't know how to do what is right. 14Solid food is for those who are mature, who through training have the skill to recognize the difference between right and wrong.

6 So let us stop going over the basic teachings about Christ again and again. Let us go on instead and become mature in our understanding. Surely we don't need to start again with the fundamental importance of repenting from evil deeds and placing our faith in God. 2You don't need

A foundational truth in Hebrews is that God has spoken. In fact, the author of Hebrews, in line with other Jewish preachers of the era, presents the OT as coming from the lips of God, introducing those texts with "God says . . ." or something similar. God may speak a word of promise (6:14) or a word of punishment (3:11; 4:11-12); he may tell us something about himself or his Son (see 1:5-12) or reveal some aspect of his will (see 8:7-13; 10:5-7). God's word created the universe and still governs it (1:3; 11:3; Gen 1:3-28).

In the past, God's word came through angels or prophets, but now it has come preeminently in the person of Jesus, God's Son (1:1-4; 2:3-4; cp. John 1:1-14). The word is to be heard, heeded, obeyed, and believed as a source of hope.

Through his word, God initiates relationship with us and wants us to listen to him and respond in faith (Gen 15:6; John 1:12). His word is authoritative and intentional, and it gives profound hope because God can be trusted to keep his promises (6:13-20).

5:7-10 Jesus' suffering was a foundation for his superior priesthood. The Son's humiliation and suffering preceded his exaltation (2:9; Phil 2:5-11).

5:7 The phrase with a loud cry and tears is probably an allusion to Christ's suffering in the Garden (see Matt 26:36-46; Mark 14:32-42; Luke 22:40-46). God heard his prayers in the sense of affirming his righteousness and suitability for his role as high priest. Jesus' faithful devotion is being presented as an example for the readers (cp. 12:2-3).

5:8 he learned obedience from the things he suffered: Jesus was not disobedient before his suffering, but he walked his path of human experience—all the way to his death on the cross—in complete submission to the Father's will. We are expected to travel the same path (12:1-11).

5:9 God qualified him as a perfect High Priest: As used in Hebrews, perfect means "complete" or "mature" (see 2:10; 5:14; 7:11; 9:9-11). Jesus, through his sufferings, was qualified to be the source of eternal salvation for all those who obey him. • High Priest is not in the Greek text, but it is implied. • As the Son obeyed the Father (5:8), submitting completely to the Father's will, so those who come to him for salvation must obey him.

5:10 a High Priest in the order of Melchizedek: See 7:1-28.

5:11-6:20 After beginning to discuss Jesus' appointment as High Priest (5:1-10), the author confronts his audience with a series of exhortations (5:11-6:20). Such a shift in a sermon or discourse was meant to focus the hearers' attention.

5:11-6:3 This exhortation deals with the recipients' spiritual lethargy.

5:11 spiritually dull: The Greek term means "sluggish, dimwitted, negligent, lazy."

5:12 Their lack of spiritual vitality was especially shocking since they had been believers so long: they ought to have been spiritual leaders who were teaching others from their wealth of knowledge and Christian experience.

• the basic things: The most rudimentary aspects of the Christian faith (see 6:1-3). • about God's word: Or about the oracles of God. • The imagery of milk and solid food (or meat) was used to distinguish basic from advanced education, and immature from mature students.

5:14 Being able to recognize the difference between right and wrong is a defining characteristic of spiritual maturity.

6:1-3 In light of the hearers' immaturity (5:11-14), the author urges them to move beyond basic teachings. The six basic teachings here were all foundational elements of Jewish instruction. The author might be challenging them to move beyond these basic teachings to further understanding about the person of Christ, which he elaborates in 7:1-10:25.

6:1 Let us go on: Or Let us be carried on, suggesting that God initiates growth to maturity (Phil 2:12-13) and that it is an ongoing process. • Repenting and faith are the basic commitments that initiate a person to the new covenant and constitute the basic posture of a Christian's life (see Acts 20:21). • evil deeds: Literally dead works.

⁴For it is impossible to bring back to repentance those who were once enlightened—those who have experienced the good things of heaven and shared in the Holy Spirit, ⁵who have tasted the goodness of the word of God and the power of the age to come—⁶and who then turn away from God. It is impossible to bring such people back to repentance; by rejecting the Son of God, they themselves are nailing him to the cross once again and holding him up to public shame.

⁷When the ground soaks up the falling rain and bears a good crop for the farmer, it has God's ^bblessing. ⁸But if a field bears thorns and thistles, it is useless. The farmer will soon condemn that field and burn it.

⁹Dear friends, even though we are talking this way, we really don't believe it applies to you. We are confident that you are meant for better things, things that come with salvation. ¹⁰For God is not unjust. Maturity (5:11-14)

Heb 6:1-3; 10:14;
12:1-2
1 Cor 2:6; 3:1-3;
14:20
2 Cor 13:9-11
Eph 4:11-16
Col 4:12
1 Pet 2:1-3

The author of Hebrews was concerned with the spiritual immaturity of his audience. He wanted to give them real spiritual meat, but they were acting like spiritual babies who needed basic nourishment rather than deeper teaching (5:13). They had not been listening to the word of God. They had been believers long enough to be teaching others (5:12), but a growing insensitivity had rendered them spiritually dull (5:11; cp. 1 Cor 3:1-3). They lacked maturity to discern the basic difference between right and wrong (5:14).

The author challenged them to move on to maturity so he could present them with deeper truths of the faith (6:1-3). As elsewhere in the NT, maturity in Hebrews has to do with one's ability to discern spiritual truth (1 Cor 2:6). Christians are exhorted to be mature in their thinking (1 Cor 14:20). The body of Christ is growing to maturity through the equipping of believers and by growing in knowledge of the Son of God (Eph 4:11-16). The result is a united community of faith in which love and truth further build up the body of Christ.

Spiritual maturity is not an automatic result of time. It results from focused listening to the word of God and living out that word in fellowship with the community.

6:2 The term baptisms (or washings) is plural, so it must mean more than just Christian baptism. Instruction about various washings was prevalent in first-century Judaism (see Matt 15:2; Mark 7:3). The author might also have in mind the cleansing rituals of the OT (cp. 9:13; 10:22). • The laying on of hands was associated with healing (Mark 5:22-23; Luke 13:13), ritual blessing (Matt 19:13, 15), reception of the Holy Spirit (Acts 8:17; 9:17; 19:6), and acknowledgement of a person's ministry (Acts 6:6; 13:3). • resurrection of the dead: See "The Resurrection of the Dead" at 1 Cor 15:12-58, p. 1951. • eternal judgment: See Rev 20:11-15.

6:3 The author is implicitly exhorting his readers to maturity, not only in their understanding but in everything (cp. 4:11; 5:14; 10:23-39; 12:1-13).

6:4-8 This passage, one of the most difficult in the NT, gives a harsh warning about those who have left the Christian faith. Those who have fallen away from Christ and the church are like those who fell in the wilderness (3:15-19): The lack of faith shown in such apostasy results in devastating judgment (cp. 10:26-31).

6:4 In Greek, the word impossible begins the sentence for emphasis—it absolutely cannot happen (see also 6:18; 10:4; 11:6). • They were once enlightened when they "first learned about Christ" (see 10:32 and note). • The good things of heaven might allude to the manna given from heaven (Exod 16:4, 15; Ps 78:24) as an image of spiritual blessings.

6:5 tasted the goodness of the word of God: These people had heard the word of God preached (2:3-4; 4:1-2) and had seen its effects. • the power of the age to come: They had witnessed signs and wonders when they heard the Good News (2:4; cp. Exod 7:3-4; Deut 7:19; Ps 66:3; 77:15-20; 78:9-16; 1 Cor 10:1-13).

6:6 then turn (or fall) away: The image is reminiscent of the wilderness wanderers who turned away from obeying God and fell in the desert (3:17; 4:11; Num 14:1-4, 29-30). • to bring such people back to repentance: They had repented before, but had no fruit from their repentance (6:7-8). When people turn their back on Christ and his superior sacrifice, it is impossible for them to find any other means of repentance. • Rejecting the Son of God constitutes nailing him to the cross once again. Crucifixion was the ultimate instrument of rejection and humiliation in the Greco-Roman world and brought public shame. Those who turned away from Christ had in effect joined those who stood before the cross shouting insults, insisting that Jesus was not really the Messiah and Son of God but was instead worthy of shame (see Matt 27:39-44).

6:7-8 ground: Good, productive land is an image of blessing, contrasted with the curse of unproductive land that bears thorns and thistles. To burn such a field is an image of judgment (2 Sam 23:4-7; Isa 10:17; 33:12; Ezek 19:12-13; Matt 3:10).

6:9-12 Having confronted his readers with a stern warning (6:4-8), the author now softens that warning by greeting them as dear friends, expressing confidence in them, and giving them further encouragement.

6:9 We are confident: Skilled speakers and writers express confidence in those they address to motivate them (cp. Rom 15:14). • The author is confident that his hearers' lives give evidence of a true relationship with God, including salvation. In the NT, salvation primarily refers to Christ's work on the cross (5:9-10; see also note on 2:3); Hebrews places emphasis on the consummation of salvation at the end of the age (9:28).

by caring for other believers, as you still do. ¹¹Our great desire is that you will keep on loving others as long as life lasts, in order to make certain that what you hope for will come true. ¹²Then you will not become spiritually dull and indifferent. Instead, you will follow the example of those who are going to inherit God's promises because of their faith and endurance.

God's Promises Bring Hope

¹³For example, there was God's promise to Abraham. Since there was no one greater to swear by, God took an oath in his own name, saying:

¹⁴ "I will certainly bless you, and I will multiply your descendants beyond number."

¹⁵Then Abraham waited patiently, and he received what God had promised.

¹⁶Now when people take an oath, they call on someone greater than themselves to hold them to it. And without any question that oath is binding. ¹⁷God also bound himself with an oath, so that those who received the promise could be perfectly sure that he would never change his mind. ¹⁸So God has given both his promise and his oath. These two things are unchangeable because it is impossible for God to lie. Therefore, we who have fled to him for refuge can have great confidence as we hold to the hope that lies before us. ¹⁹This hope is a strong and trustworthy anchor for our souls. It leads us through the curtain into God's inner sanctuary. ²⁰Jesus has already gone in there for us.

Endurance (6:12)

Rom 5:3-4

2 Thes 1:4

1 Pet 2:20

Hebrews was written for people who were experiencing great difficulties because of their Christian commitment, and they needed endurance—the ability to bear up patiently under difficult circumstances. Life is not easy under the best of circumstances, and commitment to Christ in a hostile world brings its own share of suffering.

The recipients of Hebrews were experiencing harassment, loss of property, and imprisonment, all of which they had suffered at some point in the past (10:32-34). Thus they needed to "hold firmly" to what they believed "without wavering" (4:14; 10:23) and to endure while anticipating the fulfillment of God's promises (6:12; 10:36). Like runners in a race, they needed to stay on the path of obedience. Like true children of a loving father, they were to receive the Lord's discipline in order to grow in holiness (12:1-10).

Hebrews joins a chorus of NT voices affirming that endurance in following Jesus is needed for effective ministry (1 Cor 4:12), to face hardship (2 Thes 1:4; 2 Tim 4:5; 1 Pet 2:20), and for growth toward maturity (Rom 5:3-4; Jas 1:2-4). God shows his compassion to those who endure (Jas 5:11).

have worked: In showing that they love God and his people, their works bear witness to their true relationship with God (Rom 2:6-7; 1 Cor 3:13-15; Jas 2:14-20). God remembers (Exod 2:24; 1 Chr 16:15; Ps 106:45) and acknowledges those who are truly his. • for other believers: Literally for God's holy people.

6:11 keep on loving others (literally show the same eager commitment): Love of other believers is a hallmark of genuine Christian faith (Jas 2:15-16; 1 Jn 3:16-20). Through diligence and focused commitment, they can make their hope in Christ absolutely certain. Assurance of salvation comes through perseverance.

6:12 A focused commitment (6:10-11) is the antidote to being spiritually dull (5:11-12). By loving God and others, we follow the example of great people of the faith. The author puts a great deal of emphasis on both faith and endurance as normal requirements for God's people (see 11:4-38).

6:13-20 This passage focuses on the reliability of God's faithfulness to his promises. The theme of God's oath is developed with an illustration (6:13-15), followed by a general principle (6:16), followed by the main point: God has sworn a significant oath (6:17-18), which gives us hope because it shows that Jesus is our permanent High Priest (6:19-20).

6:13-14 Abraham was the premier exemplar of faith: He continued to believe that God would give him a son, then was willing to sacrifice that son in obedience to God (11:17-19; Gen 15:1-5; 22:1-14). In response to Abraham's faith, God took an oath, assuring Abraham that he would bless him and multiply his descendants.

6:14 This verse quotes Gen 22:17.

6:15 what God had promised: Through Isaac, God made Abraham into a great nation (Exod 1:7).

6:16 It is a general principle in human relationships that when people take an oath, the oath is binding. If in human contexts oaths give assurance that something is true, an oath from God ought to inspire much greater confidence (6:17-19). • someone greater than themselves: Cp. 6:13.

6:17-18 God also bound himself with an oath: See 7:20-22. God's oath makes it clear that he would never change his mind . . . because it is impossible for God to lie (see Ps 110:4). • We have fled to him for refuge, like those in the OT era who killed someone accidentally (Num 35:9-34; Deut 4:41-43); Christ is like a city of refuge, where believers escape God's wrath. Christ's followers, therefore, have great confidence.

6:19-20 Christian hope is a strong and trustworthy anchor for our souls. In the first century, an anchor was an image of stability and safety. • through the curtain: A curtain separated the outer room of the sanctuary, into which only priests could go, from the inner room, the Most Holy Place (Exod 25:10-40). Only the high priest could go into the Most Holy Place,

He has become our eternal High Priest in the order of Melchizedek.

Melchizedek Is Greater Than Abraham and the Levites

7This Melchizedek was king of the city of Salem and also a priest of God Most High. When Abraham was returning home after winning a great battle against the kings, Melchizedek met him and blessed him. ²Then Abraham took a tenth of all he had captured in battle and gave it to Melchizedek. The name Melchizedek means “king of justice,” and king of Salem means “king of peace.” ³There is no record of his father or mother or any of his ancestors—no beginning or end to his life. He remains a priest forever, resembling the Son of God.

⁴Consider then how great this Melchizedek was. Even Abraham, the great patriarch of Israel, recognized this by giving him a tenth of what he had taken in battle. ⁵Now the law of Moses required that the priests, who are descendants of Levi, must collect a tithe from the rest of the people of Israel, who are also descendants of Abraham. ⁶But Melchizedek, who was not a descendant of Levi, collected a tenth from Abraham. And Melchizedek placed a blessing upon Abraham, the one who had already received the promises of God. ⁷And without question, the person who has the power to give a blessing is greater than the one who is blessed.

⁸The priests who collect tithes are men who die, so Melchizedek is greater than they are, because we are told that he lives on. ⁹In addition, we might even say that these Levites—the ones who collect the tithe—paid a tithe to Melchizedek when their ancestor Abraham paid a tithe to him. ¹⁰For although Levi wasn’t born yet, the seed from which he came was in Abraham’s body when Melchizedek collected the tithe from him.

Jesus, a Priest in the Line of Melchizedek and only once per year on the Day of Atonement (Exod 29:1-46; Lev 16:1-25). Because of Jesus’ extraordinary high priesthood, he has already gone in there for us into the presence of God as our eternal High Priest, and he leads us in with him (10:19-23). • the order of Melchizedek: This phrase introduces the discussion in 7:1-28.

7:1-28 Chapter 7 develops the main topic introduced in 5:1-10: Jesus’ appointment as a high priest in the order of Melchizedek.

7:1-10 This section proclaims the superiority of Melchizedek’s priesthood over that of the Levites, based primarily on Gen 14:17-20.

7:1 king of . . . Salem: See Gen 14:18 and note. • also a priest of God Most High: Unlike the Hebrew kings, Melchizedek combined the offices of king and priest, thus foreshadowing the Messiah. • winning a great battle against the kings: See Gen 14:1-17.

7:2 Abraham was giving a tenth to the Lord by giving it to Melchizedek, his priest. This act anticipates the giving of tithes under the law (Lev 27:30, 32) and becomes a key point in the author’s argument (7:4). • Melchi- (Hebrew melek) means king. • -zedek (Hebrew tsedeq) means justice or righteousness. • Salem (Hebrew shalom) means peace. It was common for rabbis to bring out the theological significance of a biblical figure’s name by making associations between the name and other Hebrew terms.

7:3 That we have no record of Melchizedek’s father or mother or any of his ancestors is significant in light of the ancestral requirement upon which the Levite priesthood was based. He appears from nowhere—it is as though there is no beginning or end to his life. The author is interpreting Gen 14:17-20 in light of Ps 110:4, which also understands Melchizedek as representing an eternal priesthood. • He remains a priest forever: This contrasts with a Levite, whose priesthood ended when he died (7:8, 23). • resembling the Son of God: Melchizedek was not an OT appearance of Jesus. Rather, his priesthood and that of Jesus had characteristics in common, in light of Ps 110:4.

7:4 The point of this section (7:1-10) is to have the readers consider . . . how great this Melchizedek was by comparing him to the descendants of Levi. Melchizedek was so great that Abraham gave him a tenth of the spoils of battle (Gen 14:20).

7:5-6a Collecting the tithe was a requirement and an honor for the priests under the law of Moses (Num 18:21-32). • from the rest of the people of Israel (literally from their brothers): The reference is to the people of Israel as a whole. • Although Melchizedek was not a descendant of Levi, he collected a tenth from Abraham, the ancestor of the Levites. This demonstrates Melchizedek’s eminence over both Abraham and his descendants, including the priests (7:8-10).

7:6b-7 Melchizedek placed a blessing upon Abraham: Gen 14:19-20; this is an example of the kind of blessing that a superior would give a subordinate—e.g., a father would bless his son, and a priest would bless his people (Num 6:22-27; see “Blessing” at Gen 48:8-20, p. 113). The power to give a blessing demonstrates that Melchizedek is greater than Abraham.

7:8 Melchizedek’s “immortality” (7:3) is one aspect of his superiority to the Levites: The Levites are men who die, but Melchizedek lives on.

7:9-10 we might even say: The author recognizes that what he is about to say, that the Levites . . . paid a tithe to Melchizedek, is not literally true, since Levi wasn’t born yet. Rather, Abraham represented all his descendants in paying his tithe to Melchizedek. Levi was united with Abraham because the seed from which he came was in Abraham’s body. All the people issuing from Abraham were one with him. Thus, his act could be considered their act.

7:11-28 Having argued for Melchizedek’s superiority to the Levites (7:1-10), the author now argues that Jesus, our high priest like Melchizedek, is also superior to the Levitical priests of the old covenant.

7:11 Perfection in Hebrews does not mean flawless, but reaching a desired goal (see note on 5:9). The priesthood under the old covenant could not achieve all that God intended for a covenant relationship with his people. That is why God needed to establish a different priesthood. • the order of Levi and Aaron: Literally the order of Aaron.

to establish a different priesthood, with a priest in the order of Melchizedek instead of the order of Levi and Aaron?

¹²And if the priesthood is changed, the law must also be changed to permit it. ¹³For the priest we are talking about belongs to a different tribe, whose members have never served at the altar as priests. ¹⁴What I mean is, our Lord came from the tribe of Judah, and Moses never mentioned priests coming from that tribe.

¹⁵This change has been made very clear since a different priest, who is like Melchizedek, has appeared. ¹⁶Jesus became a priest, not by meeting the physical requirement of belonging to the tribe of Levi, but by the power of a life that cannot be destroyed. ¹⁷And the psalmist pointed this out when he prophesied,

"You are a priest forever in the order of Melchizedek."

¹⁸Yes, the old requirement about the priesthood was set aside because it was weak and useless. ¹⁹For the law never made anything perfect. But now we have confidence in a better ¹hope, through which we draw near to God.

²⁰This new system was established with a solemn oath. Aaron's descendants became priests without such an oath, ²¹but there was an oath regarding Jesus. For God said to him, "The LORD has taken an oath and will not break his vow:

'You are a priest forever.' "

²²Because of this oath, Jesus is the one who guarantees this better ⁴covenant with God.

²³There were many priests under the old system, for death prevented them from remaining in office. ²⁴But because Jesus lives forever, his priesthood lasts forever. ²⁵Therefore he is able, once and forever, to save those who come to God through him. He lives forever to intercede with God on their behalf.

²⁶He is the kind of ⁴high priest we need because he is holy and blameless, unstained by sin. He has been set apart from sinners and has been given the highest place of honor in heaven. ²⁷Unlike those other high priests, he does not need to offer sacrifices every day. They did this for their own sins first and then for the sins of the people. But Jesus did this once for all when he offered himself as the sacrifice for the people's sins.

²⁸The law appointed high priests who were limited by human weakness. But after the law was given, God appointed his Son with 7:12 According to the law given to Moses, the appointed priests were descendants of Aaron (Exod 28:41-43; 29:9). The priesthood is changed because Jesus is now the High Priest. Thus, God himself had changed the law concerning priests.

7:13-14 Jesus belongs to a different tribe: Under the old covenant, priests came from the tribe of Levi, whereas Jesus was from the tribe of Judah.

7:15-17 This change of how God appoints priests (7:11-14) has been made very clear by the appointment of Jesus as a different priest. He, like Melchizedek, is a priest forever: Jesus' resurrection from the dead shows that he has the power of a life that cannot be destroyed. Because his priesthood in the order of Melchizedek is superior to that of the Levites (7:1-10), he supersedes them as priest.

7:17 This verse quotes Ps 110:4.

7:18 The old requirement about the priesthood was membership in the family of Aaron (see Exod 28:41-43). * set aside: See 7:15-17. * because it was weak and useless: As explained in the verses that follow (7:19-28).

7:19-28 The weakness of the priesthood under the old covenant is highlighted in that those priests died (thus discontinuing their office) and were themselves sinful. In contrast, Jesus, the new High Priest, never sinned and will never die, making him a more effective and permanent High Priest.

7:19 the law never made anything perfect: The law never accomplished what God planned to accomplish through the superior high priesthood of Jesus—namely, completely removing sin and guaranteeing eternal salvation. This gives believers confidence in a better hope in relationship with God. We can draw near to God without fearing condemnation.

7:20-21 This new system refers to God's way of appointing a priest. * God's solemn oath is expressed in the quote from Ps 110:4.

7:22 Legally, the one who guarantees (literally the guarantee or the guarantor) refers to the person who bears the risk of another person's investment or debt. Because of God's oath, Jesus' priesthood is unassailable, so our covenant relationship with God is secure. Having Jesus as the guarantor makes the new covenant better.

7:23-24 Of necessity, the old covenant had a succession of many priests because each of them died. In contrast, Jesus' priesthood lasts forever (literally is permanent): This term refers to something that cannot be changed, such as the sun's daily trek through the sky or the constant turning of the seasons.

7:25 able, once and forever, to save (or able to save completely): Since Jesus lives forever, the salvation he brings also lasts forever. To draw near to an eternal God, we need an eternal priest. * Jesus will intercede or appeal to God for us as our High Priest of the new covenant, and his intercession is never-ending (see 9:11-28; 10:21-22; Rom 8:31-34).

7:26-27 Jesus is unstained by sin and set apart from sinners (cp. 4:15), which makes him superior to the priests of the old covenant, who had to deal with their own sins as well as those of the people (see also 5:1-3). * has been given the highest place of honor in heaven (or has been exalted higher than the heavens): This is an affirmation of his uniqueness as High Priest (cp. 2:9; 5:9; Phil 2:5-11). * once for all: This does not mean once for all people but rather once, never to be repeated.

7:28 This verse echoes 5:1-3 and sums up the entire discussion of Christ's appointment as High Priest (5:1-10; 7:1-28). * Limited by human weakness refers primarily to human sinfulness and mortality (5:2-3; 7:18, 23-27). * God appointed his Son with an oath: See an oath, and his Son has been made the perfect High Priest forever.

Christ's New Covenant Offering (8:1–10:18)
The Superior Ministry of Our High Priest

8 Here is the main point: We have a ^bHigh Priest who sat down in the place of honor beside the throne of the majestic God in heaven. ²There he ^cministers in the heavenly Tabernacle, the true place of worship that was built by the Lord and not by human hands.

³And since every high priest is required to offer gifts and sacrifices, our High Priest must make an offering, too. ⁴If he were here on earth, he would not even be a priest, since there already are priests who offer the gifts required by the law. ⁵They serve in a system of worship that is only a copy, a shadow of the real one in heaven. For when Moses was getting ready to build the Tabernacle, God gave him this warning: "Be sure that you make everything according to the ^dpattern I have shown you here on the mountain."

⁶But now Jesus, our High Priest, has been given a ^eministry that is far superior to the old priesthood, for he is the one who mediates for us a far better ^fcovenant with God, based on better promises.

⁷If the first covenant had been faultless, there would have been no need for a second covenant to replace it. ⁸But when God found fault with the people, he said:

"The day is coming, says the LORD, when I will make a new covenant with the people of Israel and Judah.

⁹ This covenant will not be like the one I made with their ancestors when I took them by the hand and led them out of the land of Egypt. They did not remain faithful to my covenant, so I turned my back on them, says the LORD.

¹⁰ But this is the new covenant I will make with the people of Israel on that day, says the LORD:

I will put my laws in their minds, and I will write them on their hearts. I will be their God, and they will be my people.

Ps 110:4, the key OT passage behind 7:11-28. • perfect . . . forever: The words High Priest are not in the Greek text but are implied in the context. • In Hebrews, the term perfect means complete or mature (see 2:10; 5:9; 7:11; 9:9-11); the Son, through his sacrificial death and resurrection, has become completely qualified to serve as our eternal High Priest, and his priesthood lasts forever.

8:1–10:18 This passage on Jesus' superior offering argues that his ministry as the heavenly High Priest is superior to that of earthly priests.

8:1-2 The first two verses of ch 8 transition from the discussion just completed and anticipate the discussion to come. • Here is the main point: The author is referring back to the appointment of Jesus as a superior High Priest (5:1-10; 7:1-28). • he ministers in the heavenly Tabernacle (or tent; also in 8:5): This anticipates the theme of Jesus' superior offering that is covered in the rest of this section (8:3–10:18). Unlike the Levitical priests who served in an earthly tent or building, Jesus' sacrifice is superior because he serves in the true place of worship, the very presence of God in heaven (8:5; 9:11, 24; 10:12).

8:3 every high priest is required to offer gifts and sacrifices: Making offerings is a general requirement of priests, so Jesus also had to offer a sacrifice. • This verse reiterates what is stated in the first verse of the previous discussion (5:1), indicating another major movement in the book.

8:4 If he were here on earth: Under the old order Jesus would not even be a priest, as previously discussed (see 7:13-14). But Jesus is in heaven, which makes his priestly service distinct from and superior to that of the priests of the old covenant (8:5; 9:11, 24; 10:12).

8:5 a copy, a shadow: The earthly place of worship was an imitation that pointed to the real one in heaven. That is why God warned Moses to make it according to the pattern (see Exod 25:40; 26:30; cp. Acts 7:44). Judaism and early Christianity both spoke of a heavenly Temple within a heavenly Jerusalem, which would come down to earth at the end of the age (see Rev 21:2). Hebrews suggests that this heavenly place of worship was shown to Moses so he would know how to build the earthly Tabernacle. It is the heavenly Temple, however, in which Jesus ministers as High Priest.

8:6 the one who mediates: A mediator works with two parties to bring them to agreement. Christ's work of sacrifice established the covenant relationship between people and God. • a far better covenant with God: See "The New Covenant," facing page. This covenant is better because it is based on better promises (see 8:7-13).

8:7-13 The author quotes Jer 31:31-34, an OT prophecy concerning the new covenant that includes a number of striking promises. Establishing the superiority of the new covenant lays a foundation for the argument in 9:1–10:18 that the Son's offering under the new covenant was superior to the offerings of the old covenant.

8:7 The first covenant, made at Sinai, was not faultless. It was not the end of God's plan, because it didn't solve human weaknesses (see 7:11-28; 8:9).

8:8 found fault with the people: Because the people were unable to keep the terms of the old covenant (see note on 8:7), God made a new covenant.

8:9 God made a covenant with their ancestors at Sinai (Exod 19:1-8; 24:7-8; 34:27-28; Deut 4:13). • I took them by the hand: In rescuing his people from the land of Egypt, God led them as a parent might lead a child that could not fend for itself (see Exod 12–14). • They did not remain faithful: See 3:7-19; Num 14:1-38; Deut 9; Ps 106. • so I turned my back on them: The covenant warned that if the people turned away, God would turn away from them (see Deut 28:15-68; 30:11-20; 1 Kgs 8:22-53; 2 Chr 6:12-42).

8:10 Under the old covenant, the people were commanded to take the words of the law to heart (Deut 32:46), and the kings of Israel and Judah were judged on whether or not they followed the law of God wholeheartedly (2 Kgs 10:31; 2 Chr 31:21). A difference in the new covenant is that God's laws would be in people's minds and on their hearts. People would have renewed hearts and minds, with God's law as an intrinsic, internal motivation. • on that day: Literally after those days.

¹³ When God speaks of a "new" covenant, it means he has made the first one obsolete. It is now out of date and will soon disappear.

Old Covenant Worship

9 That first covenant between God and Israel had regulations for worship and a place of worship here on earth. ²There were two rooms in that Tabernacle. In the first room were a lampstand, a table, and sacred loaves of bread on the table. This room was called the Holy Place. ³Then there was a curtain, and behind the curtain was the second room called the Most Holy Place. ⁴In that room were a gold incense altar and a wooden chest called the Ark of the Covenant, which was covered with gold on all sides. Inside the Ark were a gold jar containing manna, Aaron's staff that sprouted leaves, and the

Matt 5:17-20;
2 Cor 3:1-18

A covenant is a binding agreement and relationship between two parties. God is a covenant-making God; he forms agreements and relationships with people. God made a covenant with Noah and his family (Gen 6:18; 9:9), and later with all the creatures of the earth (Gen 9:11-17). God covenanted with Abraham to give him and his descendants the land of Canaan and to multiply those descendants greatly (Gen 15:18; 17:2-21). God reiterated and expanded this covenant at Mount Sinai with the whole nation of Israel (Exod 19-20), promising to be their God and challenging them to be obedient to him. This covenant was often broken, with the people failing to live up to their obligations (see Exod 32; Jer 11:10; 34:18; Mal 2:8). God also made a covenant with David that his descendants would be established forever as kings (2 Sam 7:9-16).

The OT also speaks of a new covenant to be established with God's people (Jer 31:31-34), a covenant in which the people would all know God, would have the law of God internalized by receiving God's Spirit (Ezek 37:1-14; 2 Cor 3:1-18), and would be decisively forgiven for their sins (8:7-12). With his sacrificial death, Jesus established this new covenant between God and those who respond in faith. He is the guarantor and mediator of this covenant, established by indisputable promises of God (7:22; 8:6; 12:24). God has called us to a covenant relationship with himself, a meaningful agreement in which we know God, have his laws written on our hearts, and have our sins decisively forgiven by the sacrifice of Christ.

8:11 their relatives: Literally their brother. • All those in the new covenant know the Lord; intimate personal relationship with the Lord is in the very nature of the new covenant.

8:12 A final characteristic of the new covenant is that God would forgive their wickedness and never again remember their sins. The blood of Jesus cleanses his people completely from sin (9:13-15; 10:14-18, 22; 1 Jn 1:7).

8:13 The word new in "new" covenant emphasizes that, once God had enacted this covenant, the Sinai covenant was considered old or obsolete, and was thus out of date. Its time of usefulness was over and its termination was imminent.

9:1-10:18 This section argues that Christ's death, the sacrifice in the new covenant, is superior to the sacrifices in the old covenant. In 9:1-10, the author describes aspects of worship under the regulations of the old covenant (see Exod 28-29; Lev 1-10; 16-17). In 9:11-10:18, these regulations are contrasted with Christ's superior offering.

9:1-5 These verses describe the Tabernacle, Israel's place of worship before the Temple was constructed.

9:2 Israel's Tabernacle (or tent; also in 9:11, 21) was a tent with two rooms (see Exod 25-31, 35-40). • a lampstand: Exod 25:31-40; 26:35. • a table: Exod 25:23-30. • The priests went into the Holy Place daily in their ritual duties (9:6; see Exod 28:43; Num 28:3-8).

9:3 At the back of the first room of the Tabernacle was a curtain that separated the first room from the second room (literally second tent) called the Most Holy Place (Exod 26:31-33). This curtain was a sacred barrier: Only the high priest could go behind it into the Most Holy Place, and only once a year on the Day of Atonement (9:7; see Exod 30:6, 10; Lev 16:2-34; 23:27-32).

9:4 The gold incense altar probably stood just outside the inner curtain (Exod 30:1-10); its location is ambiguous at points in the OT, but it was closely associated with the Most Holy Place (Exod 30:6; Lev 16:13; 1 Kgs 6:22). • Since it represented the presence of God, the Ark of the Covenant was the most important item in the Tabernacle (see Exod 25:10-22). • The gold jar containing manna was a reminder of God's provision in the wilderness (Exod 16:32-34). • Aaron's staff that sprouted leaves (see Num 17:1-11) was a reminder not to rebel against God's chosen leaders (Num 17:10; cp. Heb 13:17). • The stone tablets of the covenant held the Ten Commandments and were to remind the people of the terms by which they were to live out the covenant (Exod 25:16; 31:18; Deut 9:9-10:5).

stone tablets of the covenant. ⁵Above the Ark were the cherubim of divine glory, whose wings stretched out over the Ark's ⁶cover, the place of atonement. But we cannot explain these things in detail now.

⁶When these things were all in place, the priests regularly entered the first room as they performed their religious duties. ⁷But only the high priest ever entered the Most Holy Place, and only once a year. And he always offered blood for his own sins and for the sins the people had committed in ignorance. ⁸By these regulations the Holy Spirit revealed that the entrance to the Most Holy Place was not freely open as long as the Tabernacle and the system it represented were still in use.

⁹This is an ¹⁰illustration pointing to the present time. For the gifts and sacrifices that the priests offer are not able to cleanse the consciences of the people who bring them. ¹⁰For that old system deals only with food and drink and various cleansing ceremonies—physical regulations that were in effect only until a better system could be established.

Christ Is the Perfect Sacrifice

¹¹So Christ has now become the ¹²High Priest over all the good things that have come. He has entered that greater, more perfect Tabernacle in heaven, which was not made by human hands and is not part of this created world. ¹²With his own blood—not the blood of goats and calves—he entered the Most Holy Place once for all time and secured our redemption forever.

¹³Under the old system, the blood of goats and bulls and the ashes of a heifer could cleanse people's bodies from ceremonial impurity. ¹⁴Just think how much more the blood of Christ will purify our consciences from sinful deeds so that we can worship the living God. For by the power of the eternal Spirit, Christ offered himself to God as a perfect sacrifice for our sins. ¹⁵That is why he is the one who mediates a new ¹⁶covenant between God and people, so that all who are called can receive the eternal inheritance God has promised them. For Christ died to ¹⁷set them free from the penalty of the sins they had committed under that first ¹⁸covenant.

9:5 The cherubim of divine glory were statues of angels formed into the Ark's cover. This category of angels is especially associated with God's glorious presence (Gen 3:24; Ps 80:1; 99:1; Isa 37:16). The Ark's cover itself was the place of atonement, on which the blood from the Day of Atonement sacrifice was to be sprinkled (Lev 16:14-16). • But we cannot explain these things in detail now: The main focus of the discussion is the offering of sacrifices under the old covenant (9:6-10).

9:6-8 The worship practices in the Holy Place, the first room (literally first tent) of the Tabernacle (9:2), were the duty of the priests, who kept the lamps lit and the sacred loaves of bread replenished (Exod 27:20-21; Lev 24:8).

9:7 The yearly duty was carried out on the Day of Atonement, when the high priest offered sacrifices for the sins not covered by other sacrifices during the previous year (Lev 16:1-25).

9:8 was not freely open: Free entrance into the presence of God was not available to all of the people under the old covenant system. • The outer room of the Tabernacle (or the first room; literally the first tent; see 9:2), which served as a sacred barrier keeping the people from the presence of God in the Most Holy Place, was symbolic of the whole system. Under that system, people were kept out of God's presence rather than led into it.

9:9 This is an illustration: The problem with the gifts and sacrifices of the old covenant is that they were not able to cleanse the consciences of the people—they could not remove people's guilt before a holy God (cp. 9:14; 10:2, 22; 13:18).

9:10 The old system dealt only with physical regulations, but it could not deal with the condition of the heart (8:10; 10:21-24). Consequently, it was provisional, only intended to last until Christ could come and establish a better system (9:11–10:18).

9:11–10:18 The author now contrasts the old system (9:1-10) with the superior sacrifice made by Christ as High Priest: The blood of Christ's offering was his own blood, not the blood of animals (9:13-22; cp. 9:7); Christ's offering was made in the heavenly Tabernacle, not the earthly one (9:23-24; cp. 9:1-5); and Christ's offering, rather than being made continually, was made just one time (9:25–10:18; cp. 7:27; 9:6-7).

9:11 Christ has now become the High Priest over all the good things of the new covenant. He was appointed by God in accord with Ps 110:4 (5:1-10; 7:1-28) and offered a superior offering. • that have come: Some manuscripts read that are about to come, either from the perspective of the old covenant era or looking forward to the culmination of God's plan in the future. • Christ's sacrifice is superior because of where it was made: in that greater, more perfect Tabernacle in heaven rather than the earthly Tabernacle (see 8:5 and note).

9:12 Christ's offering is superior because it was made with his own blood rather than the blood of goats and calves (e.g., cp. Lev 16:3-5). • Christ's offering is superior because he entered the Most Holy Place once for all time. Unlike the sacrifices in the old covenant, which had to be made year after year (10:1), Jesus' sacrificial death only had to be made once and was decisive in securing our redemption forever.

9:13 The ashes of a heifer were used with water to cleanse people's bodies from ceremonial impurity (see Num 19:1-22).

9:14 how much more: This is an argument from lesser to greater; the logic is that if something is true in a lesser situation, it will be even more true in a greater situation (see also 2:1-4; 12:25-29). If the blood of animals had some effect in cleansing, the blood of Christ will be much more effective. • will purify our consciences: Christ's sacrifice, unlike the sacrifices of the old covenant, removes the paralyzing guilt that keeps us from God by decisively cleansing us from sinful deeds (literally from dead works).

9:15 the one who mediates: This term refers to an arbiter in a difficult legal dispute or political disagreement. In the old covenant, Moses and the angels were understood as mediators between God and the people (Gal 3:19-20). In the new covenant, Christ mediates the relationship between God and people by his sacrificial death (8:6; 12:24; Rom 6:23; 1 Tim 2:5; 1 Pet 3:18) and ongoing intercession (7:25).

¹⁶Now when someone leaves a will, it is necessary to prove that the person who made it is dead. ¹⁷The will goes into effect only after the person's death. While the person who made it is still alive, the will cannot be put into effect.

¹⁸That is why even the first covenant was put into effect with the blood of an animal. ¹⁹For after Moses had read each of God's commandments to all the people, he took the blood of calves and goats, along with water, and sprinkled both the book of God's law and all the people, using hyssop branches and scarlet wool. ²⁰Then he said, "This blood confirms the covenant God has made with you." ²¹And in the same way, he sprinkled blood on the Tabernacle and on everything used for worship. ²²In fact, according to the law of Moses, nearly everything was purified with blood. For without the shedding of blood, there is no forgiveness.

²³That is why the Tabernacle and everything in it, which were copies of things in heaven, had to be purified by the blood of animals. But the real things in heaven had to be purified with far better sacrifices than the blood of animals.

²⁴For Christ did not enter into a holy place made with human hands, which was only a copy of the true one in heaven. He entered into heaven itself to appear now before God on our behalf. ²⁵And he did not enter heaven to offer himself again and again, like the high priest here on earth who enters the Most Holy Place year after year with the blood of an animal. ²⁶If that had been necessary, Christ would have had to die again and again, ever since the world began. But now, once for all time, he has appeared at the end of the age to remove sin by his own death as a sacrifice.

²⁷And just as each person is destined to die once and after that comes judgment, ²⁸so also Christ was offered once for all time as a sacrifice to take away the sins of many people. He will come again, not to deal with our sins, but to bring salvation to all who are eagerly waiting for him.

Christ's Sacrifice Once for All

10 The old system under the law of Moses was only a shadow, a dim preview of the good things to come, not the good things themselves. The sacrifices under that system were repeated again and 9:16-22 The author gives a general principle about the nature of wills or covenants (9:16-17), which he then expounds in light of the inauguration of the first covenant (9:18-22).

9:16 a will: Or a covenant; also in 9:17; see also 8:6, 8, 9, 10; 9:4, 15, 20; 10:16. • This verse could also be translated Now when someone makes a covenant, it is necessary to ratify it with the death of a sacrifice.

9:18-19 was put into effect: Exodus 24:3-8 records Moses' inauguration of the old covenant with the blood of the sacrifice. • Some manuscripts do not include and goats. • Hebrews alone among ancient sources states that Moses sprinkled the book of God's law (cp. Exod 24:6-8). • Hyssop branches have blue flowers and strongly aromatic leaves; they were used with sacrifices for cleansing (Exod 12:22; Lev 14:4; Num 19:6, 18).

9:20 "This blood confirms the covenant God has made with you" (Exod 24:8): Jesus used similar language at the Lord's Supper, referring to his own death (Matt 26:28; Mark 14:24; 1 Cor 11:25).

9:21 he sprinkled blood: See Exod 24:3-8; Lev 16:14-19.

9:22 Many of the rituals of cleansing in the law of Moses involved the death of a sacrificial animal; blood was involved both in the rites of cleansing (see Exod 29:12; 30:10; Lev 4:6, 17; 16:14-19; Num 19:4) and in making atonement (see "Atonement" at Lev 16:1-34, p. 223). The shedding of Christ's blood established the new covenant, providing permanent purification and complete forgiveness of sins (8:12; 10:15-18; Matt 26:28; Eph 1:7).

9:23 This verse argues from lesser to greater (see note on 9:14). Just as heaven is greater than the earthly Tabernacle, so Christ's sacrifice had to be . . . far better than the earthly sacrifices. • That is why: See 9:16-22; Lev 16:14-19. • copies of things in heaven: See note on 8:5. • in heaven, had to be purified: Just as the Tabernacle had to be cleansed because of the sin of the Israelites (Lev 16:16-19), the heavenly Tabernacle required that the uncleanness be removed from those who would enter heaven under the new covenant.

9:24 Under the new covenant, Christ did not offer his sacrifice in the earthly Tabernacle. Rather, he entered into the very presence of God in heaven to act on our behalf. His sacrifice makes him a much better mediator to bring us into a right relationship with God (2 Cor 5:19-21).

9:25-26 Under the old covenant, the sacrifice on the Day of Atonement had to be made again and again (Lev 16:29-34). Christ's superior sacrifice was made once for all time.

9:26 If that had been necessary: The author makes an argument using reductio ad absurdum (reduction to absurdity), logically showing that Christ's one-time sacrifice must be permanently effective. Since Christ himself is the sacrifice as well as the high priest, if his offering were made every year as with the earthly high priests, he would have to die again and again. But of course this is absurd; so, clearly, Christ died once for all time . . . to remove sin. • the age: Literally the ages. . .

9:27-28 each person is destined to die once: It is a necessary consequence of Christ's humanity that he died once. • Christ's first coming was to take away the sins of many people. When he will come again, it will not be to deal with sins, since that has already been accomplished. Instead, he will bring salvation to all who are eagerly waiting for him (see note on Gal 5:5).

10:1 The old system under the law of Moses (literally The law), like the Tabernacle itself (8:5), was only a shadow, a dim preview of a greater reality—namely, the good things that Christ inaugurated in the new covenant. Under the old covenant, sacrifices had to be repeated again and again because they were not able to cleanse worshippers permanently or in such a way that they could come into the presence of God perpetually.

again, year after year, but they were never able to provide perfect cleansing for those who came to worship. ²If they could have provided perfect cleansing, the sacrifices would have stopped, for the worshipers would have been purified once for all time, and their feelings of guilt would have disappeared.

³But instead, those sacrifices actually reminded them of their sins year after year. ⁴For it is not possible for the blood of bulls and goats to take away sins. ⁵That is why, when Christ came into the world, he said to God,

“You did not want animal sacrifices or sin offerings.

But you have given me a body to offer.

⁶ You were not pleased with burnt offerings or other offerings for sin.

⁷ Then I said, ‘Look, I have come to do your will, O God—as is written about me in the Scriptures.’”

⁸First, Christ said, “You did not want animal sacrifices or sin offerings or burnt offerings or other offerings for sin, nor were you pleased with them” (though they are required by the law of Moses). ⁹Then he said, “Look, I have come to do your will.” He cancels the first covenant in order to put the second into effect. ¹⁰For God’s will was for us to be made holy by the sacrifice of the body of Jesus Christ, once for all time.

¹¹Under the old covenant, the priest stands and ministers before the altar day after day, offering the same sacrifices again and again, which can never take away sins. ¹²But our High Priest offered himself to God as a single sacrifice for sins, good for all time. Then he sat down in the place of honor at God’s right hand. ¹³There he waits until his enemies are humbled and made a footstool under his feet. ¹⁴For by that one offering he forever made perfect those who are being made holy.

¹⁵And the Holy Spirit also testifies that this is so. For he says, ¹⁶ “This is the new covenant I will make with my people on that day, says the LORD:

I will put my laws in their hearts, and I will write them on their minds.”

¹⁷Then he says,

“I will never again remember their sins and lawless deeds.”

¹⁸And when sins have been forgiven, there is no need to offer any more sacrifices.

10:2 The perpetual nature of the sacrifices demonstrates their inadequacy. If the sacrifices of the old covenant had offered true, lasting purity, they would have stopped. • their feelings of guilt would have disappeared: Cp. 9:9, 14; 10:22; 13:18.

10:3 Instead of removing guilt, the ongoing sacrifices actually reminded those who wished to come near to God, year after year, that they were guilty before God.

10:4 The blood of bulls and goats in the sacrifices of the old covenant offered a degree of cleansing (9:13, 23), but that cleansing was limited in that it could not take away sins. It could not eradicate sin in a way that would offer permanent cleansing and peace with God (see Acts 10:36; Rom 5:1; 11:26-27).

10:5-7 These verses quote Ps 40:6-8 (Greek version). Psalm 40:1-11 is a hymn of praise to God in which the psalmist confesses his desire to do God’s will. The author of Hebrews understands Christ (literally he; also in 10:8) to be the speaker.

10:5 But you have given me a body to offer: God had prepared the psalmist to be obedient, ready to do God’s will; Hebrews now applies this idea to Christ. For Hebrews, the preparation of a human body, specifically Christ’s body, shows that God would use it as a superior sacrifice.

10:8-10 The author follows the flow of thought in the psalm with great precision. • First, Christ said, “You did not want animal sacrifices . . .”: The author of Hebrews understands this as God’s rejection of the old system of sacrifices. • Then he said, “Look, I have come to do your will”: The author of Hebrews takes this to be Christ’s willingness to be the supreme sacrifice for sins. • The author of Hebrews concludes that because of Christ’s sacrifice, God has canceled the first covenant—God’s will, as shown by Ps 40:6-8, was that Christ would die for sins as a sacrifice, and this only had to be done once for all time.

10:11-14 Christ’s superior offering was decisive, in contrast with the sacrifices made by the priests of the old covenant.

10:11 the priest stands: See Deut 18:5. • day after day: E.g., 2 Chr 13:11.

10:12-13 Christ’s sacrifice contrasts with that of the earthly high priests in that he offered himself to God as a . . . sacrifice, rather than offering animal sacrifices. • After the sacrifice was accomplished, he sat down in the place of honor (see Ps 110:1). Instead of standing daily like the priests of the old covenant (10:11), he waits until his enemies are humbled and made a footstool under his feet (Ps 110:1).

10:14 made perfect: See notes on 7:11, 28. • those who are being made holy: What the author has in mind is complete purification from sins.

10:15-17 The author again quotes from Jer 31:33-34 (see 8:7-12) to support the statement in 10:14, that Christ’s one offering under the new covenant has made worshipers perfect forever. • on that day: Literally after those days.

• God’s laws have now been placed in their hearts and on their minds. This has internalized believers’ relationship with God. • I will never again remember their sins and lawless deeds: As the author has shown (9:11–10:14), the superior sacrifice of Christ has made this new covenant reality possible.

10:18 The logical conclusion when sins have been forgiven—that is, when sins have been taken away completely and permanently (10:1-4, 11)—is that there is no need to offer any more sacrifices. Thus, the superior sacrifice of Christ has made the entire sacrificial system of the old covenant obsolete.

5. EXHORTATIONS TO FAITHFULNESS

(10:19–13:19)

A Call to Persevere

¹⁹And so, dear brothers and sisters, we can boldly enter heaven's Most Holy Place because of the blood of Jesus. ²⁰By his death, Jesus opened a new and life-giving way through the curtain into the Most Holy Place. ²¹And since we have a great High Priest who rules over God's house, ²²let us go right into the presence of God with sincere hearts fully trusting him. For our guilty consciences have been sprinkled with Christ's blood to make us clean, and our bodies have been washed with pure water.

²³Let us hold tightly without wavering to the hope we affirm, for God can be trusted to keep his promise. ²⁴Let us think of ways to motivate one another to acts of love and good works. ²⁵And let us not neglect our meeting together, as some people do, but encourage one another, especially now that the day of his return is drawing near.

Faithfulness and Judgment

²⁶Dear friends, if we deliberately continue sinning after we have received knowledge of the truth, there is no longer any sacrifice that will cover these sins. ²⁷There is only the terrible expectation of God's judgment and the raging fire that will consume his enemies. ²⁸For anyone who refused to obey the law of Moses was put to death without mercy on the testimony of two or three witnesses. ²⁹Just think how much worse the punishment will be for those who have trampled on the Son of God, and have treated the blood of the covenant, which made us holy, as if it were common and unholy, and have insulted and disdained the Holy Spirit who brings God's mercy to us. ³⁰For we know the one who said,

"I will take revenge.

I will pay them back."

He also said,

"The LORD will judge his own people."

³¹It is a terrible thing to fall into the hands of the living God.

³²Think back on those early days when you first learned about Christ. Remember how you remained faithful even though it

10:19-25 The author of Hebrews repeats words and concepts from 4:14-16 to mark off and summarize the central section (4:14–10:18) and to introduce the exhortations that follow, offering a concise statement of the message of Hebrews: The new covenant, established by Jesus' superior ministry, gives us a superior basis for drawing near to God and for persevering in the Christian life.

10:19 dear brothers and sisters: Literally brothers; see note on 3:1. • The earthly Most Holy Place was not freely accessible (see note on 9:3). Now, however, the very presence of God in heaven (9:11, 24) is open because of the blood of Jesus in his sacrificial death (9:11–10:18).

10:20 By his death (literally Through his flesh): Jesus' death has opened a new and life-giving way for us through the curtain, an allusion to the curtain separating the first and second rooms of the Tabernacle (see 9:1-5). Believers now enter the Most Holy Place of God's presence through Jesus' sacrificial death.

10:21 Jesus, as Messiah, is the High Priest and king who rules over God's house, the people of God (see 3:1-6; 2 Sam 7:13).

10:22 sincere hearts: Under the new covenant, believers have transformed hearts (8:10; 10:16; Jer 31:31-34). • fully trusting him: Christ's work on our behalf gives us confidence that God will welcome us into his presence. • our guilty consciences have been sprinkled . . . our bodies have been washed: Christ's sacrificial death has provided complete cleansing from sin (see 9:13-14, 19-23).

10:23 We are to hold tightly to the hope we affirm, that Christ's death is effective in winning us right relationship with God.

10:24 Acts of love and good works characterize true Christian commitment (6:10; 10:32-34; Gal 5:13; 1 Thes 1:3; Rev 2:19).

10:25 Some in this Christian community had evidently begun to neglect their meeting together in regular worship, perhaps to avoid persecution (10:32-39). • Our motivating one another to love and good works should be done in light of the day of his return, Christ's second coming (9:28; Luke 12:42-46; 1 Cor 5:5; 1 Thes 5:2; 2 Pet 3:10; 1 Jn 2:28).

10:26-31 The author interjects a strong warning concerning the danger of rejecting God's Son and his authoritative word. The warning challenges hearers to respond with a commitment to follow Christ.

10:26-27 deliberately: Open rebellion against God's laws was described as "sinning with a high hand" (see note on Num 15:30-31). Here the author has in mind specifically a rejection of Christ and his work. Christ's sacrifice for sins has done away with the sacrificial system of the old covenant (9:11–10:18). If a person rejects the Son's sacrifice, there is no other sacrifice—nowhere else to go—for forgiveness. A person who rejects Christ can only expect judgment as one of God's enemies (cp. Isa 26:10-11).

10:28-29 The author argues from lesser to greater (see note on 9:14). The lesser situation is the old punishment of death for a person who refused to obey the law of Moses (see Deut 13:6-11). The greater situation concerns those who reject Christ and treat him with contempt. • how much worse the punishment: Eternal damnation is the fate awaiting those who have rejected Christ (see "Consequences of Apostasy" at 2:1-4, p. 2085). • The blood of the covenant, which made us holy, is Christ's perfect sacrifice (9:11–10:18). • insulted and disdained the Holy Spirit: Those who reject the Spirit's prompting and mercy deny the validity of the Good News and the superiority of Christ and his saving work (cp. Mark 3:22-30).

10:30-31 "I will take revenge. I will pay them back": Deut 32:35. • "The LORD will judge his own people": Deut 32:36; cp. 1 Pet 4:17-18. • That God will pay them back and will judge his own people shows the dreadful circumstances of those who have rejected Christ. Once God moves to judge a person, no one can rescue that person out of God's hand (Deut 32:39).

10:32-39 The harsh warning (10:26-31) is followed by a word of encouragement. The hearers' own faithfulness in the past is used as a positive example for them to follow now.

10:32 when you first learned about Christ (literally when you were first enlightened): The author reminds his meant terrible suffering. ³³Sometimes you were exposed to public ridicule and were beaten, and sometimes you helped others who were suffering the same things. ³⁴You suffered along with those who were thrown into jail, and when all you owned was taken from you, you accepted it with joy. You knew there were better things waiting for you that will last forever.

³⁵So do not throw away this confident trust in the Lord. Remember the great reward it brings you! ³⁶Patient endurance is what you need now, so that you will continue to do God's will. Then you will receive all that he has promised.

³⁷“For in just a little while, the Coming One will come and not delay.

³⁸And my righteous ones will live by faith.
But I will take no pleasure in anyone who turns away.”

³⁹But we are not like those who turn away from God to their own destruction. We are the faithful ones, whose souls will be saved.

Great Examples of Faith and Endurance

11 ¹Faith shows the reality of what we hope for; it is the evidence of things we cannot see. ²Through their faith, the people in days of old earned a good reputation.

³By faith we understand that the entire universe was formed at God's command, that what we now see did not come from anything that can be seen.

⁴It was by faith that Abel brought a more acceptable offering to God than Cain did. Abel's offering gave evidence that he was a righteous man, and God showed his approval of his gifts. Although Abel is long dead, he still speaks to us by his example of faith.

⁵It was by faith that Enoch was taken up to heaven without dying—“he disappeared, because God took him.” For before he was taken up, he was known as a person who pleased God. ⁶And it is impossible to please God without faith. Anyone who wants to come to him must believe that God exists and that he rewards those who sincerely seek him.

readers of those early days, shortly after the community embraced Christianity, when their faith was tested. At that time, they remained faithful in the face of terrible suffering. Suffering is normal for a person who identifies with Christ and his community (13:12-13; Acts 9:16; Rom 8:17; 1 Cor 4:12-13; Phil 1:29; Jas 1:2-4).

10:33 public ridicule: They were insulted and disgraced. • beaten: They were abused physically. • At times they were direct recipients of abuse, and at times they stood with others who were suffering.

10:34 those who were thrown into jail: Prisoners were dependent on friends and family for the most basic daily needs (cp. 13:3). • when all you owned was taken from you: At times, the Roman government evicted groups of people from their homes and forced them to leave a city (see Acts 18:2-3). These Christians had faced this kind of persecution in the past and accepted it with joy (cp. Rom 5:3; Jas 1:2-4; 1 Pet 1:6). They anticipated better things . . . that will last forever (see 11:35). God promises rewards to those who persevere faithfully.

10:35-36 Based on their exemplary faithfulness in the past (10:32-34), the author urges them not to throw away this confident trust in the Lord. The word translated confident trust is also used in Hebrews to speak of boldness in entering the presence of God (4:16; 10:19; cp. 3:6). Those who remain faithful receive a great reward (see 1:14; 6:12; 9:15; Jas 1:12). Patient endurance is the key response needed in the face of persecution, as the author argues in 10:32–12:17.

10:37-38 These verses quote Hab 2:3-4 to contrast the righteous and the wicked as they face God's judgment (cp. Rom 1:17; Gal 3:11). • my righteous ones will live by faith: Or my righteous ones will live by their faithfulness; literally my righteous one will live by faith.

10:39 The author ends this section with a statement of confidence in his hearers (see note on 6:9).

11:1-40 In presenting readers with a long catalog of faith-filled heroes, ch 11 builds up overwhelming evidence that the life of faith is the only real way to live for God. The writer repeats the phrase by faith to drive this main message into the minds and hearts of his hearers. The examples follow a pattern: (a) the phrase by faith, (b) the name of the person, (c) the event or action which demonstrated faith, and (d) the outcome.

11:1 Before presenting the list of examples, the author defines what faith is. Our faith itself is evidence for the reality of what we hope for. It involves acting on what God has revealed about his will and character. The confidence that comes with faith is based on the God who fulfills his promises. • The word translated evidence points to the basis of our certainty that what God has promised will come to pass despite our not yet seeing it.

11:2 earned a good reputation: Scripture speaks favorably about their lives of faith (see also 11:39).

11:3 That the entire universe was formed at God's command is a basic belief of Jewish and Christian theology (see Gen 1:1-3). God created everything that we now see. A life of faith understands that, by analogy, God's promises are real and will be called into reality by God himself, even if they are unseen at present.

11:4 Abel: See Gen 4:3-5. • evidence that he was a righteous man: Cp. 10:38. • he still speaks to us: The story of his faith challenges us, and his blood bears witness to his righteousness and to the injustice of his murder (see 12:24).

11:5 Enoch was taken up to heaven and thus did not face a normal death (see Gen 5:21-24). • “he disappeared, because God took him”: Gen 5:24.

11:6 it is impossible to please God without faith: The author alludes to 10:38, which quotes Hab 2:4. • Faith must include believing that God exists and that he rewards those who sincerely seek him. In life's difficulties, readers are challenged to trust in God and to anticipate the fulfillment of his promises.

⁷It was by faith that Noah built a large boat to save his family from the flood. He obeyed God, who warned him about things that had never happened before. By his faith Noah condemned the rest of the world, and he received the righteousness that comes by faith.

⁸It was by faith that Abraham obeyed when God called him to leave home and go to another land that God would give him as his inheritance. He went without knowing where he was going. ⁹And even when he reached the land God promised him, he lived there by faith—for he was like a foreigner, living in tents. And so did Isaac and Jacob, who ¹⁰inherited the same promise. ¹⁰Abraham was confidently looking forward to a city with eternal foundations, a city designed and built by God.

¹¹It was by faith that even Sarah was able to have a child, though she was barren and was too old. She believed that God would keep his promise. ¹²And so a whole nation came from this one man who was as good as dead—a nation with so many people that, like the stars in the sky and the sand on the seashore, there is no way to count them.

¹³All these people died still believing what God had promised them. They did not receive what was promised, but they saw it all from a distance and welcomed it. They agreed that they were foreigners and nomads here on earth. ¹⁴Obviously people who say such things are looking forward to a country they can call their own. ¹⁵If they had longed for the country they came from, they could have gone back. ¹⁶But they were looking for a better place, a heavenly homeland. That is why God is not ashamed to be called their God, for he has prepared a city for them.

Hebrews 11 is one of the most extensive essays on faith in the NT and one of the most loved sections of Scripture, yet misconceptions about faith abound. Some see faith as meaning any form of spirituality (“he is a person of faith”). Others understand it as a resolute belief that something good is going to happen to them, a ticket to health and wealth. Still others think that faith is a blind leap against known facts. None of these constitutes biblical faith.

Instead, faith involves confident action in response to what God has made known (11:1-3). As seen in the examples listed in ch 11, faith comes into play in a variety of life’s circumstances. The results of faith also are various. Some people get rescued, achieve success in life, and get some of what God has promised in their lifetimes. Others get mocked, beaten, tortured, put in prison, and killed. Faith is sometimes rewarded sooner and sometimes later, but people of faith anticipate the rewards because of their confidence in God’s character.

What does it mean to live by faith? It means that, in our various circumstances, we live out our belief “that God exists and that he rewards those who sincerely seek him” (11:6). Those who live by faith take confident action based on what God has revealed about his character, seeking to do his will in all things.

11:7 The story of Noah (see Gen 6:1–9:17) further demonstrates that faith involves obedience in the face of the unseen. • things that had never happened before: Namely, the flood. Noah’s faith condemned the rest of the world by bearing witness to God’s reality and his desire for holiness.

11:8 Abraham obeyed: See Gen 12:1-2. He, too, acted in the face of what he could not yet see, since he went without knowing where he was going.

11:9-10 he lived there by faith: Abraham himself did not experience the inheritance of the land of promise. Rather, he was like a foreigner, living in tents (see Gen 12:10–13:18). • so did Isaac and Jacob: This life of faith was continued in the next two generations: They received the same promise and hoped in God, but did not experience what God had promised. • city with eternal foundations: Abraham did not settle in the Canaanite cities but followed the will of God in faithful obedience, anticipating a heavenly city.

11:11 It was by faith that even Sarah was able to have a child, though she was barren and was too old. She believed: Or It was by faith that he [Abraham] was able to have a child, even though Sarah was barren and he was too old. He believed. Textual variants make it difficult to determine whether Sarah or Abraham is the subject of this verse. Either way, Sarah’s ability to have a child far past the normal age of childbearing is in view (see Gen 15:6; 18:10-15; 21:1-7).

11:12 this one man who was as good as dead: Abraham was very old, yet he became the source for a whole nation.

Faith involves believing that God is able to answer his promises seemingly out of nothing. • like the stars . . . and the sand: See Gen 22:17. God fulfilled the promise (Exod 1:7).

11:13-16 The author pauses to point out general principles evident in the lives he has highlighted thus far.

11:13 Abraham’s family lived in the land of promise as foreigners and nomads (see Gen 23:4; cp. 1 Chr 29:15; Ps 39:12; 1 Pet 2:11).

11:14-16 Abraham’s family was obviously not longing for the country they came from, since if that had been the case, they could have gone back. Their posture of faith demonstrates a longing for a better place. Their hope was ultimately in God, who rewarded their faith by preparing a heavenly . . . city for them.

¹⁷It was by faith that Abraham offered Isaac as a sacrifice when God was testing him. Abraham, who had received God's promises, was ready to sacrifice his 'only son, Isaac, ¹⁸even though God had told him, "Isaac is the son through whom your descendants will be counted." ¹⁹Abraham reasoned that if Isaac died, God was able to bring him back to life again. And in a sense, Abraham did receive his son back from the dead.

²⁰It was by faith that Isaac promised blessings for the future to his sons, Jacob and Esau.

²¹It was by faith that Jacob, when he was old and dying, blessed each of Joseph's sons and bowed in worship as he leaned on his staff.

²²It was by faith that Joseph, when he was about to die, said confidently that the people of Israel would leave Egypt. He even commanded them to take his bones with them when they left.

²³It was by faith that Moses' parents hid him for three months when he was born. They saw that God had given them an unusual child, and they were not afraid to disobey the king's command.

²⁴It was by faith that Moses, when he grew up, refused to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter. ²⁵He chose to share the oppression of God's people instead of enjoying the fleeting pleasures of sin. ²⁶He thought it was better to suffer for the sake of Christ than to own the treasures of Egypt, for he was looking ahead to his great reward. ²⁷It was by faith that Moses left the land of Egypt, not fearing the king's anger. He kept right on going because he kept his eyes on the one who is invisible. ²⁸It was by faith that Moses commanded the people of Israel to keep the Passover and to sprinkle blood on the doorposts so that the angel of death would not kill their ²⁹firstborn sons.

²⁹It was by faith that the people of Israel went right through the Red Sea as though they were on dry ground. But when the Egyptians tried to follow, they were all drowned.

³⁰It was by faith that the people of Israel marched around Jericho for seven days, and the walls came crashing down.

³¹It was by faith that Rahab the prostitute was not destroyed with the people in her city who refused to obey God. For she had given a friendly welcome to the spies.

11:17-31 Great examples of faith take the reader from Abraham's family to Rahab. These examples build up evidence that faith is the only appropriate response to God.

11:17-19 Abraham offered Isaac: See Gen 22:1-18. God never intended for Abraham to offer his son but was testing Abraham's faith, which he expressed through his obedience.

11:18 This verse quotes Gen 21:12.

11:19 Abraham reasoned: The resurrection of Isaac was the only answer to Abraham's dilemma. In Gen 22:5, Abraham expressed confidence that Isaac would return with him.

11:20 Isaac promised blessings: See Gen 27:27-40; the only part of the story that can be considered a blessing for Esau is that he would eventually shake off his subservience to his brother. Esau was later blessed by Jacob's riches (Gen 33:8-11).

11:21 Jacob passed the ritual blessing on to Joseph's sons, Ephraim and Manasseh (Gen 48:8-22). • bowed in worship: Gen 47:31. The phrase as he leaned on his staff comes from the Greek translation of the OT.

11:22 Joseph's prophecy and command (see Gen 50:24-25) showed faith that God would keep his promises.

11:23 Moses' parents: See Exod 2:1-2.

• unusual (or attractive, or beautiful): This word refers to something of superior quality. Their insight that Moses was extraordinary led them to act by faith in God. • the king's command: Exod 1:22.

11:24-25 Moses, when he grew up: See Exod 2:11-15. Moses took a public stand with the people of Israel rather than continuing to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter, who had adopted him (Exod 2:3-10). Therefore, he chose to share the oppression of God's people, as the readers of this letter were being called to do (see 10:32-34).

11:26 the treasures of Egypt: The New Kingdom of Egypt (about 1550-1069 BC) was an era of phenomenal wealth and political power. Moses evidently had a greater reward in mind.

11:27 Like his forefather Abraham, Moses acted in faith by leaving the land of Egypt, with which he was familiar, and walked into an unknown future (Exod 2:15). • not fearing the king's anger: Rather than watching the king, he kept his eyes on the one who is invisible—God.

11:28 Moses commanded . . . the Passover: See Exod 12:1-27. The first Passover (Exod 12:28-30) initiated the Exodus (Exod 12:31-42, 50-51) and instituted the annual Passover observance as a memorial (Exod 12:43-49; 13:1-16). • to sprinkle blood: The sprinkling of the blood of sacrifices under the old covenant was parallel to the sprinkling of Christ's blood (see 9:12-14, 18-22).

11:29 The rescue through the Red Sea (see Exod 13:17-14:21) constitutes the greatest moment of deliverance in Israel's history. The people's fear and accusation at the time (Exod 14:10-12) do not obviously exemplify faith, but the people went forward when told to do so despite their fear. The episode demonstrates that obedience is central to faith.

11:30 The conquest of Jericho (Josh 5:13-6:27) offers another example of great faith, as the people acted in obedience to God's unusual instructions.

11:31 Rahab the prostitute (Josh 2:1-24; 6:25) showed faith in the power of the God of Israel by protecting the spies who came to her home (cp. Jas 2:25). As a result, she and her family were not destroyed but joined the community of Israel. In fact, Rahab was an ancestor of Jesus (Matt 1:5).

11:32-40 In a rapid series of examples, the author gives an overview of other faithful people through the rest of the old covenant era. In 11:32-35a, the outcome of faith is deliverance and victory. In 11:35b-38, however, faith brought severe persecution and even martyrdom. The result for both groups was that God honored them with a good reputation because of their faith (11:39).

would take too long to recount the stories of the faith of Gideon, Barak, Samson, Jephthah, David, Samuel, and all the prophets. ³³By faith these people overthrew kingdoms, ruled with justice, and received what God had promised them. They shut the mouths of lions, ³⁴quenched the flames of fire, and escaped death by the edge of the sword. Their weakness was turned to strength. They became strong in battle and put whole armies to flight. ³⁵Women received their loved ones back again from death.

But others were tortured, refusing to turn from God in order to be set free. They placed their hope in a better life after the resurrection. ³⁶Some were jeered at, and their backs were cut open with whips. Others were chained in prisons. ³⁷Some died by stoning, some were sawed in half, and others were killed with the sword. Some went about wearing skins of sheep and goats, destitute and oppressed and mistreated. ³⁸They were too good for this world, wandering over deserts and mountains, hiding in caves and holes in the ground.

³⁹All these people earned a good reputation because of their faith, yet none of them received all that God had promised. ⁴⁰For God had something better in mind for us, so that they would not reach perfection without us.

Endure by Keeping Your Eyes on Jesus

12 Therefore, since we are surrounded by such a huge crowd of witnesses to the life of faith, let us strip off every weight that slows us down, especially the sin that so easily trips us up. And let us run with endurance the race God has set before us. ²We do this by keeping our eyes on Jesus, the champion who initiates and perfects our faith. Because of the joy awaiting him, he endured the cross, disregarding its shame. Now he is seated in the place of honor beside God's throne. ³Think of all the hostility he endured from sinful people; then you

11:32 How much more do I need to say? The author makes a transition to his concluding summary, which begins with six heroes of faith from the time of the judges and the united monarchy. Gideon defeated the Midianites with torches and jars (Judg 7:7-25). Barak routed Sisera and the Canaanites (Judg 4:8-16). Samson, though weak in moral fiber, was used by God to fight the Philistines on behalf of Israel (Judg 13:1-16:31). Jephthah won victory over the Amorites and Ammonites (Judg 10:6-12:7). David, the only king in the group, loved God and, for the most part, led an exemplary life of faith (1 Sam 16—1 Kgs 1). Samuel was an important transitional leader between the judges and the monarchy; he heard God's voice and obeyed his will (1 Sam 1-15). • The statement all the prophets includes Elijah, Elisha, and the "writing prophets" from Isaiah to Malachi. The prophets often exhibited great faith in the face of hostility.

11:33 overthrew kingdoms: During the time of the judges and the reign of David, Israel defeated many of their enemies. David and Solomon and a few others ruled with justice (see 2 Sam 8:15; 1 Kgs 10:9). • shut the mouths of lions: See Dan 6:1-23.

11:34 quenched the flames of fire: See Dan 3:16-30. • escaped death by the edge of the sword: E.g., Elijah and Jeremiah (see 1 Kgs 19:2; 2 Kgs 1; Jer 26:10-16; 38:1-13).

11:35 Elijah and Elisha both brought women's loved ones back again from death (see 1 Kgs 17:17-24; 2 Kgs 4:17-37). • But others were tortured:

Faith does not always have a positive outcome in this life. The author might be alluding to the 170s and 160s BC, when many Jews suffered and died rather than forsake their faith (see, e.g., 1 Maccabees 1:20-64).

11:37 According to tradition, the prophet Jeremiah died by stoning and the prophet Isaiah was sawed in half. (At this point, some manuscripts add some were tested.)

11:38 too good for this world: Their hope was in God more than in the pleasures and comforts of this world.

11:39-40 The way to live as God's people under the new covenant is to live as all these people did under the old covenant: by faith in God's promises, enduring any difficulties faced in this world. • earned a good reputation: God has borne witness to their faithfulness (see also 11:2). • yet none of them received all that God had promised: They all died prior to Christ's promised coming; the something better began with Christ's sacrificial work (8:3-10:18) and anticipates the future culmination of God's plan for his people. • would not reach perfection: See notes on 5:9; 7:11. Jesus has fulfilled God's goal of bringing his people into relationship with him.

12:1-17 The author challenges his hearers to endure in following Jesus, the supreme example of faithfulness, by imitating him in his suffering (12:1-4), by enduring under God's discipline (12:5-13), and by living in peace with others (12:14-17).

12:1 huge crowd of witnesses: The host of faithful followers of God (ch 11) bear witness to the truth that God blesses the life of faith. • let us strip off every weight: In Greco-Roman literature, a race is a metaphor for the need for endurance in life. Just as extra weight hinders a runner, sin . . . trips us up. It entangles us and restricts us from moving by faith.

12:2 Jesus is the supreme example of faithful endurance (3:1). Our endurance in the Christian life will depend on our keeping our eyes on Jesus—staying focused on him and his work on our behalf. • Jesus, the champion who initiates and perfects our faith (or Jesus, the originator and perfecter of our faith): Jesus has accomplished everything necessary for faith under the new covenant to be a reality. • Because of the joy: Or Instead of the joy. • disregarding its shame: Crucifixion was the most shameful form of execution, meant to humiliate and torture the person crucified. It was used only for slaves and criminals who were not Roman citizens. Christ treated that shame as if it were nothing. • seated in the place of honor: The author again alludes to Ps 110:1 (see also 1:3; 13; 8:1; 10:12); through endurance, Jesus reached the place of ultimate honor at the right hand of God.

12:3 Think of all the hostility he endured from sinful people (some manuscripts read Think of how people hurt themselves by opposing him): The recipients of Hebrews had become weary and were about to give up—they were emotionally fatigued because of the persecution they were facing. The key to their endurance was to focus on Jesus, who had been through even worse hostility.

won't become weary and give up. ⁴After all, you have not yet given your lives in your struggle against sin.

Endure God's Loving Discipline

⁵And have you forgotten the encouraging words God spoke to you as his children? He said,

"My child, don't make light of the LORD's discipline, and don't give up when he corrects you.

⁶For the LORD ^adisciplines those he loves, and he punishes each one he accepts as his child."

⁷As you endure this divine discipline, remember that God is treating you as his own children. Who ever heard of a child who is never disciplined by its father? ⁸If God doesn't discipline you as he does all of his children, it means that you are illegitimate and are not really his children at all. ⁹Since we respected our earthly ^afathers who ^bdisciplined us, shouldn't we submit even more to the discipline of the ^cFather of our spirits, and live forever?

¹⁰For our earthly fathers disciplined us for a few years, doing the best they knew how. But God's discipline is always good for us, so that we might share in his holiness.

¹¹No discipline is enjoyable while it is happening—it's painful! But afterward there will be a peaceful harvest of right living for those who are trained in this way.

¹²So take a new grip with your tired hands and strengthen your weak knees.

¹³Mark out a straight path for your feet so that those who are weak and lame will not fall but become strong.

Endure by Rejecting a Corrupt Life

¹⁴Work at living in ^cpeace with everyone, and work at living a ^dholy life, for those who are not holy will not see the Lord. ¹⁵Look after each other so that none of you fails to receive the grace of God. Watch out that no poisonous root of bitterness grows up to trouble you, corrupting many. ¹⁶Make sure that no one is immoral or godless like Esau, who traded his birthright as the firstborn son for a single meal. ¹⁷You know that afterward, when he wanted his father's blessing, he was rejected. It was too late for repentance, even though he begged with bitter tears.

Contrast Between Two Covenants

12:4 not yet given your lives: This community had not yet faced martyrdom for the faith. (This is one reason to date Hebrews prior to Nero's persecution in the mid-60s AD.) If Jesus could endure a shameful death, the hearers should be able to endure lesser persecution.

12:5-6 In these verses, the encouraging words are quoted from Prov 3:11-12 (Greek version), a passage that regards hardship as the LORD's loving discipline for his children (literally sons; also in 12:7, 8; see note on 2:10). God can turn a wide variety of trials and difficulties to our good, training us in righteousness and holy character. • child: Literally son; also in 12:7.

12:7-8 disciplined by its father: Fathers from Greco-Roman as well as Jewish families were involved in day-to-day aspects of raising their children. Discipline was seen as a necessary, healthy, and important component of preparing the child for adulthood. A lack of fatherly discipline—in this case, a lack of hardships in life—is a mark of illegitimacy, not a blessing.

12:9 The author argues from lesser to greater (see note on 9:14). Here, the lesser situation is the respect shown to an earthly father when he is giving discipline. We should submit even more to the discipline of the Father of our spirits in the more important context of our relationship with God. We should adopt a posture of yielding to God as to a good Father, trusting that he is helping us grow even through painful circumstances. • and live forever? Or and really live?

12:10-11 There are at least two limitations on an earthly father's discipline. First, his discipline, or education, is only for a few years (literally for a few days)—children eventually leave home. Second, earthly fathers were doing the best they knew how from their limited perspectives. By contrast, God's discipline lasts throughout life and is always good for us, based on his limitless knowledge and love. His goal is that we might share in his holiness. Although it is painful, discipline brings about a peaceful harvest of right living. It brings God's children into a state conducive to harmonious relationships and doing what is right (see also Rom 5:3-4; 8:17, 28; 2 Cor 4:17; Phil 1:12-14; Jas 1:2-4; 1 Pet 1:7; 4:14).

12:12-13 The author, alluding to Isa 35:3-8 and Prov 4:26, encourages those who are emotionally and spiritually exhausted. According to Isa 35, God is in the process of defeating his enemies and is making a straight path for the righteous so that they will not fall.

12:14 Those who are living a holy life have confident hope of seeing the Lord (see 1 Jn 2:28; 3:21; 4:17).

12:15 The poisonous root of bitterness alludes to people turning their backs on God's covenant to serve other gods (Deut 29:18). Bitterness can corrupt the church.

12:16 Ancient Jewish literature describes Esau as sexually immoral because he was married to the Hittite women Judith and Basemath (Gen 26:34; see Jubilees 25:1; Philo, On the Virtues 208). • Esau's lack of regard for his birthright (Gen 25:29-34) was godless. His willingness to give up God's blessings for immediate satisfaction illustrates the opposite of faith.

12:17 Hebrews sees Esau's disregard for his inheritance (12:16) and his loss of the blessing (Gen 27:30-40) as intrinsically related. The result was bitter tears. By analogy, those who reject an inheritance through Christ's new covenant have only bitterness in their future.

12:18-24 This passage contrasts the old covenant with the new. The old covenant, represented by Mount Sinai (12:18-21), is depicted as impersonal, intimidating, and unapproachable; it booms, flashes, and terrifies. The new covenant, represented by Mount Zion (12:22-24), is depicted as relational, welcoming, and celebratory.

12:18 to a physical mountain: Literally to something that can be touched. The descriptions of Mount Sinai come

Mount Sinai. ¹⁹For they heard an awesome trumpet blast and a voice so terrible that they begged God to stop speaking. ²⁰They staggered back under God's command: "If even an animal touches the mountain, it must be stoned to death." ²¹Moses himself was so frightened at the sight that he said, "I am terrified and trembling."

²²No, you have come to Mount Zion, to the city of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem, and to countless thousands of angels in a joyful gathering. ²³You have come to the assembly of God's "firstborn children, whose names are written in heaven. You have come to God himself, who is the judge over all things. You have come to the spirits of the righteous ones in heaven who have now been made perfect. ²⁴You have come to Jesus, the one who mediates the new 'covenant between God and people, and to the sprinkled blood, which speaks of forgiveness instead of crying out for vengeance like the blood of Abel.

A Final Warning

²⁵Be careful that you do not refuse to listen to the One who is speaking. For if the people of Israel did not escape when they refused to listen to Moses, the earthly messenger, we will certainly not escape if we reject the One who speaks to us from heaven! ²⁶When God spoke from Mount Sinai his voice shook the earth, but now he makes another promise: "Once again I will shake not only the earth but the heavens also." ²⁷This means that all of creation will be shaken and removed, so that only unshakable things will remain.

²⁸Since we are receiving a Kingdom that is unshakable, let us be thankful and please God by worshiping him with holy fear and awe. ²⁹For our God is a devouring fire.

Practical Instructions

13 Keep on loving each other as brothers and sisters. ²Don't forget to show hospitality to strangers, for some who have done this have entertained angels without realizing it! ³Remember those in prison, as if you were there yourself. Remember also those being mistreated, as if you felt their pain in your own bodies.

⁴Give honor to marriage, and remain faithful to one another in marriage. God directly from God's encounter with Israel at that mountain (see Exod 19:16-22; 20:18-21; Deut 4:11-12; 5:23-27). The images communicate separation from a holy God.

12:19 The awesome trumpet blast and a voice terrified the people (see Exod 19:16, 19; 20:18; Deut 4:12) so that they begged God to stop speaking (Exod 20:19).

12:20 God's command is quoted from Exod 19:13.

12:21 "I am terrified and trembling": Deut 9:19.

12:22 No: There is a strong contrast between the old and the new covenant. Believers have now come to wonderful Mount Zion, which is closely associated with Jerusalem and represents God's dwelling place. • heavenly Jerusalem: See note on 8:5. • The new covenant constitutes a relationship with God by which we experience his presence with joy, peace, and fellowship.

12:23 The word translated assembly is usually translated "church"; it speaks of God's assembled people. • God's firstborn children refers to people who are members of the new covenant (cp. 1:6; 2:10-13). • The concept that God's people have their names . . . written in heaven speaks of God's special attention to his people (see also Exod 32:32; Ps 69:28; Isa 4:3; Dan 12:1; Luke 10:20; Phil 4:3; Rev 3:5). • For God's children, God as judge is the vindicator of his people (cp. Ps 9:8; 58:11; 82:11; 94:2; Isa 11:4; Jer 22:16). • Those who have already died have now been made perfect by the sacrifice of Christ (10:14).

12:24 Jesus is the mediator of the new covenant (8:7-13; 9:11-14; 10:15-18). His sprinkled blood, used as the sacrifice for sins, speaks of forgiveness. • The blood of Abel cried out to God from the ground, demanding vengeance for his murder by Cain (Gen 4:10). By contrast, Jesus' blood cries out that the price for sins has been paid for those in the new covenant (10:16-18).

12:25-29 As the final warning in the book (see 2:1-4; 4:12-13; 6:4-8; 10:26-31), this passage plays off the image of God speaking in 12:18-24.

12:25 God is the One who is speaking his revealed word in his Son, Jesus (1:1-3). The author argues from lesser to greater (see note on 9:14): Moses' warning the people under the old covenant is the lesser situation, and God's warning us from heaven is the greater situation. If people did not escape judgment when they were warned by Moses, those who reject the message of the Son of God will certainly not escape punishment.

12:26-27 shook the earth: Exod 19:18; Judg 5:5; Ps 68:8; 77:18. • "Once again I will shake not only the earth but the heavens also": Quoting Hag 2:6, the author emphasizes that all of creation will be shaken and removed at the judgment at the end of the age (1 Cor 7:31;

2 Pet 3:10, 12; Rev 21:1).

12:28-29 God deserves holy fear and awe. • our God is a devouring fire: This quotation from Deut 4:24 speaks at once of God's awesome power and of his right to judge.

13:1-6 This series of practical guidelines is similar to other ethics lists in the NT. It describes how to love others in the community of faith, a strong ethical foundation for all of life.

13:1 Keep on loving each other as brothers and sisters: Literally Continue in brotherly love (see Rom 12:10; 1 Thes 4:9; 1 Pet 1:22; 2 Pet 1:7). This instruction applies to everyone in the Christian community (see note on 3:1).

13:2 Hospitality is another foundational principle in Jewish and Christian ethics (1 Pet 4:9; see also Matt 10:11; Acts 16:15; Titus 3:13; Phlm 1:22; 3 Jn 1:5-8). In the first century, most people did not stay at inns when traveling.

• Some . . . have entertained angels: See Gen 18:2-15; Judg 13:2-23.

13:3 Remember those in prison: Prisoners often depended on family members and friends for their most basic needs. Christians were challenged to provide comfort, food, prayer, and other necessities for those imprisoned because of their faith (13:18-19; Matt 25:36; Col 4:18; 2 Tim 1:16).

13:4 Give honor to marriage means to protect it and hold it as highly valuable. • Immoral refers to all sexually illicit will surely judge people who are immoral and those who commit adultery.

⁵Don't love money; be satisfied with what you have. For God has said,

"I will never fail you.

I will never abandon you."

⁶So we can say with confidence,

"The LORD is my helper,
so I will have no fear.

What can mere people do to me?"

⁷Remember your leaders who taught you the ⁸word of God. Think of all the good that has come from their lives, and follow the example of their faith.

⁸Jesus Christ is the same yesterday, today, and forever. ⁹So do not be attracted by strange, new ideas. Your strength comes from God's grace, not from rules about food, which don't help those who follow them.

¹⁰We have an altar from which the priests in the Tabernacle have no right to eat. ¹¹Under the old system, the ¹²high priest brought the blood of animals into the Holy Place as a sacrifice for sin, and the bodies of the animals were burned outside the camp. ¹²So also Jesus suffered and died outside the city gates to make his people holy by means of his own blood. ¹³So let us go out to him, outside the camp, and bear the disgrace he bore. ¹⁴For this world is not our permanent home; we are looking forward to a home yet to come.

¹⁵Therefore, let us offer through Jesus a continual sacrifice of praise to God, proclaiming our allegiance to his name. ¹⁶And don't forget to do good and to ¹⁷share with those in need. These are the sacrifices that please God.

¹⁷Obeys your spiritual leaders, and do what they say. Their work is to watch over your souls, and they are accountable to God. Give them reason to do this with joy and not with sorrow. That would certainly not be for your benefit.

behavior. • Adultery breaks the marriage vow by engaging in sexual activity outside the marriage relationship.

13:5 Don't love money: See 1 Tim 6:6-10. Instead, the believer is to be satisfied with what God has provided. Perhaps some in the community were under financial strain (see 10:32-34). The promises of God still stand: "I will never fail you. I will never abandon you" (see Deut 31:6, 8).

13:6 This quotation from Ps 118:6 offers the response of faith: The LORD is my helper, so we can have no fear of what people might do.

13:7-19 This middle section of ch 13 is bracketed by references to the community's leaders (13:7, 17-19). Rabbis often used this technique, called inclusio, in which similar words or phrases were used to mark the beginning and ending of a unit, much as we would use a subheading in a book today. This section hints at several difficulties in the church to which Hebrews was originally addressed.

13:7 Remember your leaders: The word leaders was used for military, political, and religious leaders. These leaders, evidently founders of this community, taught . . . the word of God to them—a basic responsibility of those who lead (see 1 Tim 3:2; 2 Tim 2:15; Titus 1:9). Their lives and faith were an example to follow.

13:8 Though the community was facing new challenges, Jesus Christ is the same, and his Good News does not change. • yesterday: Jesus was the Father's agent in creation (1:2, 10). • today: Jesus currently sits at the Father's right hand

(1:13; 7:26-28; 10:12). He will rule the universe forever (1:8, 10-12).

13:9-10 Since Jesus does not change (13:8), it is unwise for a believer to be attracted by strange, new ideas. The false teachings in view seemed to involve rules about food. In some branches of Judaism, certain ritual meals were understood as providing God's grace to those participating. Some in the community might have been tempted to abandon the Christian community by participating in Jewish fellowship meals. These Jewish meals at times encouraged participants to focus on the Jerusalem altar. The author reminds his hearers that we have an altar of which those under the old covenant have no part—Christ's sacrifice (7:27-28; 8:13; 9:11-14; 10:11-14). • Tabernacle: Or tent.

13:11-12 The author describes the sacrifice on the Day of Atonement (Lev 16:1-28), in which animals were burned outside the camp (Lev 16:27). By analogy, Jesus suffered and died outside the city gates of Jerusalem. He was the supreme Day of Atonement sacrifice (9:11-14, 24-28; 10:1-4).

13:13 let us go out to him, outside the camp: We should stand with Jesus, identifying with him and rejecting the apparent safety and comfort of standing with the world against him. In standing with Christ, we bear the disgrace he bore (6:5-6; 12:1-3).

13:14 Like Abraham's family (11:9-16), we are not ultimately invested in the world, for it is not our permanent home. We are looking for a home yet to come, the heavenly city of Jerusalem (12:22).

13:15-16 In light of Jesus' decisive, sacrificial work on our behalf, we still have sacrifices to offer: praise and obedience. Because Christ has eradicated the sacrificial system of the old covenant through the sacrifice of himself (7:27-28; 8:13; 9:11-14; 10:11-14), these are the sacrifices that please God.

13:15 sacrifice of praise: This probably refers to a peace offering (Lev 7:11-14). The person bringing the offering had to be made ritually clean before the offering could be made. Our thank offering to God can be continual because Jesus has made us clean for all time. When we give thanks to Jesus continually, we are proclaiming our allegiance to his name.

13:16 to do good and to share with those in need: These are basic Christian sacrifices (6:10; 10:24, 34; 13:1-3); they characterize life in the Christian community.

13:17 The relationship between the spiritual leaders and the members of the church may have been strained, so the author exhorts the members to obey them and do what they say. • The Greek word translated obey can also mean follow, place confidence in, or be persuaded by. • Christian leaders watch over people's souls (Acts 20:28-31; 1 Pet 5:1-4), a role that carries grave responsibility, making them accountable to God (Jas 3:1). • The word sorrow could be translated grieving; it speaks of emotional burden and stress. Having leaders who are stressed and burdened because of an unruly church does not benefit the church.

The relational aspects of life in community are not always easy, and the group to whom Hebrews was written seems to have been struggling with unity (see 13:7-17). The answer to relational discord in the Christian community is to exercise love toward our brothers and sisters in Christ. This command is grounded in the teaching of Jesus (Matt 22:39; John 13:34; see Lev 19:18), is expressed by Paul (Rom 13:8; 1 Cor 13), and is found elsewhere in the NT (1 Pet 1:22; 1 Jn 2:10; 3:10; 4:7). Loving others in the body of Christ is central to a Christian ethic (Rom 12:10; 1 Thes 4:9; 2 Pet 1:7).

The author of Hebrews reminds his readers to love one another (6:10; 10:24). Christians are to relate to one another in such a way that our communities of faith are characterized by acts of love. In 13:1-6, the command to love comes to concrete expression. Here, as elsewhere in the NT, love refers not to an emotion but to a commitment to meet others' needs. Love means showing hospitality, caring for the needs of those who are persecuted and in prison, being faithful in one's marriage, and rejecting a life motivated by money.

Great confusion exists in the world about the nature of love and the character of the Christian church. Therefore, there is a great need for the church to live out the Lord's command to "Keep on loving each other as brothers and sisters" (13:1).

13:18-19 Pray for us: The author asks for prayer for himself using the "authorial plural" (see also 5:11; 6:9). • our conscience is clear: Cp. 2 Cor 1:11-12; 4:2.

13:20-21 Benedictions were an important element of letters, speeches, and sermons. The author of Hebrews weaves a number of important themes from the book into his benediction.
• The image of our Lord Jesus as the great Shepherd of the sheep (cp. Ps 23) communicates God's provision for and protection of his people (see also John 10:11-18; 1 Pet 2:25) and is specifically tied here to an eternal covenant.

13:21 in you: Some manuscripts read in us.

13:22 dear brothers and sisters (literally brothers): See note on 3:1. • this brief exhortation: This probably indicates that Hebrews was a sermon (cp. the same term in Acts 13:14-15, translated "encouragement").

13:23 This Timothy may have been Paul's traveling companion (see "Timothy" at Acts 16:1-3, p. 1860); if so, his imprisonment is not mentioned elsewhere in the NT. He clearly knows the author and the recipients of this letter.

13:24-25 The book closes with a formal greeting and a blessing. • all the believers there: Literally all of God's holy people. The believers from Italy probably suggests that the author is writing back to Rome from elsewhere in the Mediterranean world; some scholars, however, have thought that the author was writing from Rome.

THE LETTER OF James

How can we be faithful friends of God like Abraham? Can we resist the pressures of the world, our rebellious human impulses, and the influence of the devil? Can Christians live together in peace as we seek solutions to life's problems? James addresses these issues in his letter as he seeks to motivate Christians to develop a mature and consistent faith and to show how Christians can have loyal friendship with God and with one another.

SETTING

James, Jesus' brother, writes as the leader of the Jerusalem church to Jewish Christians who have been scattered by persecution. He encourages them to endure their trials with Christian fortitude and to exhibit consistent Christian character.

The recipients of this letter were Jewish Christians (1:1; 2:1) who had been scattered by the persecutions which began with the stoning of Stephen (Acts 8:1; 11:19). They lived among the Jews who had been "scattered abroad" in the Diaspora (1:1; John 7:35), which had its origins in the Assyrian dispersion of Israel (the northern kingdom) in 722–721 BC and in the Babylonian exile of Judah (the southern kingdom) in 586 BC. This dispersion later included many Jews who traveled extensively during the Greek and Roman empires (4:13; Acts 13:14; 17:1). By the middle of the first century, there were Jewish communities all over the Greco-Roman world.

SUMMARY

The letter of James is written with a pastor's perspective, and it focuses more on ethics than any other book of the NT. The letter contains teachings based on the law as understood through the life and teaching of Jesus (1:25; 2:8). James also reflects Jesus' own teachings, especially as later recorded in Matthew's "Sermon on the Mount" (Matt 5–7) and Luke's "Sermon on the Plain" (Luke 6:20–49).

AUTHORSHIP

The letter of James was written by one of Jesus' brothers (see further "James, the Brother of Jesus" at Acts 15:13–21, p. 1858). Like the other sons of Joseph and Mary (Matt 13:55), James (Greek Iakōbos) bore the name of an Israelite hero: Jacob (Hebrew Ya'aqob; Greek Iakōb). After Jesus' resurrection, James became a believer (cp. 1 Cor 15:7) and rose to a position of leadership in the Jerusalem church (see Acts 15:13-22).

◀ The Setting of James, about AD 46. James, one of Jesus' brothers, was a leader of the church in JERUSALEM. The believers from Jerusalem had been scattered in the early 40s AD as a result of persecution (see Acts 8:1–3; 12:1–4). The scattered believers traveled throughout JUDEA, SAMARIA, and PHOENICIA, and to ANTIOCH in SYRIA and CYPRUS (see Acts 11:19).

During Jesus' public ministry, neither James nor the other siblings were followers of Jesus. They had even tried to end his ministry and bring him home to his responsibilities as eldest son (Mark 3:31-35; cp. John 7:3-5).

Final Exhortations

A personal resurrection appearance convinced James that Jesus was the Christ (1 Cor 15:7), and he was with the others in the upper room when the Spirit was given on Pentecost (Acts 1:14; 2:1-3). James became the leader of the Jerusalem church after Peter's arrest and departure from Jerusalem (Acts 12:1-3; 15:13-21; 21:18; Gal 1:19; 2:9).

DATE AND LOCATION OF WRITING

The letter of James is one of the earliest books in the NT, written after the persecution under Herod Agrippa (AD 44, Acts 12:1-5), yet prior to Galatians (AD 48~49) and the council in Jerusalem (AD 49~50). It reflects an early period prior to the conflict over circumcising Gentile converts and before the development of false teachings in other Christian communities. It was a time when synagogue ("meeting," 2:2) and church (5:14) were interchangeable terms, as were law and word (1:23, 25).

That this letter was written from Jerusalem is deduced from information in Acts and Galatians about James's location (Acts 15:13-22; 21:18; Gal 1:18-19; 2:9, 12). The book contains allusions appropriate to Palestine, including references to the scorching heat (1:11); salty water springs (3:11); the cultivation of figs, olives, and grapevines (3:12); the imagery of the sea (1:6; 3:4); and the early and later rains (5:7).

LITERARY CHARACTER

The letter of James is written in good Koiné Greek, the common Greek of the Greco-Roman world. It reflects the Hellenistic influences on Galilee and Palestine, as well as the enculturation of Jewish readers in the Diaspora. James writes with grammatical accuracy, has a wide vocabulary, and has an elegant feel for the rhythms and sounds of words. There are clear allusions to the Greek translation of the OT (e.g., 4:6), with some imagery from the Hellenistic world.

James uses many oratorical devices, such as fraternal appeals (1:2; 2:1; 3:1; 4:11), rhetorical questions (2:5; 3:11-12; 4:1), imperative exhortations (1:16; 3:1; 5:16), metaphors and illustrations (2:26; 3:3-5; 4:14), and aphorisms that summarize a paragraph (2:13, 17; 3:18; 4:17).

MEANING AND MESSAGE

James's primary concern is for his readers to maintain undivided faith and loyalty toward God (1:6). They were under pressure from a society that oppressed them economically (2:6) and abused them for their faith in Jesus Christ (2:7). James recommends patient endurance (1:3), submission to God (4:7), and sharing in the ministries of the church (5:13-20). These will result in perfection (1:4), honor (4:10), and a glorious life (1:12) at the coming of Jesus Christ (5:8).

The Law. As leader of the Jerusalem church, James maintained proper respect for the law of Moses and for Jewish traditions, such as the purification ceremonies after a vow (Acts 21:18-25). James also expressed a sympathetic understanding of the Gentile mission when he concluded that Gentiles could be recognized as Christians without first becoming proselytes to Judaism. He based this on God's covenant with Noah (Acts 15:19-22; see Gen 9:1-17). In his letter, we find James both upholding the law (1:25) and at the same time hinting at its reinterpretation through Jesus the Messiah (2:8-11).

Jewishness. This is one of the most Jewish letters in the NT. James uses the symbols of Judaism with little criticism (contrast Matt 5:21-22) and uses the primary identity markers of Judaism without redefinition (contrast Rom 2:29). James addresses the readers as the "twelve tribes" (1:1) and identifies their church gathering as a synagogue (2:2) with its elders (5:14) and teachers (3:1). He refers to the law of Moses repeatedly (1:25; 2:8-12; 4:11), cites the foundational creed of Israel (the Shema, 2:19), and names God as "the Lord of Heaven's Armies" (5:4), a common OT title for God. James also uses the literary elements of OT wisdom literature (1:5; 3:13, 17) and prophetic exhortations (4:13; 5:1). He appeals to Israel's heroes (Abraham, 2:21, 23; Rahab, 2:25; Job, 5:11; Elijah, 5:17). He does not, however, explicitly mention the ceremonial elements of Judaism, such as the Sabbath, circumcision, or food laws.

Works. The apparent differences between James and Paul regarding "good works" must be understood in their differing historical and theological contexts. Paul emphasized that people could not get right with God by "obeying the law" (Rom 3:20, 28; Gal 2:16) or, indeed by anything that they might do (Rom 4:3-5). Only God, through his initiative of grace, could overcome the problem of human sin; a person must respond to him by faith. Both Paul and James believed this, but they differed in their emphasis. Paul emphasized that works of the law do not produce salvation (Eph 2:8-9), and so he opposed circumcision of Gentiles (Rom 4:5; Gal 2:11-12; 5:2-6).

James, however, was addressing Jewish Christian communities. He speaks of "good works" as charitable deeds (2:14-18, 21-24). Good deeds are faithful obedience; they are the evidence of a genuine relationship with God based on faith. True biblical faith will always produce good deeds pleasing to God. James emphasizes that faith cannot be reduced to a mere affirmation of truth (2:19), and faithfulness does not allow for divided allegiance between God and the world (1:8; 4:4, 7).

1. GREETINGS FROM JAMES (1:1)

1 This letter is from James, a slave of God and of the Lord Jesus Christ.

I am writing to the “twelve tribes”—Jewish believers scattered abroad.
Greetings!

2. FAITH AND ENDURANCE (1:2-18)

2 Dear brothers and sisters, when troubles of any kind come your way, consider it an opportunity for great joy. 3 For you know that when your faith is tested, your endurance has a chance to grow. 4 So let it grow, for when your endurance is fully developed, you will be perfect and complete, needing nothing.

5 If you need wisdom, ask our generous God, and he will give it to you. He will not rebuke you for asking. 6 But when you ask him, be sure that your faith is in God alone. Do not waver, for a person with divided loyalty is as unsettled as a wave of the sea that is blown and tossed by the wind. 7 Such people should not expect to receive anything from the Lord. 8 Their loyalty is divided between God and the world, and they are unstable in everything they do.

9 Believers who are poor have something to boast about, for God has honored them. 10 And those who are rich should boast that God has humbled them. They will fade away like a little flower in the field. 11 The hot sun rises and the grass withers; the little flower droops and falls, and its beauty fades away. In the same way, the rich will fade away with all of their achievements.

12 God blesses those who patiently endure testing and temptation. Afterward they will receive the crown of life that God has promised to those who love him. 13 And remember, when you are being tempted, do not say, “God is tempting me.” God is never tempted to do wrong, and he never tempts anyone else. 14 Temptation comes from our own desires, which entice us and drag us away. 15 These desires give birth to sinful actions. And when sin is allowed to grow, it gives birth to death.

16 So don’t be misled, my dear brothers and sisters. 17 Whatever is good and perfect is a gift coming down to us from God our Father, who created all the lights in the heavens. He never changes or casts a shifting shadow. 18 He chose to give birth to us by giving us his true word. And we, out of all creation, became his prized possession.

1:1 James: See “James, the Brother of Jesus” at Acts 15:13-21, p. 1858. • By identifying his readers as the “twelve tribes,” James affirms Christianity’s continuity with Israel’s heritage. The Exile had dispersed the twelve tribes, but Jewish interpreters looked forward to God reuniting them (see Psalms of Solomon 17:26-28; Testament of Benjamin 9:2; cp. Ezek 37:15-28; Matt 19:28). Christ has spiritually brought an end to Israel’s exile and reunited the tribes. • Jews scattered abroad (Greek diaspora) were living outside Palestine (John 7:35; Acts 2:5; 8:1; 11:19). • Greetings! (Greek chairein): This greeting is typical in first-century Greek letters (Acts 15:23; 23:26) and interpersonally (Matt 26:49; Luke 1:28).

1:2-4 Enduring troubles and temptations is a recurring theme (1:12-15; 5:7-12). Failure to endure is “wandering from the truth” that requires being “saved from death” (5:19-20).

1:2 Dear brothers and sisters: Literally My brothers, also in 1:16, 19. See note on 2:1. • James uses a wordplay: joy (Greek chara) in 1:2 is related to greetings in 1:1.

1:5-8 James introduces wisdom as a recurring theme (cp. 3:13-18).

1:6 Do not waver, for a person with divided loyalty: The Greek is often translated Do not doubt, for a person who doubts, but the sense here is of a person whose loyalty is divided between God and the world (see 1:8).

1:8 Their loyalty is divided between God and the world (literally They are double-minded): James might have created the Greek word used here. He emphasizes the need for confidence in God alone.

1:9-11 Poverty and wealth are a recurring theme (cp. 2:1-26; 4:13-5:11). James does not promise material wealth to the righteous poor but announces a future reversal in heaven.

1:9 Believers who are: Literally The brother who is; see note on 2:1. • something to boast about: In the NT, boasting is usually viewed negatively (3:14; 4:16; Eph 2:9), but here it means boasting about what God has done (2:5; Rom 15:18; 1 Cor 1:31; Gal 6:14).

1:10 those who are rich should boast: With irony, James is describing the dreadful fate of the ungodly rich who elevate themselves by oppressing poor and vulnerable people (see 2:6-8; 5:1-6).

1:12-27 James addresses the same three topics as in 1:2-11, adding a new dimension to each topic. External testing (1:2-4) becomes internal temptation (1:11-18); the need for wisdom (1:5-8) is related to controlling angry speech (1:19-21); and poverty/wealth relate to the need to act upon God’s word (1:22-25). The section then summarizes these themes (1:26-27).

1:12 Those who love him are faithful and obedient (cp. 1:22-25; 2:5; Deut 7:9; 1 Jn 5:2).

1:13 do not say: James is using diatribe, in which an imaginary opponent presents a contrary opinion. In this way he is able to voice the readers’ possible objection and immediately refute it (also in 2:3, 16, 18; 4:13). • God is never tempted to do wrong: Or God should not be put to a test by evil people; the alternate translation dulls the parallelism with he never tempts.

1:14 Like hooks for fishing or traps for hunting, desires . . . entice us into sin and drag us away from faithfulness to God.

1:15 When evil desires conceive, they give birth to sinful actions (literally sin, personified as an infant). When the infant sin is allowed to grow to full maturity, it gives birth to death, in opposition to “the crown of [eternal] life” (1:12).

1:17 from God our Father, who created all the lights in the heavens (literally from above, from the Father of lights): God is the Father of lights since he created everything in the heavens (Gen 1:3, 14-17). In contrast to the moving lights in the heavens, God never changes or casts a shifting shadow (some manuscripts read He never changes, as a shifting shadow does).

1:18 God’s true word is the Good News (1:21-23; 1 Pet 1:23-25). • give birth: The imagery of a mother giving birth shows the full scope of God’s parental love for his children (cp. Luke 13:34; John 1:13; 3:3-8; 1 Pet 1:23). • we, out of all creation, became his prized possession: Literally we became a kind of firstfruit of his creatures (cp. Exod 23:16; Lev 23:9-14; 1 Cor 15:20; Col 1:18). Christians are examples of the ultimate restoration of all creation (Rom 8:20-22).

3. LISTENING AND DOING (1:19-27)

¹⁹Understand this, my dear brothers and sisters: You must all be quick to listen, slow to speak, and slow to get angry. ²⁰Human anger does not produce the righteousness God desires. ²¹So get rid of all the filth and evil in your lives, and humbly accept the word God has planted in your hearts, for it has the power to save your souls.

²²But don't just listen to God's word. You must do what it says. Otherwise, you are only fooling yourselves. ²³For if you listen to the word and don't obey, it is like glancing at your face in a mirror. ²⁴You see yourself, walk away, and forget what you look like. ²⁵But if you look carefully into the perfect law that sets you free, and if you do what it says and don't forget what you heard, then God will bless you for doing it.

²⁶If you claim to be religious but don't control your tongue, you are fooling yourself, and your religion is worthless. ²⁷Pure and genuine religion in the sight of God the Father means caring for orphans and widows in their distress and refusing to let the world corrupt you.

4. POVERTY AND GENEROSITY (2:1-26)

A Warning against Prejudice

2 My dear brothers and sisters, how can you claim to have faith in our glorious Lord Jesus Christ if you favor some people over others?

²For example, suppose someone comes into your meeting dressed in fancy clothes and expensive jewelry, and another comes in who is poor and dressed in dirty clothes. ³If you give special attention and a good seat to the rich person, but you say to the poor one, "You can stand over there, or else sit on the floor"—well, ⁴doesn't this discrimination show that your judgments are guided by evil motives?

⁵Listen to me, dear brothers and sisters. Hasn't God chosen the poor in this world to be rich in faith? Aren't they the ones who will inherit the Kingdom he promised to those who love him? ⁶But you dishonor the poor! Isn't it the rich who oppress you and drag you into court? ⁷Aren't they the ones who slander Jesus Christ, whose noble name you bear?

⁸Yes indeed, it is good when you obey the royal law as found in the Scriptures: "Love

1:20 Human anger: Literally A man's anger. • the righteousness: Or the justice.

1:21 get rid of: Literally put off, like filthy clothing; cp. Eph 4:22; 1 Pet 2:1. • the word God has planted . . . has the power to save your souls: James emphasizes that Christians are called to respond to a word that God himself has put within our very beings (in fulfillment of Jer 31:31-34). • The soul refers to the whole person (so also in 5:20; see Gen 2:7; 1 Pet 3:20).

1:22-23 In several places, James appears to be reflecting on Jesus' teachings. These verses reflect the teaching of Jesus (Matt 7:24, 26; Luke 6:46, 49).

1:22 don't just listen to God's word: Reading the scriptures was an important part of worship (Luke 4:16-17; Acts 13:13-16; Col 4:16; 1 Tim 4:13). Since most people could not read and copies were not readily available, they listened to the readings in public worship.

1:24 forget what you look like: The problem is not the poor quality of an ancient mirror but the inattention of the viewer (cp. Matt 7:24-27).

1:25 law that sets you free: God's word gives us new birth and salvation (1:18, 21) but demands that we do what it says (1:22-25).

1:26-27 control (literally bridle) your tongue: James uses the graphic image of the bridle in a horse's mouth to imply the relationship between speech and a whole body of behaviors (cp. 3:1-13).

• Orphans and widows were the most helpless members of ancient society. They were dependent upon the care of others, since the husband and father was the means of economic support and social contact (Exod 22:22-24; Deut 10:18). Christians are called to take care of the helpless (cp. 1 Tim 5:3-16). • In James, the world stands in opposition to God (cp. 3:15; 4:4; Rom 12:2; 1 Jn 2:15-17).

2:1-4 James gives a realistic illustration to enforce his prohibition against favoring the wealthy.

2:1 dear brothers and sisters (literally brothers; also in 2:5, 14): The Greek word used here means fellow Christians of either sex. James frequently begins a new section with this affectionate greeting (1:2, 16; 2:14; 3:1; 5:7, 19), soliciting their loyal response. • James contrasts our glorious Lord Jesus Christ with the glory of a well-dressed man (2:2). Christ's glory includes his resurrection, exaltation, and second coming.

2:2 your meeting (literally your synagogue): This word refers to the gathering of people rather than the building in which they met. • The fancy clothes and expensive jewelry of the rich, in contrast to the dirty clothes of the poor, symbolize the contrast in socioeconomic status.

2:3-4 It is natural to give special attention to wealthy people because of their social status, political power, and potential generosity as patrons. By serving and publicly honoring the wealthy, the church could gain whatever economic benefits they wished to give. James warns that this discrimination reflects evil motives, a division between loyalty to God (1:6) and a desire for the benefits of worldly wealth (4:4).

2:5 Listen to me: Employing this rhetorical device for emphasis (see Deut 6:3; Amos 3:1; Matt 13:18; Acts 15:13), James presents his argument against favoring the rich. • Hasn't God chosen the poor? God's special concern for the poor is reflected in the OT (Exod 23:11; 1 Sam 2:8; Ps 12:5) and in the ministries of Jesus and Paul (Luke 4:18; 6:20; 1 Cor 1:26-28). This concern was emphasized by the Jerusalem church (Gal 2:9-10), of which James was the leader. • inherit the Kingdom: The Kingdom of God was central to the teaching of Jesus (Matt 12:8; Mark 1:15; Luke 17:21). Christ already rules from his place at the right hand of the Father, yet his Kingdom will be fully realized only when the Son of Man comes (Matt 25:31, 34; 1 Cor 15:24-28).

2:7 slander Jesus Christ, whose noble name you bear (literally slander the noble name spoken over you): The name spoken over you is Jesus Christ (2:1). It is a sign of ownership, pronounced at the time of conversion and baptism.

2:8-13 James applies biblical evidence to counter the common practice of favoring rich and powerful people.

2:8 Christians are to obey (literally fulfill) the royal law, just as Jesus fulfilled the law by his coming (Matt 5:17) and his teaching (Matt 22:34-40). • The law is your neighbor as yourself.”⁹But if you favor some people over others, you are committing a sin. You are guilty of breaking the law.

¹⁰For the person who keeps all of the ^κlaws except one is as guilty as a person who has broken all of God’s laws. ¹¹For the same God who said, “You must not commit adultery,” also said, “You must not murder.” So if you murder someone but do not commit adultery, you have still broken the law.

¹²So whatever you say or whatever you do, remember that you will be judged by the law that sets you ^αfree. ¹³There will be no mercy for those who have not shown ^βmercy to others. But if you have been merciful, God will be ^βmerciful when he judges you.

Faith without Good Deeds Is Dead

¹⁴What good is it, dear brothers and sisters, if you say you have ^εfaith but don’t show it by your actions? Can that kind of ^εfaith save anyone? ¹⁵Suppose you see a brother or sister who has no food or clothing, ¹⁶and you say, “Good-bye and have a good day; stay warm and eat well”—but then you don’t give that person any food or clothing. What good does that do?

¹⁷So you see, faith by itself isn’t enough. Unless it produces good deeds, it is dead and useless.

¹⁸Now someone may argue, “Some people have faith; others have good deeds.” But I say, “How can you show me your faith if you don’t have good deeds? I will show you my faith by my good deeds.”

¹⁹You say you have faith, for you believe that there is one God. Good for you! Even the ^δdemons believe this, and they tremble in terror. ²⁰How foolish! Can’t you see that ^εfaith without good deeds is useless?

²¹Don’t you remember that our ancestor Abraham was shown to be right with God by his actions when he offered his son Isaac on the altar? ²²You see, his faith and his actions worked together. His actions

James’s conspicuous emphasis on faithfulness to God argues for charitable deeds as an expression of faith (2:14-26). A faith relationship with God cannot be based merely on believing a true statement (2:19). Saving faith (2:14) results in actions (1:22-25) which emulate God, who generously gives good gifts (1:5, 17; 4:6). Faith and good deeds are inseparable. As with Abraham, good deeds show that a person has complete faith (1:4) and is righteous before God (2:23; Gen 15:6).

Our Lord taught (Matt 5:16) and modeled faith that does good deeds, and Paul also affirmed the need for good deeds (Rom 2:6; Gal 6:5-10; Eph 2:10; Phil 2:12-13; 1 Thes 1:3). Christians are to endure testings (1:3) and temptations (1:13-14), receive wisdom (1:5-6), inherit the Kingdom (2:5), pray for the sick, receive forgiveness (5:15), and rescue the wanderer (5:20). All of these things can be understood as “faith expressing itself in love” (Gal 5:6).

called royal because it belongs to the Kingdom (2:5) and was articulated by our glorious Lord (King). • as found in the Scriptures: James changes from a general reference to the law to a specific written commandment from the holiness code (Lev 19:1-37). It specifies how our love for God is to be expressed in relationships with other people (see Lev 19:18; Deut 6:5). • “Love your neighbor as yourself”: This quotation from Lev 19:18 requires identifying with the neighbor as though the neighbor were yourself.

2:9 Favoritism violates the command to love one’s neighbor (2:8).

2:11 This verse quotes Exod 20:13-14; Deut 5:17-18.

2:12 The law . . . sets you free from the controlling power of sin (see 1:25 and note) and thereby promotes endurance and growth toward perfection (1:3-4).

2:13 James concludes this section (2:1-13) by correlating divine mercy with human mercy (see also Matt 6:14-15; Eph 4:32).

2:14-26 James explains why Christians need to be concerned about the judgment of their actions (2:12-13): Real faith must be accompanied by good deeds (see 1:22-25).

2:14 if you say you have faith: James writes to Christians who need to be stimulated to produce actions that should arise from genuine faith. Paul makes the same point (see, e.g., Gal 5:6) but often criticizes people for trying to base their relationship with God on what they do (Rom 3:20, 28; 4:3-5; Gal 2:16; 3:1-14).

2:15-16 Suppose you see: As in 2:2-4, James gives an illustration of “faith” that is useless. • no food or clothing: In first-century Palestine and the Roman world in general, many poverty-stricken persons lacked the bare necessities of life. • stay warm and eat well: This sentence probably expresses a presumption that God would provide the needs of the poor person. The speaker might suppose that he needs only to express his faith to make it happen. But without his participation (action), it is an empty wish.

2:18-19 James demonstrates the futility of believing that something is true without acting upon it. • Now someone may argue: James presents another diatribe (see note on 1:13), in which he presents a hypothetical counter-argument that one person may have the gift of faith while another person has the gift of works (see 1 Cor 12:7-9).

2:19 that there is one God: Some manuscripts read that God is one; see Deut 6:4, which is the basic confession of Israel’s faith. • the demons believe: They know that there is one God, and he is their enemy (Mark 1:24).

2:20-26 James demonstrates from Scripture that genuine faith finds expression in action.

2:22 This verse explains 2:21 so it won’t be misunderstood: Abraham was not justified by his actions alone; instead, his faith and his actions worked together. This describes the full scope of Abraham’s faithful response to God throughout his life (see Gen 12:1-4; 18:1-27).

made his faith complete. ²³And so it happened just as the Scriptures say: "Abraham believed God, and God counted him as righteous because of his faith." He was even called the friend of God. ²⁴So you see, we are shown to be right with God by what we do, not by faith alone.

²⁵Rahab the prostitute is another example. She was shown to be right with God by her actions when she hid those messengers and sent them safely away by a different road. ²⁶Just as the body is dead without breath, so also faith is dead without good works.

5. SPEECH AND CONFLICT (3:1–4:3)

Controlling the Tongue

3 Dear brothers and sisters, not many of you should become teachers in the church, for we who teach will be judged more strictly. ²Indeed, we all make many mistakes. For if we could control our tongues, we would be ¹perfect and could also control ourselves in every other way.

³We can make a large horse go wherever we want by means of a small bit in its mouth. ⁴And a small rudder makes a huge ship turn wherever the pilot chooses to go, even though the winds are strong. ⁵In the same way, the tongue is a small thing that makes grand speeches.

But a tiny spark can set a great forest on fire. ⁶And among all the parts of the body, the tongue is a flame of fire. It is a whole world of wickedness, corrupting your entire body. It can set your whole life on fire, for it is set on fire by ⁶hell itself.

⁷People can tame all kinds of animals, birds, reptiles, and fish, ⁸but no one can tame the ¹tongue. It is restless and evil, full of deadly poison. ⁹Sometimes it praises our Lord and Father, and sometimes it curses those who have been made in the image of God. ¹⁰And so ¹ blessing and cursing come pouring out of the same mouth. Surely, my brothers and sisters, this is not right! ¹¹Does a spring of water bubble out with both fresh water and bitter water? ¹²Does a fig tree produce olives, or a ¹grapevine produce figs? No, and you can't draw fresh water from a salty spring.

True Wisdom Comes from God

¹³If you are wise and understand God's ways, prove it by living an honorable life, doing good works with the humility that comes from wisdom. ¹⁴But if you are bitterly jealous and there is selfish ambition in your heart, don't

2:23 it happened just as the Scriptures say (literally the Scripture was fulfilled): James saw the offering of Isaac (Gen 22) as the fulfillment of Abraham's pledge of faith and God's declaration of Abraham's righteousness (quoted from Gen 15:6). • He was even called the friend of God: See Isa 41:8. James emphasizes the nature of faith as a relationship of undivided loyalty (1:5-8; 4:4; John 15:15).

2:24 not by faith alone: That is, not like the demons who merely believe something is true (2:19), but by a belief that results in generous deeds like those of God himself (1:17). Though some have thought that this teaching contradicts what Paul taught, it does not. Paul does not speak against good deeds themselves, but about trying to receive forgiveness of sins because of good deeds (Rom 3:28; Gal 2:16). Just as Paul understands that love and generosity necessarily issue from a true faith (Gal 5:6), so also James knows that good deeds can result only from authentic faith that results in a commitment to God (2:18, 26).

2:25 James presents Rahab the prostitute (see Josh 2:1) as his second example of good works that must accompany genuine faith. She declared her belief that the Lord God of Israel was the only God (Josh 2:9-11), and her faith was made perfect by her actions when she provided hospitality and a means of escape to the Israelite spies (Josh 2:1-6; 6:25; Heb 11:31).

2:26 Good works are as necessary to faith as breath is to a physical body (Gen 2:7). We cannot have one without the other. • without breath: Or without spirit.

3:1 Dear brothers and sisters: Literally My brothers; also in 3:10. See note on 2:1. • Becoming teachers was one way to improve social status in the early church (1 Cor 12:28; Eph 4:11; 1 Tim 5:17; cp. Acts 5:34). Such honor would compensate for the shame imposed upon Christians as social outsiders (2:6-7). But the conspicuous role of teachers symbolizes the power of human speech to benefit or harm the church.

3:2 we all: James's primary concern is with the speech of church members as they influence interpersonal relationships (3:9-10, 14; 4:1-3).

3:6 It is a whole world of wickedness: The tongue acts as an agent of the whole unrighteous world which is opposed to God (1:27; 4:4). • for it is set on fire by hell itself: Or for it will burn in hell (Greek Gehenna). Gehenna is the place of eternal punishment (Matt 5:22, 30; 23:15), in contrast to Hades, the abode of the dead (Luke 16:23; Acts 2:31). The reference to hell is an allusion to the devil (4:7; Matt 5:22; John 8:44) as the ultimate source of evil speech.

3:8 no one can tame the tongue: The tongue has an astonishing capacity for committing evil. If its evil is motivated by hell (3:6), it certainly cannot be tamed by mere human effort. • full of deadly poison: This might allude to the serpent in the Garden of Eden (Gen 3:1), who is identified with the devil (Rev 20:2).

3:9 praises . . . curses: Praising our Lord and Father is the best activity of the tongue, whereas cursing those made in his image is one of the worst, because it is an implicit curse on God himself (Gen 1:26-27; 9:6).

3:11 Some springs, especially in the upper sources of the Jordan River, did produce fresh water and bitter water; such brackish springs could not support a town. Similarly, if a person's speech mixes foul with sweet, it will not build up the community.

3:12 from a salty spring: Literally from salt.

3:13 If you are wise and understand: The wisdom that comes from God (1:5) is not mere intellectual skill nor the collection of information, it is practical insight and spiritual understanding which expresses itself in moral uprightness, as described in 3:17-18 (see also Job 28:28; Prov 1:2-4; 2:10-15).

3:14 The truth is that wisdom cannot be associated with jealousy and selfish ambition. Only in humility can we receive God's true word (1:18, 21).

cover up the truth with boasting and lying.
¹⁵For jealousy and selfishness are not God's kind of wisdom. Such things are earthly, unspiritual, and demonic. ¹⁶For wherever there is jealousy and selfish ambition, there you will find disorder and evil of every kind.

¹⁷But the wisdom from above is first of all pure. It is also peace loving, gentle at all times, and willing to yield to others. It is full of ^kmercy and the fruit of good deeds. It shows no favoritism and is always sincere. ¹⁸And those who are peacemakers will plant seeds of peace and reap a harvest of righteousness.

Conflict from Selfish Prayer

4 What is causing the quarrels and fights among you? Don't they come from the evil desires at war within you? ²You want what you don't have, so you scheme and kill to get it. You are jealous of what others have, but you can't get it, so you fight and wage war to take it away from them. Yet you don't have what you want because you don't ask God for it. ³And even when you ask, you don't get it because your motives are all wrong—you want only what will give you pleasure.

6. DRAWING CLOSE TO GOD (4:4-10)

Seek God's Favor

⁴You adulterers! Don't you realize that friendship with the world makes you an enemy of God? I say it again: If you want to be a friend of the world, you make yourself an enemy of God. ⁵Do you think the Scriptures have no meaning? They say that God is passionate that the spirit he has placed within us should be faithful to him. ⁶And he gives grace generously. As the Scriptures say,

"God opposes the proud but gives grace to the humble."

Resist the Devil

⁷So humble yourselves before God. Resist the ^adevil, and he will flee from you. ⁸Come close to God, and God will come close to you. Wash your hands, you sinners; purify your hearts, for your loyalty is divided between God and the world. ⁹Let there be tears for what you have done. Let there be sorrow and deep grief. Let there be sadness instead of laughter, and gloom instead of joy. ¹⁰Humble yourselves before the Lord, and he will lift you up in honor.

7. WARNINGS (4:11-5:6)

Warning against Judging Others

¹¹Don't speak evil against each other, dear brothers and sisters. If you criticize and judge each other, then you are criticizing and judging God's ^blaw. But your job is to obey the ^blaw, not to judge whether ^bit applies to you. ¹²God alone, who gave the

3:15 The wisdom that is earthly is not part of the good creation; it is the opposite of heavenly wisdom because it excludes God. It is unspiritual because it does not acknowledge or respond to God's Spirit (1 Cor 2:14; Jude 1:19). It is demonic since it comes from the devil, the ultimate source of this destructive wisdom (3:6; 4:6; 1 Tim 4:1).

3:18 James uses an agricultural image to emphasize the benefits of living by the wisdom from above: Those who plant seeds of peace in relationships will enjoy a luxuriant harvest of righteousness (or of good things, or of justice) in those relationships (cp. Matt 5:9).

4:1 quarrels and fights (literally wars and battles): James uses military imagery to declare that their own evil desires at war within them were the immediate cause of the battles among church members. James uses the Greek word translated evil desires again in 4:3 (translated "pleasure") to enclose the entire paragraph and indicate the source of conflict and unanswered prayer (Luke 8:14; Titus 3:3).

4:2 you scheme and kill: Killing was the extreme, but logical, outcome of their rapacious attitude. Some of James's readers might have followed the Jewish Zealot movement and engaged in murder to benefit their cause. Hostile attitudes and violent methods do not provide satisfaction—you can't get what you want by them.

4:4-10 James explains the causes of conflict: love for the world, divided loyalty, and arrogant criticism (4:11-12). He gives exhortations which will rectify these causes and lead to peace.

4:4 You adulterers (literally You adulteresses): James uses this prophetic imagery (see, e.g., Jer 3:6; Hos 3:1) because his readers were seeking what friendship with the world could give them—social acceptance (2:1-4), prestige (3:1), or wealth (4:13). Divided loyalty toward God (4:8) is like adultery against one's spouse. • In the ancient world, friend was used as a title for special and exclusive relationships (Luke 23:12, Herod and Pilate; John 19:12, Pilate as "friend of Caesar"; see also 1 Maccabees 2:18; 6:28). Both Moses (Exod 33:11) and Abraham were called friends of God (2:23; 2 Chr 20:7; Isa 41:8; cp. John 15:15). • The world consists of society that is opposed to God and his kingdom. The world is guided by earthly wisdom, not heavenly (3:15-17), and is characterized by evil desires, fighting, and killing (4:2-3).

4:5 Scriptures . . . say: James summarizes one of the messages of Scripture, that God is passionate that the spirit he has placed within us should be faithful to him (or that the spirit God has placed within us is filled with envy, or that the Holy Spirit, whom God has placed within us, opposes our envy).

4:6 "God opposes the proud but gives grace to the humble": Prov 3:34 (Greek version).

4:7 Resist the devil: See also Eph 6:11; 1 Pet 5:8.

4:8 Come close to God: This is the language of friendship (2:23) and loyalty (1:6-8). • Wash your hands . . . purify your hearts: The language of ceremonial cleansing is applied to the inner purity of one's actions and intentions (cp. Mark 7:1-23).

4:10 To those who humble themselves before him, God gives honor in place of the shame of their persecution and oppression (2:6-7).

4:11-12 These verses reflect on Matt 7:1 and Luke 6:37 (see note on 1:22-23).

4:11 Don't speak evil against each other: This exhortation for peace in the Christian community requires that Christians not slander each other. Slandering one's neighbor is the same as slandering God's law, because the law law, is the Judge. He alone has the power to save or to destroy. So what right do you have to judge your neighbor?

Warning about Self-Confidence

¹³Look here, you who say, "Today or tomorrow we are going to a certain town and will stay there a year. We will do business there and make a profit." ¹⁴How do you know what your life will be like tomorrow? Your life is like the morning fog—it's here a little while, then it's gone. ¹⁵What you ought to say is, "If the Lord wants us to, we will live and do this or that." ¹⁶Otherwise you are boasting about your own pretentious plans, and all such boasting is evil.

¹⁷Remember, it is sin to know what you ought to do and then not do it.

Warning to the Rich

5 Look here, you rich people: Weep and groan with anguish because of all the terrible troubles ahead of you. ²Your wealth is rotting away, and your fine clothes are moth-eaten rags. ³Your gold and silver are corroded. The very wealth you were counting on will eat away your flesh like fire. This corroded treasure you have hoarded will testify against you on the day of judgment. ⁴For listen! Hear the cries of the field workers whom you have cheated of their pay. The cries of those who harvest your fields have reached the ears of the Lord of Heaven's Armies.

⁵You have spent your years on earth in luxury, satisfying your every desire. You have fattened yourselves for the day of slaughter. ⁶You have condemned and killed innocent people, who do not resist you.

8. FINAL EXHORTATIONS (5:7-20)

Patience and Endurance

⁷Dear brothers and sisters, be patient as you wait for the Lord's return. Consider the farmers who patiently wait for the rains in the fall and in the spring. They eagerly look for the valuable harvest to ripen. ⁸You, too, must be patient. Take courage, for the coming of the Lord is near.

⁹Don't grumble about each other, brothers and sisters, or you will be judged. For look—the Judge is standing at the door!

¹⁰For examples of patience in suffering, dear brothers and sisters, look at the prophets who spoke in the name of the Lord. ¹¹We give great honor to those who endure under suffering. For instance, you know about Job, a man of great endurance. You can see how the Lord was kind to him at the end, for the Lord is full of tenderness and mercy.

¹²But most of all, my brothers and sisters, never take an oath, by heaven or earth or anything else. Just say a simple yes or no, so that you will not sin and be condemned.

prohibits slander and demands love for one's neighbor (2:8; Lev 19:16-18; Matt 7:1-5). • dear brothers and sisters: Literally brothers; see note on 2:1.

4:13-16 Itinerant merchants depended on personal assertiveness as a solution to their poverty and low social status. James urges greater recognition of God's providence and warns against arrogantly planning events which one cannot really control.

4:15 The Lord has authority over life and death (Deut 32:39; 1 Sam 2:6; Matt 10:28).

4:16 Christians may boast about what God has done (1:9-10), but not about their own arrogant plans, which assume that God has no claim or authority over their lives.

4:17 Remember: This verse is probably a maxim that James expected his readers to recognize. Its source is unknown, but it is consistent with the teaching of Scripture (cp. Deut 24:15; Prov 3:27-28; Matt 25:41-46; Luke 12:47).

5:1-6 This section denounces the rich people for their greed and arrogant oppression of the poor (Lev 19:13). James warns them to repent while they can; if they do not, they will face terrible troubles . . . on the day of judgment.

5:2 The wealth and fine clothes are so excessive that they deteriorate from lack of use; their destruction is a sign of the anticipated judgment.

5:3 Material wealth, represented by gold and silver, becomes corroded in the face of God's judgment. In fact, it will testify against them because it was unjustly gotten (5:4) and wickedly used (5:5-6).

5:4 These rich people (5:1) were exploitive landowners. Like those in 2:6 who oppressed and dragged Christians into court, they were exploiting the day laborers whose work was to harvest their fields. • cries . . . have reached the ears of the Lord: God hears the prayers of the oppressed (see Deut 24:14-15). Even while the laborers are still suffering, the Lord has heard (see Exod 3:7). • the Lord of Heaven's Armies (1 Sam 17:45; Ps 103:20-21; Rom 9:29): This title emphasizes God's power to act when the oppressed cannot.

5:6 killed innocent people (or killed the Righteous One): In this context, the phrase most likely refers to innocent people such as the oppressed laborers in this paragraph rather than to Jesus

(cp. Acts 3:14; 7:52). • who do not resist you: Or Don't they resist you? or Doesn't God oppose you? or Aren't they now accusing you before God?

5:7-8 Dear brothers and sisters: Literally Brothers; also in 5:9, 10, 12, 19. See note on 2:1. • be patient: This is the ultimate resolution for the poor in their economic pressures and for the unjust treatment by the wicked rich (5:1-6; see 2:6-7). Even though the poor have been marginalized and oppressed, they must not give up nor strike out at their oppressors. At the Lord's return, the faithful will receive their final reward (Isa 40:10; Luke 6:20-35; 1 Cor 15:23; 1 Pet 1:17; 5:4; Rev 22:12).

5:9 The Judge is standing at the door! The coming of Christ is imminent.

5:10 This verse reflects on Matt 5:11 and Luke 6:23 (see note on 1:22-23).

5:11 Job was a man of great endurance because he remained faithful to God throughout his hardships (Job 1:20-21; 2:9-10) despite his complaints (Job 3:1-26; 12:1-3; 16:1-3).

The Power of Prayer

¹³Are any of you suffering hardships? You should pray. Are any of you happy? You should sing praises. ¹⁴Are any of you sick? You should call for the elders of the church to come and pray over you, ¹⁵anointing you with oil in the name of the Lord. ¹⁵Such a prayer offered in faith will heal the sick, and the Lord will make you well. And if you have committed any ¹⁶sins, you will be forgiven.

¹⁶Confess your sins to each other and pray for each other so that you may be healed. The earnest prayer of a righteous person has great power and produces wonderful results. ¹⁷Elijah was as human as we are, and yet when he prayed earnestly that no rain would fall, none fell for three and a half years! ¹⁸Then, when he prayed again, the sky sent down rain and the earth began to yield its crops.

Restore Wandering Believers

¹⁹My dear brothers and sisters, if someone among you wanders away from the truth and is brought back, ²⁰you can be sure that whoever brings the sinner back from wandering will save that person from death and bring about the forgiveness of many sins.

James announces the future coming of the Lord as Judge (5:7-9; cp. Isa 26:21; Mic 1:3). There will be a day of judgment (5:3). God, who gave the law, is the Judge who has the power to save and destroy (4:12). Those who oppress Christians and slander Jesus Christ (2:6-7) will be slaughtered (5:5-6). Those who follow Christ will be judged by the law that was intended to set them free (2:12) if they neglect to show mercy (2:13), befriend the world (4:4), sin through speech and strife (4:11; 5:9), or live to satisfy evil desires (4:1, 16).

The Lord's coming influences present realities. God already honors the faithful poor and humiliates the exploitative rich (1:9-10; 5:2-3). Christians have already become God's prized possession as God is restoring all things (1:18). James declares that we should obey the royal law of the messianic kingdom (2:8), to which Christians have become heirs (2:5).

The coming of the Lord may not be immediate, so James exhorts Christians to endure (1:4) and wait patiently for Christ's return (5:7-8). Christians will receive the crown of eternal life (1:12) and reap the harvest of righteousness sown by a life of faithfulness to God (3:18).

In view of impending judgment, James exhorts Christians to resist the devil and to humble themselves before God (4:7). We must grieve over sin, live with pure intentions and behavior (4:8-9), and rescue any Christian brother or sister who is headed toward death (5:19-20). Like Elijah, we must practice faith, prayer, and confession (5:13-17). Like Job, we must endure suffering to learn how kind the Lord is at the end (4:10; 5:11).

deceitful oaths by not using any oaths at all (Matt 5:33-37). To swear an oath in the name of the Lord was to call upon him to enforce the oath (Gen 31:53; 1 Kgs 8:31-32). When people swore by heaven or earth they were either feigning reverence while avoiding the use of the divine name, or they were being deceitful with clever verbiage (see Matt 23:16-22). Peter used an oath deceitfully (Matt 26:71-73), but Paul used an oath to confirm his assertions (Rom 1:9; 2 Cor 1:23), which suggests that the prohibition of oaths is not absolute.

5:14 The elders of the church were responsible for the well-being of a local assembly of Christians. Elders were selected because of their relative age and their qualifications as Christian leaders (Acts 14:23; 20:17, 28; 1 Pet 5:1-4; cp. 1 Tim 3:1-7; Titus 1:5-9). • At this early stage in the development of the church (AD 40s; see James Introduction, "Date and Location of Writing," p. 2111), the word church is apparently a non-technical term meaning "congregation, assembly" (cp. Matt 18:17). • The act of anointing . . . with oil symbolizes divine blessing and healing (Isa 1:6; Matt 6:17; Mark 6:13; Luke 10:34).

5:15 a prayer offered in faith will heal the sick: This proverb is a generally true statement, subject to the will of God. Only prayers that embody true faith will be answered affirmatively by the Lord, and faith for a particular healing is a gift that comes from God. See also Mark 9:23; John 14:13-14; 15:7, 16; 16:23-27; 1 Jn 3:22; 5:14-15. • if you have committed any sins: James suggests that some illnesses might be caused by sin, and it is important that the sin also be confessed and forgiven (5:16; see Mark 2:3-12; John 5:14).

5:17 Elijah . . . prayed: See 1 Kgs 17:1; 18:41-46. • three and a half years (see 1 Kgs 18:1; Luke 4:25) is a round figure, half of seven, which symbolizes a period of judgment (cp. Dan 12:7; Rev 11:2).

5:19-20 These verses end the letter as a bookend (inclusio) counterbalancing the exhortation to endurance in 1:2-4.

5:20 To save a sinner from death refers not merely to physical death but to eternal death, the punishment of departing from the truth of the Good News of Jesus Christ (see 1:12, 15; cp. Heb 6:4-8). If the sinful person listens and repents, eternal punishment will be averted (see also Gal 6:1; Jude 1:22-24).

THE FIRST LETTER OF Peter

First Peter has the single focus of encouraging Christians to exhibit faithfulness under the pressure arising from persecution. The believers to whom Peter wrote were in the midst of such “fiery trials.” The culture in which they lived scorned their faith, criticized their morality, and mocked their hope. Peter calls on readers to respond to this pressure with a renewed commitment to live out the grace of God, both to please God and to bear witness to his grace.

SETTING

Many people in the ancient world regarded Christians as strange, superstitious, and disloyal to Roman society. They gathered in secret, practiced strange rituals (such as the Lord’s Supper, widely misunderstood as involving bloody sacrifice), and practiced a countercultural lifestyle. They often refused to serve in the Roman army because they would not take an oath to the emperor. This refusal to go along with the prevailing culture created tensions even more than it does in the modern world. Christians were often discriminated against and accused of misbehavior and were even brought into court on trumped-up charges.

This is the situation that 1 Peter addresses. Believers were undergoing very difficult trials (1:6; 4:12), and non-Christians were saying evil things about them (4:4; see 3:16). The Christians were tempted to retaliate in kind and repay harsh words with harsh words. They were also tempted to compromise their godly lifestyle because of the grief it caused them.

Peter was well aware of these temptations, so his letter encourages Christians to view the accusations and unfair treatment as an opportunity to bear witness to Jesus Christ. By following the example of their own Lord, who lived an exemplary life before all and refused to revile those who reviled him, Christians can practice a lifestyle of true evangelism.

SUMMARY

After a typical opening for a letter (1:1-2), Peter exhorts his readers in the first section (1:3-2:12) to regard their present temporary suffering

◀ The Setting of 1 Peter, early 60s AD. Peter was apparently in ROME toward the end of his life when he wrote this letter to encourage persecuted Christians in the provinces of PONTUS, GALATIA, CAPPADOCIA, ASIA, and BITHYNIA.

as strengthening their faith and preparing them to receive salvation (1:3-9). This salvation is so great that prophets predicted it and angels investigate it (1:10-12). This gift of salvation should result in a life of holiness that recognizes the cost at which God purchased our salvation (1:13-21). The first section concludes with a call for love and patience toward fellow Christians

(1:22-2:3) and a reminder of our status as the new covenant people of God (2:4-12).

Final Greetings

The second part of the letter (2:13-3:12) exhorts Christians to live within recognized authority structures as a witness to a hostile world. Christians are to accept the authority of government (2:13-17), Christian slaves are to accept the authority of their masters (2:18-25), and Christian wives are to accept the authority of their husbands (3:1-6). Husbands are to respond by honoring their wives (3:7). This section ends with general exhortations to behave in a way that God rewards (3:8-12).

The third section (3:13-4:11) begins with a challenge to respond to social pressures with honorable and respectful behavior, even when it results in abuse (3:13-17). Peter reminds us that our hope of redemption is secure because of Christ's life, death, resurrection, and ascension (3:18-22). Peter renews his call to abandon the ways and values of the world around us (4:1-6), and concludes with various exhortations (4:7-11).

The fourth section of the letter (4:12-5:11) opens with a final call to stand firm in the midst of suffering (4:12-19). Peter then concludes with a charge to elders (5:1-4), younger men (5:5), and the church at large (5:5-11). The letter ends with customary greetings (5:12-14).

AUTHOR AND RECIPIENTS

The opening verse of the letter identifies the apostle Peter as the author and the recipients as Christians living in "the provinces of Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia." These Roman provinces occupied the northern portion of Asia Minor, the peninsula that today forms most of Turkey. We have no record of Peter's visiting this area, nor does the letter indicate such a visit. We have little information about Peter's movements and activities after his initial days of ministry in Jerusalem and Judea (Acts 1-12). Luke tells us that after being miraculously rescued from prison, Peter "went to another place" (Acts 12:17). Speculations abound, but we simply don't know where that place was. Peter was back for the council in Jerusalem (Acts 15; AD 49~50) and apparently spent some time ministering in Corinth (see 1 Cor 1:12; 9:5). He was also in Antioch at some point (Gal 2:11-16). Christian tradition places Peter in Rome at the end of his life, where he suffered a martyr's death at the hands of the emperor Nero (probably AD 64 or 65).

PLACE OF WRITING

The apostle was evidently in Rome when he wrote this letter. "Your sister church here in Babylon" (5:13) is almost certainly a reference to the church in Rome. The ancient city of Babylon, well-known from later OT books, was small and insignificant in Peter's day (the first century AD), and it would be surprising if Peter had ever traveled so far east. But because the ancient city of Babylon had been so dominant in the 600s–500s BC, the name came to symbolize the center of world power and cultural influence. The book of Revelation thus uses Babylon as a code word for Rome (see Rev 17:5 and note), and Peter was probably doing the same. If Peter wrote this letter from Rome, then it was probably written toward the end of his life. This supposition is confirmed by the presence of Mark with Peter (see 5:13), whom Christian tradition places in Rome with Peter in the late 50s and early 60s AD. We can surmise, then, that Peter wrote this letter from Rome in the early 60s AD.

OCCASION OF WRITING

Peter's letter was motivated by the severe trials that the Christians in northern Asia Minor were suffering. Attempts have sometimes been made to identify the situation and date of 1 Peter by connecting the letter to a known official persecution. The letter, however, does not suggest that the Christians were being subjected to an official, state-sponsored program of persecution. Most often, pressures came from the general populace, sometimes aided and abetted by local officials.

MEANING AND MESSAGE

First Peter encourages Christians to maintain a life of holiness in the midst of the pressures created by the non-Christian, and often anti-Christian, atmosphere in which they live. Peter pursues three key ideas. First, believers must understand that we have experienced the salvation that God promised through his prophets and which the angels are "eagerly watching" (1:12; see 1:5, 10). We are God's own children (1:14), born again through God's powerful word (1:23). We are the stones that God is using to construct a new, spiritual temple (2:5) and a chosen people called out of darkness into light (2:9–10). Because we enjoy all these privileges, we have become foreigners and aliens in this world (1:1, 17; 2:12). Christians live in the world but do not belong to the world.

The second key idea is that Christians, who are God's people, need to pursue a lifestyle that embodies the values of heaven, not the values of this world. As God's children, Christians need to imitate their Father and become holy, as he is holy (1:15–16). We need to love each other (1:22) and have respect for authorities. Peter sums all this up in his call to "do good," even and especially to those who abuse and cause difficulty (3:16–17; 4:19).

The third key idea is that believers have become a holy people because of Christ. His death and resurrection provide the foundation for our new identity (1:18–19; 3:18), and his victory over evil powers gives us hope and confidence (1:3–9; 3:19–22). Christ provided for our salvation and our holiness and has also given us an example to imitate. Christ did not retaliate when he was criticized, persecuted, and even executed (2:21–25). We are to follow in his footsteps, refuse to retaliate, and use our trials as an occasion to testify about the grace and power of God.

1. GREETINGS (1:1-2)

1 This letter is from Peter, an apostle of Jesus Christ.

I am writing to God's chosen people who are living as foreigners in the provinces of Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia. ²God the Father ^aknew you and chose you long ago, and his Spirit has made you ^bholy. As a result, you have obeyed him and have been ^ccleansed by the blood of Jesus Christ.

May God give you more and more grace and peace.

2. SALVATION AND THE CALL TO HOLINESS (1:3–2:12)

The Hope of Eternal Life (1:3-12)
Salvation, Trials, and Hope

³All praise to God, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ. It is by his great mercy that we have been ^dborn again, because God ^eraised Jesus Christ from the dead. Now we live with great ^fexpectation, ⁴and we have a priceless inheritance—an inheritance that is kept in heaven for you, pure and undefiled, beyond the reach of change and decay. ⁵And through your faith, God is protecting you by his power until you receive this salvation, which is ready to be revealed on the last day for all to see.

⁶So be truly glad. There is wonderful joy ahead, even though you must endure many trials for a little while. ⁷These trials will show that your faith is genuine. It is being tested as fire tests and purifies gold—though your faith is far more precious than mere gold. So when your faith remains strong through many trials, it will bring you much praise and glory and honor on the day when Jesus Christ is revealed to the whole world.

⁸You love him even though you have never seen him. Though you do not see him now, you trust him; and you rejoice with a glorious, inexpressible joy. ⁹The reward for trusting him will be the salvation of your souls.

The Greatness of Salvation

¹⁰This salvation was something even the prophets wanted to know more about when they prophesied about this gracious salvation prepared for you. ¹¹They wondered what time or situation the Spirit of Christ within them was talking about when he told them in advance about Christ's suffering and his great glory afterward.

¹²They were told that their messages were not for themselves, but for you. And now this Good News has been announced to you by those who preached in the power of the Holy Spirit sent from heaven. It is all so wonderful that even the angels are eagerly watching these things happen.

1:1 to God's chosen people: Peter opens his letter to suffering Christians by reminding them of the status they enjoy because of God's act on their behalf (1:2). • living as foreigners (literally exiles of the dispersion): An exile had been uprooted from his or her homeland and taken to live in a foreign country. Peter uses the concept metaphorically to remind Christians that they are living in a world dominated by anti-Christian values and ways of life. • Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia were Roman provinces in what is now Turkey (see map, p. 2120). They might be listed in the order of the route that a messenger would have followed while carrying the letter to the various churches.

1:2 knew you and chose you: When God knows a person, it means that he chooses that person. He chose to enter into relationship with his people before they knew him (cp. Rom 8:29; 11:2).

1:3-9 In most NT letters, the greeting is followed by a section of thanksgiving or praise. Peter praises God that his mercy brings new spiritual life, which produces confident expectation about the future despite sufferings in the meantime.

1:3 born again: New birth is a way of describing Christian conversion (cp. John 3:1-13; Jas 1:18; 1 John 2:29; 3:9; 4:7; 5:1, 4, 18). This Greek word, which occurs again in 1:23, brackets the message of ch 1.

1:4 The language of inheritance frequently refers to what God has promised his people. Originally applied to the land of Israel (see Deut 3:28), the inheritance came to mean the people of God and God's presence with them (see Ps 33:12; Ezek 44:28). In the NT, the inheritance is the spiritual benefit and eternal salvation that God promises to his people (see Eph 1:11; Heb 9:15).

1:5 until you receive this salvation: In the NT, salvation often refers to final rescue from sin and death at the time of Christ's return. This hope encourages believers to persevere to the end (see also 1:9, 10; 2:2; 4:18). • ready to be revealed: The future revealing of God's salvation contrasts with the present hiddenness of God and his purposes (see also 1:7, 13).

1:6 So be truly glad: Or So you are truly glad.

1:7 will show that your faith is genuine:

Faith, like gold, is purified as it is tested. • The NLT understands praise and glory and honor as being given by God to the faithful Christian. The phrase could also mean that a faithful Christian life brings praise and glory and honor to God.

1:9 salvation of your souls: The Greek word translated souls often refers to the whole person and not just to some part or aspect of the person (Matt 20:28; Mark 8:35). Salvation affects our whole person, not the inner person only.

1:10-12 Our salvation is very great: The OT prophets predicted it, and angels long to investigate it.

1:11 They wondered: Much was revealed about the future to the OT prophets, but they did not know precisely when or how the salvation they predicted would come about. • The Greek translated what time could also mean what person. The prophets knew that a Messiah would come and that he would suffer before he was glorified, but they did not know who that Messiah would be.

1:12 eagerly watching: The same Greek word is used of the disciples when they peered into Jesus' empty tomb (Luke 24:12; John 20:5, 11).

A Call to Holy Living (1:13–2:3)A Call to Holiness

¹³So prepare your minds for action and exercise self-control. Put all your hope in the gracious salvation that will come to you when Jesus Christ is ¹revealed to the world. ¹⁴So you must live as God's obedient children. Don't slip back into your old ways of living to satisfy your own desires. You didn't know any better then. ¹⁵But now you must be holy in everything you do, just as God who chose you is holy. ¹⁶For the Scriptures say, "You must be holy because I am holy."

¹⁷And remember that the heavenly Father to whom you pray has no favorites. He will judge or reward you according to what you do. So you must live in reverent fear of him during your time here as "temporary residents." ¹⁸For you know that God ¹paid a ransom to save you from the ²empty life you inherited from your ancestors. And it was not paid with mere gold or silver, which lose their value. ¹⁹It was the precious blood of Christ, the sinless, spotless ¹Lamb of God. ²⁰God ¹chose him as your ransom long before the world began, but now in these last days he has been revealed for your sake.

²¹Through Christ you have come to trust in God. And you have placed your faith and hope in God because he raised Christ from the dead and gave him great glory.

Living in Love with Fellow Believers

²²You were cleansed from your sins when you obeyed the truth, so now you must show sincere love to each other as brothers and sisters. Love each other deeply with all your ¹heart.

²³For you have been ¹born again, but not to a life that will quickly end. Your new life will last forever because it comes from the eternal, living word of God. ²⁴As the Scriptures say,

"People are like grass;
their beauty is like a flower in the field.

The grass withers and the flower fades.

²⁵ But the word of the Lord remains forever."

And that word is the Good News that was preached to you.

2 So get rid of all evil behavior. Be done with all deceit, hypocrisy, jealousy, and all unkind speech. ²Like newborn babies, you must crave pure spiritual milk so that you will grow into a full experience of ²salvation. Cry out for this nourishment, ³now that you have had a taste of the Lord's kindness.

God's New People (2:4-12)

⁴You are coming to Christ, who is the living cornerstone of God's temple. He was rejected by people, but he was chosen by God for great honor.

⁵And you are living stones that God is building into his spiritual temple. What's more, you are his holy priests. Through the 1:13-21 New birth and the hope of salvation require that Christians live as God's people, separating themselves from the values of the world and emulating the holiness of God, who redeemed them.

1:13 prepare your minds for action (literally gird the loins of your mind): In Peter's day, a man had to tuck the hem of his long robe into his belt before he could work or run.

1:15-16 "You must be holy because I am holy": See Lev 11:44-45; 19:2; 20:7. That God's people must be holy as God is holy is a common refrain in Scripture (see also Ezek 20:12; Eph 1:4; 1 Thes 4:3; Rev 22:11).

1:17 The true citizenship of Christians is in heaven (1:1; see Phil 3:20); they live in this world as "temporary residents" who are uncomfortable with its values and who long for their true home.

1:18 A ransom is paid for the release of a captive. Slaves could sometimes pay a ransom and be released from their master. Christ's death is the price God paid to release people from captivity to sin (1:19).

1:19 the sinless, spotless Lamb of God: The Passover Lamb had to be without defect (Exod 12:5); Christ, who fulfills the meaning of the Passover, was without defect or sin (cp. Heb 4:14-16; 7:26-28).

1:20 With Christ's coming, OT promises of redemption are being fulfilled and the last days have begun.

1:22-2:3 Following his call for holiness (1:13-21), Peter specifies how believers must live in a loving way with fellow Christians.

1:22 must show sincere love to each other as brothers and sisters: Literally must have brotherly love. See note on 5:9. • with all your heart: Some manuscripts read with a pure heart.

1:24-25 These verses quote Isa 40:6-8.

2:2 Believers, who have been "born again" (1:23), are to be like newborn babies in naturally and regularly craving pure spiritual milk. Elsewhere in the NT, milk (in contrast to solid food) stands for elementary Christian teaching (1 Cor 3:2; Heb 5:12-13). This does not imply that Peter's readers are new believers, however; here, it probably refers to God's word in general.

2:3 now that you have had a taste of the Lord's kindness: The words are taken from Ps 34:8. Peter quotes this psalm again in 3:10-12.

2:4-10 Throughout the letter, Peter encourages the suffering believers by reminding them of their exalted spiritual status. In this paragraph, he presents the Christian community as the new temple built on the foundation of Christ, and as heirs of the blessings granted to God's covenant people.

2:4 rejected by people, but he was chosen by God for great honor: This is an allusion to Ps 118:22, which is quoted in 2:7.

2:5 God's people themselves constitute the spiritual temple where God dwells (1 Cor 3:16). Jesus compared his body to a "temple" (John 2:19-22), and the church is called the "body of Christ" (Eph 4:12). God no longer manifests himself in a particular place but in the people who belong to him and praise his good-mediation of Jesus Christ, you offer spiritual sacrifices that please God. ⁶As the Scriptures say,

"I am placing a cornerstone in Jerusalem, chosen for great honor, and anyone who trusts in him will never be disgraced."

⁷Yes, you who trust him recognize the honor God has given him. But for those who reject him,

"The stone that the builders rejected has now become the cornerstone."

⁸And,

"He is the stone that makes people stumble, the rock that makes them fall."

They stumble because they do not obey God's word, and so they meet the fate that was planned for them.

⁹But you are not like that, for you are a chosen people. You are royal priests, a holy nation, God's very own possession. As a result, you can show others the "goodness of God, for he called you out of the darkness into his wonderful light.

God called on the people of Israel to be holy because he had ransomed them from their slavery in Egypt. He has also ransomed us (1:18) through Jesus Christ, who paid the price to release us from slavery to sin and death. God has paid the ultimate price to set us free: He has given "the precious blood of Christ, the sinless, spotless Lamb of God" (1:19). He has purchased our freedom from our "empty way of life" that has no meaning. That is the kind of life we experience before coming to Christ.

At the heart of the lifestyle that God demanded of his people under the old covenant was the requirement that they be "holy" as God is holy (see Lev 19:2). God had rescued them from the domination of a cruel, foreign nation who served other gods; now they were to live as God's people in the new land to which he was bringing them.

Peter applies the same requirement to God's people of the new covenant, those who have come to him through faith in Jesus Christ: "You must be holy in everything you do, just as God who chose you is holy" (1:15). This holiness has both a negative and a positive side. Negatively, to be holy is to separate from this world, to avoid the ways of thinking and acting that characterize people who do not know God. We turn away from our old sinful, pre-Christian lifestyle. As a result, God's people truly are "foreigners in the land" (1:17)—they are different from those who have not experienced God's redemption. Positively, to be holy is also to be separate for God; it means that we imitate our Father and live out the values of our new homeland, the Kingdom of God.

Christians have been set free from the old, meaningless life and its values. We have to stop following the way of life that we inherited from our "ancestors" (1:18) and live as obedient children of our heavenly Father (1:14). Our Father has not only redeemed us in his love; he also, like a human father, disciplines his children. He will judge us "according to what we do" (1:17). For this reason, we must live before God in "reverent fear," recognizing his holiness and majesty, and seeking by faith to express his holy character in our lives. The life of holiness is not merely an option for believers: While we are justified by our faith, this faith is never a faith that is "alone." Authentic faith must always reveal itself in works of holiness that please our Father.

ness (see 2:10). • As God's holy priests (literally holy priesthood) in the new covenant, Christians offer not animal sacrifices but spiritual sacrifices such as praising God, praying, and doing good (see Rom 12:1; Heb 13:15-16).

2:6-8 The three OT quotations in these verses each identify Christ as some kind of stone: the cornerstone on which the new temple is built (2:6); the cornerstone that God, despite peoples' rejection, has elevated to be the keystone of his redemptive plan (2:7); and the stone that makes people stumble (2:8). Jesus quotes Ps 118:22 (Matt 21:42), and Paul quotes both Isa 8:14 and 28:16 (Rom 9:33). Likely these three quotations were brought together very early as a combined OT testimony to the nature and significance of Jesus the Messiah.

2:6 This verse quotes Isa 28:16 (Greek version). • in Jerusalem: Greek in Zion.

2:7 This verse quotes Ps 118:22.

2:8 This verse quotes Isa 8:14. • they meet the fate that was planned for them (literally for which they were appointed): It is not clear whether these people were appointed by God to unbelief or whether they were, because of their unbelief, appointed by God to suffer condemnation.

2:9 Peter applies descriptions of the Israelites in the OT (see, e.g., Exod 19:5-6) to his primarily Gentile audience, indicating that they—like all Christians—are truly God's people in the new covenant era. • royal priests: Literally a royal priesthood.

¹⁰“Once you had no identity as a people; now you are God’s people. Once you received no mercy; now you have received God’s mercy.”

¹¹Dear friends, I warn you as “temporary residents and foreigners” to keep away from worldly desires that wage war against your very souls. ¹²Be careful to live properly among your unbelieving neighbors. Then even if they accuse you of doing wrong, they will see your honorable behavior, and they will give honor to God when he judges the world.

3. LIVING UNDER AUTHORITY (2:13–3:12) Respecting People in Authority

¹³For the Lord’s sake, submit to all human authority—whether the king as head of state, ¹⁴or the officials he has appointed. For the king has sent them to punish those who do wrong and to honor those who do right.

¹⁵It is God’s will that your honorable lives should silence those ignorant people who make foolish accusations against you. ¹⁶For you are free, yet you are God’s slaves, so don’t use your freedom as an excuse to do evil. ¹⁷Respect everyone, and love the family of believers. Fear God, and respect the king.

Instructions for Slaves

¹⁸You who are slaves must submit to your masters with all respect. Do what they tell you—not only if they are kind and reasonable, but even if they are cruel. ¹⁹For God is pleased when, conscious of his will, you patiently endure unjust treatment. ²⁰Of course, you get no credit for being patient if you are beaten for doing wrong. But if you suffer for doing good and endure it patiently, God is pleased with you.

²¹For God called you to do good, even if it means suffering, just as Christ suffered for you. He is your example, and you must follow in his steps.

²²He never sinned, nor ever deceived anyone.

²³He did not retaliate when he was insulted, nor threaten revenge when he suffered.

He left his case in the hands of God, who always judges fairly.

²⁴He personally carried our sins in his body on the cross so that we can be dead to sin and live for what is right.

By his wounds you are healed.

²⁵Once you were like sheep who wandered away.

But now you have turned to your Shepherd, the Guardian of your souls.

2:10 This verse quotes Hos 1:6, 9; 2:23.

2:11-12 These verses are transitional. They can be viewed as the finale to the first section of the letter or as the opening statement of the second part of the letter. They enunciate the letter’s central theme: Christians living in hostile territory need to live out the principles of the Good News so that they can win other people to the Lord.

2:11 “temporary residents and foreigners”: Believers belong not to this world but to the Kingdom of Heaven (see 1:1, 17).

2:12 when he judges the world (or on the day of visitation): This phrase is used in the Greek OT to describe the time when God will visit his enemies to judge them (Isa 10:3; Jer 6:15).

2:13–3:7 This section revolves around the key phrase submit to all human authority, which Peter applies to several relationships: Christians should accept the authority of those in government (2:13-17), Christian slaves should accept the authority of their masters (2:18-25), and Christian wives should accept the authority of their husbands (3:1-6). Peter seems to be following an early Christian usage of the traditional household code, in which a series of instructions was given for different members of the household (cp. Eph 5:21–6:9; Col 3:18–4:1; 1 Tim 5:1–6:2; Titus 2:1-10).

2:13 In Peter’s day, the king was the Roman emperor. Christians were suffering in the hands of the state and would soon suffer more intensely under Nero.

2:14 to punish those who do wrong and honor those who do right: Cp. Rom 13:3-4.

2:17 love the family of believers: Literally love the brotherhood; see note on 5:9. • Fear God, and respect the king: Peter might be reflecting on Jesus’ balanced statement about the Christian’s duty to both God and the government (see Matt 22:21).

2:18-20 The slave was legally bound and could not change his or her master, whereas the modern employee has the right to stop working for a cruel employer. Of course, some employees may not be able to change their situation, in which case Peter’s advice to slaves is very applicable to employees today.

2:18 Many slaves in the Roman empire held responsible positions and had a decent income, but most were harshly treated and all were deprived of legal status and rights. • with all respect (or because you fear God; literally in all fear): Peter might be calling on slaves to fear God (see 2:17; cp. 1:17) or the master’s punishment, but he often speaks this way about the respectful attitude Christians must have toward others (3:16).

2:21-25 While there is no explicit change of address here, the general character of these verses makes them applicable to all believers. • These verses might incorporate an early Christian hymn or confession about Christ (2:22-25). Its focus is on the redemptive sufferings of Christ in language drawn largely from Isaiah 52:13–53:12.

2:21 suffered: Some manuscripts read died.

2:22 This verse quotes Isa 53:9.

2:24 he personally carried our sins: This phrase alludes to Isa 53:4, 11-12. • By his wounds you are healed: The physical suffering of Christ has freed us from slavery to sin (cp. Isa 53:5). Matthew applies similar language from Isa 53:4 to the physical healings performed by Jesus (Matt 8:17).

Instructions for Wives

3 In the same way, you wives must accept the authority of your husbands. Then, even if some refuse to obey the Good News, your godly lives will speak to them without any words. They will be won over ²by observing your pure and reverent lives.

³Don't be concerned about the outward beauty of fancy hairstyles, expensive jewelry, or beautiful clothes. ⁴You should clothe yourselves instead with the beauty that comes from within, the unfading beauty of a gentle and quiet spirit, which is so precious to God. ⁵This is how the holy women of old made themselves beautiful. They put their trust in God and accepted the authority of their husbands. ⁶For instance, Sarah obeyed her husband, Abraham, and called him her ⁷master. You are her daughters when you do what is right without fear of what your husbands might do.

Instructions for Husbands

⁷In the same way, you husbands must give honor to your wives. Treat your wife with understanding as you live together. She may be weaker than you are, but she is your ⁸equal partner in God's ⁹gift of new life. Treat her as you should so your prayers will not be hindered.

Instructions for All Christians

⁸Finally, all of you should be of one mind. Sympathize with each other. Love each other as brothers and sisters. Be tenderhearted, and keep a humble attitude. ⁹Don't repay evil for evil. Don't retaliate with insults when people insult you. Instead, pay them back with a blessing. That is what God

The New Community (2:4-10)

In this passage, Peter draws our attention to the importance of the Christian community, an emphasis that sometimes gets lost in individualistic cultures. Though Christians are individually converted and born again to a new life (1:23; see 2:2), we are not intended to remain in isolation. God's purpose is to build us together as "living stones" in his "spiritual temple" (2:5). God no longer inhabits a building on Mount Zion in Jerusalem; he now lives in and among his people by the Holy Spirit.

The promise that God would rebuild his temple (see Ezek 40–48) has been fulfilled as God dwells among his people (see John 1:14), who themselves constitute the "temple" under the new covenant. Only as we join together in worship, praise, and service will we function in the way God intended. Christians enjoy together the wonderful blessing of being the people God has chosen to carry out his mission to the world.

The church is now (2:9) what Israel was originally, a "chosen people" (see Deut 7:6), "royal priests," "a holy nation" (see Exod 19:6), and "God's very own possession" (see Exod 19:5). With that privileged status comes responsibility: to proclaim God to the nations. As we join in harmonious worship and together serve in various ministries, we "show others the goodness of God" (2:9).

3:1-7 The last of Peter's three exhortations about accepting authority (2:13–3:7) concerns wives and husbands (cp. Eph 5:21-33; Col 3:18-19).

3:1 accept the authority of (literally submit to; also in 2:13, 18): Wives are instructed to acknowledge that God has appointed the husband as head of the relationship (see Eph 5:22-25). Submission in the ancient world took the form of obedience (see 3:6). God also intends the husband to be a loving and respectful head (3:7; see Eph 5:25-30). However, Peter focuses especially on wives with pagan husbands who would potentially be hostile toward their wives' faith. • without any words: Peter urges Christian wives to evangelize their husbands through their submissive and appropriate behavior.

3:3-4 fancy hairstyles, expensive jewelry, or beautiful clothes: Peter has sometimes been interpreted as if he condemns any form of female ornamentation, but this is not his purpose. Instead, he insists that Christian women should not be noticed for the beauty of clothing and jewels but for the interior beauty of a gentle and quiet spirit. See also 1 Tim 2:9-10.

3:6 and called him her master: See Gen 18:12. Peter views this address as indicative of Sarah's overall attitude toward Abraham. • without fear of what your husbands might do: Christian wives married to unbelievers frequently found themselves pressured, both subtly and overtly, to abandon Christian principles and values. Peter urges them to continue to do what is right.

3:7 In the same way: Like slaves and wives (2:18–3:6), husbands also have a particular responsibility within the household. • She may be weaker than you are: Peter was probably thinking of the woman's physical strength and perhaps her social status. Since women are typically physically weaker than men and were often less able to assert themselves in that society, the husband had the duty of protecting and caring for his wife. • your equal partner in God's gift of new life: The husband's headship is balanced and informed by the equal status that men and women have before God (see also Gal 3:26-29). • The prayers of a husband are hindered if he does not give exceptional honor to his wife (cp. Jas 4:3).

3:8-12 Finally: This is the last in a series of exhortations to different groups (2:13–3:12). Here, all believers must respond to others—believers (3:8) and unbelievers (3:9-12)—with love.

3:8 Love each other as brothers and sisters: Literally Show brotherly love; see note on 5:9.

4. DOING GOOD IN THE FACE OF SUFFERING (3:13–4:11)

Suffering for Doing Good (3:13–22)

Keeping a Clear Conscience

¹³ Now, who will want to harm you if you are eager to do good? ¹⁴ But even if you suffer for doing what is right, God will ^d reward you for it. So don't worry or be afraid of their threats. ¹⁵ Instead, you must worship Christ as Lord of your life. And if someone asks about your ^e hope as a believer, always be ready to ^f explain it. ¹⁶ But do this in a gentle and respectful way. Keep your conscience clear. Then if people speak against you, they will be ashamed when they see what a good life you live because you belong to Christ. ¹⁷ Remember, it is better to suffer for doing good, if that is what God ^g wants, than to suffer for doing wrong!

Christ's Death and Victory

¹⁸ Christ suffered for our sins once for all time. He never sinned, but he died for sinners to bring you safely home to God. He suffered physical death, but he was ^h raised to life in the Spirit.

¹⁹ So he went and preached to the spirits in prison—²⁰ those who disobeyed God long ago when God waited patiently while Noah was building his boat. Only eight people were saved from drowning in that terrible flood. ²¹ And that water is a picture of ⁱ baptism, which now ^j saves you, not by removing dirt from your body, but as a response to God from a clean conscience. It is effective because of the resurrection of Jesus Christ.

²² Now Christ has gone to heaven. He is seated in the place of honor next to God, and all the ^k angels and authorities and powers accept his authority.

3:9 and he will grant you his blessing:

By blessing others, we receive a blessing from God.

3:10–12 Peter underscores the relationship between conduct and blessing by quoting Ps 34:12–16. This psalm is prominent in early Christian teaching (see also 2:3; Heb 12:14). The text focuses on curbing sins of speech, resisting evil, and doing good. It also highlights the promise of blessing for obedience.

3:13–17 This short paragraph emphasizes the Christian response to suffering—following Christ's example (3:18).

3:13 Generally speaking, no one will want to harm someone who is doing good, but sometimes Christians do suffer even when they do good (3:14; see 1:6; 4:12–19).

3:14–15 or be afraid of their threats: See Isa 8:13, where God exhorts the prophet to fear nothing except the Lord. • worship Christ as Lord: By fearing Christ, they will be free from fear of their human persecutors.

3:16 But do this in a gentle and respectful way: Some English translations put this sentence in v 15.

3:18–22 As in 2:21–25, Peter again appeals to Christ, who was righteous and yet suffered, as an example for believers facing persecution (3:13–17). The unique work of Christ on our behalf reminds suffering Christians that they have a secure foundation for hope and confidence.

3:18 Christ suffered: Some manuscripts read Christ died. • He suffered physical death (literally death in the flesh), but he was raised to life in the Spirit (or in spirit): Flesh and spirit are often contrasted (e.g., Rom 7:5–6; 8:2–11). Here, flesh stands for ordinary human life; the Spirit stands for the new realm inaugurated through Christ's death and resurrection. Christ died in the old realm, and came to life in the new realm.

3:19–20 This difficult passage has been widely interpreted in three ways: (1) One interpretation holds that it refers to the spirits of people who have died and that Christ, after his resurrection, preached the Good News to these spirits. However, the idea that people might hear the Good News and respond after their deaths is not found elsewhere in the NT, and this meaning of spirits is not the most likely. (2) A second interpretation sees 3:19–20 as describing Christ's preaching through Noah to people who are now spirits in prison. This interpretation does justice to 3:20, but does not fit well in the discussion of Christ's death and resurrection (3:18). (3) In the third interpretation, the spirits in prison are evil spiritual beings. Jewish tradition, based on Gen 6:1–3, held that many angels fell in the time of Noah (see also Jude 1:6; 1 Enoch 6–10). Peter's point would then be that Christ proclaimed his victory over the evil spiritual powers after his resurrection (cp. 3:22).

3:20 Only eight people: That is, Noah, his wife, their three sons, and their wives (Gen 6:18; 8:18). • saved from drowning in that terrible flood: Literally saved through water.

3:21 a picture of baptism: Peter might mean that, as the water floated the boat in which Noah and his family were saved, so baptism saves believers. Or he might mean that, as Noah and his family passed through water to safety, so Christians pass through the waters of baptism to salvation. Finally, he might mean that, as the water judged sin in Noah's day, so the water of baptism washes away the sins of Christians. • Peter does not mean that water baptism saves a person regardless of that person's heart. He adds that baptism saves only as a response to God from (or as an appeal to God for) a clean conscience, thus making clear that only people exercising faith toward God will benefit from baptism.

3:22 all the angels and authorities and powers accept his authority: In the ancient world, spiritual beings were widely believed to directly affect the course of affairs on earth. Christians needed to be reminded that Christ has already won his victory over these spiritual powers. It means that we don't need to fear even the spiritual realm (cp. 3:14).

Living for God (4:1-11)

4 So then, since Christ suffered physical pain, you must arm yourselves with the same attitude he had, and be ready to suffer, too. For if you have suffered physically for Christ, you have finished with sin. ²You won't spend the rest of your lives chasing your own desires, but you will be anxious to do the will of God. ³You have had enough in the past of the evil things that godless people enjoy—their immorality and lust, their feasting and drunkenness and wild parties, and their terrible ^aworship of idols.

⁴Of course, your former friends are surprised when you no longer plunge into the flood of wild and destructive things they do.

So they slander you. ⁵But remember that they will have to face God, who stands ready to judge everyone, both the living and the dead. ⁶That is why the Good News was preached to those who are now dead—so although they were destined to die like all people, they now live forever with God in the Spirit.

⁷The end of the world is coming soon. Therefore, be earnest and disciplined in your prayers. ⁸Most important of all, continue to show deep ^blove for each other, for ^blove covers a multitude of sins. ⁹Cheerfully share your home with those who need a meal or a place to stay.

First Peter is focused almost exclusively on Christian suffering, especially unjust persecution at the hands of people hostile to the faith. The several themes about suffering that are woven throughout the letter find their climactic expression in 4:12-19. Peter makes the following points about suffering:

1. We should not be surprised when suffering comes (4:12). Christians who live a counter-cultural lifestyle in obedience to God should expect the culture to respond with hostility. We should expect mockery, discrimination, trumped-up charges, and even violence.

2. God has a purpose for us in suffering: It brings us into fellowship with Christ, who suffered before he was glorified (4:13; see also Rom 8:17).

3. By suffering in fellowship with Christ, we can be confident of enjoying the glory that he has already won (4:13; see Rom 8:17).

4. We need to commit ourselves to doing what is right when we face suffering (4:19). Our difficulties can always provide an excuse for sinning, but when difficulties come our way, we must live exemplary Christian lives, characterized by love for others.

5. Our loving response to enemies in the midst of trials can be a powerful opportunity to share our faith. By treating our persecutors with love and kindness, we can make our faith respectable and even attractive to them.

6. We need to remember in our trials that God is both sovereign and faithful (4:19). He controls all the circumstances of life, and we don't need to fear that a trial will come our way apart from God's oversight or will.

4:1-6 Peter urges Christians to decisively turn their backs on the former sinful way of life from which Christ in his suffering delivered us.

4:1 since Christ suffered physical pain: Peter introduced this idea in 3:18; he now indicates its significance in Christian experience. In our own physical sufferings, we are to imitate Christ's attitude (see 2:21-24). • For if you have suffered physically for Christ, you have finished with sin (or For the one [or One] who has suffered physically has finished with sin): Our suffering with Christ shows that we have identified with him (see Rom 8:17). Those who identify with Christ experience the victory over the power of sin that he won on the cross (Rom 6:1-10).

4:3 godless people (literally the Gentiles): Peter takes this term from his Jewish heritage to describe those who do not know God.

4:6 preached to those who are now dead (literally preached even to the dead): Peter refers to people now dead who were exposed to the Good News while alive; he does not envision a chance to repent after death. If they responded in faith to the message in life, they can be confident that, although they were destined to die like all people (or although people had judged them worthy of death), they will live forever with God in the Spirit (or in spirit).

4:7-11 With this paragraph of miscellaneous exhortations, Peter concludes the third major section of the letter (3:13-4:11).

4:7 The end of the world is coming soon: At Christ's coming, the "last days" predicted by the OT prophets had begun (see 1:10-12). The next event in salvation history is the second coming of Christ, which will bring the end of the world as we know it. The end could come at any time; therefore, Christians must always be ready for it (see also Phil 4:5; Jas 5:8; Rev 1:3; 22:10).

4:8 By its nature, love overlooks sins committed against us by others (see Prov 10:12; Matt 18:21-22; 1 Cor 13:4-7). Peter might also mean that our attitude of love, because it displays our relationship with Christ, covers our own sins and causes them to be forgiven (see Luke 7:47).

4:10 his great variety of spiritual gifts: See Rom 12:6-8; 1 Cor 12:1-31; Eph 4:7-16. • Use (literally manage) them well: Believers are like managers: They have been entrusted by God, their Master, with gifts to be used to glorify him.

well to serve one another. ¹¹Do you have the gift of speaking? Then speak as though God himself were speaking through you. Do you have the gift of helping others? Do it with all the strength and energy that God supplies. Then everything you do will bring glory to God through Jesus Christ. All glory and power to him forever and ever! Amen.

5. CONCLUDING EXHORTATIONS

(4:12–5:11)

Suffering for Being a Christian

¹²Dear friends, don't be surprised at the fiery ^atrials you are going through, as if something strange were happening to you. ¹³Instead, be very glad—for these trials make you partners with Christ in his suffering, so that you will have the wonderful joy of seeing his glory when it is ^arevealed to all the world.

¹⁴If you are insulted because you bear the name of Christ, you will be blessed, for the glorious Spirit of God rests upon you. ¹⁵If you suffer, however, it must not be for murder, stealing, making trouble, or prying into other people's affairs. ¹⁶But it is no shame to suffer for being a Christian. Praise God for the privilege of being called by his name! ¹⁷For the time has come for judgment, and it must begin with God's household. And if judgment begins with us, what terrible fate awaits those who have never obeyed God's Good News? ¹⁸And also,

"If the righteous are barely saved, what will happen to godless sinners?"

¹⁹So if you are suffering in a manner that pleases God, keep on doing what is right, and trust your lives to the God who created you, for he will never fail you.

Advice for Elders and Young Men

5 And now, a word to you who are elders in the churches. I, too, am an elder and a witness to the sufferings of Christ. And I, too, will share in his glory when he is revealed to the whole world. As a fellow elder, I appeal to you: ²Care for the flock that God has entrusted to you. ³Watch over it willingly, not grudgingly—not for what you will get out of it, but because you are eager to serve God. ³Don't lord it over the people assigned to your care, but lead them by your own good ^bexample. ⁴And when the ⁱGreat Shepherd appears, you will receive a crown of never-ending glory and honor.

⁵In the same way, you who are younger must accept the authority of the elders. And all of you, dress yourselves in humility as you relate to one another, for

"God opposes the proud but gives grace to the humble."

⁶So humble yourselves under the mighty power of God, and at the right time he will lift you up in honor. ⁷Give all your worries and cares to God, for he cares about you.

⁸Stay alert! Watch out for your great enemy, the ⁱdevil. He prowls around like a roaring lion, looking for someone to devour. ⁹Stand firm against him, and be strong in your faith. Remember that your family of 4:11 All glory and power to him forever and ever! Amen: This doxology has led some to suggest that one original letter of Peter ended here and that another one was added to it. Doxologies in the NT do appear at the end of letters (Rom 16:25-27; Phil 4:20; Heb 13:21; 2 Pet 3:18; Jude 1:24-25), but also at the end of sections within letters (Rom 11:36; Gal 1:5; Eph 3:21; 1 Tim 1:17). Since there is no textual evidence for the existence of two separate letters, it is better to assume that this doxology marks the end of a major section of the letter.

4:12-19 Peter instructs Christians one last time about the way to face the trials that will inevitably come.

4:12 don't be surprised: Christians, especially those seeking to lead godly lives, can expect to face the hostility of a sinful world (see John 16:33; Acts 14:22; Rom 8:17; Phil 1:29).

4:13 Christians are called to suffer with Christ in order to be glorified with him (see also Rom 8:17).

4:14 If you are insulted because you bear the name of Christ, you will be blessed: This verse reflects Jesus' teaching in Matt 5:11-12. • for the glorious Spirit of God: Or for the glory of God, which is his Spirit. • At the end of 4:14, some manuscripts add On their part he is blasphemed, but on your part he is glorified.

4:16 Although evidence is very fragmentary, it is likely that the label Christian (cp. Acts 11:26) was originally a convenient way of summarizing the alleged superstitious practices and immoral character attributed to Jesus' followers.

4:17 God's judgment is often pictured as beginning with God's household—i.e., with his own people—as a means of purifying them (Jer 25:29; Ezek 9:5-6; Mal 3:1-6).

4:18 This verse quotes Prov 11:31 (Greek version).

5:1-14 Peter ends the letter with final exhortations to elders (5:1-4), to younger men (5:5), and to the church as a whole (5:5-11). These exhortations are followed by final greetings and a closing (5:12-14).

5:1-4 Elders were the spiritual leaders of the early churches (see also Acts 14:23; 20:17; 1 Tim 5:17-19; Titus 1:5; Jas 5:14). By calling himself a fellow elder, Peter identifies with them in their responsibilities and with the charge that he gives them.

5:2 Care for the flock (literally Shepherd the flock): Our word pastor comes from NT imagery of a shepherd pasturing his flock.

5:5 You who are younger: This phrase, in contrast to the elders, might refer to a particular class of ministers, perhaps elders in training or those who assisted the elders in various ways. But probably it simply denotes the younger men in the church (see, for example, 1 Jn 2:12-14). • "God opposes the proud but gives grace to the humble": Prov 3:34 (Greek version).

6. FINAL GREETINGS (5:12-14)

¹²I have written and sent this short letter to you with the help of Silas, whom I commend to you as a faithful brother. My purpose in writing is to encourage you and assure you that what you are experiencing is truly part of God's grace for you. Stand firm in this grace.

¹³Your sister church here in Babylon sends you greetings, and so does my son Mark. ¹⁴Greet each other with a kiss of love.

Peace be with all of you who are in Christ.

your brotherhood, a generic term often used to refer to both male and female believers. • all over the world: Persecution was not confined to the churches of Asia Minor. In various forms and with varying intensity, Christians were persecuted almost everywhere the Good News about Jesus Christ was preached. Peter reminds his readers of this to console them and encourage them to emulate those who had successfully endured the test of suffering.

5:10 a little while: Sufferings on this earth—while sometimes appearing to be endless—are in fact only momentary compared with the glorious eternity that believers will spend with God (cp. 1:6; Rom 8:18; 2 Cor 4:16-18).

5:12 with the help of: This phrase identifies Silas as the amanuensis, the person who wrote the words as Peter directed. • Silas (Greek Silvanus): Silas is the shortened form of Silvanus; both names refer to the same individual. Silas was Paul's constant colleague after the time of the council in Jerusalem (Acts 15:40; 16:19; 17:10, 14-15; 18:5; 2 Cor 1:19; 1 Thes 1:1; 2 Thes 1:1). We are not sure how Silas ended up with Peter in Rome, but he may have traveled with or followed Paul (Acts 27-28).

5:13 Your sister church here in Babylon: Literally The elect one in Babylon. Babylon was probably symbolic for Rome. Like Rome, Babylon was a great city, the capital of an empire. Babylon held sway over much of the ancient Near East in the 500s bc. As a great city and the capital of the empire that burned Jerusalem and took many captive Israelites back to the city, Babylon was regarded as the power center of a world hostile to God's people. For this reason, the book of Revelation uses "Babylon" as a metaphor or code word for Rome. Peter probably also used the title in the same way. • Mark, also called John Mark, was another co-worker of the apostle Paul (see "John Mark" at Acts 13:4-5, 13, p. 1852). Mark wrote the Gospel of Mark, which is generally thought to be based on Peter's teachings.

5:14 with a kiss of love: See note on Rom 16:16.

THE SECOND LETTER OF

Peter

Second Peter discusses the need to grow in Christ's grace and warns against false teaching that threatens that growth. Many world views, religious perspectives, and cultural values clamor for attention. This letter warns against compromising the Christian faith by mixing it with ideas that are foreign to Christianity. We need to take this warning seriously.

2 Peter and Jude, written as they were to meet problems very like our own, have [much] to teach us. So long as sin needs to be exposed, so long as man needs to be reminded that persistent wrongdoing ends in ruin, that lust is self-defeating, that intellectualism devoid of love is a barren thing, and that Christian theology has no right to outrun the "faith once delivered to the saints," these Epistles will remain uncomfortably, burning relevant.

E. M. B. Green

The Second Epistle General of Peter and the General Epistle of Jude, p. 11

SETTING

As its name suggests, 2 Peter was almost certainly the second NT letter written by the apostle Peter (see "Authorship," below), probably written to the same group of Christians as 1 Peter (see 3:1; map, p. 2120). We do not know if Peter ever visited Asia Minor—the NT tells us little about his movements after he departed from Jerusalem around AD 44 (Acts 12:17). We know that Peter was in Rome in the early 60s AD (see note on 1 Pet 5:13). Presumably, he wrote 2 Peter from Rome shortly after 1 Peter. Early Christian tradition indicates that Peter died under the emperor Nero in AD 64 or 65.

SUMMARY

In the letter opening (1:1-15), Peter identifies himself and his readers (1:1-2) and introduces his main concern, that his readers will grow in their knowledge of God and of Christ (1:3-11). He urgently tells them he does not have long to live (1:12-15).

Chapter 2 is the central focus of this letter, where Peter profiles and condemns false teachers. Peter prepares for this denunciation by emphasizing the certainty of Christ's return in glory (1:16-21). The false teachers were evidently skeptical about Christ's return and final judgment.

Peter denounces the false teachers (2:1-22) in four stages: He predicts the coming of false teachers (2:1-3), he insists that God will judge them while rescuing the righteous (2:4-10a), he declares the false teachers' sins (2:10b-16), and he pronounces their doom (2:17-22).

After further insisting that Christ will, indeed, return in glory to transform the world (3:1-13), Peter concludes the letter as he began, by praying that his readers will "grow in the grace and knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ" (3:18; see 1:3-11).

AUTHORSHIP

The author identifies himself as Simon Peter (1:1), one of Jesus' apostles (see "Simon Peter" at Matt 14:28-31, p. 1609). Peter claims that "this is my second letter to you" (3:1). The first letter was probably 1 Peter.

In many ways, however, 2 Peter is dissimilar from 1 Peter while containing striking similarities to the letter of Jude (see below). Because of this, some interpreters think that someone else wrote 2 Peter in his name. This conclusion is unnecessary, because 2 Peter is dealing with a very different situation than is 1 Peter, so naturally the language and concepts differ. Moreover, it is possible that Silas (Peter's scribe mentioned in 1 Pet 5:12) was responsible for some of the wording of 1 Peter and that Peter used a different scribe in 2 Peter.

RELATIONSHIP TO JUDE

It is undeniable that 2 Peter and Jude have some kind of literary relationship. The two letters use too many of the same unusual expressions for the similarities to be coincidental or a matter of a shared oral tradition

(cp. 2 Pet 2:3 // Jude 1:4; 2 Pet 2:4 // Jude 1:6; 2 Pet 2:6 // Jude 1:7; 2 Pet 2:10 // Jude 1:8; 2 Pet 2:11 // Jude 1:9; 2 Pet 2:13, 17 // Jude 1:12; 2 Pet 3:3 // Jude 1:8). This relationship can be explained in one of three ways: (1) Jude borrowed from 2 Peter; (2) 2 Peter borrowed from Jude; or (3) both 2 Peter and Jude borrowed from a common literary source, now lost. Option 2 is the most popular, although option 1 is equally possible. Option 3 is least likely, simply because it is more complicated and unnecessary. Whichever author did the borrowing was apparently faced with a very similar situation and found what the other had written to be appropriate to his own purposes. Such borrowing was not uncommon in the ancient world; rather than being considered plagiarism, it was considered a compliment.

FALSE TEACHERS

The false teachers that Peter denounces cannot be identified with any known heresy in the ancient church. With their immorality and skepticism, these false teachers were libertines: They assumed that God's grace gave them the liberty to do anything they wanted to do (2:19-20). They had no use for authority (see 2:10-11). They engaged in "sins of the flesh" such as illicit sex, excess drinking and eating, and greed (2:13-20). They might have been precursors to the later, second-century Gnostic heresy.

MEANING AND MESSAGE

Second Peter is a vital reminder of how dangerous it is to deviate from the truth. The church must always be on guard against those who twist the truth of the Good News and whose lives so sadly misrepresent it.

This letter is dominated by concern over the presence of false teachers in the church. Although these profligates were claiming to be Christians (2:1, 21-22), Peter leaves no doubt that in reality they were destined for condemnation as rebels against the Lord (2:3, 10). Peter writes this letter to warn his readers to reject these false teachers and their teaching, and to remain faithful to the Good News.

1. THE LETTER OPENING (1:1-15)Greetings from Peter

1 This letter is from Simon Peter, a slave and apostle of Jesus Christ.

I am writing to you who share the same precious faith we have. This faith was given to you because of the justice and fairness of Jesus Christ, our God and ^aSavior.

²May God give you more and more grace and peace as you grow in your knowledge of God and Jesus our Lord.

Growing in Faith

³By his divine power, God has given us everything we need for living a godly life. We have received all of this by coming to know him, the one who called us to himself by means of his marvelous glory and ^bexcellence. ⁴And because of his glory and excellence, he has given us great and precious promises. These are the promises that enable you to share his divine nature and escape the world's corruption caused by human desires.

⁵In view of all this, make every effort to respond to God's promises. Supplement your faith with a generous provision of ^cmoral excellence, and ^cmoral excellence with knowledge, ⁶and knowledge with self-control, and self-control with patient endurance, and patient endurance with godliness, ⁷and godliness with brotherly affection, and brotherly affection with love for everyone.

⁸The more you grow like this, the more productive and useful you will be in your knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ. ⁹But those who fail to develop in this way are shortsighted or blind, forgetting that they have been cleansed from their old sins.

¹⁰So, dear brothers and sisters, work hard to prove that you really are among those God has ^dcalled and chosen. Do these things, and you will never fall away. ¹¹Then God will give you a grand entrance into the eternal Kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

Peter's Situation

¹²Therefore, I will always remind you about these things—even though you already know them and are standing firm in the truth you have been taught. ¹³And it is only right that I should keep on reminding you as long as I live. ¹⁴For our Lord Jesus Christ has shown me that I must soon leave this earthly life, ¹⁵so I will work hard to make sure you always remember these things after I am gone.

2. THE CERTAINTY OF CHRIST'S RETURN (1:16-21)Peter's Own Eyewitness Testimony

1:1 Simon (Greek Simeon) was one of the most common Jewish names in the first century. Jesus gave him the name Peter (Matt 16:17-18). Many people in the Greco-Roman world would use both their given name in their native language and also a Greek name, since Greek was the lingua franca (see note on Acts 7:58). • a slave . . . of Jesus Christ: In the OT, important leaders of God's people are called servants of the Lord (Josh 14:7; 24:29; 2 Kgs 10:10). The title underscores Peter's submission to Christ and suggests that he had an important role in God's plan. • We probably refers to Jewish Christians; the recipients were mostly Gentile Christians. In the new covenant, Gentile and Jewish Christians share the same precious faith and are on an equal footing as God's people (see Gal 3:26-29). • because of the justice and fairness: Or in the righteousness. • This is one of the few places in the NT where Jesus Christ is called God (see also John 1:1; 20:28; Rom 9:5; Titus 2:13; Heb 1:8; 1 Jn 5:20).

1:3-11 An explanation of all that God has given us in Christ (1:3-4) forms the basis for an urgent exhortation to grow in the knowledge of Christ (1:5-11).

1:3 By his divine power, God has (literally His divine power has): The name of God does not occur in the Greek text; Peter could be referring to the divine power of "Jesus our Lord" (1:2).

1:4 enable you to share his divine nature: Peter probably did not mean that our souls are merged with God but that believers share God's qualities (cp. Lev 11:44; Matt 5:43-48; Eph 4:24; 5:1).

1:5-7 The stair-step structure of these verses, with each virtue leading to another, is a common literary device called a sorites. The sequence in such passages is not stressed—e.g., Peter does not imply that moral excellence must come before knowledge. Yet love is the pinnacle of the virtues (1:7).

1:10 dear brothers and sisters: Literally brothers, a term that refers to both male and female believers. • Work hard to prove (literally Be zealous to make certain): Peter did not mean that our being chosen by God for salvation depends on what we do, but that our zeal to grow in Christian virtue confirms that we have, indeed, been chosen by God.

1:12-15 Peter was writing at the end of his life, so 2 Peter is similar to a popular Jewish genre called the testament, in which an old and respected leader gives final instructions to his children or others on his deathbed (cp. Deut 31-33; Josh 24). This genre is especially well-known from a Jewish book called The Testaments of the Twelve Patriarchs.

1:13 as long as I live: Literally as long as I am in this tent [or tabernacle].

1:14 This prophecy might have come in a vision, but it is more likely that Peter was recalling Jesus' prophecy about his death (John 21:18-19). • I must soon leave this earthly life (literally I must soon put off my tent [or tabernacle]).

1:16-21 Peter's denunciation of the false teachers (ch 2) is framed by this teaching about the certainty of Jesus' return (see also 3:1-13). The false teachers were probably denying the reality of Christ's return and judgment. Peter's eyewitness experience (1:16-18) and the intrinsic reliability of scriptural prophecy (1:19-21) make Christ's return a certainty.

1:16-18 clever stories (literally cleverly invented myths): The false teachers were probably charging that the message of Christ's return was just an edifying fable with no factual truth. • We saw his majestic splendor with our own eyes: At Jesus' transfiguration (Matt 17:1-9; Mark 9:2-8; Luke 9:28-36), which prefigured ¹⁷when he received honor and glory from God the Father. The voice from the majestic glory of God said to him, "This is my dearly loved Son, who brings me great joy." ¹⁸We ourselves heard that voice from heaven when we were with him on the holy mountain.

The Reliability of Scriptural Prophecy

¹⁹Because of that experience, we have even greater confidence in the message proclaimed by the prophets. You must pay close attention to what they wrote, for their words are like a lamp shining in a dark place—until the Day dawns, and Christ the Morning Star shines in your hearts. ²⁰Above all, you must realize that no prophecy in Scripture ever came from the prophet's own understanding, ²¹or from human initiative. No, those prophets were moved by the Holy Spirit, and they spoke from God.

3. THE DANGER OF FALSE TEACHERS (2:1-22)

2 But there were also false prophets in Israel, just as there will be false teachers among you. They will cleverly teach destructive heresies and even deny the Master who bought them. In this way, they will bring sudden destruction on themselves. ²Many will follow their evil teaching and shameful immorality. And because of these teachers, the way of truth will be slandered. ³In their greed they will make up clever lies to get hold of your money. But God condemned them long ago, and their destruction will not be delayed.

⁴For God did not spare even the angels who sinned. He threw them into hell, in gloomy pits of darkness, where they are being held until the day of judgment. ⁵And God did not spare the ancient world—except for Noah and the seven others in his family. Noah warned the world of God's righteous judgment. So God protected Noah when he destroyed the world of ungodly people with a vast flood. ⁶Later, God condemned the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah and turned them into heaps of ashes. He made them an example of what will happen to ungodly people. ⁷But God also rescued Lot out of Sodom because he was a righteous man who was sick of the shameful immorality of the wicked people around him. ⁸Yes, Lot was a righteous man who was tormented in his soul by the wickedness he saw and heard day after day. ⁹So you see, the Lord knows how to rescue godly people from their trials, even while keeping the wicked under punishment until the day of Christ's return by revealing Jesus as the glorious King. Peter's confidence was not based on human speculation but on eyewitness experience.

1:17 "This is my dearly loved Son, who brings me great joy": See Matt 17:5; Mark 9:7; Luke 9:35.

1:19 The word Day is capitalized because it is shorthand for the day of the Lord, the time when God intervenes in history to save his people and judge his enemies (see Isa 13:4-12; Joel 2:1-32; Zeph 2:1-3). The first coming of Christ inaugurated the day of the Lord's salvation for his people. A future day of the Lord's judgment on his enemies is yet to come. • Christ the Morning Star: The planet Venus, known as the "morning star," often appears above the eastern horizon just before dawn. Peter reverses the order of natural events: The dawning of the day of the Lord leads to the Morning Star's shining in the hearts of believers. • shines: Or rises.

1:20-21 came from the prophet's own understanding (or is a matter of one's own interpretation): The point is probably that the prophets were not left on their own to interpret the visions that God gave them. God made the meaning clear to the prophets, so that they could prophesy clearly and reliably.

2:1-3 Alongside authentic prophets

(1:20-21), there have always been false prophets who receive God's judgment.

2:1 They will: Peter's use of the future tense in 2:1-3 does not imply that false prophets had not yet come, but it alludes to Jesus' prediction that false teachers would arise (Matt 24:11, 24; Mark 13:22; cp. Acts 20:29-31; 2 Tim 3:1-6). The false teachers who had arisen fulfilled that prediction. • deny the Master who bought them: The false teachers might have been overtly renouncing Christ, but it is more likely that their immoral conduct constituted a denial of Christ (cp. Titus 1:16).

2:2 One of the saddest effects of false teaching is that the way of truth will be slandered by a watching world. By their immoral and greedy conduct, false teachers bring shame on Christ.

2:4-10a Three OT examples of judgment show that God will vindicate those who remain faithful to him and will condemn those who deny him, including the false teachers (see 2:3).

2:4 The first example of judgment is the angels who sinned: The widespread Jewish tradition was that "the sons of God" in Gen 6:1-5 (understood as angels) had intercourse with women and were therefore judged by God at that time (see 1 Enoch 6-10; cp. 1 Pet 3:19-20; Jude 1:6). • hell: Greek Tarta-

rus. • in gloomy pits of darkness (some manuscripts read in chains of gloom): This description of the underworld was popular in the ancient world and is probably metaphorical.

2:5 The second example of judgment is that God did not spare the ancient world at the time of Noah. In the flood, God destroyed all human life apart from Noah and his family (see Gen 6-8).

2:6 The third example of judgment is that God condemned the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah. The people of these cities were so immoral that God rained down sulfur from heaven to destroy them (Gen 19:24). Peter focuses on the result of this action: The cities were turned into heaps of ashes.

2:7-8 Even though the OT does not portray Lot as a very righteous man (see "Lot" at Gen 19:1-38, p. 58), he remained basically faithful to the Lord; Jewish tradition also portrays him as righteous (see Wisdom of Solomon 10:6; 19:17).

2:9 The Lord knows how to rescue godly people from their trials: As illustrated by Noah's family (2:5) and Lot (2:7), the Lord is faithful to his own people. Peter's readers needed assurance that their struggles to live godly lives in the face of false teaching and the world's scorn would be rewarded.

final judgment. ¹⁰He is especially hard on those who follow their own twisted sexual desire, and who despise authority.

These people are proud and arrogant, daring even to scoff at supernatural beings without so much as trembling. ¹¹But the angels, who are far greater in power and strength, do not dare to bring from the Lord a charge of blasphemy against those supernatural beings.

¹²These false teachers are like unthinking animals, creatures of instinct, born to be caught and destroyed. They scoff at things they do not understand, and like animals, they will be destroyed. ¹³Their destruction is their reward for the harm they have done. They love to indulge in evil pleasures in broad daylight. They are a disgrace and a stain among you. They delight in deception even as they eat with you in your fellowship meals. ¹⁴They commit adultery with their eyes, and their desire for sin is never satisfied. They lure unstable people into sin, and they are well trained in greed. They live under God's curse. ¹⁵They have wandered off the right road and followed the footsteps of Balaam son of Beor, who loved to earn money by doing wrong. ¹⁶But Balaam was stopped from his mad course when his donkey rebuked him with a human voice.

¹⁷These people are as useless as dried-up springs or as mist blown away by the wind. They are doomed to blackest darkness. ¹⁸They brag about themselves with empty, foolish boasting. With an appeal to twisted sexual desires, they lure back into sin those who have barely escaped from a lifestyle of deception. ¹⁹They promise freedom, but they themselves are slaves of sin and corruption. For you are a slave to whatever controls you. ²⁰And when people escape from the wickedness of the world by knowing our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ and then get tangled up and enslaved by sin again, they are worse off than before. ²¹It would be better if they had never known the way to righteousness than to know it and then reject the command they were given to live a holy life. ²²They prove the truth of this proverb: "A dog returns to its vomit." And another says, "A washed pig returns to the mud."

4. THE DAY OF THE LORD IS COMING (3:1-13)

3 This is my second letter to you, dear friends, and in both of them I have tried to stimulate your wholesome thinking and refresh your memory. ²¹I want you to remember what the holy prophets said long ago and what our Lord and Savior commanded through your apostles.

2:10a twisted sexual desire: The reference is to illicit sexual desire generally and probably to homosexuality in particular (cp. reference to Sodom and Gomorrah, 2:6). • The false teachers were so arrogant that they refused to listen to any authority but their own.

2:10b-16 This profile of the false teachers focuses more on how they were living than on what they were teaching.

2:10b supernatural beings: Literally glorious ones, which are probably evil angels, in contrast to the angels of 2:11. It is wrong to scoff even at evil angels, because they bear the mark of their glorious origin—they have real power and pose a real threat to humans.

2:11 Even angels . . . do not dare to charge evil supernatural beings with blasphemy, but the false teachers were so arrogant that they did not hesitate to do so. • from the Lord: Other manuscripts read to the Lord; still others do not include this phrase at all.

2:13 They delight in deception even as they eat with you in your fellowship meals: Cp. Jude 1:12. Christians often ate fellowship meals together in celebration of the Lord (see Acts 2:46; 6:1). The false teachers were using these mealtimes as opportunities to deceive true believers. Some manuscripts read They delight (or revel, or carouse) in their fellowship meals as they eat with you. If this reading is correct, they were using the fellowship meals for self-indulgence (cp. 1 Cor 11:20-22).

2:15 Balaam son of Beor (some manuscripts read Balaam son of Bosor): See Num 22–24. • who loved to earn money by doing wrong: Despite consulting with God about what he should do, Balaam was determined to go his own way in hopes of receiving Balak's money. The OT account hints at Balaam's greed, and Jewish tradition developed this theme (see Numbers Rabbah 20:10; Mishnah Avot 5:22; Philo, Moses 1:266-268).

2:17-22 Peter continues his description of the false teachers by explaining their effect on other people.

2:18 those who have barely escaped: The false teachers cleverly targeted new converts, people who had only recently committed themselves to Christ.

2:19 One of the great lures of false teaching through the centuries has been the promise of freedom from authority, but such freedom is illusory (Rom 6:16). The false teachers, while reveling in their freedom from authority (see 2:10), were in fact slaves to sin and corruption.

2:20 they are worse off than before: The false teachers or their followers had known the truth, but their deliberate rejection of that truth put them in a far worse situation than when they ignorantly lived in sin (see "Consequences of Apostasy" at Heb 2:1-4, p. 2085).

2:22 "A dog returns to its vomit": Prov 26:11. Dogs were not seen as friendly family pets but as wild and filthy beasts. • "A washed pig returns to the mud": This proverb might go back to a popular book of sayings called Ahiqar from around 500 BC, which reads, "My son, you have been to me like the pig who went into the hot bath with people of quality, and when it came out of the hot bath, it saw a filthy hole and went down and wallowed in it" (Ahiqar 8:18).

3:1-13 Peter shifts from denunciation of false teachers to exhortation of believers. The false teachers' skepticism about Christ's return required clear teaching. Christians need to hold onto the apostolic message about the day of judgment and live godly lives in anticipation of that day.

3:1 This is my second letter to you: The previous letter was probably 1 Peter.

3:2 The holy prophets of the OT predicted the day of the Lord, when God would judge his enemies (see note on 1:19). • what our Lord and Savior commanded: Jesus had taught the church through the apostles.

³Most importantly, I want to remind you that in the last days scoffers will come, mocking the truth and following their own desires. ⁴They will say, "What happened to the promise that Jesus is coming again? From before the times of our ancestors, everything has remained the same since the world was first created."

⁵They deliberately forget that God made the heavens long ago by the word of his command, and he brought the earth out from the water and surrounded it with water. ⁶Then he used the water to destroy the ancient world with a mighty flood. ⁷And by the same word, the present heavens and earth have been stored up for fire. They are being kept for the day of judgment, when ungodly people will be destroyed.

⁸But you must not forget this one thing, dear friends: A day is like a thousand years to the Lord, and a thousand years is like a day. ⁹The Lord isn't really being slow about his promise, as some people think. No, he is being patient for your sake. He does not want anyone to be destroyed, but wants everyone to ¹⁰repent. ¹⁰But the day of the Lord will come as unexpectedly as a thief. Then the heavens will pass away with a terrible noise, and the very elements themselves will disappear in fire, and the earth and everything on it will be found to deserve judgment.

¹¹Since everything around us is going to be destroyed like this, what holy and godly lives you should live, ¹²looking forward to the day of God and hurrying it along. On that day, he will set the heavens on fire, and the elements will melt away in the flames. ¹³But we are looking forward to the new ^aheavens and new earth he has promised, a world filled with God's righteousness.

5. A FINAL CALL TO GODLINESS (3:14-16)

¹⁴And so, dear friends, while you are waiting for these things to happen, make every effort to be found living peaceful lives that are pure and blameless in his sight.

¹⁵And remember, our Lord's patience gives people time to be saved. This is what our beloved brother Paul also wrote to you with the wisdom God gave him—¹⁶speaking of these things in all of his letters. Some of his comments are hard to understand, and those who are ignorant and unstable have twisted his letters to mean something quite different, just as they do with other parts of Scripture. And this will result in their destruction.

6. THE LETTER CLOSING: PETER'S FINAL WORDS (3:17-18)

¹⁷You already know these things, dear friends. So be on guard; then you will not be carried away by the errors of these wicked people and lose your own secure footing. ¹⁸Rather, you must grow in the grace and knowledge of our Lord and ^bSavior Jesus Christ.

All glory to him, both now and forever! Amen.

3:3 in the last days: Peter was not merely predicting an event in the future; he was speaking about his readers' situation. In the NT, the last days refers to the period from Jesus' first coming to his second coming (see Acts 2:17; Heb 1:2). It is the time when God's promises are fulfilled. • scoffers will come: See Prov 1:22; 9:7-8; 13:1. Rather than using evidence and logic to argue, scoffers belittle and make fun of the truth.

3:4 From before the times of our ancestors: The false teachers were probably claiming that, for all of God's promises to intervene in history, things had not really changed and never would.

3:5 Creation is the first evidence that the false teachers were wrong: Change does happen. If God made the world, he certainly can destroy it. • brought the earth out from the water: See Gen 1:2, 6-10.

3:7 The OT associates fire with the day of the Lord (see Isa 30:30; 66:15-16).

3:8 Peter alludes to Ps 90:4. God operates according to his time scale. He will send his Son in his own good time.

3:10 The very elements themselves might refer to the basic components of the physical universe or to the sun, moon, and stars. • will be found to deserve judgment: Literally will be found; other manuscripts read will be burned up; one early manuscript reads will be found destroyed. The Greek text is difficult; the reading followed by the NLT probably means that creation will appear before God at the time of judgment, and he will find it to deserve his judgment.

3:12 looking forward to the day of God and hurrying it along: God's people can hasten the end by their repentance and godly living (cp. Acts 3:19-20). • the elements will melt away: Cp. Mic 1:3-4; see also Isa 63:19-64:1.

3:13 the new heavens and new earth: See Isa 65:17; 66:22; Rev 21.

3:15 our beloved brother Paul: The NT tells us little about the relationship between Peter and Paul. Because of the dispute in Antioch (Gal 2:11-14), it is sometimes thought that the two were hostile to one another, but the NT paints a different picture. Peter and Paul essentially agreed about the Good News for the Gentiles (Acts 11:2-18; 15:7-11). Silas and Mark were associates of both Paul and Peter (see 1 Pet 5:12-13). According to tradition, both apostles were martyred in Rome during the same persecution by Nero in the mid-60s AD.

3:16 Peter probably knew of all but one or two of Paul's letters by this time. Peter's language implies that he considered the letters of Paul to belong in the category of Scripture.

3:17-18 Peter restates his purpose: to protect his readers from false teachers so that they can grow in grace. He ends with a doxology to our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

THE FIRST LETTER OF John

John's Gospel explains how Jesus Christ came to offer eternal life; his first letter tells how to know, by our experience and behavior, that we have eternal life. John's Gospel tells us how Jesus came to reveal the Father; his letter shows how we can be confident in our relationship with him. John's Gospel relates how Jesus gives the Spirit to each one who is born again; his letter explains daily life in the Spirit. John's Gospel encourages Jesus' disciples to practice spiritual unity by loving one another; his letter clarifies how to put that love into action.

SETTING

John and the other apostles were probably forced to leave Jerusalem by AD 68, if not earlier, due to the mounting persecution against the church and the siege of Jerusalem by Roman armies. Sometime later (probably after AD 70), John migrated to the Roman province of Asia (the western region of modern Turkey) and began a successful ministry, primarily among the Gentiles. By AD 90, John had written his Gospel for these believers to whom he had been ministering.

Soon after this, some members of the Christian community left to form a rival group. These rivals were a heretical faction that promoted teachings about Jesus Christ that later characterized Gnosticism, such as denying that Jesus was God in the flesh (see 4:1-3). By leaving the fellowship of the apostles, they demonstrated that they did not genuinely belong to God's family (2:18-19). However, the effects of their false teachings still lingered in the minds of the faithful, so John wrote this letter to clear the air of these falsehoods, to bring the believers back to the basics of the Christian life, and to reinforce their faith.

◀ The Setting of 1 John, late 80s AD. When the apostle John left Jerusalem (probably in the late 60s AD), he seems to have settled in EPHESUS in the province of ASIA. He wrote his three letters (1-3 John) to the churches in Asia.

Another heresy that John confronted was promoted by Cerinthus, who taught that Jesus was not born to a virgin but was a normal human being born to Joseph and Mary and was more righteous, prudent, and wise than other men. Cerinthus taught that at Jesus' baptism, "the Christ" descended upon him in the form of a dove from the supreme Ruler; he then proclaimed the unknown Father and performed miracles. At last "the Christ" departed from the man "Jesus," and then Jesus (but not "the Christ") suffered and rose again, while "the Christ" remained untouched, inasmuch as he was a spiritual being. John specifically refutes the heresy of Cerinthus in 5:5–8.

John wrote this epistle to encourage believers in the Roman province of Asia to remain steadfast in Christ, and he denounced those who had not remained in the apostolic fellowship. This first letter went out to the churches under John's care around AD 85–90 (including the churches that are mentioned in Rev 1:11).

SUMMARY

John stressed that Christians must maintain loyalty to Jesus' apostles—those who had followed Jesus during his life and had known him personally—in order to safeguard against pseudo-spirituality and heresy. John urged his Christian readers to:

1. maintain loyalty in fellowship toward the apostles and thus to have fellowship with God, who is light, by living in the light he gives us;
2. confess their sins to God and thus know the advocacy of Jesus Christ, the righteous one;
3. esteem Jesus Christ as the Word of life, the Son of God;
4. love God, who is love, and love other Christians;
5. remain in Christ, become like Christ, and purify themselves of worldly lusts;
6. know and experience God personally and understand the truth through the Spirit;
7. discern false teaching by the aid of the Spirit and recognize the spirit of false prophets and of the antichrist; and
8. enjoy eternal life.

AUTHOR

Some scholars have suggested that a Christian elder named John, but not the apostle, was the author of these letters. They make this judgment on the basis of a quotation from Papias (bishop of Hierapolis in the province of Asia, AD 100–130), who mentioned John the apostle and then later mentioned John the elder (see Eusebius, Church History 3.39.4). But most evangelical scholars think that John the apostle and John the elder are the same person (cp. 2 Jn 1:1; 3 Jn 1:1). The writing style of John's Gospel is undeniably similar to that of these three letters. The apostle John was an eyewitness of Jesus and one of the very first to follow him. In John's Gospel, John is called "the one whom Jesus loved" (John 13:23; 19:26; 20:2; 21:7, 20). He was one of the twelve disciples and a very close friend to Jesus. The author's claim to be an eyewitness is as strong in the letters (see 1:1-4) as it is in the Gospel (John 1:14; 19:35). The author of 1 John claims to have personally heard, seen, and touched the eternal Word made flesh (1:1-4).

MEANING AND MESSAGE

First John is a natural extension of John's Gospel. John's Gospel shows that it was Jesus' mission to reveal God the Father and to bring believers into union with the Father and the Son through the Spirit. John's first letter emphasizes how Christians experience God in daily life, as demonstrated by their relationships with the other members of the church community. We must exhibit our love for God by loving one another. This command came straight from Jesus (John 14:24; 15:17), and John repeated it often (2:7; 3:11, 23; 2 Jn 1:5-6). Since God is love, all who claim to know God must love other Christians.

To love other Christians, however, does not mean accepting everything they say or all that independent teachers teach. There were people in the breakaway churches denying that Jesus is the Christ, the unique Son of God, or that he had come as a human being. All such people are antichrists when they deny the true humanity and the full deity of Jesus Christ. This letter warns strongly against those who teach such heresy and lead Christians away from fellowship with the true apostles of Christ.

History shows that many heretical movements have infiltrated the church, but the truth has withstood these assaults. We need to be wary of teachings that are contrary to the teaching of the apostles; the word of God and the Holy Spirit are our guides.

1. EXPERIENCING CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP (1:1–2:11)

Prologue: Fellowship with Jesus Christ

1 We proclaim to you the one who existed from the beginning, whom we have heard and seen. We saw him with our own eyes and touched him with our own hands. He is the ^aWord of life. ²This one who is life itself was revealed to us, and we have seen him. And now we testify and proclaim to you that he is the one who is eternal life. He was with the Father, and then he was revealed to us. ³We proclaim to you what we ourselves have actually seen and heard so that you may have fellowship with us. And our fellowship is with the Father and with his Son, Jesus Christ. ⁴We are writing these things so that you may fully share our joy.

Living in the Light

⁵This is the message we heard from Jesus and now declare to you: God is light, and there is no darkness in him at all. ⁶So we are lying if we say we have ^bfellowship with God but go on living in spiritual darkness; we are not practicing the truth. ⁷But if we are living in the light, as God is in the light, then we have fellowship with each other, and the blood of Jesus, his Son, cleanses us from all sin.

⁸If we claim we have no sin, we are only fooling ourselves and not living in the truth. ⁹But if we confess our ^csins to him, he is faithful and just to forgive us our ^csins and to cleanse us from all wickedness. ¹⁰If we claim we have not sinned, we are calling God a liar and showing that his word has no place in our hearts.

2 My dear children, I am writing this to you so that you will not sin. But if anyone does sin, we have an ^dadvocate who pleads our case before the Father. He is

1:1-4 This poetic prologue reflects the message of the prologue to John's Gospel (John 1:1-18). • The we that occurs throughout the prologue refers to John and the other apostles, and perhaps to other Christians who had seen and touched Jesus Christ. The apostles were the first eyewitnesses of Jesus and had personal fellowship with God through him. John, representing the apostles, now invites readers to join in that fellowship.

1:1 We proclaim to you the one who existed from the beginning: Literally What was from the beginning. That is, from before time began, eternally (John 8:58). When Jesus came in the flesh (John 1:14), the apostles saw him . . . and touched him. This affirmation that they actually touched the Word of life is important because Gnosticism and Docetism (early Christian heresies) denied that Christ was truly a human being (see 4:2-3). Jesus, the Son of God, is the personal expression of the invisible God, and the giver of eternal life (John 1:1-4).

1:2 life itself (Greek zōē): Throughout the NT, this word is used to designate the eternal life of God (Eph 4:18). This life resides in Christ, and he makes it available to all who believe in him. • This one . . . was revealed to us: Jesus, the Christ, was known to his apostles as a human being during his earthly ministry.

1:3 what we . . . have actually seen: The Word of life had, as a man, revealed God to the apostles. • our fellowship is with the Father and with his Son: Once the Spirit regenerated the apostles, they entered into spiritual fellowship with the Father and the Son. • you may have fellowship with us: Whoever entered into fellowship with the apostles by associating with them while they were alive, or enters now by remaining in their teaching, has fellowship with the Father and the Son through them.

1:4 so that you may fully share our joy (or so that our joy may be complete; some manuscripts read your joy): The joy that the apostles have comes from their fellowship with God the Father and the Son (1:3). Readers will share this joy when they enter into the same fellowship.

1:5-2:6 Here John focuses on the first aspect of living in fellowship with God. Living in the light means that the believers will see that they are sinners, but they will also realize that Jesus is their Advocate to make them right with God (see Eph 5:6-13).

1:5 from Jesus: Literally from him. • God is light: This light shone through Jesus Christ to all he came in contact with, to expose their sin and to illumine the moral nature and character of God (see John 1:4-5, 9; 3:19-21; 8:12; 9:5; 12:35-36, 46). In John, "light" represents God's holiness and revelation. It is the opposite of false teaching and undisciplined living, which is "darkness" (1:6).

1:6 This is the first of several instances in which John challenges the claims of the Gnostics, who had broken away from the apostolic fellowship and were thus living in spiritual darkness. They claimed to have fellowship with God but did not express his character, which is light. Jesus had warned the Jewish leaders of his day not to let the light they thought they had be darkness (Matt 6:23)—their religious beliefs had blinded them to the spiritual illumination they could have received from Christ. In like manner, these Gnostic teachers thought they were enlightened but were actually darkened by their so-called illuminations. They claimed to have spiritual experiences from God, yet they rejected fellowship with the ones who had actually seen God in the flesh, namely, John and the other apostles.

1:7 Believers have fellowship with each other and with God as they live in the light. People cannot say they commune with God and then refuse to have fellowship with God's people. This was the case with the Gnostics. The apostles of Christ had known Jesus Christ as God-in-the-flesh and were continuing to have spiritual fellowship with him (1:3).

1:8 If we claim we have no sin: This is the second false claim of the Gnostics (see 1:6). They claimed that they were or could be sinless since Christ had abolished their sins once and for all—their higher knowledge would lift them above the realm of sin. But Christians do still sin when they live in their old nature (see Rom 7:14-25). The true Christian both acknowledges this sin (1:9) and trusts in Christ to take it away.

1:9 To maintain continual fellowship with God, we need to confess our sins to him. Forgiveness and cleansing are guaranteed because God is faithful to his promises and because he acts on the basis of his justice. Christ's death for our sins fulfills God's justice and acquits us of our guilt.

1:10 If we claim we have not sinned, we are calling God a liar: God's word emphasizes the permeating and penetrating nature of sin (see note on 1:8).

2:1 In order to live "in the light" (1:5-7), one must confess sin (1:9) and stop

Jesus Christ, the one who is truly righteous. ²He himself is the ^asacrifice that atones for our sins—and not only our sins but the sins of all the world.

³And we can be sure that we know him if we obey his commandments. ⁴If someone claims, “I know God,” but doesn’t obey God’s commandments, that person is a liar and is not living in the truth. ⁵But those who obey God’s word truly show how completely they love him. That is how we know we are living in him. ⁶Those who say they live in God should live their lives as Jesus did.

A New Commandment

⁷Dear friends, I am not writing a new commandment for you; rather it is an old one you have had from the very beginning. This old commandment—to love one another—is the same message you heard before. ⁸Yet it is also new. Jesus lived the truth of this commandment, and you also are living it. For the darkness is disappearing, and the true light is already shining.

⁹If anyone claims, “I am living in the light,” but hates a fellow believer, that person is still living in darkness. ¹⁰Anyone who loves a fellow believer is living in the light and does not cause others to stumble. ¹¹But anyone who hates a fellow believer is still living and walking in darkness. Such a person does not know the way to go, having been blinded by the darkness.

sinning. John emphasized sin in ch 1 in order to make believers despise their sin and avoid it. • if anyone does sin: Believers should repudiate sin, but they should not fear confessing sins to God. • advocate (Greek paraklētos, “one who is called to our side” as comforter or advocate): Christ is our defense attorney, representing us before the Father in heaven (see Rom 8:26-34; cp. John 14:16). • Jesus Christ, the . . . righteous: We, in contrast, are sinful. Because Christ fulfilled the law and paid sin’s penalty for us, he can plead for us on the basis of justice as well as mercy. When God raised Christ from the dead, he accepted once for all Christ’s plea for our acquittal (see Rom 4:23-25). “The righteousness of Christ stands on our side; for God’s righteousness is, in Jesus Christ, ours” (Martin Luther).

2:2 sacrifice that atones: The Greek hilasmos means “appeasement by means of sacrifice” (cp. 4:10). Christ satisfied God’s justice by dying in our place (Rom 3:25).

2:3-6 Obedience is one clear indication that we know Christ and belong to him. If we do not obey Christ, it is obvious that we do not belong to him or love him. • As we obey Christ and his commandments, our love for God and our knowledge of him will grow toward completeness and maturity. We will live . . . as Jesus did, in union with God and showing love for others.

2:7-11 The disciples had the old commandment (to love one another) from the very beginning, from Jesus himself (John 13:34-35) and from the OT (Lev 19:18, 33-34).

2:8 Yet it is also new: Jesus’ command provided the new basis for their love in his own demonstration of love to the disciples (John 13:1-17). • the darkness is disappearing and the true light is already shining: The light of the Good News expels darkness. Darkness cannot overcome it, especially where believers are living out the love that is in Christ.

2:9-11 Another indication of truly knowing Christ is one’s treatment of other Christians. John is again pointing to those who claim to be spiritually enlightened but separate themselves from other Christians with an attitude of superiority. John defines such an attitude as hatred.

2:9 hates a fellow believer: Literally hates his brother; also in 2:11. Brother is a generic term often used to refer to both male and female believers.

2:10 loves a fellow believer: Literally loves his brother. • To cause others to stumble can also mean to ensnare or entrap them. The Greek word skandalon means a trap or a block in someone’s path. The Gnostics, who taught falsehood about Christ, were hindering people by ensnaring them in error and darkness. • living in the light: A godly life will help, not hinder, the faith of other Christians.

2:12-14 John gives three classes of believers at various stages of spiritual maturity: God’s children, the young in the faith (literally young people), and the mature in the faith (literally fathers).

2:12 through Jesus: Literally through his name.

2:13 to you who are mature in the faith: Or to you fathers; also in 2:14.

2:15-17 The world is a morally evil system that is under the influence of Satan and is opposed to God and to physical pleasure, a craving for everything we see, and pride in our achievements and possessions. These are not from the Father, but are from this world. ¹⁷And this world is fading away, along with everything that people crave. But anyone who does what ¹⁸pleases God will live forever.

Warning about Antichrists

¹⁸Dear children, the last hour is here. You have heard that the ¹⁹Antichrist is coming, and already many such ²⁰antichrists have appeared. From this we know that the last hour has come. ¹⁹These people left our churches, but they never really belonged with us; otherwise they would have stayed with us. When they left, it proved that they did not belong with us.

²⁰But you are not like that, for the Holy One has given you his Spirit, and all of you know the truth. ²¹So I am writing to you not because you don't know the truth but because you know the difference between truth and lies. ²²And who is a liar? Anyone who says that Jesus is not the Christ. Anyone who denies the Father and the Son is an antichrist. ²³Anyone who denies the Son doesn't have the Father, either. But anyone who acknowledges the Son has the Father also.

Remaining Faithful in Fellowship

²⁴So you must remain faithful to what you have been taught from the beginning. If you do, you will remain in fellowship with the Son and with the Father. ²⁵And in this fellowship we enjoy the eternal life he promised us.

²⁶I am writing these things to warn you about those who want to lead you astray. ²⁷But you have received the Holy Spirit, and he lives within you, so you don't need anyone to teach you what is true. For the Spirit teaches you everything you need to know, and what he teaches is true—it is not a lie. So just as he has taught you, remain in fellowship with Christ.

²⁸And now, dear children, remain in fellowship with Christ so that when he returns, you will be full of courage and not shrink back from him in shame.

²⁹Since we know that Christ is righteous, we also know that all who do what is right are God's children.

Living as Children of God

3 See how very much our Father loves us, for he calls us his children, and that is what we are! But the people who belong to this world don't recognize that we are God's children because they don't know him. ²Dear friends, we are already God's children, but he has not yet shown us what we will be like when Christ appears. But we do know that we will be like him, for we will see him as he really is. ³And all who have this eager expectation will keep themselves pure, just as he is pure.

⁴Everyone who sins is breaking God's law,

Christ's Kingdom on this earth (2:16; 3:1; 4:4; 5:19; John 12:31; 15:18; Eph 6:11-12; Jas 4:4). The world appeals to people's fleshly desires and thereby diverts them from God. Those who are from this world need God to redeem them from it.

2:18 Antichrist literally means "instead of Christ"; he claims for himself what belongs to Christ and poses as a substitute for Christ (cp. 2 Thes 2:3 and Rev 13:1-10). • many such antichrists have appeared: They are the false teachers who deny that Jesus is the Christ, God's Son (2:22-23), God in the flesh (4:2; 2 Jn 1:7).

2:19 These people left our churches: This is John's first direct statement about the false teachers. At one point, they had been part of the church community, in fellowship with John and the other apostles. Then they left that fellowship and evidently formed a separate, exclusive community based on their false teachings about Jesus (see 4:1; 2 Jn 1:7; 3 Jn 1:9-10). • they never really belonged with us: True believers would have stayed in fellowship with the apostles and remained faithful to their teachings.

2:20-23 for the Holy One has given you his Spirit: The Holy Spirit gives believers the ability to understand and recognize spiritual truth (see Isa 61:1; Acts 10:38; 2 Cor 1:21-22). Those who have the Spirit know the truth about the Father and the Son and can detect what does not accord with the truth of the apostles' teaching.

2:20 But you are not like that, for the Holy One has given you his Spirit: Literally But you have an anointing from the Holy One.

2:22 John marks out as a liar any false teacher who denies that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, the unique revealer of the Father (4:2). • not the Christ: Or not the Messiah. • an antichrist: Or the antichrist.

2:24-25 John instructs his readers to resist the lies of such antichrists and to remain faithful to the truth that he and the other apostles have proclaimed to them. If they would do this, then they would remain in fellowship with the

Son and with the Father and have assurance of eternal life (John 3:15, 36; 6:40, 47, 57; 17:2-3).

2:27 received the Holy Spirit: Literally received the anointing from him. • For the Spirit: Literally For the anointing.

2:28-29 To remain in fellowship with Christ means, in part, not being misled by any kind of false teaching. If John's readers listen to the false teachers, they will not be in fellowship with Christ and will have reason to shrink back from him in shame when he returns, because of the judgment coming upon them.

3:1-3 When Christ returns, we will be like him, for we will see him as he really is. God's children bear the image of Christ and will share in his glory (see Rom 8:18-30). • Those who have this hope keep themselves pure, seeking to become more like Christ in anticipation of his glorious appearing. It is partly for this reason that God's children will not be ashamed when Christ comes (2:29).

3:4-10 This section discusses what it means to live a pure life (3:3). Being born into God's family demands for all sin is contrary to the law of God.⁵ And you know that Jesus came to take away our sins, and there is no sin in him.⁶ Anyone who continues to live in him will not sin. But anyone who keeps on sinning does not know him or understand who he is.

⁷Dear children, don't let anyone deceive you about this: When people do what is right, it shows that they are righteous, even as Christ is righteous.⁸ But when people keep on sinning, it shows that they belong to the devil, who has been sinning since the beginning. But the Son of God came to destroy the works of the devil.⁹ Those who have been born into God's family do not make a practice of sinning, because God's life is in them. So they can't keep on sinning, because they are children of God.¹⁰ So now we can tell who are children of God and who are children of the devil. Anyone who does not live righteously and does not love other believers does not belong to God.

3. LOVING ONE ANOTHER (3:11–4:21)

Showing We Love One Another

¹¹This is the message you have heard from the beginning: We should love one another.¹²We must not be like Cain, who belonged to the evil one and killed his brother. And why did he kill him? Because Cain had been doing what was evil, and his brother had been doing what was righteous.¹³So don't be surprised, dear brothers and sisters, if the world hates you.

¹⁴If we love our brothers and sisters who are believers, it proves that we have passed from death to life. But a person who has no love is still dead.¹⁵Anyone who hates another brother or sister is really a murderer at heart. And you know that murderers don't have eternal life within them.

¹⁶We know what real love is because Jesus gave up his life for us. So we also ought to give up our lives for our brothers and sisters.¹⁷If someone has enough money to live well and sees a brother or sister in need but shows no compassion—how can God's love be in that person?

¹⁸Dear children, let's not merely say that we love each other; let us show the truth by our actions.¹⁹Our actions will show that we belong to the truth, so we will be confident when we stand before God.²⁰Even if we feel guilty, God is greater than our feelings, and he knows everything.

²¹Dear friends, if we don't feel guilty, we can come to God with bold confidence.²²And we will receive from him whatever we ask because we obey him and do the things that please him.

²³And this is his commandment: We must ^bbelieve in the name of his Son, Jesus Christ, and love one another, just as he commanded us.²⁴Those who obey God's purification; a life of sin—a continual lack of purity—is evidence that someone is not really God's child. Sin is incompatible with the new nature derived from the new birth. John wants believers to do what is right, and thus demonstrate that they are joined to Christ and his righteousness. Those who are children of God do not make a practice of sinning, but this differs from the sort of "sinlessness" that the false teachers claimed (see 1:5-10 and notes).

3:6 continues to live in him (Greek menō): This indicates "abiding" and "remaining" (John 15:1-8) in contrast to departing into falsehood. To the extent that we live in continual, dependent fellowship with Christ and in faithfulness to the apostles' teachings, we will not sin. • keeps on sinning: This verb denotes sin as an ongoing, repeated action. John was not saying that anyone who sins once does not know God (i.e., has no relationship with God). But if we persist in sin, we demonstrate a lack of relationship with God.

3:8 destroy: This does not mean "to annihilate" but "to break down" (see Eph 2:14), "to undo," or "to render ineffective." Christ did not obliterate Satan; he came to undo the works of the devil by freeing people from sin and its awful consequences.

3:9-10 because God's life: Literally because his seed. • To live righteously means to live in a right relationship with God. (This is in contrast to the false teachers, who held that life in the spirit could not be contaminated by any behavior in a physical body.) This does not mean that we live perfect lives (1:8), but that we keep ourselves in a good relationship with God (1:9).

3:10 does not love other believers: Literally does not love his brother; see note on 2:9.

3:11-22 John now focuses on the believers' need to love one another (see John 13:34).

3:12-13 Cain had been doing what was evil: Cain was jealous that Abel received approval from God; this jealousy led to murder (Gen 4:8). Hatred is judged, just as the outward act that results from it (see Matt 5:21-22).

3:13 dear brothers and sisters: Literally brothers; see note on 2:9.

3:14 Having love for our brothers and sisters who are believers (literally the brothers; similarly in 3:16) is tangible evidence that we have experienced rebirth in Christ and will have eternal life rather than death (i.e., condemnation; see Rom 6:23; Jas 5:20; Rev 21:8).

3:15 hates another brother or sister: Literally hates his brother; see note on 2:9.

3:16-18 Christ's example shows that real love involves self-sacrifice. We do this by becoming truly concerned about the needs of other Christians and by unselfishly giving time, effort, prayer, possessions, and even our lives to supply those needs.

3:17 sees a brother or sister: Literally sees his brother; see note on 2:9.

3:19-22 Those who truly love (3:16-18) have confidence that God accepts them because real love is primary evidence of real faith and of new life in Christ (see 4:7-8).

3:23-24 John here gives a new criterion for discerning who has the Spirit. The Spirit is not the possession of an elite who are enlightened without their lives being changed. Instead, the Spirit

Discerning False Prophets

4 Dear friends, do not believe everyone who claims to speak by the Spirit. You must test them to see if the spirit they have comes from God. For there are many false prophets in the world. ²This is how we know if they have the Spirit of God: If a person claiming to be a prophet acknowledges that Jesus Christ came in a real body, that person has the Spirit of God. ³But if someone claims to be a prophet and does not acknowledge the truth about Jesus, that person is not from God. Such a person has the spirit of the ^cAntichrist, which you heard is coming into the world and indeed is already here.

⁴But you belong to God, my dear children. You have already won a victory over those people, because the Spirit who lives in you is greater than the spirit who lives in the world. ⁵Those people belong to this world, so they speak from the world's viewpoint, and the world listens to them. ⁶But we belong to God, and those who know God listen to us. If they do not belong to God, they do not listen to us. That is how we know if someone has the Spirit of truth or the spirit of deception.

God Is Love

⁷Dear friends, let us continue to love one another, for ^alove comes from God. Anyone who loves is a child of God and knows God. ⁸But anyone who does not love does not know God, for God is love.

⁹God showed how much he loved us by sending his ^eone and only Son into the world so that we might have eternal life through him. ¹⁰This is real love—not that we loved God, but that he loved us and sent his Son as a ^fsacrifice to take away our sins.

¹¹Dear friends, since God loved us that much, we surely ought to love each other. ¹²No one has ever seen God. But if we love each other, God lives in us, and his love is brought to full expression in us.

¹³And God has given us his Spirit as proof that we live in him and he in us. ¹⁴Furthermore, we have seen with our own eyes and now testify that the Father sent his Son to be the ^gSavior of the world. ¹⁵All who declare that Jesus is the Son of God have God living in them, and they live in God. ¹⁶We know how much God loves us, and we have put our trust in his love.

God is love, and all who live in love live in God, and God lives in them. ¹⁷And as we live in God, our love grows more perfect. So we will not be afraid on the day of judgment, but we can face him with confidence because we live like Jesus here in this world.

comes to all believers and stimulates obedient discipleship (Gal 5:22-23).

4:1-6 Those who belong to God (4:4) can distinguish spiritual truth from error, because the Spirit's presence (3:23-24) teaches them (see 2:20, 27; John 14:15-26; 16:5-15). Yet John provides concrete tests for the believers to apply so that there will be no confusion. These tests are a starting point for true teachers, not an exhaustive set; they were designed to address the false teachings that were being promoted in the churches of John's readers.

4:1 everyone who claims to speak by the Spirit (literally every spirit): The teachers who left John's churches claimed to be prophets, but the true prophet is an instrument for the Holy Spirit's messages (Acts 4:25; 1 Tim 4:1; Rev 19:10). Every speaker should be tested against what the Holy Spirit has said through the apostles (4:2-3, 6).

4:2 If a person claiming to be a prophet (literally if a spirit; similarly in 4:3): John outlines a doctrinal test for prophets and teachers. Those who have the Spirit of God confess that Jesus Christ came in a real body. In other words, they must affirm the full reality that Jesus is both fully man and fully God. Prophets and teachers who deny these basic teachings are antichrists (2:18). Certain false teachers in John's day (the Docetists) taught that Jesus Christ only seemed to have a human body but did not really have one. They thereby denied that God became flesh; see 1:1-3; John 1:14).

4:5 The world's viewpoint is one of systematic evil, opposed to God (2:15-17).

4:6 John tests the reality of a person's Christianity by whether they listen to and agree with the teachings of the apostles. • The Spirit of truth is the Holy Spirit (John 14:17, 26; 15:26; 16:13-15), who teaches the truth about Christ (2:20, 27). • False prophets have the spirit of deception, the spirit of antichrist, which leads people away from Christ (see note on 2:22). Therefore, union with the historic body of Christ and the consensus of teaching that began with the apostles is a sign of fidelity to Christ's work in the world.

4:7-21 John explains the source of a Christian's love and its outworking.

4:8 God is love, the source and embodiment of all love. This concept and the concept that "God is light" (1:5) form the foundation on which John writes this letter.

4:9-10 Jesus Christ, sent from God the Father, embodied and demonstrated God's love in his life on earth and in his sacrificial death on the cross as an atoning sacrifice.

4:11-12 Those who have received God's love cannot help but spontaneously love those who have done the same. As this love flows through us to each other, it becomes evident that we love God.

4:15 Those who believe in Christ have God living in them, and they live in God. The Father and the Son experience this fellowship (John 10:38; 14:10; 17:21). Experiencing God in this way is a special privilege for believers (see John 14:20; 15:5; 17:21-24).

4:17 our love grows more perfect: The Greek word translated grows more perfect does not mean flawless, but mature and complete. We mature as our relationship with God grows, and God's love makes our love complete. • Experiencing and expressing God's love and doing what it requires does not make us acceptable to God, but it does give us the assurance that we have been accepted, and our fears of the final judgment melt away.

¹⁸Such love has no fear, because perfect love expels all fear. If we are afraid, it is for fear of punishment, and this shows that we have not fully experienced his perfect love. ¹⁹We love each other because he loved us first.

²⁰If someone says, "I love God," but hates a fellow believer, that person is a liar; for if we don't love people we can see, how can we love God, whom we cannot see? ²¹And he has given us this command: Those who love God must also love their fellow believers.

4. LIVING IN FELLOWSHIP (5:1-21)

Faith in the Son of God

5 Everyone who believes that Jesus is the Christ has become a child of God. And everyone who loves the Father loves his children, too. ²We know we love God's children if we love God and obey his commandments. ³Loving God means keeping his commandments, and his commandments are not burdensome. ⁴For every child of God defeats this evil world, and we achieve this victory through our faith. ⁵And who can win this battle against the world? Only those who believe that Jesus is the Son of God.

⁶And Jesus Christ was revealed as God's Son by his baptism in water and by shedding his blood on the cross—not by water only, but by water and blood. And the Spirit, who is truth, confirms it with his testimony. ⁷So we have these three witnesses—the Spirit, the water, and the blood—and all three agree. ⁹Since we believe human testimony, surely we can believe the greater testimony that comes from God. And God has testified about his Son. ¹⁰All who believe in the Son of God know in their hearts that this testimony is true. Those who don't believe this are actually calling God a liar because they don't believe what God has testified about his Son.

Knowing We Have Life

¹¹And this is what God has testified: He has given us eternal life, and this life is in his Son. ¹²Whoever has the Son has life; whoever does not have God's Son does not have life.

¹³I have written this to you who believe in the name of the Son of God, so that you may know you have eternal life. ¹⁴And we are confident that he hears us whenever we ask for anything that pleases him. ¹⁵And since we know he hears us when we make our requests, we also know that he will give us what we ask for.

Keeping from Sin

¹⁶If you see a fellow believer sinning in a way that does not lead to death, you should pray, and God will give that person life. But

4:18 perfect love expels all fear: As we live with Christ and grow more mature and complete in God's love, we have confidence in facing the day of judgment, which will be terrifying for those who don't know God (Acts 24:25; Rom 2:16). • Based on consciousness of guilt, fear anticipates a deserved punishment, producing dread that is itself a foretaste of that punishment. Christ died to set us free from this dread (Heb 2:14-15).

4:19 We love each other: Literally We love. Other manuscripts read We love God; still others read We love him. • God loved us first, while we were sinners, not only after we gave sin up (Rom 8:5-11). God started the process; when he loved us he enabled us to respond to him in love and to extend that love to other Christians.

4:20 hates a fellow believer: Literally hates his brother; see note on 2:9.

4:21 Those who love God must also love their fellow believers: Literally The one who loves God must also love his brother.

5:1-5 Those who believe that Jesus is the Christ (or the Messiah) and the Son of God have been born spiritually as children of God (see John 20:31). Such people are empowered by the Spirit of God to love him and other Christians, and by their faith to obey God and overcome the evil temptations of the world. Through faith, they can love God and live in obedience to him.

5:6 And Jesus Christ was revealed as God's Son by his baptism in water and by shedding his blood on the cross (literally This is he who came by water and blood): John's contemporary, the heretic Cerinthus, taught that "the Christ" descended as a spirit on the man Jesus when he was baptized but left him before he died. The truth is that Jesus' baptism and death confirmed his identity as the Christ, the Son of God. Jesus of Nazareth was and is truly the Christ, the Son of God, from the beginning and forever.

5:7-8 three witnesses: The Spirit descended on Christ at his baptism (see John 1:32-34). The water is the water in which Christ was baptized (see Matt 3:13-15; Mark 1:9-11). The blood is the blood that Christ shed at his crucifixion (see Mark 15:37-39). All three proclaim Jesus as God's Son (5:6). • After the phrase three witnesses, a few very late manuscripts add in heaven—the Father, the Word, and the Holy Spirit, and these three are one. And we have three wit- nesses on earth. The longer version was written in Latin several centuries after John to explain the three elements (water, blood, and Spirit) as symbols of the Trinity. This explanation found its way into some Latin editions of 1 John, including later copies of the Latin Vulgate. Eventually, Erasmus translated it into Greek and included it in what became the Textus Receptus, the "received text," which is why it was included in the King James Version. The longer version cannot be found in any Greek manuscript prior to the 1700s and was never cited by any of the early fathers of the church. For these reasons, few modern English translations recognize the longer version as part of the authentic text.

5:11-12 Whoever has the Son has life: Those who have the Son of God living in them have God's eternal life now—they enjoy the presence of God's Spirit (2:20, 25, 27) and they have the guarantee of eternity with God (see Eph 1:13-14).

5:16 a fellow believer: Literally a brother; see note on 2:9. • Sins that lead to death are those involving apostasy (see Matt 12:31-32; Heb 6:4-6). In the context of this letter, apostasy involves leaving the apostolic faith and joining a heretical, anti-Christian movement such there is a sin that leads to death, and I am not saying you should pray for those who commit it. ¹⁷All wicked actions are sin, but not every sin leads to death.

¹⁸We know that God's children do not make a practice of sinning, for God's Son holds them securely, and the evil one cannot touch them. ¹⁹We know that we are children of God and that the world around us is under the control of the evil one.

²⁰And we know that the Son of God has come, and he has given us understanding so that we can know the true God. And now we live in fellowship with the true God because we live in fellowship with his Son, Jesus Christ. He is the only true God, and he is eternal life.

²¹Dear children, keep away from anything that might take God's place in your hearts.

as those denounced in John's letters (see also "Consequences of Apostasy" at Heb 2:1-4, p. 2085).

5:17 not every sin leads to death: Those that do not involve ultimate apostasy can end in repentance and restoration (see Jas 5:20).

5:20 The NLT interprets the phrase the true God (literally the one who is true) as referring to God, since the next phrase refers to his Son, Jesus Christ. John is also saying that Jesus Christ is the only true God (see John 1:1, 18; 20:28; Rom 9:5; Titus 2:13; 2 Pet 1:1). • To have fellowship with Jesus Christ is to have eternal life, because he is eternal life (5:12; see John 1:4; 3:16; 14:6; 20:31).

5:21 In closing, John exhorts his flock to keep away from anything that might take God's place in your hearts (literally keep yourselves from idols). In the context of 1 John, the primary idol would be any false teaching that takes people away from Jesus Christ, who is at once fully man and fully God.

THE SECOND LETTER OF John

Second John is the shortest book in the NT, only thirteen verses. In antiquity, the entire letter would have fit on one sheet of papyrus. The first letter of John elaborated the principles of continuing in the truth, loving fellow believers, and watching out for false teachers. This letter gives us an example of applying these principles to a concrete situation.

SETTING

The setting of 2 John is similar to that of 1 John (see 1 John Introduction, "Setting," p. 2138). False teachers had been traveling in Asia Minor, teaching a heresy about Jesus known as Docetism. These deceivers refused to acknowledge that Jesus, the divine Christ, had a physical, human body, and they were persuading others to think the same way. These deceivers were probably the same heretics John alludes to in his first letter. Some of the members of the church, influenced by this teaching, had broken away to form a new sect. The apostle John was exhorting the believers in Asia Minor to be strong in their faith in the apostolic message of Jesus Christ, in their grasp of the truth, and in their love for one another.

SUMMARY

This personal letter begins with a greeting (vv 1-3) and then states John's wishes (vv 4-11). Above all, John wanted his readers to continue to love other Christians and to live in the eternal truth. John warns the Christians about false teachers who might come among them, and he encourages them to hold on to the apostles' teachings concerning Jesus Christ so that they will receive their full reward. At the same time, he commands them not to welcome false teachers into their meetings or their homes or to help them in any way. They should not even wish them well; to do so would be to participate in their heresy.

◀ The Setting of 2 John, late 80s AD. When the apostle John left Jerusalem (probably in the late 60s AD), he seems to have settled in Ephesus in the province of Asia. He wrote his three letters (1-3 John) to the churches in Asia.

John closes his letter with a promise to visit soon and with greetings to the whole church.

AUTHOR

Some scholars have thought that the John who penned this letter (v 1) was a different John from the apostle. They think this because of a quotation from Papias, who was bishop of Hierapolis in Asia Minor (AD 100~130):

If anywhere one came my way who had been a follower of the elders, I would inquire about the words of the elders—what Andrew and Peter had said, or what Thomas or James or John or Matthew or any other of the Lord's disciples; and I would inquire about the things which Aristion and the elder John, the Lord's disciples, are saying.

This quote has led some to think that Papias was speaking of two different people named John, but that is not necessarily the case. Papias noted what the "elders" (including the apostles, such as John) had said about Jesus and what two of the Lord's disciples (Aristion and John) were still saying (present tense). The apostle John lived to be a very old man, so old that even Papias had heard him speak in person. It is reasonable to conclude that the "elder" of 1–3 John is the same as the apostle John.

RECIPIENTS

The recipients of 2 John were a "chosen lady and . . . her children" (v 1). This might refer to a specific woman named Kyria and her biological children (the Greek word kuria, "lady," can be a proper name). However, it is likely that John was speaking about a particular local church ("the chosen lady") and its individual members ("her children"; cp. 1 Pet 5:13). If so, 2 John was sent to one of the churches in Asia Minor, for these were the churches under his authority. Since the author identifies himself at the beginning of this epistle as "the elder," the recipients were likely a fellowship of Christians under his care.

MEANING AND MESSAGE

Genuine Christian missionaries . . . may be recognized both by the message they bring and by the motive which inspires them. If they faithfully proclaim the doctrine of Christ, and if they have set out not for gain but for the sake of the name, then they should be both received and helped forward on their journey.

JOHN R. W. STOTT, The Letters of John, p. 202

The message of 2 John is twofold. First, the members of the Christian community must love one another (v 5). The outworking of this love follows Jesus' commands (v 6). Second, John warns the church about false teachers who needed to be exposed, avoided, and shunned.

JOHN R. W. STOTT
The Letters of John (1988)

Many of the NT Epistles were written to deal with heresy. This is true of several of Paul's letters: Galatians (Gal 1:6), Colossians (Col 2:16-23), 2 Thessalonians (2 Thes 2:1-3), and 1 Timothy (1 Tim 4:1; 6:20-21). Peter wrote his second letter to counter false teachers (2 Pet 2:1-22), and Jude wrote his letter (Jude 1:3-4) for the same reason. John's letters, likewise, were written as antidotes to the poisonous effects of false teachings, such as Gnosticism and Docetism, that were infecting many of the early churches.

Greetings (vv 1-3)

This letter is from John, the elder.

I am writing to the chosen lady and to her children, whom I love in the truth—as does everyone else who knows the truth—²because the truth lives in us and will be with us forever.

³Grace, mercy, and peace, which come from God the Father and from Jesus Christ—the Son of the Father—will continue to be with us who live in truth and love.

Encouragement to Live in the Truth (vv 4-11)

Live in the Truth

⁴How happy I was to meet some of your children and find them living according to the truth, just as the Father commanded.

⁵I am writing to remind you, dear friends, that we should love one another. This is not a new commandment, but one we have had from the beginning. ⁶Love means doing what God has commanded us, and he has commanded us to love one another, just as you heard from the beginning.

The Nature of Christ

⁷I say this because many deceivers have gone out into the world. They deny that Jesus Christ came in a real body. Such a person is a deceiver and an ^aantichrist. ⁸Watch out that you do not lose what we have worked so hard to achieve. Be diligent so that you receive your full reward. ⁹Anyone who wanders away from this teaching has no relationship with God. But anyone who remains in the teaching of Christ has a relationship with both the Father and the Son.

¹⁰If anyone comes to your meeting and does not teach the truth about Christ, don't invite that person into your home or give any kind of encouragement. ¹¹Anyone who vv 1-3 John begins with a standard introduction for a personal letter. • John mentions truth four times in this brief introduction and once in v 4. John wanted his readers to know and live out the truths about Jesus Christ and their relationship with him and not to be led astray by false teachers.

v 1 This letter is from John, the elder (literally From the elder): The translators have added John for clarification; John refers to himself as the elder to affirm his authority in the church. • to the chosen lady (Greek kuria) and to her children: Or to the church God has chosen and its members. The Greek word kuria could be the name of a specific individual; more likely, it refers to a particular local church and its believers (cp. v 13). • whom I love in the truth: This either means “truly love” (see vv 5-6) or, more likely, it refers to love between those who profess the same truth about Christ in contrast to the lies of the false teachers (v 7; see 1 Jn 2:21-23). John emphasizes the pronoun I to contrast sharply with the lovelessness of the false teachers, who rejected the true church.

v 2 Christian love is rooted in knowing the truth. The truth that lives in us is more than just facts or doctrine; it is the presence of God (see John 14:15-17), who will be with us forever.

v 3 Grace, mercy, and peace are blessings of which John is confident for those who live in truth and love, and who demonstrate by their actions that they are God's children.

vv 4-11 John now applies the truth and love that he mentioned in the introduction (vv 1-3) to the readers' situation. Living in truth and love means maintaining fellowship with true Christians (vv 4-6), but also discerning false teachers and refusing to listen to them or help them (vv 7-11; see 1 John Introduction, “Setting,” p. 2138).

v 5 I am writing to remind you, dear friends: Literally I urge you, lady. See note on v 1.

v 7 many deceivers have gone out into the world: Docetists were denying that Jesus Christ came in a real body. John refuted this heresy in his first letter (see 1 Jn 4:2-3). • Jesus Christ came: Or Jesus Christ will come. • A false teacher is a deceiver, because he misleads unwary believers, and an antichrist, because he distracts and leads people away from the true Christ. By using the apocalyptic symbol of the antichrist, v 8 we (some manuscripts read you): This word refers to the apostles and their co-workers. The apostles taught the truth and defended it against heresies, and believers (referred to as you) are admonished to protect their faith from teaching that could destroy them (v 9).

John signals the severity of the heresy and the ultimate judgment upon false teachers.

v 9 Anyone who wanders away from this teaching (literally everyone going beyond and not remaining in the teaching): To go beyond is to contradict the apostolic teachings about Jesus Christ and believe things about Jesus that were not taught by the apostles. This is a warning to the church not to listen to the false teachers.

vv 10-11 Believers should not invite that person, who does not teach the truth about Christ, into their homes. The early churches met in homes (see Acts 2:46; 5:42; 8:3; 12:5, 12; Col 4:15; Phlm 1:2), so this could refer to inviting false teachers to a meeting of the church. It could also refer to giving any form of hospitality to false teachers, which would help their mission. The only way to deal with them was to not accept them into the fellowship.

Concluding Words (vv 12-13)

¹²I have much more to say to you, but I don't want to do it with paper and ink. For I hope to visit you soon and talk with you face to face. Then our joy will be complete.

¹³Greetings from the children of your sister, chosen by God.

v 12 Our English idiom face to face has the same meaning as the Greek idiom used here (literally mouth to mouth; see also 3 Jn 1:14). • Then our joy will be complete: Our relationship with Christ is not merely a private experience; we experience the fullest joy in harmonious fellowship with other believers.

v 13 from the children of your sister (or from the members of your sister church):

This probably refers to the sister church in Ephesus and its members, with whom John was staying (see v 1). John lived in that region and served as elder for several churches.

THE THIRD LETTER OF John

Gaius and Demetrius were two men who remained faithful to the church and to the apostle John. Another man, Diotrephes, was improperly controlling the church and rejecting the apostle and his emissaries. This small personal letter provides a window into some issues of leadership and conflict in the early churches.

SETTING

The apostle John wrote this letter in the same time period as 1 John and 2 John. Some teachers and leaders, claiming to be spiritual, taught a different doctrine about Christ and did not make the same disciplinary demands upon the members of their churches (see 1 John Introduction, p. 2138). They assumed their own authority and refused the authority of John. They also perverted the teaching of the apostles. Diotrephes was one of those who had broken away from the apostolic fellowship (cp. 1 Jn 2:18-19). As a leader in one of the local churches, he rejected John's authority and refused to accept the teachers John sent to the church. He even excommunicated those in the church who did receive them and provide them with hospitality.

Knowing this situation, John wrote this letter to Gaius, a faithful member of that church, encouraging him to continue welcoming and hosting John's emissaries and to remain faithful to John's teaching and fellowship.

SUMMARY

Of all the NT letters, 3 John is most typical of personal letters in first-century Greece and Rome. As with all the letters of this era, 3 John begins (vv 1-4) with an identification of the writer ("the elder") and the recipient ("Gaius"), followed by a wish for his welfare.

In the body of this letter (vv 5-12), John commends Gaius and reproves Diotrephes. Gaius acted commendably in welcoming the traveling teachers, and these had in turn reported to John that Gaius was living according to the truth. This gave John great joy. John commends Gaius for giving hospitality to the traveling teachers who worked “on behalf of the Name” of the Lord Jesus Christ (see note on v 7) and encourages him to continue giving them this hospitality.

In contrast to Gaius, a church leader named Diotrephes earned the apostle's censure (vv 9-10). Diotrephes' love for prestigious leadership caused him to rebuff John's authority and to persuade others to do the same. Diotrephes even excommunicated those who didn't follow his own leadership. Gaius is warned not to submit to the aggressive leadership of Diotrephes or be influenced by his bad example.

AUTHOR AND DATE

There is no doubt that 3 John is a real letter from the elder to his friend Gaius, fitting in with the pattern of ancient letter-writing, but transformed by Christian usage.

I. HOWARD MARSHALL, The Epistles of John, p. 9

The author of this epistle calls himself “the elder” (see v 1), a position of authority because of his age and especially because he was a disciple of Christ. Most think that this is John the apostle, an elderly man and an elder of the churches in Asia Minor during the last decades of the first century (see 1 John and 2 John Introductions, pp. 2138, 2148). Third John was probably written during the same period as 1 John and 2 John, before AD 90.

MEANING AND MESSAGE

It is clear from the less polemical tone of 3 John that truth and love were two of the fundamental terms in [John's] theology, and it would not be difficult to write a summary of his thought centered on these two terms.

I. HOWARD MARSHALL, The Epistles of John, p. 52

John's third letter is concerned with a problem introduced in 1 John: Some church leaders followed false teaching and ignored the authority of the apostles. Diotrephes is a clear example of one who falsely claimed to know the truth. By rejecting those sent by John, Diotrephes was destroying the unity of the church. He did not love other Christians and he rejected those who truly knew Jesus Christ. We cannot claim to love God and the truth if we don't love apostolic teaching and if we don't join in fellowship with God's church, the members of the Father's family.

The Letters of John (1988)

Greetings (vv 1-4)

This letter is from John, the elder.

I am writing to Gaius, my dear friend, whom I love in the truth.

²Dear friend, I hope all is well with you and that you are as healthy in body as you are strong in spirit. ³Some of the traveling teachers recently returned and made me very happy by telling me about your faithfulness and that you are living according to the truth. ⁴I could have no greater joy than to hear that my children are following the truth.

Caring for the Lord's Workers (vv 5-12)Encouragement for Gaius

⁵Dear friend, you are being faithful to God when you care for the traveling teachers who pass through, even though they are strangers to you. ⁶They have told the church here of your loving friendship. Please continue providing for such teachers in a manner that pleases God. ⁷For they are traveling for the Lord, and they accept nothing from people who are not believers. ⁸So we ourselves should support them so that we can be their partners as they teach the truth.

Reproof for Diotrephes

⁹I wrote to the church about this, but Diotrephes, who loves to be the leader, refuses to have anything to do with us. ¹⁰When I come, I will report some of the things he is doing and the evil accusations he is making against us. Not only does he refuse to welcome the traveling teachers, he also tells others not to help them. And when they do help, he puts them out of the church.

Approval of Demetrius

¹¹Dear friend, don't let this bad example influence you. Follow only what is good. Remember that those who do good prove that they are God's children, and those who do evil prove that they do not know God.

¹²Everyone speaks highly of Demetrius, as does the truth itself. We ourselves can say the same for him, and you know we speak the truth.

vv 1-4 John begins his letter with a conventional greeting, which includes the identification of the author and addressee, a salutation (dear friend), a wish for the recipient's welfare, and gratitude for some aspect of the friendship.

v 1 This letter is from John, the elder (literally From the elder): The translators have added John (see note on 2 Jn 1:1).

• There are several people named Gaius in the NT (see Acts 19:29; 20:4; Rom 16:23; 1 Cor 1:14); it was a popular name in the Greco-Roman world.

v 3 The traveling teachers (literally brothers; also in vv 5, 10) were probably John's emissaries who traveled from church to church, teaching the Good News and encouraging Christians (see vv 5, 10). • you are living according to the truth: Gaius was faithful to the apostolic gospel of Jesus Christ. The false teachers denied the reality of the incarnation or the sacrificial death of Jesus Christ (cp. 1 Jn 4:1-3).

v 4 As in 2 John (see 2 Jn 1:1-4), John's emphasis is on knowing and following the truth in contrast to Diotrephes and his followers (v 9).

vv 5-8 John now encourages Gaius to continue supporting the traveling teachers whom John had sent out (v 3).

v 5 Gaius provided hospitality for the traveling teachers (literally the brothers) sent by John from church to church to affirm the apostles' teaching about Christ (vv 7-8). By doing this, Gaius showed that he had received the truth from the apostles and that he was thus faithful to God.

v 6 The church here was most likely in Ephesus, where John was probably staying. Ephesus was an important port city in the province of Asia, and the fourth-largest city in the Roman empire. It became an important city for the Christian community (Acts 18:19-19:41; 1 Tim 1:3; 1 Pet 1:1; Rev 2:1-7).

vv 7-8 For they are traveling for the Lord (literally They went out on behalf of the Name): The writer did not need to identify whose name this was because all the early Christians knew that the Name represented Jesus Christ (see Acts 5:41). • The traveling teachers had chosen to accept nothing offered to them from people who are not believers (literally from Gentiles), but to rely fully on the churches for their support. Christians who support legitimate traveling teachers become their partners as they teach the truth (see Matt 10:41-42; Phil 4:15-19).

vv 9-12 In these verses, John condemns Diotrephes and presents Demetrius as the model of a faithful Christian who lives according to the truth. Gaius is urged to emulate Demetrius.

v 9 I wrote to the church about this: This could refer to 1 John or to a letter that is now lost. • Diotrephes was full of pride and self-importance (cp. 1 Tim 3:6), motivated by selfish ambition. • refuses to have anything to do with us: This dissidence was one of the key issues John dealt with in 1 John (see, e.g., 1 Jn 2:19; 4:5-6). Diotrephes rejected the teachers sent by John and excommunicated any members of the church who did accept them. He wanted to rule the local church without answering to any outside authority.

v 11 those who do evil: Diotrephes was condemned for his failure to live by the Christian rule of love (1 Jn 3:10-14). This was how Gaius could be sure that Diotrephes was not living according to the truth. This applies to all who refuse to accept the apostolic teaching about Jesus Christ and refuse to live in fellowship with others who do. • they do not know God: Literally they have not seen God.

v 12 Demetrius was the very opposite of Diotrephes, a prime example of one who knows the truth and practices it (v 3). The placement of Demetrius's name at the end of the letter suggests that he was the one who carried John's letter to Gaius (cp. Col 4:7-9; 1 Pet 5:12). • you know we speak the truth: John wished to protect his honor as a reliable elder over these churches rather than being shamed by any possible usurpation by Diotrephes and other false teachers.

vv 13-15 As in 2 John, the conclusion of 3 John shows John's desire to make a personal visit and see to the instructions of this letter.

v 13 pen and ink (literally ink and reed): In antiquity, writing was typically done with a stylus shaped from a reed and black carbon ink (see also 2 Jn 1:12).

parallels the Greek idiom used here (literally mouth to mouth; see also 2 Jn 1:12).

v 15 John closes his letter with his farewell and with greetings to others.

• Some English translations combine vv 14 and 15 into v 14. • Peace be with you: This was a traditional greeting among the Jews (Matt 10:12; Luke 10:5-6), which had taken on heightened significance for Christians because Jesus used it after his resurrection (John 20:19-21, 26). • give my personal greetings (literally greet by name): Gaius was to greet the friends—that is, those who accept the apostolic gospel and live according to the truth (cp. vv 3-4).

THE LETTER OF Jude

The very brief letter of Jude has a single focus: to warn believers against succumbing to false teaching. Jude helps Christians stay true to the faith by painting a grim and gloomy picture of deviant teachers. Arrogant, immoral, and greedy, these teachers are destined for the terrible judgment God has in store for all who deny and defy him. Who would want to follow such people to their condemnation? This is the question that Jude puts before us in this letter. In a world with so many distorted ideas about Christianity, we need to be reminded of the dangers of false teaching.

SETTING

Jude wrote this letter to combat false teachers in the early church. Jude focuses less on what these people were teaching than on the way they were living; at the heart of Jude's critique is the charge that they were libertines—they assumed that God's grace revealed in Christ gave them the freedom to do whatever they pleased (v 4). They had no respect for authority (see vv 8-9). They engaged in many sinful behaviors (vv 16, 19). These profligates, who claimed to be Christians (v 4), were effectively denying the Lord and were therefore destined for the condemnation of all who rebel against the Lord.

SUMMARY

This brief letter is oriented entirely around an outbreak of false teaching. After the letter opening (vv 1-2), Jude explains the situation prompting his letter (vv 3-4): The imminent danger posed by the false teachers required that he write a very different kind of letter from the one he had planned to write.

In vv 5-16, Jude elaborates on the character of these false teachers. This section unfolds in an A-B-A' sequence. Jude first uses three scriptural examples to illustrate the condemnation that the false teachers face (A, vv 5-10). He then cites three more scriptural examples to castigate them for their ungodly attitudes and behavior (B, vv 11-13). At the end of this section, he returns to their condemnation, citing Jewish tradition to hammer home his indictment (A', vv 14-16).

Jude then appeals directly to his readers (vv 17-23), urging them to hold fast to God's truth and to reach out to believers who might be tempted to follow the false teachers. The letter ends with a notable doxology (vv 24-25).

AUTHOR

Jude identifies himself as "a brother of James" (v 1). This James is almost certainly the "Lord's brother" (Gal 1:19; see Mark 6:3 // Matt 13:55) who became a leader of the Jerusalem church (Acts 15:13-21; 21:18) and wrote the letter of James. Jude was therefore also a brother of Jesus (Jude is spelled "Judas" in Mark 6:3 // Matt 13:55). Jude and the other brothers of Jesus did not follow Jesus during his earthly ministry (John 7:5), but evidently became believers after the resurrection (see 1 Cor 15:7) and traveled to spread the message about the resurrected Lord (1 Cor 9:5).

DATE AND DESTINATION

We know so little about Jude that we cannot pin down a date or destination of the letter. It was probably written after AD 45, to allow time for the kind of false teaching described here to develop. It was probably written before AD 90, when even a young brother of Jesus would have been old. The close relationship between 2 Peter and Jude suggests that the two might have been written at about the same time (see 2 Peter Introduction, "Relationship to Jude," p. 2133).

MEANING AND MESSAGE

False Teachers. False teachers of many varieties have disturbed God's people over the years. Jude's letter is a powerful reminder of their potential to harm the community and a stark depiction of their terrible fate. Jude's description of the false teachers makes dynamic use of OT and Jewish traditions. Jude compares the false teachers to the rebellious Israelites in the wilderness (v 5), to the angels who rebelled against God (v 6), and to the sinners of Sodom and Gomorrah (v 7). The false teachers are like Cain (see Gen 4), Balaam (see Num 22-24), and Korah (see Num 16). Like all of them, false teachers are rebels against the Lord and will experience his judgment.

Defending the Faith. In v 3, Jude implies that there is a defined body of doctrine in the early church to which all Christians need to adhere. Paul assumes the same thing when he urges Timothy to "guard what God has entrusted to you" (1 Tim 6:20; see 2 Tim 1:14).

To be a Christian means to have faith in God and love for others; it also means to confess gladly the truth that God has revealed in Jesus Christ. We cannot truly express faith in God unless we acknowledge the truth that he has revealed. For this reason, early Christians, even in the NT period, formulated creeds to summarize the essentials of Christian truth (e.g., 1 Tim 3:16). These creeds were often crafted to counteract a false teaching. If we are to heed Jude's call to "defend the faith," we need to know just what that faith is. Too many Christians spend too much energy in debating nonessential details and too little in learning the essentials well. Only by learning the essentials will the faithful be able to explain their faith to others and to guard Christian truth from false teaching.

Greetings from Jude (vv 1-2)

This letter is from Jude, a slave of Jesus Christ and a brother of James.

I am writing to all who have been ^acalled by God the Father, who loves you and keeps you safe in the care of Jesus Christ.

²May God give you more and more mercy, peace, and love.

Jude's Purpose in Writing (vv 3-4)

³Dear friends, I had been eagerly planning to write to you about the salvation we all share. But now I find that I must write about something else, urging you to defend the faith that God has entrusted once for all time to his holy people. ⁴I say this because some ungodly people have wormed their way into your churches, saying that God's marvelous grace allows us to live immoral lives. The condemnation of such people was recorded long ago, for they have denied our only Master and Lord, Jesus Christ.

The Danger of False Teachers (vv 5-16)

⁵So I want to remind you, though you already know these things, that Jesus first rescued the nation of Israel from Egypt, but later he destroyed those who did not remain faithful. ⁶And I remind you of the angels who did not stay within the limits of authority God gave them but left the place where they belonged. God has kept them securely chained in prisons of darkness, waiting for the great day of judgment. ⁷And don't forget Sodom and Gomorrah and their neighboring towns, which were filled with immorality and every kind of sexual perversion. Those cities were destroyed by fire and serve as a warning of the eternal fire of God's judgment.

⁸In the same way, these people—who claim authority from their dreams—live immoral lives, defy authority, and ^bscoff at supernatural beings. ⁹But even Michael, one of the mightiest of the angels, did not dare accuse the devil of blasphemy, but simply said, “The Lord rebuke you!” (This took place when Michael was arguing with the devil about Moses' body.) ¹⁰But these people scoff at things they do not understand. Like unthinking animals, they do whatever their instincts tell them, and so they bring about their own destruction. ¹¹What sorrow awaits them! For they follow in the footsteps of Cain, who killed his brother. Like Balaam, they deceive people for money. And like Korah, they perish in their rebellion.

¹²When these people eat with you in your fellowship meals commemorating vv 1-2 In a typical letter opening, Jude identifies himself and his audience and prays for them. • keeps you safe in the care of Jesus Christ (or keeps you for Jesus Christ): This description introduces an important emphasis (see also vv 21, 24) and gives assurance in the context of false teaching.

v 1 Jude (or Judas) is the Greek equivalent of the Hebrew name “Judah.” It was a common name; this Jude was a brother of James, who was a brother of Jesus (see Jude Introduction, “Author,” p. 2156). • a slave of Jesus Christ: Jude acknowledges that he is under Jesus' lordship in every area of life. The title also carries honor: The great OT leaders of God's people were also called slaves or servants of God (see Josh 14:7; 2 Kgs 18:12; Ezek 34:23). • to all who have been called: It is unclear who the specific recipients of Jude's letter were.

vv 3-4 In place of the thanksgiving that usually comes at this point in a NT letter (see Rom 1:8-14; 1 Cor 1:4-9), Jude explains his central purpose. False teaching was a potent danger to the faith of his readers (see vv 22-23).

v 3 In the NT, “faith” usually refers to the act of believing, while the faith refers to the content of Christian belief.

v 4 Abusing God's marvelous grace by saying that it allows us to live immoral lives is a constant temptation (cp. Rom 6).

vv 5-16 This section elaborates on the “condemnation recorded long ago” (1:4) by applying to the false teachers OT examples of God's judgment.

v 5 Jesus: Other manuscripts read [the] Lord, or God, or God Christ. The preexistent Jesus rescued the people of Israel from Egypt and later destroyed the unfaithful (cp. 1 Cor 10:4). • After rescuing the nation of Israel from Egypt, God led them toward the Promised Land. Most of the people did not trust the Lord to protect them. Because of their unbelief, God sentenced that generation (except Joshua and Caleb) to wander in the wilderness until they died (see Num 14).

v 6 The angels might refer to the fall of Satan and his angelic followers, but no OT passage clearly describes this event (see notes on Isa 14:12-17; Ezek 28:11-19). Jude was probably referring to Gen 6:1-4; Jewish tradition understood the “sons of God” in Gen 6 to be wicked angels and viewed their intercourse with women as the cause of their judgment (see 1 Enoch 6-10; see also notes on 1 Pet 3:19-20; 2 Pet 2:4). Jude later (vv 14-15) quotes directly from 1 Enoch.

v 7 God's judgment on Sodom and Gomorrah had become proverbial (see Gen 18:17-19:26; Luke 17:26-29). • neighboring towns: Deuteronomy 29:23 mentions Admah and Zeboiim. • Every kind of sexual perversion probably refers to homosexuality (Gen 19:5-10).

v 8 supernatural beings: Literally glorious ones, which are probably evil angels. In the OT and in Judaism, angels were given a prominent role in the judgment. The false teachers might have been downplaying the reality of a judgment to come (see v 18; 2 Pet 3:3-4) or denying the glorious origin of these fallen angels (cp. 2 Pet 2:10).

v 9 Michael, one of the mightiest of the angels (literally Michael, the archangel): In Jewish tradition, “archangel” was the highest rank of angel (see also 1 Thes 4:16). Michael is mentioned several other times in Scripture (Dan 10:13, 21; 12:1; Rev 12:7); the story about him fighting with the devil about Moses' body is not in the OT but is preserved in Jewish tradition (see Assumption of Moses).

v 11 Cain: See Gen 4:1-16. • Balaam: See note on 2 Pet 2:15. • Korah: See Num 16:1-35.

v 12 The early Christians celebrated the Lord's Supper as part of shared fellowship meals with one another. • they are like dangerous reefs that can shipwreck you: Or they are contaminants among you; or they are stains.

v 13 The planets were considered to be wandering stars because they moved across the sky in seemingly irregular the Lord's love, they are like dangerous reefs that can shipwreck you. They are like shameless shepherds who care only for themselves. They are like clouds blowing over the land without giving any rain. They are like trees in autumn that are doubly dead, for they bear no fruit and have been pulled up by the roots. ¹³They are like wild waves of the sea, churning up the foam of their shameful deeds. They are like wandering stars, doomed forever to blackest darkness.

¹⁴Enoch, who lived in the seventh generation after Adam, prophesied about these people. He said, "Listen! The Lord is coming with countless thousands of his holy ones ¹⁵to execute judgment on the people of the world. He will convict every person of all the ungodly things they have done and for all the insults that ungodly sinners have spoken against him."

¹⁶These people are grumblers and complainers, living only to satisfy their desires. They brag loudly about themselves, and they flatter others to get what they want.

A Call to Remain Faithful (vv 17-23)

¹⁷But you, my dear friends, must remember what the apostles of our Lord Jesus Christ predicted. ¹⁸They told you that in the last times there would be scoffers whose purpose in life is to satisfy their ungodly desires. ¹⁹These people are the ones who are creating divisions among you. They follow their natural instincts because they do not have God's Spirit in them.

²⁰But you, dear friends, must build each other up in your most holy faith, pray in the power of the Holy Spirit, ²¹and await the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ, who will bring you eternal life. In this way, you will keep yourselves safe in God's love.

²²And you must show mercy to those whose faith is wavering. ²³Rescue others by snatching them from the flames of judgment. Show mercy to still others, but do so with great caution, hating the sins that contaminate their lives.

A Prayer of Praise (vv 24-25)

²⁴Now all glory to God, who is able to keep you from falling away and will bring you with great joy into his glorious presence without a single fault. ²⁵All glory to him who alone is God, our Savior through Jesus Christ our Lord. All glory, majesty, power, and authority are his before all time, and in the present, and beyond all time! Amen.

patterns. The false teachers wandered, and God condemned their sin.

vv 14-15 Enoch was an early descendant of Adam (see Gen 5:18-24; 1 Chr 1:3); the comment in Gen 5:24 apparently means that Enoch did not die but was taken directly to heaven (cp. 2 Kgs 2:1-13; see Heb 11:5). This extraordinary commendation from God and the almost complete silence of Scripture about him make Enoch a fascinating character. There are a number of legends about him in Jewish literature, and at least two books of apocalyptic visions written between the OT and the NT are attributed to him (1-2 Enoch).

• "Listen! . . .": The quotation comes from Jewish literature (1 Enoch 1:9).

vv 17-23 After condemning the false teachers, Jude again encourages his readers directly (see vv 3-4). They had been warned by the apostles about false teaching (vv 17-19). They should encourage each other in the faith (vv 20-21) and reach out to those who might be going astray through the false teachers' influence (vv 22-23).

v 17 what the apostles of our Lord Jesus Christ predicted: Such predictions are in Acts 20:29-30; 1 Tim 4:1-3; 2 Tim 3:1-5.

v 18 in the last times: The coming of Jesus as Messiah inaugurated the last stage of God's plan, when the fulfillment of OT prophecies about the last days began to take place. For this reason, Jude applies the apostles' prophecy about the last times to the immediate crisis created by the false teachers (v 19).

v 20 your most holy faith: As in v 3, faith refers to what Christians believe, the doctrinal and ethical core of Christian identity, which false teachers threaten. Believers must therefore devote themselves to it. • pray in the power of the Holy Spirit: Literally pray in the Holy Spirit.

vv 22-23 The NLT accepts the manuscript tradition that includes three commands in these verses, corresponding to three categories of people: (1) those whose faith is wavering, (2) those who need to be snatched from the flames of judgment, and (3) others who need to be shown mercy. Some manuscripts have only two categories of people: (1) those whose faith is wavering and thus need to be snatched from judgment, and (2) those who need to be shown mercy. The text adopted in the NLT follows the pattern of threes that Jude uses elsewhere (vv 5-7, 11).

v 22 must show mercy to: Some manuscripts read must reprove. • those whose faith is wavering: Some believers were in the early stages of doubt because of what the false teachers were saying.

v 23 Rescue others: Some believers were so open to the false teachers that they were in imminent danger of condemnation. • Show mercy to still others: The third group probably consists of the false teachers themselves or those who had subscribed to the false teachers' program. Showing mercy might have meant praying for them (cp. Matt 5:44). • with great caution, hating the sins that contaminate their lives (literally with fear, hating even the clothing stained by the flesh): Believers need to exercise great caution when showing mercy to false teachers and those who have fallen into their sinful ways, because their sins can be enticing. Cp. Zech 3:1-4; Rev 3:4.

vv 24-25 Jude concludes his letter with one of the most stirring doxologies in Scripture, and one quoted very often in liturgical settings. Jude's wording makes it especially appropriate for his readers: They needed a renewed vision of God who could keep them from falling away, from succumbing to the enticing doctrine of false teachers. He has the glory, majesty, power, and authority to bring them safely into his glorious presence forever.

THE BOOK OF Revelation

John's Apocalypse is a magnificent and wonderfully designed message of the salvation that is available in Jesus Christ. The book blesses all who ponder it and sternly warns those who oppose Christ and the Good News and those who are shallow in their Christian walk. The unfolding drama of the book stretches the imagination while bearing witness to God's supreme power. Its visions describe the plight of Christians, God's judgments on their persecutors, and eternal hope and promise for God's faithful people.

SETTING

Revelation was probably written in the AD 90s, or it could have been written in the AD 60s. During these periods, Christians experienced increasing pressure and persecution. By the 90s, the Jews had condemned Christianity in their councils at Jamnia (AD 70–85). They then reported Christians to Roman authorities as religious deviants who did not deserve protection under the religious licensing laws that allowed Jews to practice their faith.

At the same time, Rome demanded absolute loyalty to the emperor. At that point, there may have been no official persecution in the empire as a whole, but in the pro-Roman province of Asia (modern-day Turkey), those who refused to worship the emperor were persecuted harshly.

In the face of such persecution, Revelation dramatically reminded Christians of the source of their hope and vindication and firmly challenged them to remain faithful. The Christians in the province of Asia may have appeared weak and powerless to the world, but Revelation repeatedly reminded them, as it still reminds us, that the God they served is Almighty. God controls history; he has accomplished our salvation and continues to work out his purposes.

SUMMARY

Revelation begins in an unusual way, with three separate introductions. John first spells out the visionary nature of the book (1:1-3); there is then a letter salutation (1:4-8) followed by a historical introduction (1:9-11). The book then describes a vision of Jesus (1:12-20). In letters to seven churches in the province of Asia, Christ personally addresses the believers and the life of the churches (2:1-3:22). Following these letters, chs 4-5 set the stage for the drama that follows by displaying God's sovereign majesty and picturing Jesus as both a lion and a lamb.

Epilogue: Jesus Is Coming

The heart of the book (chs 6-16) describes the drama in three acts of judgment. In the first act (6:1-8:1), Christ opens seven seals that result in seven judgments. This act also contains the first interlude (7:1-17), which shows God's people being protected from harm.

The second act portrays seven angels blowing seven trumpets (8:2-11:19) in a second view of judgment on the world. The sixth trumpet is followed by a mysterious second interlude (10:1-10) in which an angel, a little scroll, and seven secretive thunders provide an opening for a bittersweet picture of two witnesses who proclaim God's message (11:1-14). The final trumpet presents heaven, the coming kingdom of Christ the Lord (11:15-19).

Following the second act, Revelation shifts to a series of three great signs and symbolic portraits. Revelation 12 depicts the cosmic battle between good and evil and the birth of the promised deliverer, Christ, whom God rescues from Satan's destructive intentions (12:1-10). Although defeated, Satan—portrayed as a dragon—continues to create havoc among God's people (12:11-17). The book next introduces two other beasts, who with the dragon form a false "evil trinity" in the world (13:1-18). These evil forces contrast starkly with the Lamb of God and his faithful servants standing on Mount Zion, the place of God's redemption and rule (14:1-5). Three angels deliver God's message of coming judgment and the destruction of the evil forces (14:6-20).

The third and final act of judgment involves seven plagues (16:1-21). John introduces it with a joint song by Moses and the Lamb (15:1-8). After the plagues, John narrates the end of the great prostitute, Babylon (or Rome, 17:1-18). While the world mourns the passing of this supposed source of security (18:1-19), heaven, the apostles, and the prophets rejoice at its destruction (18:20-24) with songs of God's victory (19:1-10). God's enemies have no chance of success against the Lord of lords. The beasts (the power structures of the world) and all who follow them meet their just end in the lake of fire when Jesus destroys his enemies in the battle of Armageddon (19:11-21). While the devil is imprisoned (20:1-3), the saints of God enjoy a respite as they reign with Christ on earth (20:4-6). Despite Satan's all-out attempt to defeat God in battle, he too is thrown into the lake of fire (20:7-10). All who follow the dragon are judged before the throne of God, and death—humanity's greatest nemesis—is terminated (20:11-15).

Finally, John paints a marvelous picture of heaven, stretching the human imagination with design, size, and symbolic images (chs 21–22). With their vision of hope, these scenes make a fitting conclusion to Revelation and to the entire Bible. The Spirit and the church invite all readers to come and receive God's eternal promise (22:17). The book closes with the ongoing prayer of Christians: "Come, Lord Jesus!" (22:20).

INTERPRETING REVELATION

The book of Revelation is an exciting work that has bewildered many readers, perhaps because of its nature as both a prophecy and an apocalypse (see "Apocalyptic Writing," facing page). John Calvin, the Swiss reformer, wrote commentaries on every book in the Bible except Revelation, which indicates that he wasn't confident that he fully understood the book. Similarly, Martin Luther did not think that Revelation taught enough about justification by faith; therefore, he assigned Revelation a sub-canonical status, not viewing it as authoritative for doctrine but only for Christian life. In light of the interpretive difficulties, many Christian teachers follow suit by avoiding the book of Revelation entirely, or only speak about the letters to the churches.

Through the centuries, interpreters have argued over the meaning of Revelation. Some have used their interpretations of the book to categorize as apostate or heretical other Christians who don't share their views. Others spend months and years searching the book for information about recent and upcoming events. The notes in this study Bible tend to interpret the visions as reflecting the Roman empire and the world and experience of the original churches to whom it was first written. The entire drama and message of the book, however, reveals great treasures to encourage believers of all eras in their faith.

THE NATURE OF REVELATION

The entire Bible is inspired by God (see 2 Tim 3:15-17; 2 Pet 1:20-21). Some books, such as Romans, the historical books, and some of the prophets, primarily address the intellect. Other books, such as the Psalms and other poetical writings, engage the emotions. The book of Revelation, however, appeals to the imagination (as do some OT works, such as Ezekiel and parts of Daniel and Zechariah). Revelation speaks through visions, images, and figurative language rather than logical reasoning. The book sometimes presents the literal and the symbolic in intriguing combinations. It resists being treated as a system of end-times doctrines, as those who have tried to systematize it have often discovered.

Because of its nature, reading Revelation requires imagination. It is like entering the realm of dreams with God and discovering that they contain a marvelous message from him. Instead of trying to fit all of

The fundamental perspective of the book is the exhortation to endure persecution on the basis of the transcendent reality of God's kingdom in the present as grounded in God's control of the future.

Grant R. Osborne
Revelation, p. 14-15

Revelation's scenes into a logical system, readers will benefit from picture-thinking. For example, when John says that "all the green grass was burned" (8:7) and then later says that the locusts are instructed not to "harm the grass" (9:4), such statements seem contradictory. The incongruity, however, is resolved when we realize that John is describing what he saw in two different visions and that the two visions are not meant to narrate a sequence of events—they are meant to portray God's message in pictures. Similarly, we read in the vision of heaven that "the Temple of God was opened" (11:19), but later we find "no temple" there (21:22). Again, the focus of each vision is different; readers must not try to read one vision into another but instead concentrate on the main point of each vision in its own terms. Early readers, familiar with the logic of metaphors, understood the nature of picture-thinking. Just as they knew not to read one of Jesus' parables into another, they avoided trying to systematize or conflate John's visions.

APOCALYPTIC WRITING

Through word pictures and visions, John magnificently transports our minds to the realm of imagination. John was not alone in writing this way—he used a familiar kind of literature to convey his message. These imaginative works are called "apocalyptic" (Greek "uncover") because they claim to reveal a new vision of reality. Such works were often written during times of great stress and persecution as tracts for bad times. Apocalyptic writings often used symbolic names, numbers, and descriptions as a "code" so that outside readers (particularly enemies) who did not possess the key to the code would not understand the implications of the message. The work would seem to them like double talk or nonsense. In Revelation, for instance, Babylon is used as a code for Rome (17:5-9).

The OT contains examples of apocalyptic literature in Daniel and Zechariah (see Daniel Introduction, "Daniel as Literature: Daniel as Apocalyptic Literature," p. 1391; Zechariah Introduction, "Literary Genre," p. 1526). In Jewish apocalyptic literature, God is usually pictured as transcendent and fully in control of history, even when the situation might seem bleak to readers. God's message is usually presented through visions, dreams, or journeys to cosmic or spiritual realms. These revelations gave seers, dreamers, interpreters, and prophets messages of hope and salvation for God's people and messages of judgment on God's enemies. The prophets were obliged to share their messages with others—particularly with God's people, who were under persecution and in distress. Readers understood that the promises of hope would not be fulfilled immediately; these promises were generally expressed as part of a coming cataclysmic judgment in which God would destroy his enemies and bring final bliss to his people. Meanwhile, God's people were to remain faithful and persevere in the face of suffering, understanding that God would soon deliver them. All of these features find expression in Revelation.

As a seer or a visionary, John also refers to his work as a "prophecy" (1:3; 22:7); he does not mean that it is prophecy simply in a predictive sense, but in the OT sense of proclaiming a word from God that is addressed to his people. John's prophetic visions emphasize that God's answer to distressing times will not be entirely realized until the end of history and in the coming eternity.

The Revelation is by common consent one of the most difficult of all the books of the Bible. . . . Modern readers find it strange. They are moreover not usually attracted by the fantastic schemes of prophecy which some exegetes find in it, and whose ingenuity is matched only by their improbability.

Leon Morris
Revelation, p. 17

AUTHOR

Many Jewish apocalypses were written after the close of the OT canon, at a time when Jews believed that prophecy had ceased and that the word of the Lord for them was primarily to be found in the Law and the Prophets. These Jewish writers therefore wrote under the names of earlier godly persons such as Ezra, Baruch, Enoch, Isaiah, and even Adam so that their writings would gain credibility and acceptance. These works are called pseudepigrapha (literally “false writings”) because they were written under pseudonyms. Similarly, in the post-apostolic era, fanciful writers and false teachers returned to this practice by using the names of earlier followers of Jesus (such as Peter, James, John, and even Mary) to gain a hearing from Christians.

By contrast, the books collected in the NT were written under their authors’ own names (see Rom 1:1; 2 Thes 3:17) or were legitimately apostolic even though they do not claim an author by name (e.g., Matthew, Hebrews). The author of Revelation identifies himself simply as John (1:1, 4, 9). In the early church, this John was generally identified as the apostle John, who refers to himself in the Gospel bearing his name as “the disciple Jesus loved” (John 13:23; 19:26; 20:2; 21:7); in his epistles, he calls himself “the elder” (3 Jn 1:1). John received the visions presented in Revelation while he was a political and religious prisoner on Patmos, a rocky island used as a Roman prison off the western coast of Asia Minor near Ephesus (1:9).

It is important to realize that we know no more about the second coming than Jesus’ Jewish disciples did about the first. They too thought they were reading the Scriptures rightly. . . . In interpreting the symbols of the book, we first need the “hermeneutics of humility” to realize we “see things imperfectly as in a poor mirror” (1 Cor 13:12).

DATE

Revelation was probably written during the concluding years of Domitian’s reign (AD 94–96) or immediately following (AD 96–99). The eight kings (17:7–11) may refer to the eight Roman emperors from Augustus to Domitian (see chart, p. 2191). It is also possible that Revelation was written during the AD 60s, when Nero was persecuting the church and killing Christians. During these times, Christians were experiencing significant anguish and persecution (13:7). John called his readers to endurance and faithfulness (13:10). While some have argued that the persecution was more perceived than actual, Revelation seems to suggest real, physical persecution (2:9, 13; 3:9).

RECIPIENTS

The recipients of Revelation were the churches in the Roman province of Asia (the western part of modern Turkey). The seven cities mentioned in chs 1–3 were joined by a triangular road system forming something like a mail route. These cities all lie in ruins today except for Smyrna, which is now the bustling modern seaport of Izmir, Turkey. The order of the cities in the seven letters is geographical and follows the route a courier probably took as he carried the book to each church to be read.

MEANING AND MESSAGE

Revelation portrays the stark nature of evil while emphasizing how God’s sovereign hand is always present and at work to accomplish his purposes on behalf of his people. Even evil can only do what God allows (e.g., 6:3–4, 7–8; 13:5–7). Jesus is “the Alpha and the Omega” (1:8), the Lord over all history from beginning to end. Ultimately the powers of evil are futile. Satan has already lost the war (12:12); he can merely imitate and pervert what God does.

Revelation clarifies that what is done on earth has eternal consequences. God's suffering servants may sometimes wonder whether Jesus is powerful enough to accomplish God's purpose of salvation (6:9-10). Despite all the evil in the world, however, Revelation assures readers that the crucified and resurrected Lamb of God is truly the powerful Lion of the tribe of Judah (5:5-6). He is fully worthy to receive our praise (5:12), as he is united with the eternal God (5:13-14). Although the ways of the world result in war, violence, economic imbalance, and death (6:1-8), and although some people seem to profit from alignments with evil (13:15-17), they will ultimately reap distress and doom (18:9-24). God's people may be persecuted and die for their faith (13:7), but they will ultimately triumph with Christ (14:1-3) because they have been marked by the seal of God (7:4) and have been granted the white robe of victory (6:11; 7:9). They will have access to their heavenly dwelling (21:7), will continually praise God and the Lamb (7:10), and will live forever (22:5). Revelation reminds readers that the great victory over the powers of evil has already been won at the cross (5:5-6). Armageddon is not the final defeat of Satan but a desperate act of defiance by a foe who is already defeated. While Satan is allowed to kill the saints (13:7), they have already conquered him through Christ and their own witness (12:11).

The message for Christians who suffer at the hands of Satan's servants is not to weep or be afraid (1:17-18; 5:5) but to endure their suffering faithfully (13:10). With God they will prevail (1:6-7; 11:17-18). People will ultimately be judged by what they do and how they act (20:12), and God will bless those who pay attention to the words of this book (1:3; 22:7). The saints are therefore called to persevere faithfully in order to be victorious (2:7, 11, 17, 26; 3:5, 12, 21). Revelation calls them to obey God, maintain their witness (12:17; 22:7), endure patiently (13:10; 14:12), and remain vigilant (16:15; 17:14) in the face of persecution, knowing that cowards will face eternal punishment along with evildoers (21:8).

1. INTRODUCTION IN THREE PARTS

(1:1-11)

Prologue

1 This is a ^arevelation from Jesus Christ, which God gave him to show his ^bservants the events that must soon take place. He sent an angel to present this revelation to his ^bservant John, ²who faithfully reported everything he saw. This is his report of the ^cword of God and the testimony of Jesus Christ.

³God ^dblesses the one who reads the words of this prophecy to the church, and he blesses all who listen to its message and obey what it says, for the time is near.

Letter Introduction: John's Greeting to the Seven Churches

⁴This letter is from John to the seven churches in the province of Asia.

Grace and peace to you from the one who is, who always was, and who is still to come;

1:1-11 Revelation opens with a three-part introduction, including a prologue (1:1-3), a letter introduction (1:4-8), and a historical introduction (1:9-11).

1:1 The word revelation (Greek apokalupsis) introduces the book's visionary nature as apocalyptic writing (see Revelation Introduction, "Apocalyptic Writing," p. 2163). God communicates his inspired message through mysterious symbols, numbers, and word pictures. • from (or of) Jesus Christ: He is both the source and the main subject of the book. • the events that must soon (or suddenly, or quickly) take place: Cp. 3:11; 22:6-7; Luke 18:8; Rom 16:20.

1:2 reported (Greek martureō) . . . testimony (Greek marturia): These closely related Greek words indicate an authentic witness and emphasize that the sacrificial witness of Jesus and the authentic testimony of John are the basis for the revelation.

1:3 God blesses: Revelation contains seven promises of blessing (1:3; 14:13; 16:15; 19:9; 20:6; 22:7, 14). • listen . . . and obey: Authentic hearing entails obedience.

1:4-8 The second introduction (see note on 1:1-11) is in the style of a Greek letter.

1:4 To the seven churches does not mean that there were only seven churches in the Roman province of Asia but that these seven churches represent the entire group. • Asia was a from the sevenfold Spirit before his throne;⁵ and from Jesus Christ. He is the faithful witness to these things, the “first to rise from the dead, and the ruler of all the kings of the world.

All glory to him who loves us and has freed us from our sins by shedding his blood for us.⁶ He has made us a Kingdom of priests for God his Father. All glory and power to him forever and ever! Amen.

⁷ Look! He comes with the clouds of heaven.

And everyone will see him—

even those who pierced him.

And all the nations of the world will mourn for him.

Yes! Amen!

⁸ “I am the Alpha and the Omega—the beginning and the end,” says the Lord God. “I am the one who is, who always was, and who is still to come—the ‘Almighty One.’”

Historical Introduction

⁹ I, John, am your brother and your partner in suffering and in God’s Kingdom and in the patient endurance to which Jesus calls us. I was exiled to the island of Patmos for preaching the word of God and for my testimony about Jesus.¹⁰ It was the Lord’s Day, and I was worshiping in the Spirit. Suddenly, I heard behind me a loud voice like a trumpet blast.¹¹ It said, “Write in a ⁸book everything you see, and send it to the seven churches in the cities of Ephesus, Smyrna, Pergamum, Thyatira, Sardis, Philadelphia, and Laodicea.”

2. VISION OF THE SON OF MAN (1:12-20)

¹² When I turned to see who was speaking to me, I saw seven gold lampstands.¹³ And standing in the middle of the lampstands was someone like the Son of Man. He was wearing a long robe with a gold sash across his chest.¹⁴ His head and his hair were white like wool, as white as snow. And his eyes were like flames of fire.¹⁵ His feet were like polished bronze refined in a furnace, Roman province in what is now western Turkey. • Grace and peace is a typical Christian greeting (see notes on 2 Cor 1:1-2; 2 Thes 1:1-2). The order of the two words is consistent in the NT, suggesting that peace follows from God’s grace. • who is, who always was, and who is still to come: God controlled the past, will surely control the future, and is sovereign over every present crisis (see also 1:8; 4:8; 11:17; 16:5). • the sevenfold Spirit (literally the seven spirits): Some argue that the “seven spirits” are seven angels, but the phrase fits between references to God the Father (1:4) and to God the Son (1:5), making this passage a description of the Trinity (see Matt 28:19; John 14:26; 15:26; 2 Cor 13:14; 1 Pet 1:2). The number seven acknowledges the Holy Spirit’s perfection (cp. Zech 4:2, 6, 10).

1:5a John gives three descriptions of Jesus Christ. (1) As the faithful witness, Jesus is our model for proclaiming the Good News of salvation (1:2). (2) The truth that Jesus was the first to rise from the dead is foundational to Christian faith (1 Cor 15:14, 17). (3) As ruler of all the kings of the world (see also 17:14; 19:16), he is the absolute Lord of everything. Inhabitants of the Roman world were expected to declare Caesar as absolute lord; many early Christians died for their conviction that Jesus alone holds that position.

1:5b-6 In this doxology, John gives reasons for praising Jesus. • Doxologies often conclude with the confessional Amen (see Rom 11:36; Phil 4:20), which expresses affirmation.

1:8 “I am the Alpha and the Omega—the beginning and the end” (literally I am the Alpha and the Omega): I am is the name of God in the OT (Exod 3:13-14; 6:2; Deut 6:4). Jesus applied this name to himself (cp. John 4:26). Alpha and Omega are the first and last letters of the Greek alphabet; they signify that God’s actions are all-encompassing. God is fully in control.

1:9-11 This third introduction (see note on 1:1-11) is historical; it shows God communicating with humanity in historical events. God gave John a significant mission while in exile.

1:9 your brother and your partner: Though separated from other Christians by his imprisonment, John shared a sense of community with them in suffering, based on hope in God’s Kingdom and a willingness to endure. • The Roman fortress on the island of Patmos housed prisoners and exiles. Patmos was in a group of islands that protected the thriving seaport of Miletus. • for preaching . . . and for my testimony: In typical Semitic parallelism, the second statement means essentially the same as the first. By John’s time, Jews were persuading Roman authorities that Christianity was different from Judaism and therefore not an authorized religion.

1:10 the Lord’s Day: This designation was used in the Roman world to refer to celebrations in honor of Caesar, but Christians used it to refer to their weekly worship, celebrating Jesus’ resurrection. The earliest Christians worshiped in Jewish synagogues on the Sabbath, the last day of the week (Acts 18:4), but by the time of Revelation, they were excluded from synagogues and gathered on the day that commemorated the resurrection, the first day of the week (see note on Luke 24:1; see also Acts 20:7). • in the Spirit: Or in spirit. • The loud voice like a trumpet blast was an announcement of the Lord’s coming.

1:11 Write . . . and send: God authorized John as a prophet and herald of his revelation (see 22:8, 10; cp. Isa 6:8-9; Jer 2:1-2; Ezek 2:1-3; 34:1-2). • in a book: Or on a scroll.

1:12-20 John’s first vision is a symbolic picture of Christ as the wise, secure, and powerful agent of God who always cares for his people.

1:12 I turned to see who was speaking: This statement refers to the loud voice of 1:10. • seven gold lampstands: The lighted menorah was a symbol of God’s presence among his people (Exod 27:21; Lev 24:1-4) and of his all-seeing eyes in the world (Zech 4:10).

1:13 like the Son of Man (or like a son of man). See Dan 7:13: Son of Man is a title Jesus used for himself (see Matt 8:20; 9:6; 16:13; Mark 2:28; 9:9; 14:41; John 1:51; 3:13; 5:27). • The long robe and gold sash give Christ an authoritative appearance (see 19:13-16; Dan 10:5). The robe was a priestly garment symbolizing purity and holiness.

1:14 White hair represents wisdom and maturity; this vision reflects Daniel’s vision of the Ancient One (Dan 7:9). • His eyes . . . like flames of fire pierce through pretense; the One who knows everything will judge everyone (see Dan 10:6; Heb 4:13).

1:15 Refined or hardened bronze in the feet implies stability, firmness, and

3. MESSAGES TO THE SEVEN CHURCHES (2:1–3:22)

The Message to Ephesus, a Loyal Church

2 Write this letter to the angel of the church in Ephesus. This is the message from the one who holds the seven stars in his right hand, the one who walks among the seven gold lampstands:

^{2a}I know all the things you do. I have seen your hard work and your patient

Letters to the Seven Churches (2:1–3:22)

In the letters to the seven churches of Asia (chs 2–3), John uses a single literary pattern. Each letter begins with an address to the “angel of the church” in a particular city, followed by an aspect of Christ’s appearance taken from the vision of the Son of Man (1:12–16). Christ states that he knows each church and describes the state of the church in that city. He then gives advice or judgment for the church along with a promised reward for obedience. Each time, Christ emphasizes the need for full attention to the Spirit’s message to the churches.

It is common for interpreters to separate the seven letters into seven distinct messages and to make them symbolic of seven types of people or seven distinct periods of time. The seven letters, however, actually form a single unified message for the church in all times and places, taking into account all its spots and wrinkles. In other words, any single body of Christians might be similar to one of these churches, and each community contains people who are like the Christians from these churches. Christ invites every community of believers to examine itself in the light of these messages.

security (cp. Dan 10:6). • The thundering voice suggests God’s power—when he speaks, he will be heard (cp. Ezek 43:2).

1:16 The seven stars represent the complete church. The church is secure in the right hand (i.e., in the acceptance and blessing) of the Son of Man. • The sharp . . . sword coming from his mouth is his effective message and his judgment (see 19:15; Gen 3:24; Eph 6:17; Heb 4:12). Jesus proclaims both grace and judgment, but here the emphasis is that he carries out judgment (see 2:12, 16; 19:15, 21; cp. Isa 11:4).

1:17 When I saw him, I fell . . . dead: Terror and a dead faint, if not death itself (see Exod 33:20), frequently result when someone sees God (see Isa 6:1–5; Matt 28:4). The Lord graciously responds by the touch of his right hand (cp. Matt 25:34) and the words “Don’t be afraid!” (cp. Luke 1:13), indicating both grace and acceptance. • I am: The phrase identifies Jesus as God (see note on 1:8).

1:18 the living one: Because the Son of Man (1:13) has conquered death, he holds the keys of death and controls the outcome of our greatest fear (see 20:14; Heb 2:14–15). Jesus has complete authority to provide hope in a hostile world. • and the grave: Greek and Hades. See note on 6:7–8.

1:19 Write: In the vision, God gives instructions for what John is to do on his behalf (see Isa 6:9–10). • what you have seen—both the things that are now happening and the things that will happen (or what you have seen and what they mean—the things that have already begun to happen): This vision’s purpose is to help the church (1:20) to understand the present and the future from God’s perspective.

1:20 John is to record what he sees because Revelation is an instructive word for the churches. • The angels (or messengers; Greek angelos) of the seven churches could be (1) the guardian angels of these churches (cp. Matt 18:10; Acts 12:15); (2) the leading officials of the churches (cp. Matt 11:10, where “messenger” is angelos); or (3) a personification of the ethos of the church. The best understanding is probably a combination of 1 and 3.

2:1–3:22 The seven messages to the seven churches reflect the state of Christ’s church when Revelation was written, and it is similar today. God still calls Christians to faithfulness and integrity. Those who heed Christ’s message will reap God’s promised rewards; those who fail to do so will be judged.

2:1–7 The letter to the church in Ephesus addresses tradition-bound Christians who are faithful but have lost their early, zealous love for Christ and for each other (see 2:5).

2:1 Write . . . to the angel: This repeated command that introduces each of the seven letters suggests the importance of the message. • the angel: Or the messenger; also in 2:8, 12, 18. See note on 1:20. • Ephesus had become the main city of the Roman province of Asia. It contained the temple of Artemis (see Acts 19:23–35) and became the richest banking center in that part of the world. The people of Ephesus were very independent; they declined help from Alexander in rebuilding their temple after it was destroyed (300s BC), arguing adroitly that one god should not stoop to build a temple to another god (see Strabo, Geography 14.1.22). The Ephesians’ protective pride also led to the uproar against Paul (Acts 19:23–41).

2:2–3 I know: This repeated refrain (2:9, 13, 19; 3:1, 8, 15) shows Christ’s endurance. I know you don't tolerate evil people. You have examined the claims of those who say they are ^kapostles but are not. You have discovered they are liars. ³You have patiently suffered for me without quitting.

⁴"But I have this complaint against you. You don't ^alove me or each other as you did at first! ⁵Look how far you have fallen! Turn back to me and do the works you did at first. If you don't repent, I will come and remove your lampstand from its place among the churches. ⁶But this is in your favor: You hate the evil deeds of the Nicolaitans, just as I do.

⁷"Anyone with ears to hear must listen to the Spirit and understand what he is saying to the churches. To everyone who is victorious I will give fruit from the tree of life in the ^bparadise of God.

The Message to Smyrna, a Suffering Church

⁸"Write this letter to the angel of the church in Smyrna. This is the message from the one who is the First and the Last, who was dead but is now alive:

⁹"I know about your suffering and your poverty—but you are rich! I know the blasphemy of those opposing you. They say they are Jews, but they are not, because their synagogue belongs to Satan. ¹⁰Don't be afraid of what you are about to suffer. The devil will throw some of you into prison to test you. You will suffer for ten days. But if you remain faithful even when facing death, I will give you the crown of life.

¹¹"Anyone with ears to hear must listen to the Spirit and understand what he is saying to the churches. Whoever is victorious will not be harmed by the second death.

The Message to Pergamum, a Compromising Church

¹²"Write this letter to the angel of the church in Pergamum. This is the message from the one with the sharp two-edged sword:

¹³"I know that you live in the city where Satan has his throne, yet you have remained loyal to me. You refused to total knowledge of his people, their activities, and their circumstances.

• The Ephesian Christians had a correct theology marked by perseverance and faithfulness. They had examined various claims, exercised discipline on evil people, could tell what is true and what is false, and had patiently suffered for their faith in Christ.

2:4 You don't love me or each other as you did at first (literally You have lost your first love): When the church was first established, their love for Christ and for each other had been strong. Struggles with false teachers and persecution had caused that original love to grow cold. Correct theology, action, and even suffering (2:2-3) are just an empty shell of Christian life if dynamic love is absent (1 Cor 13).

2:5 Christ calls even those who keep the faith to turn back to him and repent of cold-heartedness. The warning, I will come and remove your lampstand, means that they would lose their status as a church; God would treat them as he did the apostates within Israel (see Rom 11).

2:6 Not much is known of the Nicolaitans, but their teaching (2:15) seems to link them with those who ate food sacrificed to idols and who were involved in sexual immorality, behavior prohibited by the council in Jerusalem (see Acts 15:20, 29). Irenaeus argued (about AD 180) that the Nicolaitans were dependent on Nicolas (Acts 6:3-5) and that John's writings were directed against the heresies of the Nicolaitans who followed Cerinthus (see 1 John Introduction, "Setting," p. 2138).

2:7 The reward for obedience is fruit from the tree of life—that is, eternal life (22:2; Gen 3:22).

2:8-11 The letter to the church in Smyrna pictures suffering Christians under intense pressures who need a message of assurance. Smyrna typifies a small church that remains faithful to God despite difficult circumstances.

2:8 The seaport village of Smyrna had been destroyed and rebuilt several times. Like Christ, the city had been dead but was now alive. It is the only city of the seven that has survived to this day (Izmir, Turkey).

2:9 Jesus connected material poverty with the blessing of being rich in God's Kingdom (Matt 5:3, 10-12; Luke 6:20).

• Jews who had no faith are condemned for aligning themselves with Satan in hostile opposition to the Christian faith (3:9; see John 8:44; Acts 14:2-5; 17:13; 18:6; 20:3; Gal 5:11; 1 Thes 2:14-16). At the Jewish council of Jamnia, the Jews excluded Christians as unholy heretics. John was not anti-Semitic; he was a Jew describing the actions of fellow Jews against Jewish and Gentile Christians.

2:10 John saw the devil as the source of human hostility against Christians.

• The period of their suffering would be ten days, symbolizing a limited time of persecution (see 1 Pet 1:6). If they would remain faithful, their reward would be the crown of eternal life. • when facing death: John's pupil, Polycarp, was a martyr in Smyrna in the mid-100s AD.

2:11 Faithfulness until death is described as being victorious; overcoming the second death means receiving eternal life (see 20:5-6, 14; 21:8).

2:12-17 The letter to the church in Pergamum portrays Christians who are tempted to compromise their morality and their loyalty to God. The city of Pergamum was the earliest capital of the Roman province of Asia. It contained a famous library, and its citizens developed the use of animal skins as writing materials.

2:12 Christ's sharp two-edged sword indicates that these Christians would receive the Lord's most severe judgment (see 2:16; see note on 1:16). The two-edged sword was the Roman symbol of authority, which typified Pergamum as capital of the province. If the church failed, the true governor of the city (Christ) would turn his authority against them.

2:13 The throne of Satan might refer to the altar of Zeus on the mountain above the city or to emperor worship at the temple of Augustus. For many years, the Roman proconsul had his throne there, and the great temple of Athena and other shrines were also located in Pergamum. Its description as Satan's city might also refer to the temple of Asclepius, whose symbol was coiled snakes. The city was dedicated to the deny me even when Antipas, my faithful witness, was martyred among you there in Satan's city.

¹⁴"But I have a few complaints against you. You tolerate some among you whose teaching is like that of Balaam, who showed Balak how to trip up the people of Israel. He taught them to sin by eating food offered to idols and by committing sexual sin. ¹⁵In a similar way, you have some Nicolaitans among you who follow the same teaching. ¹⁶Repent of your sin, or I will come to you suddenly and fight against them with the sword of my mouth.

¹⁷"Anyone with ears to hear must listen to the Spirit and understand what he is saying to the churches. To everyone who is victorious I will give some of the manna that has been hidden away in heaven. And I will give to each one a white stone, and on the stone will be engraved a new name that no one understands except the one who receives it.

The Message to Thyatira, an Overly Tolerant Church

¹⁸"Write this letter to the angel of the church in Thyatira. This is the message from the Son of God, whose eyes are like flames of fire, whose feet are like polished bronze:

²⁰"But I have this complaint against you. You are permitting that woman—that Jezebel who calls herself a prophet—to lead my servants astray. She teaches them to commit sexual sin and to eat food offered to idols. ²¹I gave her time to repent, but she does not want to turn away from her immorality.

²²"Therefore, I will throw her on a bed of suffering, and those who commit adultery with her will suffer greatly unless they repent and turn away from her evil deeds. ²³I will strike her children dead. Then all the churches will know that I am the one who searches out the thoughts and intentions of every person. And I will give to each of you whatever you deserve.

²⁴"But I also have a message for the rest of you in Thyatira who have not followed this false teaching ('deeper truths,' as they call them—depths of 'Satan, actually'). I will ask nothing more of you ²⁵except that you hold tightly to what you have until I come. ²⁶To all who are victorious, who obey me to the very end, Roman pantheon and emperor worship.

• Antipas is otherwise unknown.

2:14-15 Some in Pergamum were syncretists, combining Christianity with paganism and engaging in immoral activities. John compares them to Balaam, who lured Israel into sin (see Num 25:1-3; 2 Pet 2:15; Jude 1:11).

2:17 Those who remain faithful to Christ will receive manna, nourishment from heaven (see Exod 16:11-36). • hidden away in heaven: During the Exodus, a jar of manna was placed in the Ark of the Covenant (Exod 16:33-36). Jewish tradition said that at the coming of the Messiah, the Ark would reappear and manna would be eaten at the messianic banquet. Jesus is the bread from heaven and the bread of life (John 6:32-35; cp. Exod 16:4-21). • A white stone was often given to victors at the games, and it was common for special banquets or festivities to use a white stone for admission. It therefore suggests acceptance and victory. • The new name probably refers to the recipient's transformed nature in Christ (see Gen 17:5; 32:28; John 1:42).

2:18-29 The letter to the church in Thyatira confronts Christians who mix Christianity with pagan practices and a worldly lifestyle.

2:18 Thyatira was an outpost city known for its many trade guilds, including weavers and dyers (Acts 16:14).

• The flaming eyes of the Son of God indicate penetrating perception; the solid feet portray Christ's stability, in vivid contrast to the famous Colossus of Rhodes, which had once been thought to be firmly planted until an earthquake destroyed it.

2:19 Christ emphasizes knowing and seeing all things as he praises the Thyatirans.

2:20-21 The mention of Jezebel, who led Israel into pagan idolatry and immorality (1 Kgs 16:31-33; 21:5-26), indicates a serious problem. Like the OT queen who led the pagan cult of Baal (see 1 Kgs 16:31; 18:4; 19:1-3), this unknown Jezebel called herself a prophet but was leading God's people into various forms of immorality, including sexual misconduct and straying from God into idolatrous alliances and actions (Exod 34:15-16; Ps 106:39; Isa 57:7-8).

2:21 Through messengers such as John,

Christ had given this false prophet opportunity to repent of her sinful teachings and actions, but like many, she had refused (cp. 9:20-21).

2:22-23 Christ's judgment on this "Jezebel" and her followers comes in three stages: (1) Jezebel is on a bed of suffering (literally a bed); (2) her followers will suffer greatly; and (3) her children will die (cp. Acts 5:5, 10; 1 Cor 11:30). This judgment echoes the plagues on Egypt that ended with the deaths of Egypt's firstborn sons (see Exod 12:29-30). • God sees thoughts and intentions (see Jer 17:10; Acts 1:24; Heb 4:12-13), and he gives whatever sentence people deserve (see 22:12; Jer 17:10; Matt 16:27).

2:24 The depths of Satan might be a striking reference to the Gnostic god named "Depth" (Bythos), who with his partner "Silence" (Sige) formed a philosophic godhead. Gnosticism placed great emphasis on secret knowledge.

2:26-28 Christ promises that those who are obedient will share authority with him, as symbolized by the iron rod that will smash the opposition like clay pots (quoting Ps 2:8-9, Greek version; cp. Rev 12:5; 19:15). • The morning star

To them I will give authority over all the nations.

²⁷ They will rule the nations with an iron rod and smash them like clay pots.

²⁸ They will have the same authority I received from my Father, and I will also give them the morning star!

The Message to Sardis, a Dead Church

3 "Write this letter to the angel of the church in Sardis. This is the message from the one who has the sevenfold Spirit of God and the seven stars:

"I know all the things you do, and that you have a reputation for being alive—but you are dead. ²Wake up! Strengthen what little remains, for even what is left is almost dead. I find that your actions do not meet the requirements of my God. ³Go back to what you heard and believed at first; hold to it firmly. Repent and turn to me again. If you don't wake up, I will come to you suddenly, as unexpected as a thief.

⁴ Yet there are some in the church in Sardis who have not soiled their clothes with evil. They will walk with me in white, for they are worthy. ⁵All who are victorious will be clothed in white. I will never erase their names from the Book of Life, but I will announce before my Father and his angels that they are mine. ⁶"Anyone with ears to hear must listen to the Spirit and understand what he is saying to the churches.

The Message to Philadelphia, a Weak but Obedient Church
⁷ "Write this letter to the angel of the church in Philadelphia.

This is the message from the one who is holy and true, the one who has the key of David. What he opens, no one can close; and what he closes, no one can open:

⁸ "I know all the things you do, and I have opened a door for you that no one can close. You have little strength, yet you obeyed my word and did not deny me.

⁹ Look, I will force those who belong to Satan's synagogue—those liars who say they are Jews but are not—to come and bow down at your feet. They will acknowledge that you are the ones I love.

¹⁰ Because you have obeyed my command to persevere, I will protect you is the planet Venus, which signals the coming of a new day. Here it refers to the promise of resurrection at Christ's return (22:16; 2 Pet 1:19).

3:1-6 The letter to the church in Sardis warns Christians who are reputed to be spiritually alive (when actually dead) that without genuine transformation they face God's judgment.

3:1 the angel (or the messenger; also in 3:7, 14): See note on 1:20. • Sardis, nearly 50 miles (80 kilometers) east of Smyrna on the southeast highway from Pergamum and Thyatira, was home to a large colony of prosperous Jews, called "Sephardic" after the city's ancient name. Its fortified acropolis gave its inhabitants an overconfident sense of security. • the sevenfold Spirit (literally the seven spirits): See note on 1:4. • a reputation for being alive—but you are dead: Other churches may have believed that the Sardinian Christians comprised a dynamic church, but their secularism revealed their lack of spiritual life.

3:2-3 The church of Sardis needed to wake up or it would suddenly fall. The city of Sardis had fallen when the forces of Cyrus (549/546 BC) and of Antiochus III (189 BC) made unexpected attacks through a secret tunnel and caught the watchmen off guard. The same would be true of the Christians there if they did not meet the requirements of . . . God (see 20:12; Eph 2:10; Jas 2:20). • as a thief: Like the invaders in the city's history, this phrase pictures the sudden return of Christ (see 16:15; Matt 24:43; 1 Thes 5:2; 2 Pet 3:10).

3:4 Soiled . . . clothes represent an impure life (Zech 3:4), while white clothes depict purity (see 6:11; 7:13-14; 22:14). • Walk expresses how a person lives (see Gen 17:1; Ps 81:13; 82:5; Rom 8:4; Gal 5:16).

3:5 Having one's name recorded in the Book of Life (see 20:12-15; Dan 7:10) symbolizes having assurance of God's acceptance and eternal life (see 17:8; 20:12; Phil 4:3; see also Luke 10:20). For God to erase a name implies condemnation and eternal death (see Exod 32:32-33; Ps 69:28).

3:7-13 The letter to the church in Philadelphia encourages Christians who seem to be weak and powerless to realize that their true strength is in Christ. This comforting message includes no words of disapproval. The Kingdom of God does not depend on human strength or wisdom but on God's power and authority.

3:7 Philadelphia was situated in the foothills of the Timolus Mountains, open to fertile plains in the east. The city repeatedly experienced severe earthquakes that left it weak and impoverished. • This verse quotes phrases from Isa 22:22. • key of David: Jesus the Messiah is successor to David's royal line. As the gatekeeper of heaven, Jesus has authority to open and close the way to heaven (cp. Matt 16:19).

3:8 I know: See note on 2:2-3. • little strength: Like the city of Philadelphia itself (see note on 3:7), the Christians there were not prosperous, and they lacked status and power. But Christ had opened a door for them (see 3:7) to claim his status and authority. In spite of their weakness, the Philadelphia church obeyed Christ's word and did not deny him under pressure.

3:9 those who belong to Satan's synagogue: The Christians in Philadelphia had suffered maltreatment by anti-Christian Jews (see note on 2:9). • bow down at your feet: In the ancient world, captives were often forced to prostrate themselves before their conquerors (see Isa 49:23; 60:14). The church's human enemies will ultimately acknowledge that Christians are the ones God loves.

3:10 Jesus will protect Christians who persevere through trials (cp. Isa 43:2-4; John 10:27-28; 1 Cor 10:13; Heb 6:18-19).

The Message to Laodicea, a Lukewarm and Uncommitted Church

¹⁴“Write this letter to the angel of the church in Laodicea. This is the message from the one who is the Amen—the faithful and true witness, the beginning of God’s new creation:

Security, Warnings, and the Call to Obedience (3:5)

The thought of one’s name being erased from the Book of Life (3:5) may raise questions of security for some Christians. While the NT is filled with words of assurance (e.g., 1:5-6, 17-18; 3:10; 7:16-17; 22:14; John 10:27-30; 1 Cor 10:13; Heb 6:18-20), it also contains stern warnings. We often dislike and avoid the warnings because they threaten our sense of security. Yet this concern for security is the precise reason that the NT writers issued their warnings that stressed the importance of obedience, faithfulness, and endurance (e.g., 2:5; 3:11; 13:10; John 15:6; 1 Cor 10:6-12; Heb 6:4-8).

This call to obedience was nothing new. God repeatedly called the people of Israel to be faithful (e.g., Gen 12:1-2; 15:1-18; 22:17-18; 28:13-14; 1 Sam 12:19-25; 15:10-11; 28:16-19; 2 Sam 7:11-16; 1 Kgs 9:4-9). All the promises and predictions of God are conditioned upon faithfulness and obedience (see especially Jer 18:7-10). Paul realized that the disobedience of Israel had led to the Gentiles’ inclusion among the people of God. He clearly warned Gentile Christians not to become overconfident (Rom 11:13-32); the promise of God is unchanged, but human disobedience brings judgment. Humble obedience and dependence on God are the basis for genuine security.

At the time when the NT was written, it was costly and threatening to be a Christian. The book of Revelation promises a secure hope for Christians despite the threat of death, but this hope is set clearly within the context of warnings about judgment (21:8, 27; 22:15). The call to faithfulness and obedience is a major theme in Revelation (see 2:5, 10-11, 16-17, 26-29; 3:2, 12, 18, 21-22; 7:14; 13:9-10, 12; 16:15; 18:4; 20:12; 21:7; 22:3, 7, 11-12). With God’s help, faithful Christians will persevere to the end (see 3:10; Heb 13:6; Jas 1:25).

• The great time of testing refers to the end times, when the world experiences tribulation.

3:11 soon: Or suddenly, or quickly.

• Christians must hold on; they must persevere in difficulty so they will not lose their crown, their expected reward.

3:12 Victorious Christians are secure in God’s household since, like pillars, . . . they will never have to leave it. • The name of . . . God that is inscribed on them portrays God’s ownership and the security Christians thus enjoy (see 7:4; 14:1). • The new Jerusalem is not a realm constructed by humans, but God’s gift from heaven (21:2-10). • A new name was a sign of God’s blessing (see also 2:17); Abram, Jacob, Simon, and others were given new names (Gen 17:5; 32:28; John 1:42).

3:14-22 The letter to the church in Laodicea castigates lukewarm Christians whose inconsistent lives stand for nothing but themselves. They sicken Christ to the point of his spitting them from his mouth.

3:14 Laodicea, situated 40 miles (65 kilometers) southeast of Philadelphia, was the economic and judicial center of a metropolitan region that included Colosse and Hierapolis. The citizens of Laodicea were very proud of their self-sufficiency. After a severe earthquake (AD 60), Laodicea refused aid from Rome and rebuilt their city themselves (Tacitus, Annals 14.27), making it very beautiful. • the Amen: Used as an oath, “Amen” is a promise of truth (Isa 65:16).

Jesus is the truth (John 8:32; 14:6), and his message is authenticated by the truthfulness and reliability of his word.

• The description of Christ as the faithful and true witness declares that he knew them as they really were: Though wealthy and proud of their status and accomplishments, they were not measuring up to God’s expectations. • the beginning: Or the ruler, or the source.

3:15-16 neither hot nor cold: The hot springs in Hierapolis were famous for their healing qualities. Colosse was equally famous for its cold, refreshing springs. In contrast, the water available in Laodicea was smelly and lukewarm. Such water is distasteful; Jesus was saying that the church’s indecisive commitment to him was revolting.

cold, I will spit you out of my mouth! ¹⁷You say, 'I am rich. I have everything I want. I don't need a thing!' And you don't realize that you are wretched and miserable and poor and blind and naked. ¹⁸So I advise you to buy gold from me—gold that has been purified by fire. Then you will be rich. Also buy white garments from me so you will not be shamed by your nakedness, and ointment for your eyes so you will be able to see. ¹⁹I correct and discipline everyone I love. So be diligent and turn from your indifference.

²⁰Look! I stand at the door and knock. If you hear my voice and open the door, I will come in, and we will share a meal together as friends. ²¹Those who are victorious will sit with me on my throne, just as I was victorious and sat with my Father on his throne.

²²"Anyone with ears to hear must listen to the Spirit and understand what he is saying to the churches."

4. INTRODUCTION TO THE DRAMA

(4:1–5:14)

The Stage: Worship in Heaven

4 Then as I looked, I saw a door standing open in heaven, and the same voice I had heard before spoke to me like a trumpet blast. The voice said, "Come up here, and I will show you what must happen after this." ²And instantly I was in the Spirit, and I saw a throne in heaven and someone sitting on it. ³The one sitting on the throne was as brilliant as gemstones—like jasper and carnelian. And the glow of an emerald circled his throne like a rainbow. ⁴Twenty-four thrones surrounded him, and twenty-four elders sat on them. They were all clothed in white and had gold crowns on their heads. ⁵From the throne came flashes of lightning and the rumble of thunder. And in front of the throne were seven torches with burning flames. This is the sevenfold Spirit of God. ⁶In front of the throne was a shiny sea of glass, sparkling like crystal.

In the center and around the throne were 3:17 Although Christians in Laodicea felt prosperous and self-sufficient (see note on 3:14), Jesus accurately saw their wretched and miserable and poor spiritual condition.

3:18 Jesus' prescription for Laodicea required a complete change of attitude from self-reliance to dependence on God. • buy gold from me: Materially, they could buy whatever they wanted, but they needed to acquire the treasures of heaven so they would have spiritual riches through faith in Christ. • purified by fire: While material wealth will not withstand God's purging by fire (cp. 1 Cor 3:12–15), spiritual wealth has eternal value. • White garments represent spiritual purity. Black wool cloth and garments were prized exports of the city of Laodicea. This famous black wool cloth was a source of Laodicea's material wealth; it probably represents the Laodiceans' proud and unredeemed spiritual condition. • Laodicea's material prosperity was also due to their well-known Phrygian eye ointment, which may have been used there in the eye clinic associated with the famed physician Demosthenes Philaletes. The Laodiceans needed to buy ointment from Christ through faith. Only his eye salve would enable them to see their sin and repent.

3:19 Christ will correct and discipline those whom he loves (Prov 3:11–12; Heb 12:5–6), rather than rejecting them. His faithfulness extends even to the unfaithful (2 Tim 2:13).

3:20 A person or a church must hear Jesus knocking and open the door to him. Christ provides a pattern of revival for a church that has grown spiritually weak and out of fellowship with him. Simply opening the door can renew their former bond. • We will share a meal: A shared meal symbolizes acceptance, deep friendship, and a covenant relationship (19:9; see Gen 18:1–5, 16–19; Exod 12:1–31; 18:12; Matt 26:26–30).

3:21 The reward for victorious and obedient faith is to sit with Christ on his throne. Christians do not become divine, but they share in Christ's victorious reign (20:4, 6; 22:5; Col 3:1–4; 2 Tim 2:12).

4:1–5:14 This section introduces the visions and judgments to come. John presents God in his heavenly court—the scene of the drama of Revelation (4:1–11)—and the Lamb, who has a central role (5:1–14). John contrasts the majesty of God with the so-called majesty of Caesar. God's power and splendor is unequaled by the ceremonial court of any earthly ruler.

4:1–11 The description of God's throne room stretches the imagination. It builds on the visions of Isa 6:1–4, Ezek 1:4–28, and Dan 7:9–10, where God is seen enthroned in power and majesty. God's throne dominates Revelation, and the worship in the rest of the book flows from this scene. God's magnificence, grace, and glory are fundamental to the church's worship.

4:1 Then . . . I saw: This introductory phrase (see also 7:9; 15:5; 18:1; cp. 19:1) does not signal chronological sequence but the beginning of a new visionary experience. • Come up here: The voice of the Lord invites John to look at things from God's perspective.

4:2 By being in the Spirit (or in spirit), John could experience spiritual realities (see 1:10; 17:3; 21:10; Ezek 11:1) and grasp insights about God's presence, the heavenly realm, and God's intentions in history.

4:3 Rather than painting a visual picture of God (Exod 20:4; Deut 4:15–19), John uses gemstones and the rainbow (Gen 9:8–17; Ezek 1:28) to suggest God's qualities. The rainbow speaks of God's grace as it recalls God's covenant with Noah (Gen 9:13–17) that he would never again destroy the earth with water. In Revelation, however, we see the earth destroyed by fire (cp. Gen 19:24–29).

4:4 The twenty-four elders on their thrones probably represent all of God's people. They might correlate to the twelve tribes of the old covenant and the twelve apostles of the new (see 21:12–14), although some have identified them with the twenty-four divisions of the Israelite priesthood (1 Chr 24:1–19). In the drama, they act as an antiphonal chorus (alternating groups of speakers or singers).

4:5 The thunder that follows flashes of lightning is God's call to attention (see 8:5; 11:19; 16:18). • in front of the throne were seven torches: In ancient times, torches were set before rulers to show their authority. These torches with burning flames represent the perfect Spirit of God. • This is the sevenfold Spirit: Literally They are the seven spirits; see note on 1:4.

The numbers used in Revelation (and elsewhere in Scripture) have often inspired wild speculation. An understanding of the symbolism of numbers in the ancient world can help ground our interpretation. Such symbolism, however, is not rigid or exact, so great care must be exercised, when numbers are used in interpretation, not to push fanciful predictions about future events.

The number one can refer to God's oneness (Deut 6:4; Gal 3:20; Jas 2:19). Two is the minimum number required to give a legitimate witness (11:3; Deut 17:6), and three can imply divine representation (1:4-5; Gen 18:1-2; 2 Cor 13:14). Four can stand for the known world, represented in Revelation by living creatures, horsemen, winds, and angels (4:6-8; 6:1-8; 7:1) and in Genesis by four rivers (Gen 2:10-14). When three and four are added to make seven, they represent perfection or divine fulfillment, indicating that God and the world are in harmony. The multiplication of three by four yields twelve, the number used in Revelation to represent God's people. The number five and its multiples, such as ten, represent human completeness (e.g., five fingers per hand); and six carries a negative sense or implication of evil, being neither humanly complete (five) nor divinely complete (seven).

Multiples of ten (e.g., forty) are a symbolic way to indicate many, whereas three sixes (666) imply supreme evil. One thousand is regarded as the foundational large number; 12,000 is the foundational large religious number; and 144,000 is the supreme religious number that represents the complete people of God (7:4; 14:1). The number 10,000 and its multiples are probably best transliterated from Greek as myriads, since they really mean "a huge number" rather than a precise count. The numbers eight, nine, and eleven carry little symbolic significance.

While some of the numbers in the Bible have symbolic meanings, using numbers to speculate on the time of Christ's return or of the end of the world is highly dubious—only God possesses that knowledge (Mark 13:32). God did not intend for the symbolic numbers in Revelation to help us predict the future; rather, they help to explain the significance of the visions. Because the numbers are symbolic, sometimes translations into contemporary sizes, distances, and numbers for our ease of reading can result in the loss of theological significance. The use of these symbolic numbers can illuminate a vision's relationship to the world, the people of God, and either perfection or imperfection.

of ancient theaters was the glistening mosaic where the speaking orchestra was positioned to provide perspective (cp. 15:2-4). • The four living beings represent the whole created order. • covered with eyes: This phrase probably indicates that they had knowledge or understanding. In the ancient world, figures were covered with a particular feature to emphasize that quality (e.g., statues of Artemis were covered with breasts to emphasize fertility). Cp. Ezek 1:18.

4:7 These four creatures symbolize four types of beings: a lion represents wild animals, a human represents humanity, and a human represents the birds (cp. Ezek 1:10). These four figures are drawn from Ezek 1 (cherubim) and Isa 6 (seraphim). They probably represent the best of creation as worshipping God. Missing from this worldwide orchestra are fish, which ancient people associated with the evil sea (see 21:1), and insects, represented by locusts in the evil kingdom (see 9:1-11).

4:8 day and night: The four beings ceaselessly praised God's basic characteristics: his holiness, his power (the Almighty), and his eternity (see note on 1:4). • Holy, holy, holy comes from Isa 6:3 and is the highest worship affirmation in Scripture. To double something makes it emphatic; to triple it makes it ultimate.

4:9-11 The antiphonal chorus of twenty-four elders provides divine perspective on creation. • The one sitting on the throne is typical Jewish indirection to avoid speaking God's name.

4:11 You are worthy: This phrase is never used of God in the OT but was frequently used in Rome during emperor worship. As emphasized here, only

For you created all things, and they exist because you created what you pleased."

A Dramatic Introduction: The Lamb Opens the Scroll

5 Then I saw a ⁸scroll in the right hand of the one who was sitting on the throne. There was writing on the inside and the outside of the scroll, and it was sealed with seven ⁹seals. ²And I saw a strong angel, who shouted with a loud voice: "Who is worthy to break the seals on this scroll and open it?" ³But no one in heaven or on earth or under the earth was able to open the scroll and read it.

⁴Then I began to weep bitterly because no one was found worthy to open the scroll and read it. ⁵But one of the twenty-four elders said to me, "Stop weeping! Look, the Lion of the tribe of Judah, the heir to David's throne, has won the victory. He is worthy to open the scroll and its seven seals."

⁶Then I saw a Lamb that looked as if it had been slaughtered, but it was now standing between the throne and the four living beings and among the twenty-four elders. He had seven horns and seven eyes, which represent the sevenfold Spirit of God that is sent out into every part of the earth. ⁷He stepped forward and took the scroll from the right hand of the one sitting on the throne. ⁸And when he took the scroll, the four living beings and the twenty-four elders fell down before the Lamb. Each one had a harp, and they held gold bowls filled with incense, which are the prayers of God's people. ⁹And they sang a new song with these words:

"You are worthy to take the scroll and break its seals and open it.
For you were slaughtered, and your blood has ransomed people for God from every tribe and language and people and nation.

¹⁰ And you have caused them to become a Kingdom of priests for our God.
And they will reign on the earth."

¹¹Then I looked again, and I heard the voices of thousands and millions of angels around the throne and of the living beings and the elders. ¹²And they sang in a mighty chorus:

"Worthy is the Lamb who was slaughtered—to receive power and riches and wisdom and strength and honor and glory and 'blessing."

God deserves worship. • you created all things: Many in the ancient world believed that the gods were too busy to be concerned with humans. But God is Almighty in more than a philosophical sense; he is involved as Creator and Lord. In Revelation, creation affirms that God is in sovereign control of the world (see 3:14; 10:6; 14:7; 21:1). • they exist because you created what you pleased: God had a purpose for everything that he created.

5:1-14 John introduces the Lamb, Jesus Christ, the central figure of Revelation and God's chosen agent for accomplishing his purposes.

5:1 The scroll (or book; also in 5:2-5, 7-9), like a dramatic script, details God's plan for the world (Ps 139:16). • The right hand represents God's gracious authority and power (see 1:17, 20). • The writing on the inside and the outside means that God's plans for history are full and complete. • sealed with seven seals: God has put his purposes for history in an impermeable safe (Isa 29:11-12; Dan 8:26). His purposes will be completed only when the seals are broken (see 5:4).

5:2-3 At first, no one in the entire universe seemed to have the divine authority or power to answer the angel's call.

5:4 John wept because even though the revelation had been promised to him, he thought he would be denied knowledge of the divine script—God's plan for history (4:1; see 10:4). John's weeping highlights the significance of the anticipated revelation.

5:5 Designations for Jesus as the Lion of . . . Judah (see Gen 49:9-10) and the heir to David's throne (literally the root of David; see Isa 11:10) are OT metaphors for the Messiah (see Jer 23:5; 30:9; John 7:42). • Because Jesus won the victory at the cross (John 16:33), he is the only one worthy to open the scroll and reveal God's purposes (4:11; 5:2, 12). God's plan for history centers around Jesus and what he has done. His relationship to the scroll indicates his control of history.

5:6 The Jews expected the Messiah to appear as a conquering lion. Instead, Jesus came as a Lamb (John 1:29, 36; Acts 8:32-35; 1 Cor 5:7; 1 Pet 1:19). The Lamb that had been slaughtered but was now standing refers to Jesus' death and resurrection. • The Lamb's seven horns represent his complete power, and the seven eyes represent his complete knowledge (see Zech 4:10). He is also fully related to the perfect Spirit of God (1:4). • which represent the sevenfold Spirit: Literally which are the seven spirits; see note on 1:4.

5:8 fell down before the Lamb: The crucified and risen Christ has divine authority to initiate the events of this age; he is fully worthy of worship. • The prayers of God's people become a significant basis for the judgments and plagues (6:9-11; 8:2-5).

5:9-10 The whole created order joins in a new song of praise to the Lamb (cp. 14:1-5; Ps 149:1; Isa 42:10). • The Lamb is worthy because, through his sacrifice, he won the right to break the seals of the scroll and enact God's purposes in history. • The song summarizes the implications of the Good News about Jesus (1 Pet 1:18-25).

5:10 The description of God's people as a Kingdom of priests who will enjoy ultimate victory and will reign with Christ reflects the images of Jesus as both King (Rom 1:3) and High Priest (Heb 6:20). • they will reign: Some manuscripts read they are reigning.

5:11-12 A huge angelic chorus numbering thousands and millions provides an antiphonal response; all heaven responds to creation's confession of Christ's sacrifice.

5:12 This doxology ascribes to Jesus divine honors that are reserved for God alone (see 4:11; 5:13; 7:12).

5. ACT I: SEVEN SEALS OF JUDGMENT (6:1-8:1)

The Lamb Breaks the First Six Seals (6:1-17)
Seals 1-4: The Riders of War, Violence, Economic Imbalance, and Death

6 As I watched, the Lamb broke the first of the seven seals on the scroll. Then I heard one of the four living beings say with a voice like thunder, "Come!" ²I looked up and saw a white horse standing there. Its rider carried a bow, and a crown was placed on his head. He rode out to win many battles and gain the victory.

³When the Lamb broke the second seal, I heard the second living being say, "Come!" ⁴Then another horse appeared, a red one. Its rider was given a mighty sword and the authority to take peace from the earth. And there was war and slaughter everywhere.

⁵When the Lamb broke the third seal, I heard the third living being say, "Come!" I looked up and saw a black horse, and its rider was holding a pair of scales in his hand. ⁶And I heard a voice from among the four living beings say, "A loaf of wheat bread

The Theater and Revelation (4:1-5:14)

This passage plays a distinctive role in Revelation. It introduces a divine drama and highlights the significance of God's agent (the Messiah) in world history. These two chapters also set the stage for the great drama about the world, the reality of judgment, and the victory that comes through the Lamb. Understanding the ancient theater can help us to understand these chapters that communicate their message dramatically in a series of tableaux (scenes).

These chapters open by describing God on his heavenly throne (4:1-3). In the ancient theater, a divine persona was placed in a central box or throne high above the stage. This actor clarified the significance of each scene for the audience through positive and negative comments or solved dilemmas in the script when they became too complex for the characters on stage to handle. In Revelation, readers should similarly watch for scenes where God or his messengers interpret or intervene to advance the message.

The ancient drama took place on the stage below the divine figure. Between the stage and the audience, an orchestra of speakers voiced the emotional climate of the play. In Revelation, the four living creatures have a similar role (4:6-8). The twenty-four elders (representatives of the old and new covenants; 4:4) provide an antiphonal chorus (alternating groups of speakers or singers) and the historical setting for this great drama. God supplies the script, and only his special agent, the Lamb, can open it (5:1-5; 6:1).

5:13 The second antiphonal response resounds from every creature, even those under the earth (the place of the dead) and in the sea (usually associated with evil), possibly implying a mandatory response even by those in rebellion against God (Isa 45:23-25; Rom 14:11; Phil 2:10-11).

5:14 The dramatic introduction of the Lamb (5:1-14) closes with the living beings (4:6-9). Their Amen affirms the truth of what John had seen, as the twenty-four elders prostrate themselves in worship.

6:1-16:21 Three sets of seven judgments—the seals, trumpets, and bowls—form the core of Revelation. Some suggest that the judgments form a chronological sequence from beginning to end, with each set of judgments flowing from the seventh judgment of the previous set for a total of twenty-one successive judgments. More likely, the relationship is cyclical (as in other Jewish apocalyptic works; cp. Dan 2, 7, 8, 11), with each set conveying increasing intensity and adding new details of God's judgment on those who rebel against him. In this perspective, all three cycles end at the same chronological point, with the return of Christ.

6:1-8:1 The Lamb breaks the seven seals to reveal the significance of history from God's perspective.

6:1-8 The four horses and their riders (see Zech 1:8-11; 6:1-8) sum up the power structures of the world; their activities primarily lead to war, violence, economic imbalance, and death. It is pointless to put our hope in these power structures.

6:1 scroll: Or book.

6:2 While some have understood the rider on a white horse to be Christ, as in 19:11, the only similarity between these two images is the horse. The four riders represent the destructive, senseless world and show no redeeming qualities. • The bow was typical Greco-Roman military hardware; here it is a symbol of war. • win many battles . . . gain the victory: The double use of the Greek word nikaō (conquer) confirms that this rider is powerful. The focus on war and conquest illustrates human depravity.

6:3-4 The red horse represents bloody violence on the earth. Although peace was what the Roman empire promised (the pax Romana), widespread violence was the horrible reality. This rider represents slaughter, including civil upheavals and ethnic cleansing.

6:5-6 The black horse represents economic and social dysfunction, indicated by scales used in commerce. Rampant or three loaves of barley will cost a day's pay. And don't waste the olive oil and wine."

⁷When the Lamb broke the fourth seal, I heard the fourth living being say, "Come!" ⁸I looked up and saw a horse whose color was pale green. Its rider was named Death, and his companion was the Grave. These two were given authority over one-fourth of the earth, to kill with the sword and famine and disease and wild animals.

Seal 5: The Martyrs and Their Haunting Question

⁹When the Lamb broke the fifth seal, I saw under the altar the souls of all who had been martyred for the word of God and for being faithful in their testimony. ¹⁰They shouted to the Lord and said, "O Sovereign Lord, holy and true, how long before you judge the people who belong to this world and avenge our blood for what they have done to us?" ¹¹Then a white robe was given to each of them. And they were told to rest a little longer until the full number of their brothers and sisters—their fellow servants of Jesus who were to be martyred—had joined them.

Seal 6: The Cosmic End

¹²I watched as the Lamb broke the sixth seal, and there was a great earthquake. The sun became as dark as black cloth, and the moon became as red as blood. ¹³Then the stars of the sky fell to the earth like green figs falling from a tree shaken by a strong wind. ¹⁴The sky was rolled up like a scroll, and all of the mountains and islands were moved from their places.

¹⁵Then everyone—the kings of the earth, the rulers, the generals, the wealthy, the powerful, and every slave and free person—all hid themselves in the caves and among the rocks of the mountains. ¹⁶And they cried to the mountains and the rocks, "Fall on us and hide us from the face of the one who sits on the throne and from the wrath of the Lamb. ¹⁷For the great day of their wrath has come, and who is able to survive?"

inflation is shown by the cost of the staples of life: A loaf of wheat bread or three loaves of barley will cost a day's pay (Greek A choinix [1 quart or 1 liter] of wheat for a denarius, and 3 choinix of barley for a denarius). A denarius was equivalent to a laborer's full day's wage). Yet the prices of luxuries such as oil and wine would remain unchanged. It is an image of social and economic imbalance. • don't waste: Or don't harm.

6:7-8 With the fourth seal comes a ghastly looking horse. In the ancient world, pale green was the color for depicting a corpse. • the Grave: Greek Hades. In Greek thought, Hades was the underworld abode of bodiless beings. The Hebrew idea of Sheol, the place of the dead (1 Sam 28:15), was similar. • The killing of one-fourth of those on earth indicates that the final judgment has not yet arrived (contrast 6:16-17). • This fourfold set of woes (sword and famine and disease and wild animals; cp. Ezek 14:21) summarizes the tragedies of earthly existence. The world cannot offer hope to humanity. • disease: Literally death.

6:9-11 In counterpoint to the world's destructive ways (6:1-8), the fifth seal introduces Christian martyrs who ask how God intends to deal with evil.

6:9 Rather than follow the world's destructive ways, the martyrs gave their lives for the word of God.

6:10 The martyrs shouted to the Sovereign Lord because they trusted in his power to redress their grievances. • how long: Is God slow to act? Will justice be done? God does act decisively (see 6:12-14); his wrath (6:16-17) must be understood in terms of justice, fairness, and righteousness (see Exod 34:5-7; Neh 9:17; Ps 103:8; 145:8; Joel 2:13; Jon 4:2; Rom 2:6-11). • avenge our blood: This cry for God's justice follows the pattern of OT imprecatory (vengeance) psalms (see "Prayers for Vengeance" at Ps 137, p. 1017; cp. Ps 6:3; 74:10; 79:5; 80:4). It also reflects the covenant curses of Deut 28:53-57; 32:35 (quoted in Rom 12:19).

6:11 A white robe is symbolic of the martyrs' victory and of God's full acceptance. • they were told to rest: Death is a state of rest (cp. John 11:11-12) in which martyrs await God's justice. • the full number: Only God knows how many Christians will be martyred before the end. In his sovereignty, God will fulfill his purposes through his children who are martyred and will vindicate them at the appropriate time. • their brothers and sisters: Literally their brothers, a generic term that refers to both male and female believers.

6:12-17 The opening of the sixth seal offers a glimpse into the end of the created order.

6:12-14 These cataclysmic signs are associated in Scripture with the day of the Lord, when God's judgment will overturn the whole created order (see Isa 13:4-12; 34:1-4; Joel 2:1-32; Zeph 2:1-3; Mark 13:1-37).

6:15-17 hid themselves: In the face of God's judgment, unredeemed people will be terrified and seek a safe hiding place, but in vain (Isa 2:19-21; Ezek 38:20; Hos 10:8; Luke 23:30). The prophets repeatedly warned that the great day would be a day of wrath and judgment (Isa 13:6-11; Joel 1:15; Amos 5:18; Zeph 1:14-15). • The ultimate question concerning God's judgment is, Who is able to survive? (Mal 3:2). God's children will rejoice to see him (5:13-14; 14:3-5) because they understand God's response to the martyrs' cry for vengeance (6:9-11), and they themselves have nothing to fear from God's judgment (Acts 10:34-36; Rom 5:1-2). Those who have persecuted God's people, however, will quake in fear as they face the wrath of the Lamb.

7:1-17 Three interludes occur in chs 6-16 (7:1-17; 10:1-11:14; 12:1-14:20) to define the place of God's holy people and to provide perspective on the previous scenes. In this first interlude before the seventh seal is broken, two visions communicate how God protects his people and assures them of his calling.

7:1-8 The interlude's first vision shows how God protects his faithful followers from ultimate harm.

7:1-3 Wait! God calls for a temporary halt by the four angels of destruction. • The seal of the living God implies membership in God's household; God owns and protects his people (2 Cor 1:22; Eph 1:13-14). In the ancient

And he shouted to those four angels, who had been given power to harm land and sea, ³"Wait! Don't harm the land or the sea or the trees until we have placed the seal of God on the foreheads of his servants."

from Reuben	12,000
from Gad	12,000

Praise from the Great Crowd

⁹After this I saw a vast crowd, too great to count, from every nation and tribe and people and language, standing in front of the throne and before the Lamb. They were clothed in white robes and held palm branches in their hands. ¹⁰And they were shouting with a great roar, "Salvation comes from our God who sits on the throne and from the Lamb!"

¹¹And all the angels were standing around the throne and around the elders and the four living beings. And they fell before the throne with their faces to the ground and worshiped God. ¹²They sang,

"Amen! *Blessing and glory and wisdom and thanksgiving and honor and power and strength belong to our God forever and ever! Amen."

¹³Then one of the twenty-four elders asked me, "Who are these who are clothed in white? Where did they come from?"

¹⁴And I said to him, "Sir, you are the one who knows."

Then he said to me, "These are the ones who died in the great tribulation. They have washed their robes in the blood of the Lamb and made them white.

¹⁵"That is why they stand in front of God's throne and serve him day and night in his Temple.

And he who sits on the throne will give them shelter.

¹⁶They will never again be hungry or thirsty; they will never be scorched by the heat of the sun.

world, sealing or tattooing was a sign of ownership. • The angel . . . carrying the seal identified God's people, answering the question of who would survive God's wrath (6:17; see Ezek 9:3-8; John 17:14-15) and furthering the promise of protection (3:10; see also 11:1-2).

7:4-8 Who are the 144,000? This listing of the tribes of Israel does not exactly correlate with the twelve physical tribes. Instead, it communicates that God knows precisely which people on earth belong to him. By the AD 90s, Israel's twelve tribes no longer existed; ten tribes were dispersed when Assyria conquered the northern kingdom of Israel (2 Kgs 17). The early Christian church regarded itself symbolically as the Israel of God (Matt 19:28; Rom 2:28-29; 9:6-8; Gal 3:29; 6:16; Phil 3:3). The 144,000 probably represent all faithful Christians (cp. 14:1-5; 21:12-17). The list begins appropriately with Judah (the royal tribe of Jesus) but substitutes Manasseh (one of the two tribes of Joseph) for Dan. The tribe of Dan fell into idolatry (Judg 18:14-31; 1 Kgs 12:25-30), and early Christians regarded it as the epitome of evil.

7:9-17 The interlude's second vision shows heaven with an innumerable crowd rejoicing because they are secure in Christ and all tears and sorrows have ended.

7:9 This vast crowd of believers (7:14) is too great to count, fulfilling God's promises to Abraham (Gen 15:5; 17:4-5; Rom 4:16-24; Gal 3:29). • White robes (6:11) and palm branches (John 12:13) are ancient symbols of victory and success, adding to the celebration that occurs after God ends the hostile world.

7:10 Ancient victory parades, heralding the accomplishments of conquerors, included loud chants. The shout of Salvation ("victory," "deliverance") honors God's triumph and prepares readers for his reign.

7:11-12 The angels, elders, and four living beings all prostrated themselves before God and responded together in a sevenfold (i.e., comprehensive) doxology to recognize God's eternal nature. The doxology is preceded and followed by Amen—a powerful affirmation of God's victory.

7:14 who died in (literally who came out of): See 6:9; 20:4. • the great tribulation (or the great suffering): A time of horrible and distressing events (see 1:9; 2:9-10; Deut 4:30-31; Matt 24:21-22; Acts 14:22). • They have washed their robes in the blood of the Lamb: This description symbolizes Christ's redeeming death for them. • made them white: This description expresses their victory over sin and death and their acceptance by God into eternal life.

7:15 serve him day and night: Service to God is the continual duty of Christians. • God's Temple symbolizes his presence (also 11:19; cp. 21:22).

7:16-17 For desert-dwellers, life-giving water and relief from the scorching sun represent paradise (see also 21:6; 22:1, 17; Ps 23:1-2; Ezek 47:1-12; John 7:37-38). • on the throne (literally on the center of the throne): The Lamb is closely identified with God. • Christ's designation as the Shepherd of God's people (cp. Ps 23; Matt 15:24; John 10:3, 11, 14; Heb 13:20; 1 Pet 2:25) means that he protects and provides for the sheep, bringing hope and salvation to his people (see Ezek 34:11-16, 23-24).

¹⁷ For the Lamb on the throne will be their Shepherd.
He will lead them to springs of life-giving water.
And God will wipe every tear from their eyes."

The Lamb Breaks Seal 7: Silence (8:1)

8 When the Lamb broke the seventh seal on the scroll, there was silence throughout heaven for about half an hour.

6. ACT II: SEVEN TRUMPETS OF JUDGMENT (8:2-11:19)

Introduction to the Trumpets (8:2-5)

²I saw the seven angels who stand before
God, and they were given seven trumpets.

³Then another angel with a gold incense burner came and stood at the altar. And a great amount of incense was given to him to mix with the prayers of God's people as an offering on the gold altar before the throne.

⁴The smoke of the incense, mixed with the prayers of God's holy people, ascended up to God from the altar where the angel had poured them out. ⁵Then the angel filled the incense burner with fire from the altar and threw it down upon the earth; and thunder crashed, lightning flashed, and there was a terrible earthquake.

The First Four Trumpets (8:6-13)

⁶Then the seven angels with the seven trumpets prepared to blow their mighty blasts.

⁷The first angel blew his trumpet, and hail and fire mixed with blood were thrown down on the earth. One-third of the earth was set on fire, one-third of the trees were burned, and all the green grass was burned.

⁸Then the second angel blew his trumpet, and a great mountain of fire was thrown into the sea. One-third of the water in the sea became blood, ⁹one-third of all things living in the sea died, and one-third of all the ships on the sea were destroyed.

¹⁰Then the third angel blew his trumpet, and a great star fell from the sky, burning like a torch. It fell on one-third of the rivers and on the springs of water. ¹¹The name of the star was Bitterness. It made one-third of drinking the bitter water.

of the day was dark, and also one-third of the night.

8:1 The opening of the seventh seal concludes the first act and dramatically initiates silence, which suggests the mystery of God in his dealings with the world (10:4; 1 Kgs 19:11-12). Perhaps the mysterious silence here is analogous to God's rest on the seventh day of creation (Gen 2:1-3; see also "God's Sabbath Rest" at Heb 4:1-11, p. 2089). • scroll: Or book. • half an hour: This brief hush precedes the unfolding of the second act of divine judgment when God will answer the prayers of his people.

8:2-11:19 The second cycle of judgments is structured around seven trumpets. Like the first cycle (6:1-8:1), this one contains an interlude (10:1-11:14; cp. 7:1-17) and ends with a glimpse of God's eternal Kingdom (11:15-19; see 7:9-8:1). • The trumpet judgments are reminiscent of the ten plagues of Egypt (Exod 7:14-11:10) and have the same purpose—to show the powerlessness of earthly gods (or satanic powers) and to demonstrate beyond doubt the power and sovereignty of God.

8:2-6 This scene of preparation in heaven introduces the seven trumpets of judgment and continues the theme of God's receiving and answering prayer (5:8; 6:9-11).

8:2 The dramatic sounding of trumpets by angels heralds an approaching end (see Isa 27:13; Zech 9:14; Matt 24:31; 1 Cor 15:52; 1 Thes 4:16).

8:3-4 The prayers of God's people ask for God's ultimate justice and judgment (6:10-11; see also 5:8; Ezra 9:5-6; Ps 141:2; Dan 9:21). The mixture of incense and prayers that reaches God's presence shows that God hears their prayers (see 6:9-11) and is prepared to act.

8:5 The action of the angel, as he throws fire . . . down upon the earth, signals the dramatic beginning of God's judgment (see Gen 19:24; Exod 9:23; Lev 10:2; Deut 9:3; 2 Kgs 1:10). • thunder . . . lightning . . . earthquake: These earthly portents remind us of God's power, presence, and judgment (also 11:19; 16:18; see Exod 19:18-19; 1 Kgs 19:11-12; Isa 29:6).

8:7-12 Each of the first four trumpets affects one-third of its target (see Ezek 5:1-4, 12; Zech 13:8). The point is not to convey an exact measurement; instead, it indicates that God's judgment on the earth is beginning but has not reached its zenith. Together, the first four trumpets form a unified message of judgment on the whole physical world (as with 6:1-8).

8:7 Hail and fire mixed with blood signal the destruction of plant life, as did the seventh plague on Egypt (see Exod 9:13-35; Joel 2:31; Acts 2:19). • all the green grass was burned: Nothing escapes God's judgment. • This vision need not be harmonized with 9:4 because each scene is self-contained and communicates its own message.

8:8-9 water . . . became blood: This judgment is similar to the first plague on Egypt (see Exod 7:14-25; Ps 78:44). • The mountain of fire suggests something similar to the eruption of Mount Vesuvius in AD 79 that brought bloody destruction to ships and sea life (see Pliny the Younger, Letters 6.16.1-22).

8:10-11 The star named Bitterness (literally wormwood, a shrubby plant yielding a bitter extract) is symbolic rather than physical. Bitter water is connected with judgment from early in Israel's national experience (Exod 15:22-26; Num 5:18; Jer 9:13-16; 23:15). The message is that wide-scale judgment has begun.

8:12 The fourth angel: On the fourth day of creation, God made the sun . . . the moon, and . . . the stars (Gen 1:14-19). • the day was dark: This judgment replicates the ninth plague in Egypt (Exod 10:21-23).

8:13 The ancients regarded the eagle as a symbolic messenger of God (see 4 Ezra 11:7-8; 2 Baruch 77:19-26). • Terror, terror, terror: A threefold announcement "Terror, terror, terror to all who belong to this world because of what will happen when the last three angels blow their trumpets."

Trumpets 5–6: The First Two Terrors (9:1-21)
The Fifth Trumpet Brings the First Terror

9 Then the fifth angel blew his trumpet, and I saw a star that had fallen to earth from the sky, and he was given the key to the shaft of the bottomless pit. ²When he opened it, smoke poured out as though from a huge furnace, and the sunlight and air turned dark from the smoke.

³Then locusts came from the smoke and descended on the earth, and they were given power to sting like scorpions. ⁴They were told not to harm the grass or plants or trees, but only the people who did not have the seal of God on their foreheads. ⁵They were told not to kill them but to torture them for five months with pain like the pain of a scorpion sting. ⁶In those days people will seek death but will not find it. They will long to die, but death will flee from them!

⁷The locusts looked like horses prepared for battle. They had what looked like gold crowns on their heads, and their faces looked like human faces. ⁸They had hair like women's hair and teeth like the teeth of a lion. ⁹They wore armor made of iron, and their wings roared like an army of chariots rushing into battle. ¹⁰They had tails that stung like scorpions, and for five months they had the power to torment people. ¹¹Their king is the angel from the bottomless pit; his name in Hebrew is Abaddon, and in Greek, Apollyon—the Destroyer.

¹²The first terror is past, but look, two more terrors are coming!

The Sixth Trumpet Brings the Second Terror

¹³Then the sixth angel blew his trumpet, and I heard a voice speaking from the four horns of the gold altar that stands in the presence of God. ¹⁴And the voice said to the sixth angel who held the trumpet, "Release the four angels who are bound at the great Euphrates River." ¹⁵Then the four angels who had been prepared for this hour and day and month and year were turned loose to kill one-third of all the people on earth. ¹⁶I heard the size of their army, which was 200 million mounted troops.

¹⁷And in my vision, I saw the horses and would be recognized as a message from God (see Acts 10:16). • The terror (Greek ouai) that sounded like an eagle's screech was directed against humans of this world who were not among God's faithful people (6:10; 9:4, 20).

9:1-21 The fifth and sixth trumpets demonstrate how God's judgment impacts the people of the world and detail how futile it is to resist God. While these judgments should lead to repentance, they do not. Sin has such control over people that they choose to worship the evil forces that torture and murder them rather than repent and turn to God.

9:1-12 The fifth . . . trumpet, the first of the three terrors (8:13), brings the judgment of locusts from the bottomless pit (or the abyss, or the underworld; also in 9:11), a place of horror. Ancient cultures viewed the oceanic depths, or the "abyss," as a dwelling place of demonic forces (see note on Gen 1:2).

9:2 The smoke from the pit turned the sky dark, as in the plague on Egypt (Exod 10:21-29; see Matt 27:45).

9:3-4 The locusts . . . from the smoke with their power to sting like scorpions are fiercer than those of the Egyptian plague (see Exod 10:14-15). Rather than eating plants, these locusts are like stinging scorpions that viciously attack people. Only people without the seal of God (see 7:1-8) receive this painful judgment. While the stings cause painful torture, they are not life-threatening (9:5-6).

9:5 torture them for five months: This time period is a symbolically complete number based on the fingers on a hand. It is also the normal life span of locusts, suggesting that their entire purpose was to torture people.

9:7-10 While some see these locusts as symbolic of attack helicopters, missiles, or other modern armaments, they come from the "bottomless pit" rather than from human engineering. The description of these creatures, derived from the physical appearance of locusts, is intended to cause revulsion and terror. • Their gold crowns indicate that their torment dominates much of the earth.

9:11 The king of the locusts is identified in three ways: (1) as the angel from the bottomless pit (probably different from the fallen star, 9:1, who unlocked the abyss rather than coming from it); (2) as Abaddon ("destruction"), often paired with death (see Job 28:22; Ps 88:11); and (3) as Apollyon—the Destroyer (see 1 Cor 10:10). • Although John makes no direct connection between the devil and this king of the locusts, the prince of demons is linked with Satan in the Gospels (Mark 3:22-26; see Matt 12:24-27; Luke 11:15-18). The NT also identifies the devil as the prince of this world (John 12:31; 14:30; 16:11) and as the prince of the power of the air (Eph 2:2), so he probably represents Satan. There is also a connection with the Roman emperor Domitian, whose patron god Apollo was symbolized by the locust.

9:13-14 The four horns of the gold altar (see 8:3) are introduced with the sixth trumpet blast. Many excavations have uncovered altars with pointed horns at their four corners (see note on Exod 27:2; see illustrations, pp. 173, 176). • The voice carries the authority of God in the command to release the four angels. • These angels have been bound, suggesting their evil nature (cp. 20:2; 1 Enoch 10; contrast 7:1). Their location at the great Euphrates River probably refers to Assyria and Babylon, empires that had devastated the kingdoms of Israel and Judah and thus were symbols of destruction (see 2 Kgs 17:22-24; 25:1-11).

9:15 hour and day and month and year: The fourfold time designation for releasing the four angels confirms that even evil forces must observe God's timing.

9:16 The relationship of the four angels to their army is not clear. • 200 million: This figure represents an innumerable multitude. Even at its greatest strength, the ancient Roman army with twenty-one legions numbered only about 126,000 soldiers. It is unproductive to use this number in attempting to identify any specific country with such an overwhelming destructive force.

the riders sitting on them. The riders wore armor that was fiery red and dark blue and yellow. The horses had heads like lions, and fire and smoke and burning sulfur billowed from their mouths. ¹⁸One-third of all the people on earth were killed by these three plagues—by the fire and smoke and burning sulfur that came from the mouths of the horses. ¹⁹Their power was in their mouths and in their tails. For their tails had heads like snakes, with the power to injure people.

²⁰But the people who did not die in these plagues still refused to repent of their evil deeds and turn to God. They continued to worship demons and idols made of gold, silver, bronze, stone, and wood—idols that can neither see nor hear nor walk! ²¹And they did not repent of their murders or their witchcraft or their sexual immorality or their thefts.

Second Interlude (10:1–11:14)

The Angel and the Small Scroll

10 Then I saw another mighty angel coming down from heaven, surrounded by a cloud, with a rainbow over his head. His face shone like the sun, and his feet were like pillars of fire. ²And in his hand was a small scroll that had been opened. He stood with his right foot on the sea and his left foot on the land. ³And he gave a great shout like the roar of a lion. And when he shouted, the seven thunders answered.

⁴When the seven thunders spoke, I was about to write. But I heard a voice from heaven saying, “Keep secret what the seven thunders said, and do not write it down.”

⁵Then the angel I saw standing on the sea and on the land raised his right hand toward heaven. ⁶He swore an oath in the name of the one who lives forever and ever, who created the heavens and everything in them, the earth and everything in it, and the sea and everything in it. He said, “There will be no more delay. ⁷When the seventh angel blows his trumpet, God’s mysterious plan will be fulfilled. It will happen just as he announced it to his servants the prophets.”

⁸Then the voice from heaven spoke to me again: “Go and take the open scroll from the hand of the angel who is standing on the sea and on the land.”

⁹So I went to the angel and told him to give me the small scroll. “Yes, take it and eat it,” he said. “It will be sweet as honey in your mouth, but it will turn sour in your stomach!” ¹⁰So I took the small scroll from the hand of the angel, and I ate it! It was sweet in my mouth, but when I swallowed it, it turned sour in my stomach.

9:17-19 The riders had armor in colors that matched the plagues of their horses, with red for fire, blue for smoke, and yellow for sulfur—all of which are signs of judgment in Scripture (see 14:10-11; 19:20; Gen 19:24-28; Ps 11:6; Ezek 38:22; Luke 17:29). • The horses are reminiscent of the terrifying monsters of Greek tales pictured on ancient buildings and celebrated in ancient dramas. • One-third: See note on 8:7-12.

9:20-21 Even when humans are faced with plagues and death, repentance is not automatic. People tend to continue in their evil deeds and to worship demons and idols—things that belong to the created order—rather than worshipping the Creator (see 13:4; 14:9-10; Rom 1:25; 1 Cor 8:4; 10:19-22). • murders . . . witchcraft . . . immorality . . . thefts: What people worship parallels the ways in which they live (see 21:8; 22:15; Rom 1:23, 29-32). • Revelation portrays the extent to which depravity controls unbelievers. It is not logical to worship powers and beings that torture and kill oneself and one’s friends; the powers of sin and rebellion against God are deceptively captivating.

10:1–11:14 This interlude between the sixth and seventh trumpets is divided into two parts: (1) the seven thunders and the small scroll (10:1-11), and

(2) the two witnesses (11:1-13). The interlude ends with the announcement that the second terror is finished (11:14).

10:1 another mighty angel (see 5:2; 7:2; cp. 1:12-16): This angel appears similar to the huge bronze Colossus that stood as a symbol of human power in the harbor of Rhodes for several decades before it was toppled by an earthquake in the late 200s bc. The statue still lay broken at the time that John wrote Revelation. It was about 100 feet tall and represented the sun god, Helios. The angel was surrounded by a cloud, suggesting that he dwarfed the Rhodes statue and, by implication, all idols. The rainbow over his head is a reminder that the enthroned God is encircled by a rainbow (4:3), a biblical symbol of God’s covenant with humanity (Gen 9:8-17).

10:2-3 Although the scroll (or book; also in 10:8-10) is small, it is not unimportant. It reveals a small yet critical part of God’s purposes in events still to come before eternity begins. • he gave a great shout: Cp. Job 37:2-5; Ps 18:13; 29:3-4.

10:4 Revelation reveals God’s intentions in the world without eliminating the mystery of God’s ways. The martyrs did not receive an immediate answer to their cries (6:10), the meaning of the seventh seal is cloaked in silence (8:1), and here the seven thunders are kept secret (cp. Dan 12:9). • Keep secret: Literally Seal up.

10:5-6 While raising one’s right hand is common in taking an oath today, it is rare in biblical literature (cp. Gen 14:22; 24:9; Dan 12:7). • When making an oath, Jews were very careful not to swear lightly by God’s name (see Exod 20:7). Jesus also rebuked insincere oath-taking (see Matt 5:33-37; 23:16-22). When God swore an oath, he did so in his own name as the highest possible point of reference (see Gen 22:16; Ps 89:35-36; Jer 22:5; Heb 6:13-18).

10:7 angel blows his trumpet: See 1 Cor 15:51-54; 1 Thes 4:16. • God’s mysterious plan for the world is no surprise; the prophets who served God in the past warned that the day of the Lord would come (see Joel 2:1-3, 10-11; Amos 5:18-20; Zeph 1:14-18).

10:8-10 As in Ezekiel’s experience, the scroll tasted sweet in the mouth (Ezek 3:1-3; see Jer 15:16; see also Ps 19:10; 119:103). The experiences yet to come for God’s people would be sweet, including the victory of God’s plan and the vindication of his people. John’s sour . . . stomach resembles the effects of Ezekiel’s hard message for Israel (Ezek 3:8-9). The process of bringing God’s plan to fruition involves hardship.

The Two Prophetic Witnesses

11 Then I was given a measuring stick, and I was told, "Go and measure the Temple of God and the altar, and count the number of worshipers. ²But do not measure the outer courtyard, for it has been turned over to the nations. They will trample the holy city for 42 months. ³And I will give power to my two witnesses, and they will be clothed in burlap and will prophesy during those 1,260 days."

The Purpose of the Judgments (9:20-21)

What is the purpose of the judgments in Revelation? Are they meant to bring about redemption or are they simply intended to destroy? Revelation gives us some clues:

- At the end of the sixth seal, in spite of all the plagues, people "still refused to repent of their evil deeds and turn to God" (9:20-21). For some people, it does not seem to matter what happens to them—they will not change even under pressure.
- The tormented sufferers of the fifth trumpet sought death rather than looking to God (9:6). Many prefer to die rather than to admit their sin.
- In the sixth seal (6:12-17), the people cried for the rocks to fall and hide them from "the wrath of the Lamb" (6:16). Their seeking escape from judgment shows their fear rather than trusting in God.
- Revelation emphasizes the ultimate justice of God (16:5-7) and the principle of retribution. Believers and unbelievers alike will receive exactly what they deserve (see 2:23; 11:18; 14:13; 18:6; 20:12-13; 22:12).
- The judgments are God's partial answer to the prayers of the saints for retribution. Judgment occurs in God's time, not ours (6:9-11; 8:2-5).
- The judgments, like the plagues on Egypt, disprove the power of the earthly gods and of God's enemies (Exod 7:8-12; 12:12; cp. Rev 13:4-17; 19:20-21; 20:9-10).
- The judgments are a part of God's mission and offer a last chance to repent (14:6-7; see 9:20-21; 16:9, 11, 21).

Even though God has made it clear that sin is wrong and judgment is coming (Rom 1:24, 26, 28 and 3:9-18), many people still refuse to repent and accept God's grace (Rom 1:32; 3:24-26). Even in the final days, when God sends his witnesses to prophesy concerning the coming destruction (11:4-6), many people will prefer to align themselves with evil forces and will gloat over the demise of God's prophets (11:10). Those who thus oppose God and flee from him will eventually be excluded from his presence.

Judgment against disobedience and evil ways (see Rom 1:18-28) is inevitable, even in the church (2:5, 16; 3:3, 16). God, however, patiently waits for repentance and offers his grace (2:7, 16-17, 22; 3:3, 20).

10:11 Unlike Ezekiel, who prophesied for Israel alone, John must prophesy . . . about (or against) all the people of the world. There is debate whether "about" or "against" is the best translation; "about" allows for both promise and judgment (see both at 21:24-27).

11:1-13 This section pictures the willful rejection of God's continuing call for repentance. The many attempts to silence his witnesses ultimately fail, and God triumphs. • Many attempts have been made to identify the two witnesses of this chapter. Moses and Elijah, who appeared with Jesus at the transfiguration (Matt 17:3; Mark 9:4; Luke 9:30), are likely candidates (see 11:6); they represent the law and the prophets. Others have suggested Enoch and Elijah because they did not die (see Gen 5:21-24; 2 Kgs 2:11-12). Other possibilities include Peter and Paul, or James and John. More important than their identities is their role of confirming God's message by the testimony of "two or three witnesses" (see Deut 17:6). God provides a twofold witness to the world about the impending judgment, making it clear that his word is certain to be fulfilled (Deut 19:15; Matt 18:15-16).

11:1 The instructions to measure the Temple are reminiscent of Ezekiel's visions (see Ezek 40:1-42:20; 43:13-17). The Jerusalem Temple was destroyed by the Romans in AD 70; these details symbolize God's precise knowledge of and care for his people who belong to him (cp. 7:2-4; Zech 2:1-5).

11:2-3 The outer courtyard in the Jerusalem Temple, outside the stone warning fence, was regarded as the place for the Gentile nations. John makes a clear distinction between the people God recognizes and those he does not. • The 42 months and 1,260 days refer to a period of three and a half years, or a broken seven (see notes on Dan 7:24-25; 8:26; 9:24-27). John repeatedly uses these time designations in Revelation when persecution is evident and evil appears to dominate the world. God's people will be secure in him (see note on 11:1) even though God allows evil forces to persecute them (see 13:7; Mark 10:30).

11:3 During the period of persecution, God will not abandon the world but will send his two witnesses to proclaim the coming judgment, just as God sent Jonah to Nineveh (Jon 1:2; 4:11). • Clothing made of burlap was symbolic of mourning or repentance (see Gen 37:34; 2 Sam 3:31; Neh 9:1; Esth 4:1; Jon 3:6).

trees and the two lampstands that stand before the Lord of all the earth. ⁵If anyone tries to harm them, fire flashes from their mouths and consumes their enemies. This is how anyone who tries to harm them must die. ⁶They have power to shut the sky so that no rain will fall for as long as they prophesy. And they have the power to turn the rivers and oceans into blood, and to strike the earth with every kind of plague as often as they wish.

⁷When they complete their testimony, the beast that comes up out of the bottomless pit will declare war against them, and he will conquer them and kill them. ⁸And their bodies will lie in the main street of Jerusalem, the city that is figuratively called "Sodom" and "Egypt," the city where their Lord was crucified. ⁹And for three and a half days, all peoples, tribes, languages, and nations will stare at their bodies. No one will be allowed to bury them. ¹⁰All the people who belong to this world will gloat over them and give presents to each other to celebrate the death of the two prophets who had tormented them.

¹¹But after three and a half days, God breathed life into them, and they stood up! Terror struck all who were staring at them.

¹²Then a loud voice from heaven called to the two prophets, "Come up here!" And they rose to heaven in a cloud as their enemies watched.

¹³At the same time there was a terrible earthquake that destroyed a tenth of the city. Seven thousand people died in that earthquake, and everyone else was terrified and gave glory to the God of heaven.

¹⁴The second terror is past, but look, the third terror is coming quickly.

Trumpet 7: The Third Terror (11:15-19)

¹⁵Then the seventh angel blew his trumpet, and there were loud voices shouting in heaven:

"The world has now become the Kingdom of our Lord and of his Christ, and he will reign forever and ever."

¹⁶The twenty-four elders sitting on their thrones before God fell with their faces to the ground and worshiped him. ¹⁷And they said,

"We give thanks to you, Lord God, the Almighty, the one who is and who always was, for now you have assumed your great power and have begun to reign.

11:4 two olive trees and . . . two lampstands: See note on 1:12; see also Exod 25:31-40; Zech 4:2-6.

11:5 In one of the psalms, God is portrayed with fire coming from his mouth, a picture of judgment on his enemies (Ps 18:8; see also 2 Sam 22:9). Cp. Elijah, 2 Kgs 1:1-15.

11:6 These two witnesses were given power to stop the rain and bring down plagues, as were Elijah (see 1 Kgs 17:1; 18:41-46) and Moses (see Exod 7:14-24; 8:1-11:10).

11:7-8 When the witnesses finish their testimony, the scene changes dramatically. The beast (cp. 13:1) is introduced for the first time; it is associated with the bottomless pit (or the abyss, or the underworld; see 9:1, 11; 17:8). Like all enemies of God, the beast engages in war against God's witnesses, and he kills them.

11:8 their bodies will lie in the main street: Evil is so vindictive that it even desecrates the dead. • Jerusalem (literally the great city): The designation "the great city" would have immediately suggested Rome to early readers (16:19; 17:18; 18:10, 16, 18-19, 21). But John also describes it as the city where their Lord was crucified as well as Sodom and Egypt—all places that were hostile to God and his people (see also 17:5, 9). • where their Lord was crucified: There is a direct connection between how the Lord was treated by evil forces and the experience of persecuted Christians (see Acts 9:5).

11:9 Leaving people's bodies out for public display was a way to dishonor them after their death (see 1 Sam 31:10; the usual Roman custom was to leave bodies hanging after crucifixion). • peoples, tribes, languages, and nations: All the peoples of the world are represented in this exhibition.

11:10 All the people . . . will gloat and celebrate: God's enemies despise and reject his messengers.

11:11 The death of the two witnesses is not the end of their ministry. God was not defeated in the death of Jesus and he will not be defeated in the slaughter of his witnesses. The God of the resurrection breathed life into the dead so that they stood up (see Ezek 37:3-5, 10), leaving no doubt about God's power.

• Terror struck: It is a fearful experience for sinful humans to face the power of the living God (see Heb 10:31).

11:12 they rose to heaven in a cloud: The event is reminiscent of the ascent of Jesus (see Acts 1:9) and others (see 2 Kgs 2:11-12; 1 Thes 4:17).

11:13 An earthquake often accompanies key moments in biblical history (see Exod 19:18; 1 Kgs 19:11-12; Matt 27:51). • Seven thousand: The number who died shows God's involvement in judgment (contrast 1 Kgs 19:18).

• everyone else . . . gave glory to the God of heaven: Those who survived the earthquake were forced to acknowledge God's power and sovereignty over the world (see Phil 2:9-11).

11:15-19 The seventh trumpet ("the third terror," 11:14; see also 9:12) presents a scene of final judgment and the eternal Kingdom. As in 7:9-17, this scene provides a dramatic window into the ultimate Christian hope with God. In the midst of judgment, the reader is reminded of eternity with God.

11:15 Loud voices in the court of heaven sing a victory hymn; the earth has been transformed into the realm of our Lord and his Christ (or his Messiah), who is enthroned as king forever.

11:16-18 The twenty-four elders, representing the people of God, confirm God's victorious enthronement (see note on 4:4). Their worship acknowledges God's sovereign rule as the Almighty (see 4:10-11; 5:8-10).

11:17 The thanksgiving prayer describes God as the one who is and who always was; the description "is still to come" (see 1:4, 8) no longer applies, because in this scene eternity has come and God has begun to reign.

19 Then, in heaven, the Temple of God was opened and the Ark of his covenant could be seen inside the Temple. Lightning flashed, thunder crashed and roared, and there was an earthquake and a terrible hailstorm.

7. THE TWO SIDES OF THE GREAT CONFLICT (12:1-14:20)

The Woman and the Dragon

12 Then I witnessed in heaven an event of great significance. I saw a woman clothed with the sun, with the moon beneath her feet, and a crown of twelve stars on her head. 2 She was pregnant, and she cried out because of her labor pains and the agony of giving birth.

3 Then I witnessed in heaven another significant event. I saw a large red dragon with seven heads and ten horns, with seven crowns on his heads. 4 His tail swept away one-third of the stars in the sky, and he threw them to the earth. He stood in front of the woman as she was about to give birth, ready to devour her baby as soon as it was born.

5 She gave birth to a son who was to rule all nations with an iron rod. And her child was snatched away from the dragon and was caught up to God and to his throne.
6 And the woman fled into the wilderness, where God had prepared a place to care for her for 1,260 days.

7 Then there was war in heaven. Michael and his angels fought against the dragon and his angels. 8 And the dragon lost the battle, and he and his angels were forced out of heaven. 9 This great dragon—the ancient serpent called the 'devil, or Satan, the one deceiving the whole world—was thrown down to the earth with all his angels.

10 Then I heard a loud voice shouting across the heavens,

"It has come at last—salvation and power and the Kingdom of our God, and the authority of his Christ.
For the accuser of our brothers and sisters has been thrown down to earth—

11:18 The nations were filled with wrath when they refused to do as God commanded (see Ps 2). But things will now be different because God's wrath has come. God will reward his holy people (see 22:12) with new life as his children (see John 1:12; 20:31). • Fear your name: God's name implies his nature; fearing God's name means accepting who he is (see "Fear of the Lord" at Prov 1:7, p. 1030). • The end of the age will be the time to destroy those who have not accepted God's love (see John 3:16-20). They will go into the lake of fire (20:15). This doom of God's enemies is the third and final terror (11:14).

11:19 This verse provides a dramatic conclusion to the first half of Revelation and a link to the second half. • In this scene, the Temple and the Ark are symbols of God's presence; the earthly Ark was the copy of the design of the Ark in heaven (see Exod 25:40; Heb 8:5).

12:1-14:20 The people of God, portrayed as a woman who brings forth the Messiah, are under attack by the devil even though he has already been defeated (12:1-17). With his two minions, the beast and the false prophet, Satan attempts to continue controlling the world (13:1-18) before the final confrontation with the Lord (14:1-20).

12:1-17 Satan (pictured as a dragon) plots to challenge God's purposes but is thwarted. Having failed in direct confrontation with God and Christ, he attempts to attack God's people. Three brief scenes present an overview of the story (12:1-6), followed by elaborations of the war in heaven (12:7-9) and the war on earth (12:13-17).

12:1 The number twelve suggests that the woman represents God's people (cp. 12:15-17; see Jer 2:32; 2 Cor 11:2; Eph 5:32), from whom came the Messiah. This woman is marked by God's glory in contrast with the prostitute (see 17:1-6), who is destined for destruction.

12:2 The symbolic woman going through the agony of labor portrays Christ's birth, reflecting the biblical theme of Israel's trauma while waiting to be delivered (see Isa 26:16-18; Jer 4:31; Mic 4:9-10; John 16:21).

12:3-4 The large red dragon represents Satan (see 12:9). • seven heads and ten horns: The numbers represent a mixture of divine and created powers (see 17:7-14). • The historic battle between evil and the people of God is staged in cosmic dimensions (see Gen 3:1-7, 14-15; Job 1:9-12). • Herod's desire to kill Jesus embodied Satan's attempt to devour her baby after it was born (see Matt 2:7-8, 16).

12:5 Jesus was the son who was to rule all nations (see Luke 1:31-33; 2:30-32; cp. Ps 2:6-12). • Although Jesus was killed by agents of the devil, he was snatched away from the dragon and raised from the dead (Matt 28:6; Mark 10:33-34; 16:6; 1 Cor 15:3-4). Jesus' entire life on earth, from his birth to his death and resurrection, is compressed into this scene. • caught up to God and to his throne: See Acts 1:9-11.

12:6 Like the people of Israel who were spiritually refined in the wilderness (see Hos 2:14-15; Acts 7:38-45) and in exile (see Isa 5:13; Ezek 12:1-3), the Christian church must face its own wilderness. Revelation presents messages of endurance and perseverance in the face of trouble and shows that God provides places of refuge and avenues of escape for his people (cp. 1 Cor 10:13).

12:7-9 This scene clarifies the dragon's identity and power. • God dispatches Michael, the warrior archangel (see Dan 12:1; Jude 1:9), to confront the dragon and his angels. God does not have to engage in the battle himself (see Matt 26:53), and Satan is defeated.

12:10-11 his Christ: Or his Messiah. • brothers and sisters (literally brothers; see note on 6:11): Satan's defeat is encouraging for Christians who, like the recipients of Revelation, are not afraid to die (see John 12:24-26).

and by their testimony.
And they did not love their lives so much that they were afraid to die.
¹² Therefore, rejoice, O heavens!
And you who live in the heavens, rejoice!

knowing that he has little time."

¹³ When the dragon realized that he had been thrown down to the earth, he pursued the woman who had given birth to the male child. ¹⁴ But she was given two wings like those of a great eagle so she could fly to the place prepared for her in the wilderness.
There she would be cared for and protected from the dragon for a time, times, and half a time.

¹⁵ Then the dragon tried to drown the woman with a flood of water that flowed from his mouth. ¹⁶ But the earth helped her by opening its mouth and swallowing the river that gushed out from the mouth of the dragon. ¹⁷ And the dragon was angry at the woman and declared war against the rest of her children—all who keep God's commandments and maintain their testimony for Jesus.

¹⁸ Then the dragon took his stand on the shore beside the sea.

The Beast out of the Sea

13 Then I saw a beast rising up out of the sea. It had seven heads and ten horns, with ten crowns on its horns. And written on each head were names that ^ablasphemed God. ² This beast looked like a leopard, but it had the feet of a bear and the mouth of a lion! And the dragon gave the beast his own power and throne and great authority.

³ I saw that one of the heads of the beast seemed wounded beyond recovery—but the fatal wound was healed! The whole world marveled at this miracle and gave allegiance to the beast. ⁴ They worshiped the dragon for giving the beast such power, and they also worshiped the beast. "Who is as great as the beast?" they exclaimed. "Who is able to fight against him?"

⁵ Then the beast was allowed to speak great blasphemies against God. And he was given authority to do whatever he wanted for forty-two months. ⁶ And he spoke terrible words of blasphemy against God, slandering his name and his dwelling—that is, those who dwell in heaven. ⁷ And the beast was allowed to wage war against God's holy people and to conquer them. And he was given authority to rule over every tribe

12:13 When the dragon realized: The scene picks up from 12:9.

12:14 two wings . . . of a great eagle
(see Exod 19:4-6; Deut 32:10-11; Isa 40:29-31): God strengthens his people; he does not promise that they will escape persecution or death. • from the dragon: Literally from the serpent; also in 12:15. See 12:9. • a time, times, and half a time: Usually understood as three and a half years (see 11:2-3).

12:15-16 John pictures Satan as Leviathan (cp. Job 41:1) trying to destroy God's people (the woman; see note on 12:1). The protective earth responds and the waters of chaos are contained, as at creation (cp. Gen 1:2, 6-7, 9-10).

12:17 The dragon turns his hostility against the woman's children (believers) who keep God's commandments and continue in their testimony for Jesus.

12:18-13:18 John portrays the dragon's conduct of his war (12:17) through two beasts who with Satan form an evil trinity.

12:18 Then the dragon took his stand:
Literally Then he took his stand; some manuscripts read Then I took my stand.
Some translations put this entire sentence into 13:1. • on the shore beside the sea: By contrast, the Lamb stands on the rock of Zion (14:1).

13:1-10 The first beast is the second member of the evil trinity (see note on 12:18-13:18) and should probably be identified with Roman power (see "Four World Empires" at Dan 2:1-45; 7:1-28, p. 1395).

13:1 The beast emerges from the sea
(symbolizing evil). Like the dragon, it has seven heads and ten horns (see 12:3). The crowns represent its political and military power (cp. 17:3, 7-11; Dan 7:7, 19-20) and indicate that Satan is the head of this beast's empire.

13:2 Satan makes the beast a pseudo-deity by giving it his power, throne, and authority. In the first century, Roman emperors increasingly claimed divinity.

13:3 Satan often imitates God. Here the beast mimics the death and resurrection of Jesus. • That one of the heads had been fatally wounded but was healed has led to its identification with Nero. A tradition emerged that the emperor Nero (AD 54-68) was so evil that he either did not really die or would be reincarnated as another tyrant like Domitian (AD 81-96). In 17:9-10, the beast's seven heads are linked both to seven hills (Rome) and to seven kings.

13:5-8 The four characteristics of the beast are that he (1) blasphemes God,
(2) has authority for a limited time,
(3) makes war against God's people, and
(4) rules the world. But God is in control.

13:5 The forty-two months are the three and a half years of persecution and evil domination (see note on 11:2-3).

13:6 and his dwelling—that is, those who dwell in heaven: Some manuscripts read and his dwelling and all who dwell in heaven.

13:7 The beast's authority extends over all the people of the world.

13:8 Those who worshiped the beast receive its mark (13:15-17) and are not listed in the Book of Life (see 20:12).
• not written in the Book of Life that belongs to the Lamb who was slaughtered before the world was made: Or not written in the Book of Life before the world was made—the Book that belongs to the Lamb who was slaughtered.

¹⁰ Anyone who is destined for prison will be taken to prison.

Anyone destined to die by the sword will die by the sword.

This means that God's holy people must endure persecution patiently and remain faithful.

Another Beast out of the Earth

¹¹ Then I saw another beast come up out of the earth. He had two horns like those of a lamb, but he spoke with the voice of a dragon. ¹² He exercised all the authority of the first beast. And he required all the earth and its people to worship the first beast, whose fatal wound had been healed. ¹³ He did astounding miracles, even making fire flash down to earth from the sky while everyone was watching. ¹⁴ And with all the miracles he was allowed to perform on behalf of the first beast, he deceived all the people who belong to this world. He ordered the people to make a great statue of the first beast, who was fatally wounded and then came back to life. ¹⁵ He was then permitted to give life to this statue so that it could speak. Then the statue of the beast commanded that anyone refusing to worship it must die.

¹⁶ He required everyone—small and great, rich and poor, free and slave—to be given a mark on the right hand or on the forehead. ¹⁷ And no one could buy or sell anything without that mark, which was either the name of the beast or the number representing his name. ¹⁸ Wisdom is needed here. The Antichrist (13:11)

2 Thes 2:3-10
1 Jn 2:18, 22; 4:2-3
2 Jn 1:7

The term "antichrist" appears only in John's letters (1 Jn 2:18, 22; 4:3; 2 Jn 1:7). John expected many antichrists to appear in history (1 Jn 2:18), all of whom would deny that Jesus was both divine and human (1 Jn 2:22; 4:2-3; 2 Jn 1:7).

In Revelation 13, the hostile spirit opposed to Christ is personified by "another beast" who serves the dragon (Satan) and the first beast. The number of this antichrist, 666, probably stood for Nero and perhaps for the emperor Domitian (see note on 17:8). Emperor worship was a pseudo-religion that stood in opposition to proclaiming Christ as Lord.

Whether John expected a final antichrist even greater than a political figure like Nero or Domitian is uncertain. Either way, Christians must take seriously the presence of evil and its opposition to Christ in the people and power structures of the world. Resisting these enemies may lead to persecution and even death. Our hope rests in victory through Christ.

Jer 15:2; 43:11. Anyone with ears to hear must pay attention, because judgment is coming (cp. 2:7, 11, 17).

13:10 God's holy people are summoned to endure and remain faithful while experiencing temporary persecution.

13:11-18 another beast: This second beast, the third member of the evil trinity (see note on 12:18-13:18), is later called the "false prophet" (16:13). As a high priest of false religion, he leads the world into worshiping the first beast and the dragon (see also 16:13-14).

13:11 The beast is portrayed as a lamb, the same symbol used to represent Christ (see 5:6-13; 7:9-17; 14:1-4), but this lamb spoke like a dragon. The image is of a fraudulent messiah. • The two horns might stand for two emperors, perhaps Nero and Domitian.

13:12-15 The second beast derives its power from the first beast, which in turn answers to the dragon (13:4).

13:12 he required . . . people to worship the first beast: Imperial Rome demanded worship of the emperor Domitian. • whose fatal wound had been healed: This description might refer to Domitian, who was viewed as the reincarnation of Nero (see note on 13:3). The image is a picture of the constant reemergence of evil, particularly in the latter days (see note on 17:8).

13:13-15 In NT times, false prophets astounded people with reports of divine visitations and of idols speaking for the gods they represented (see Acts 16:16-18; 1 Cor 12:2-3). Such practices involved worship of demons (see 1 Cor 10:20-21) and were epitomized in the Roman emperor cult. Those who refused to conform were put to death.

13:14-15 he was allowed . . . He was then permitted: God never relinquishes ultimate authority. These creatures of evil have been allowed to rebel against God, but they are not in control.

13:16-17 small and great, rich and poor, free and slave: All humanity is required to accept the beast's evil mark of ownership (see 14:9, 11; 19:20; 20:4), a precondition for all commerce (the right to buy or sell). The text does not explicitly tell us what the mark is or looks like. • On the right hand or on the forehead suggests the branding of slaves—the beast owns them. • the number representing his name: In both Hebrew and Greek, letters of the alphabet represent numbers, which gave names a numerical value (13:18).

13:18 Wisdom is needed: John is giving a clue to help his readers solve the meaning of the beast's number. • of a man (or of humanity): John hides the man's identity, perhaps because revealing the name would place him and his readers in danger (cp. use of Babylon as a symbol for Rome, 17:9). • The number 666 (some manuscripts read 616) represents supernatural evil (see meaning of the number of the beast, for it is the number of a man. His number is 666.

The Lamb and the 144,000

14 Then I saw the Lamb standing on Mount Zion, and with him were 144,000 who had his name and his Father's name written on their foreheads. ²And I heard a sound from heaven like the roar of mighty ocean waves or the rolling of loud thunder. It was like the sound of many harps playing together.

³This great choir sang a wonderful new song in front of the throne of God and before the four living beings and the twenty-four elders. No one could learn this song except the 144,000 who had been redeemed from the earth. ⁴They have kept themselves as pure as virgins, following the Lamb wherever he goes. They have been purchased from among the people on the earth as a special offering to God and to the Lamb. ⁵They have told no lies; they are without blame.

The Three Angels Proclaim Judgment and Blessing

⁶And I saw another angel flying through the sky, carrying the eternal Good News to proclaim to the people who belong to this world—to every nation, tribe, language, and people. ⁷"Fear God," he shouted. "Give glory to him. For the time has come when he will sit as judge. Worship him who made the heavens, the earth, the sea, and all the springs of water."

⁸Then another angel followed him through the sky, shouting, "Babylon is fallen—that great city is fallen—because she made all the nations of the world drink the wine of her passionate immorality."

⁹Then a third angel followed them, shouting, "Anyone who worships the beast and his statue or who accepts his mark on the forehead or on the hand ¹⁰must drink the wine of God's anger. It has been poured full strength into God's cup of wrath. And they will be tormented with fire and burning sulfur in the presence of the holy angels and the Lamb. ¹¹The smoke of their torment will rise forever and ever, and they will have no relief day or night, for they have worshiped the beast and his statue and have accepted the mark of his name."

¹²This means that God's holy people must endure persecution patiently, obeying his commands and maintaining their faith in Jesus.

¹³And I heard a voice from heaven saying, "Write this down: Blessed are those who die "Symbolic Numbers" at 4:4, p. 2173). John might have used the transliteration Caesar Neron (a Hebrew spelling of the name) to arrive at the number 666. Later scribes, who spoke Greek but not Hebrew, corrected the number to 616 in some manuscripts, probably to match the name's numerical value in Greek.

14:1-5 The true Lamb and his followers starkly contrast with the evil trinity.

14:1 standing (see 5:6; note on 12:18). • 144,000: God's righteous remnant (see note on 7:4-8). • The brand on their foreheads (contrast 13:16-17) is the name of both the Lamb and his Father, reflecting the union of Jesus and the Father (see John 5:20-23; 14:5-10; 17:22).

14:2-3 This great choir sang a . . . new song that only those who had been redeemed from the earth could learn. These people had died and were already with the Lord, which might explain why John did not include the content of their refrain for readers still in the battle of life (cp. 2 Cor 12:4).

14:4-5 These warriors were ritually pure (unpolluted) and morally without blame. • They have kept themselves as pure as virgins (literally They are virgins who have not defiled themselves with women): Referring to men as virgins is a metaphor for the faithfulness of God's people. The image might refer to the church as the virgin bride of Christ (see 2 Cor 11:2; Eph 5:25-27); it also suggests that the church constitutes soldiers in a holy war that are required to keep themselves chaste (see Deut 23:9-10; 1 Sam 21:5). • These faithful people are a special offering (literally firstfruits; see Exod 13:14-16; 23:19; Lev 23:9-14; Num 3:40-51; 18:15-20; Luke 2:22-24) who have been purchased for God. • They have told no lies: John teaches that liars will never enter heaven (21:8, 27; 22:15; see also John 8:44). The followers of Jesus speak and live the truth (see also John 8:32; 14:6).

14:6-13 Three angels are flying through the sky with messages from God.

14:6-7 The first angel proclaims the eternal Good News, which includes the message that God will sit as judge—the end is near, so this message provides a last-chance summons to repentance.

14:8 Babylon is probably a cryptic designation for Rome (see 16:19; 17:5-9); it represents earthly power and corruption. The coming of God as judge (14:7) includes the end of earthly powers.

14:9-11 The third angel announces God's judgment (14:7) on the counterfeited worship of the beast and his statue (see 13:12-18; 19:20; 20:4). God's response to the rebellion against his reign is anger or wrath, pictured as a cup of bitter wine (see 16:1-21; 19:15). • fire and burning sulfur . . . smoke: This description of judgment (see also 19:20; 20:10, 14-15) echoes God's judgment of Sodom and Gomorrah (Gen 18:16-19:28). • Those condemned to a fiery end will suffer in the presence of the holy angels and the Lamb (cp. Luke 16:22-24).

14:12 The threat of persecution and death was very real to the Christians first reading this letter, so John calls God's people to obedience and faithfulness (see 2:10; 3:10; 12:17; 13:10).

14:13 A dramatic voice from heaven once again instructs John to write (see 1:11, 19; 21:5; cp. 10:4). • Blessed are those who die in the Lord: God desires that those who endure persecution be with him and enjoy his blessings and rest. • The mention of hard work and good deeds in connection with eternal reward foreshadows the assigning of rewards based on works (20:12).

in the Lord from now on. Yes, says the Spirit, they are blessed indeed, for they will rest from their hard work; for their good deeds follow them!"

The Harvest of the Earth

¹⁴Then I saw a white cloud, and seated on the cloud was someone like the Son of Man. He had a gold crown on his head and a sharp sickle in his hand.

¹⁵Then another angel came from the Temple and shouted to the one sitting on the cloud, "Swing the sickle, for the time of harvest has come; the crop on earth is ripe."

¹⁶So the one sitting on the cloud swung his sickle over the earth, and the whole earth was harvested.

¹⁷After that, another angel came from the Temple in heaven, and he also had a sharp sickle. ¹⁸Then another angel, who had power to destroy with fire, came from the altar. He shouted to the angel with the sharp sickle, "Swing your sickle now to gather the clusters of grapes from the vines of the earth, for they are ripe for judgment." ¹⁹So the angel swung his sickle over the earth and loaded the grapes into the great winepress of God's wrath. ²⁰The grapes were trampled in the winepress outside the city, and blood flowed from the winepress in a stream about 180 miles long and as high as a horse's bridle.

8. ACT III: SEVEN BOWLS OF JUDGMENT (15:1–16:21)

The Song of Moses and of the Lamb (15:1-4)

15 Then I saw in heaven another marvelous event of great significance. Seven angels were holding the seven last plagues, which would bring God's wrath to completion. ²¹I saw before me what seemed to be a glass sea mixed with fire. And on it stood all the people who had been victorious over the beast and his statue and the number representing his name. They were all holding harps that God had given them. ³And they were singing the song of Moses, the servant of God, and the song of the Lamb:

"Great and marvelous are your works,

O Lord God, the 'Almighty.

Just and true are your ways,

O King of the nations.

⁴ Who will not fear you, Lord, and glorify your name?

For you alone are holy.

All nations will come and worship before you, for your righteous deeds have been revealed."

The Open Temple and the Seven Angels (15:5-8)

⁵Then I looked and saw that the Temple in heaven, God's Tabernacle, was thrown wide 14:14-20 Two brief scenes portray God's judgment.

14:14 like the Son of Man (or like a son of man; see Dan 7:13): "Son of Man" is a title Jesus used for himself (see Matt 8:20; 9:6; 12:8; Mark 2:10; 9:31; Luke 9:22; 22:69; John 3:13-14). • A gold crown is a symbol of status or power, clearly distinguishing Jesus from the angels (see 4:4; 6:2; 9:7; 12:3; 13:1). • The sharp sickle is symbolic of God's harvest of judgment (see 14:17-18; see also Jer 51:33; Hos 6:11; Mic 4:12-13).

14:15-18 The Temple and the altar represent God's presence (see 9:13; 11:19; 16:7).

14:18-20 The ripe . . . grapes (see Amos 8:2) that are trampled in the winepress emphasize God's power to judge (see 19:15; Joel 3:13). • Winepresses were built outside cities and towns; here, the city is Jerusalem. The bloody river of death stretched about 180 miles (Greek 1,600 stadia [300 kilometers]): God's enemies stand no chance when the Son of Man comes in judgment. The carnage here is closely linked with the final battle in 19:17-21; God is just and fair in giving people exactly what they deserve (see 16:5-7).

15:1-16:21 The third and final cycle of seven judgments (see note on 6:1-16:21) is introduced with a vision of God's victorious people singing a hymn of praise (15:2-4). Then a scene of the Temple is presented (15:5-8), from which angels emerge bearing the bowls of God's judgment upon the earth (16:1-21).

15:1 This cycle of seven last plagues (15:1-16:21) brings God's wrath against his enemies to completion (see 16:17; Amos 1-2; Rom 1:18-2:16). Revelation returns later to the subjects of God's wrath (19:15-21).

15:2 The glass sea mixed with fire symbolizes victory through testing. Those who had been victorious over the beast (see 13:1-8, 15-18) hold harps that represent ultimate peace. Their place on the glass sea (cp. 4:6) symbolizes their endurance in the fire of persecution (cp. Ps 66:12; Isa 43:2; Dan 3:8-30).

15:3-4 The song of Moses and the Lamb signifies that God's will is united in the old and new covenants.

15:3 The Lord God, the Almighty (see also 1:8; 4:8; 11:17; 16:7; 19:6; 21:22): For persecuted Christians, the message that God is all-powerful provides great comfort and security. • The truth that God is also just and true is the foundation of human integrity in the midst of a confused, unjust, and dishonest world. • God is the supreme, universal King of the nations (some manuscripts read King of the ages), not a localized deity attached to one nation or to a human monarch with limited authority.

15:4 Who will not fear . . . and glorify your name? This rhetorical question (cp. Jer 10:7) assumes that only a fool would fail to do so (cp. 14:7; 16:9; see Ps 14:1; 53:1). • God alone is holy: See 16:5; Lev 11:44; 1 Pet 1:16. God's holiness is the basis for our worship and salvation. • All nations will . . . worship: Some will be forced to acknowledge God (cp. Phil 2:10-11), but all will recognize that God's deeds and judgments have been revealed and are righteous and just.

15:5-6 God's Tabernacle implies God's presence (see John 1:14); even the plagues have their source in God's presence. Christ's sacrifice (Matt 27:51; Mark 15:38; Heb 6:19-20; 10:19-20) removed the veil between God and humanity (see Exod 26:31-35; Lev 16:1-34). Now those who do not belong to Christ experience the full force of God's presence (see 20:11-15; Isa 13:4-12; Zeph 2:1-3; Mal 3:2-3). • white linen (other manuscripts read white stone; still others read white [garments] made of linen): Linen, a symbol of purity, was also worn by the priests when performing their open. ⁶The seven angels who were holding the seven plagues came out of the Temple. They were clothed in spotless white linen with gold sashes across their chests. ⁷Then one of the four living beings handed each of the seven angels a gold bowl filled with the wrath of God, who lives forever and ever. ⁸The Temple was filled with smoke from God's glory and power. No one could enter the Temple until the seven angels had completed pouring out the seven plagues.

The Seven Bowls of the Seven Plagues
(16:1-21)

The First Bowl: Malignant Sores

16 Then I heard a mighty voice from the Temple say to the seven angels, "Go your ways and pour out on the earth the seven bowls containing God's wrath."

²So the first angel left the Temple and poured out his bowl on the earth, and horrible, malignant sores broke out on everyone who had the mark of the beast and who worshiped his statue.

The Second and Third Bowls: Waters Turned to Blood

³Then the second angel poured out his bowl on the sea, and it became like the blood of a corpse. And everything in the sea died.

⁴Then the third angel poured out his bowl on the rivers and springs, and they became blood. ⁵And I heard the angel who had authority over all water saying,

"You are just, O Holy One, who is and who always was, because you have sent these judgments.

⁶Since they shed the blood of your holy people and your prophets, you have given them blood to drink.
It is their just reward."

⁷And I heard a voice from the altar, saying,

"Yes, O Lord God, the ⁸Almighty, your judgments are true and just."

The Fourth and Fifth Bowls: Scorching Sun and Smothering Darkness

⁸Then the fourth angel poured out his bowl on the sun, causing it to scorch everyone with its fire. ⁹Everyone was burned by this blast of heat, and they cursed the name of God, who had control over all these plagues. They did not repent of their sins and turn to God and give him glory.

¹⁰Then the fifth angel poured out his bowl on the throne of the beast, and his kingdom was plunged into darkness. His subjects ground their teeth in anguish, ¹¹and they cursed the God of ¹²heaven for their pains and sores. But they did not repent of their evil deeds and turn to God.

duties (see Exod 28:39-43; Lev 16:4, 23; see also Ezek 9:2-3; Dan 12:6-7). The function of these angels is not intercession; they are agents of judgment. The linen therefore represents the purity and justice of God's judgment. • The gold sashes across their chests probably symbolize their divine mission as ministers of justice on God's behalf (cp. 1:13).

15:7 the four living beings: See 4:6-8. • a gold bowl: These bowls are probably like the offering pans that were used in ancient worship (see Exod 37:16).

15:8 The Temple was filled with smoke as a symbol of God's glory and power (Isa 6:4; see Exod 19:16-18; 40:34-35; 1 Kgs 8:10-13).

16:1-21 These seven bowls filled with God's wrath represent the final judgments on the world; with the seventh bowl, "It is finished!" is shouted from God's throne (16:17; cp. John 19:30).

16:1 The mighty voice probably belongs to God (also in 6:6; 9:13; 16:17; 18:4; 19:5; see Isa 66:6).

16:2 The malignant sores are reminiscent of the sixth plague of Egypt (Exod 9:9-11). • mark of the beast: See 13:13-17; 14:9-10.

16:3-4 The plagues of the second and third bowls are similar to the first plague of Egypt (Exod 7:17-21). Perhaps John had in mind that much of Rome's food and wealth came by sea. After Julius Caesar rid the sea of pirates, shipping became Rome's lifeblood. Its end would mean economic death for the empire (see 18:17-19).

16:5-6 the angel who had authority over all water: Angels and archangels are portrayed as having special roles in the hierarchy of heaven (see Dan 8:16; 9:21; 10:13, 21; 12:1; Luke 1:19, 26; see also 1 Enoch 66:1-2). This angel confirms these judgments as coming from God, who is both just and holy.

16:6 Punishment of God's enemies is a just reward because they killed God's holy people and prophets. Because they have shed . . . blood, they must drink . . . blood. The principle of lex talionis (the law of retribution), the basis of Roman and Jewish jurisprudence, means that God is completely just in judging and rewarding people on the basis of what they have done (see 2:23; 11:18; 14:13; 18:6; 20:12, 13; 22:12).

16:7 I heard a voice from the altar (literally I heard the altar): The antiphonal response to the angel's proclamation (16:5-6) affirms God's authority and justice. This doxology in the midst of judgment reminds persecuted Christians that God truly cares about his suffering servants and fulfills his own purpose in everything.

16:8-9 The fourth . . . bowl is unlike any of the plagues of Egypt or the earlier seals or trumpets. • Everyone was burned: Contrast 7:16. Yet the recipients of this judgment refused to repent or give God glory (see 9:20-21; 16:11; cp. 14:6-7); they even cursed the name of God.

16:10-11 the throne of the beast: John might be alluding to Rome, the political power of his time. Built on seven hills (17:9), Rome's empire spanned the sea (13:1) and ruled the world (13:7). • plunged into darkness: Similar to the ninth plague of Egypt (Exod 10:22) and to the fourth trumpet (8:12). • ground their teeth [literally gnawed their tongues] . . . cursed the God of heaven: Both pain and hostility motivated these responses to punishment (cp. Matt 8:12; 13:42, 50; 22:13; 24:51; 25:30; Luke 13:28).

The Sixth Bowl: Deceitful Spirits and Armageddon

¹²Then the sixth angel poured out his bowl on the great Euphrates River, and it dried up so that the kings from the east could march their armies toward the west without hindrance. ¹³And I saw three evil spirits that looked like frogs leap from the mouths of the dragon, the beast, and the false prophet. ¹⁴They are 'demonic spirits who work miracles and go out to all the rulers of the world to gather them for battle against the Lord on that great judgment day of God the ¹Almighty.

¹⁵"Look, I will come as unexpectedly as a thief! Blessed are all who are watching for me, who keep their clothing ready so they will not have to walk around naked and ashamed."

¹⁶And the demonic spirits gathered all the rulers and their armies to a place with the Hebrew name Armageddon.

The Seventh Bowl: God's Judgment

¹⁷Then the seventh angel poured out his bowl into the air. And a mighty shout came from the throne in the Temple, saying, "It is finished!" ¹⁸Then the thunder crashed and rolled, and lightning flashed. And a great earthquake struck—the worst since people were placed on the earth. ¹⁹The great city of Babylon split into three sections, and the cities of many nations fell into heaps of rubble. So God remembered all of Babylon's sins, and he made her drink the cup that was filled with the wine of his fierce ^kwrath. ²⁰And every island disappeared, and all the mountains were leveled. ²¹There was a terrible hailstorm, and hailstones weighing as much as seventy-five pounds fell from the sky onto the people below. They cursed God because of the terrible plague of the hailstorm.

9. BABYLON THE GREAT (17:1–19:10) The Great Prostitute (17:1-18)

17 One of the seven angels who had poured out the seven bowls came over and spoke to me. "Come with me," he said, "and I will show you the judgment that is going to come on the great prostitute, who rules over many waters. ²The kings of the world have committed adultery with her, and the people who belong to this world have been made drunk by the wine of her immorality."

16:12 The Euphrates, the largest river in Mesopotamia, stood between Babylon and Israel and formed the eastern boundary of the Roman empire. If it dried up, it would allow kings from the east to move their armies westward (cp. 9:13-16). From John's perspective as an ancient Jewish writer, these armies would always be identified with Mesopotamia rather than with countries farther east such as China or India.

16:13-14 Three agents of deceit, evil (literally unclean) spirits in the form of frogs, represent the demonic role of the evil trinity. Although the powers of evil battle against the Lord, it is God the Almighty, not any evil power, who is in control.

16:15 Readers are warned to look because the Lord will come as unexpectedly as a thief (see also 3:3; Matt 24:43; 25:13; 1 Thes 5:2; 2 Pet 3:10). Being ready for his coming requires preparation: those who are not prepared will not have the proper clothing and will find themselves naked (see Matt 22:11-13). This imagery recalls the two failing churches: lifeless Sardis, which is told to "wake up" (3:2), and lukewarm Laodicea, which is advised to obtain proper clothing (3:18).

16:16 The name Armageddon (or Harmagedon) is probably derived from har ("mountain," "hill") plus Megiddo, which was one of the three cities fortified by Solomon along with Gezer in the south and Hazor in the north (1 Kgs 9:15). The fortress of Megiddo stood on a hill in the largest pass through the Carmel range, strategically guarding the Jezreel Valley. The city was situated on the Via Maris, the main highway between Egypt and Mesopotamia. Many armies used this route, and the site became known as a bloody battlefield. It was here, for instance, that Pharaoh Neco, on his way to fight the Assyrians, killed Josiah (2 Kgs 23:29). Armageddon thus became a symbolic term epitomizing the final conflict between God and the forces of evil.

16:17 When the seventh . . . bowl is poured out, an unexpected event occurs. The enemies of God had assembled themselves for battle, but when the decisive moment arrives, instead of the battle comes the shout, "It is finished!" Jesus uttered these same words from the cross when he had finished his work (John 19:30). No one can ultimately fight God. Therefore, this scene pictures an end to rebellion against God. What remains are various descriptions of the end.

16:18-20 The catastrophic events of this judgment scene recapitulate the scenes portraying the destruction of the world (6:12-14; 11:13). They also foreshadow the final judgment (20:11-15) when the earth will be dismantled to make way for the new creation (21:1; cp. Isa 45:2; Rom 8:19-22).

16:21 Despite the severity of these plagues, the people of the world again cursed God rather than recognizing his reason for the judgments (see 9:20; 16:9, 11). • The terrible hailstorm is a reminder of the seventh plague on Egypt (Exod 9:23-24). • seventy-five pounds: Greek 1 talent [34 kilograms].

17:1–19:10 The great drama in this section focuses on the powers that are hostile to God and responsible for the persecution and suffering of God's people. Rome's power was captivating to many (17:6); John purposely defines Rome's sins and provides God's assessment (17:3-18) before outlining its fall (18:1-24) and heaven's response (19:1-10).

17:1 One of the . . . angels of judgment addresses John and summons him to a new scene in which he sees the coming judgment of the great prostitute, who rules over many waters. Rome, located on the Tiber River, controlled the seats of power and water trade routes throughout the Mediterranean, from the British Isles to the Euphrates River.

17:2 Adultery with her is a biblical image for serving other gods (see, e.g., Exod 34:12-16; Judg 2:17; Hos 2). • drunk by . . . her immorality: Drunkenness in Scripture often depicts nations that indulge in wanton and immoral behavior (see 18:3, 9; Jer 25:27; 51:7; Lam 4:21; Ezek 23:33).

³So the angel took me in the Spirit into the wilderness. There I saw a woman sitting on a scarlet beast that had seven heads and ten horns, and blasphemies against God were written all over it. ⁴The woman wore purple and scarlet clothing and beautiful jewelry made of gold and precious gems and pearls. In her hand she held a gold goblet full of obscenities and the impurities of her immorality. ⁵A mysterious name was written on her forehead: "Babylon the Great, Mother of All Prostitutes and Obscenities in the World." ⁶I could see that she was drunk—drunk with the blood of God's holy people who were witnesses for Jesus. I stared at her in complete amazement.

⁷"Why are you so amazed?" the angel asked. "I will tell you the mystery of this woman and of the beast with seven heads and ten horns on which she sits. ⁸The beast you saw was once alive but isn't now. And yet he will soon come up out of the bottomless pit and go to eternal destruction. And the people who belong to this world, whose names were not written in the ⁹Book of Life before the world was made, will be amazed at the reappearance of this beast who had died.

⁹"This calls for a mind with understanding: The seven heads of the beast represent the seven hills where the woman rules. They also represent seven kings. ¹⁰Five kings have already fallen, the sixth now reigns, and the seventh is yet to come, but his reign will be brief.

¹¹"The scarlet beast that was, but is no longer, is the eighth king. He is like the other seven, and he, too, is headed for destruction.

¹²The ten horns of the beast are ten kings who have not yet risen to power. They will be appointed to their kingdoms for one brief moment to reign with the beast.

¹³They will all agree to give him their power and authority. ¹⁴Together they will go to war against the Lamb, but the Lamb will defeat them because he is Lord of all lords and King of all kings. And his called and chosen and faithful ones will be with him."

¹⁵Then the angel said to me, "The waters where the prostitute is ruling represent masses of people of every nation and language. ¹⁶The scarlet beast and his ten horns all hate the prostitute. They will strip her naked, eat her flesh, and burn her remains with fire. ¹⁷For God has put a plan into their minds, a plan that will carry out his

17:3-4 John is carried in the Spirit (or in spirit) into the wilderness, his way of describing a visionary experience (see 1:10; 4:2). He sees a depiction of Rome's moral corruption and excessive luxury (see 18:12-13, 16) that illustrates how such wealth can become an abomination to God. • The beast here is like the second figure in the evil trinity (see 13:1-4). • blasphemies against God: See 13:5-6. • purple and scarlet: Clothing in these two colors indicated royalty and carnality, respectively. • a gold goblet: See Jer 51:7.

17:5 Using code language, John was probably referring to Rome (see 17:9) as Babylon the Great, Mother of All Prostitutes. Babylon was a symbol of the idolatries and demonic obscenities of the world. As Mother, she had produced offspring who copied her character. Rome, like Babylon, prostituted herself to false gods and led other nations into adultery and idolatry.

17:6 God's holy people . . . were witnesses for Jesus to the point of shedding their blood (see 16:6; Heb 12:4). In John's time, Rome was responsible for this persecution.

17:7 In response to John's amazement, the angel prepares him to understand the mystery (17:8-14).

17:8-11 The destruction within this vision contrasts with the destiny of the people of God in the new heaven and earth (see 21:1-4).

17:8 The beast . . . was once alive but isn't now . . . will soon come up: When Domitian became emperor (AD 81–96), he was as evil as Nero (both were fierce persecutors of the church), and many thought he was the embodiment of Nero's spirit, if not Nero himself (perhaps similar to the way that John the Baptist was considered to embody Elijah's spirit; see Mal 4:5; Matt 11:14; Luke 1:17; John 1:21). • you saw: The past tense indicates that the angel's interpretation took place after John's vision. • was once alive but isn't now: This contrasts with God, "who is, who always was, and who is still to come" (1:4, 8). • the bottomless pit (or the abyss, or the underworld): See note on 9:1-12. • In contrast to God's people, the people of this world are not written in the Book of Life (see 20:11-15). They will be amazed by the apparent resurrection of the beast (see note on 17:10-11; see also 13:13-17).

17:9 The seven heads of the beast represent the seven hills on which Rome was built (see note on 16:10-11). • the woman: see 17:3-6.

17:10-11 five kings have already fallen: If these kings represent Roman emperors, and the starting point for numbering them is the switch from a republic to an empire with Augustus (29 BC—AD 14), then the fifth in line would be Nero (AD 54–68), the sixth would be Vespasian, and the seventh would be Titus. The eighth king would then be Domitian. • that was, but is no longer: Early commentators argued that Domitian was an embodiment of Nero's spirit (see note on 17:8). • like the other seven: This apparently invincible ruler was also headed for destruction.

17:12-13 The ten horns, symbolic of the world kingdoms that follow the beast, rule simultaneously under his direction. While these verses have caused speculation concerning a ten-nation confederacy (from the client kingdoms of Rome, to the states opposed to the Holy Roman empire, to the European Union), these conjectures are beside the point, which is that all nations opposed to God will be defeated (17:14).

17:14 Whatever power they amass, the beast and ten kings (17:11-12) have no hope of winning because Jesus is Lord of all lords (see 19:11-16). Those God has called and chosen and who remain faithful to him will stand with him as victors.

17:15-16 While the prostitute rules over the masses, it does not bring her victory. Instead, the beast hates and kills the great prostitute. Satan strikes even those he uses for his evil purposes.

17:17 John provides another reminder that God is in control; God puts a plan into the minds of the enemy that will fulfill the Lord's divine purposes (e.g., Exod 7:3; 35:31-35; Ezra 7:27; Rom 9:18, 21).

purposes. They will agree to give their authority to the scarlet beast, and so the words of God will be fulfilled. ¹⁸And this woman you saw in your vision represents the great city that rules over the kings of the world."

Seven Songs: The Fall of Babylon (18:1-24)
Song 1: A Taunt Song

18 After all this I saw another angel come down from heaven with great authority, and the earth grew bright with his splendor. ²He gave a mighty shout:

"Babylon is fallen—that great city is fallen!
She has become a home for demons.

She is a hideout for every foul spirit, a hideout for every foul vulture and every foul and dreadful animal.

³For all the nations have fallen because of the wine of her passionate immorality.

The kings of the world have committed adultery with her.
Because of her desires for extravagant luxury, the merchants of the world have grown rich."

Song 2: A Call to Flee

⁴Then I heard another voice calling from heaven,

"Come away from her, my people.
Do not take part in her sins, or you will be punished with her.

⁵For her sins are piled as high as heaven, and God remembers her evil deeds.

⁶Do to her as she has done to others.
Double her penalty for all her evil deeds.

She brewed a cup of terror for others, so brew twice as much for her.

⁷She glorified herself and lived in luxury, so match it now with torment and sorrow.

She boasted in her heart,
'I am queen on my throne.

I am no helpless widow, and I have no reason to mourn.'

⁸Therefore, these plagues will overtake her in a single day—death and mourning and famine.
She will be completely consumed by fire, for the Lord God who judges her is mighty."

Songs 3–5: Three Laments

⁹And the kings of the world who committed adultery with her and enjoyed her great luxury will mourn for her as they see the smoke rising from her charred remains.

¹⁰They will stand at a distance, terrified by her great torment. They will cry out,

"How terrible, how terrible for you,
O Babylon, you great city!
In a single moment
God's judgment came on you."

▲ Roman Emperors, 27 BC—AD 96 (17:10-11).

18:1-24 This chapter contains seven poetic responses to the fall of Babylon (or Rome; see note on 17:5).

18:1-3 The angel's powerful taunt song is the first poetic response. Ancient taunt songs derided a defeated enemy (see Isa 13:19-22; 34:10-17). In these taunts, the fall of Babylon (or Rome; see note on 14:8) is portrayed as a traumatic event for subservient kingdoms and especially for those who had profited from her luxury. The sacking of Rome by the Goths and Visigoths (AD 400s) brought the prosperous empire to an end.

18:1 This angel derived his splendor from heaven. The word splendor is normally used for the divine presence.

18:2 Babylon is fallen: See Isa 21:9. Once a beautifully dressed woman (see 17:4), Babylon (Rome) became a desolate den for demons and unclean birds such as vultures (cp. Isa 13:20-22; Jer 4:23-31; 50:39). • foul: Literally unclean.

• Some manuscripts condense the last two lines to read a hideout for every foul [unclean] and dreadful vulture.

18:3 have fallen: Some manuscripts read have drunk. • committed adultery with her: See note on 17:2. • extravagant luxury: Rome plundered conquered nations of their wealth before God's justice fell on her.

18:4-8 This second poetic response (see note on 18:1-24) is a warning from heaven to flee the doomed city.

18:4 Do not take part in her sins: Association with the evil city could lead to being identified with it in punishment and even involved with it in its sins (see Gen 13:8-13; 19:1-29; cp. Jer 51:6, 45).

18:5 God remembers: His response may seem slow (Ps 103:8; 145:8; Joel 2:13; Jon 4:2), but God is not weak, and he does not forget either good or evil (16:19; Gen 19:29; 1 Sam 1:19).

18:6 Double her penalty (or Give her an equal penalty): The severity of some sins required a double recompense (see Exod 22:4, 7, 9; cp. Isa 40:2; Jer 16:18; 17:18). • brew twice as much: Or brew just as much.

18:7 I am queen: Cp. Ezek 28:1-2.

18:8 The plagues (18:2-3) are a reminder that destruction was not merely a human action; it is the Lord God who judges her. He is mighty, able to accomplish what he promises.

18:9-19 These three laments highlight the grief of those who profited most from the wicked city's rich lifestyle (cp. Ezek 27).

18:9-10 The kings of the world lament as they mourn the loss of the luxury they had obtained from alliance with the wicked city.

18:10 With a terrified sense of separation and abandonment (see 18:15, 17), the kings stand at a distance in a futile attempt to avoid punishment.

¹¹The merchants of the world will weep and mourn for her, for there is no one left to buy their goods. ¹²She bought great quantities of gold, silver, jewels, and pearls; fine linen, purple, silk, and scarlet cloth; things made of fragrant thyme wood, ivory goods, and objects made of expensive wood; and bronze, iron, and marble. ¹³She also bought cinnamon, spice, incense, myrrh, frankincense, wine, olive oil, fine flour, wheat, cattle, sheep, horses, wagons, and bodies—that is, human slaves.

¹⁴"The fancy things you loved so much are gone," they cry.
"All your luxuries and splendor are gone forever, never to be yours again."

¹⁵The merchants who became wealthy by selling her these things will stand at a distance, terrified by her great torment. They will weep and cry out, ¹⁶"How terrible, how terrible for that great city!

She was clothed in finest purple and scarlet linens, decked out with gold and precious stones and pearls!

¹⁷In a single moment all the wealth of the city is gone!"

And all the captains of the merchant ships and their passengers and sailors and crews will stand at a distance. ¹⁸They will cry out as they watch the smoke ascend, and they will say, "Where is there another city as great as this?" ¹⁹And they will weep and throw dust on their heads to show their grief. And they will cry out,

"How terrible, how terrible for that great city!

The shipowners became wealthy by transporting her great wealth on the seas.

In a single moment it is all gone."

Song 6: A Summons to Rejoice

²⁰Rejoice over her fate, O heaven and people of God and apostles and prophets!

For at last God has judged her for your sakes.

Song 7: Babylon's Destruction

²¹Then a mighty angel picked up a boulder the size of a huge millstone. He threw it into the ocean and shouted,

"Just like this, the great city Babylon will be thrown down with violence and will never be found again.

²²The sound of harps, singers, flutes, and trumpets will never be heard in you again.

No craftsmen and no trades will ever be found in you again.

The sound of the mill

will never be heard in you again.

²³The light of a lamp will never shine in you again.

The happy voices of brides and grooms will never be heard in you again.

For your merchants were the greatest in the world, and you deceived the nations with your sorceries.

²⁴In your streets flowed the blood of the prophets and of God's holy people and the blood of people slaughtered all over the world."

18:11-17a The merchants of the world sing the second lament (18:14; see note on 18:9-19). They profited from the Roman economy (18:12-13), but their trade ceased as the great city was swiftly destroyed.

18:12-13 This cargo list suggests the extent of the wealth Rome pillaged from the rest of its empire (cp. Ezek 27:12-24). Some of the most expensive products in the ancient world are mentioned in this indictment of ostentatious materialism and pride.

18:13 bodies: Rome developed a huge slave market, which some historians have estimated at nearly 20% of the population.

18:14-17a The merchants would lament the fall of Rome (see note on 18:1-3) because it would forever end their accustomed luxuries. Material goods can be swept aside in a single moment.

18:17b-19 all the captains: Seafarers sing the third lament (see note on 18:9-19). Their mourning focuses on the breakdown of communication and transportation. During the reign of Julius Caesar, the Mediterranean was cleared of pirates and trade blossomed under the region's Roman law enforcement. The swift loss of Roman authority would upset the system of trade.

18:20 The laments (18:9-19) stimulate a call for heaven to rejoice. The people of God are not to grieve, because the judgment was for their sakes; they had suffered persecution from the evil forces represented by the great city.

18:21-24 The songs responding to Babylon's fall (18:1-24) conclude with a portrayal of the city's doom.

18:21 a boulder the size of a huge millstone: Heavy millstones, shaped for grinding olives or grain, were used throughout the ancient world. Jesus also spoke of using such stones in judgment (see Matt 18:6). The dramatically thrown boulder signified that the power of Rome was forever thrown down.

18:23 Cp. Jer 25:10-11.

18:24 your streets: Literally her streets.

"Praise the LORD!
Salvation and glory and power belong to our God.

² His judgments are true and just.
He has punished the great prostitute who corrupted the earth with her immorality.
He has avenged the murder of his servants."

³ And again their voices rang out:

"Praise the LORD!
The smoke from that city ascends forever and ever!"

⁴ Then the twenty-four elders and the four living beings fell down and worshiped God, who was sitting on the throne. They cried out, "Amen! Praise the LORD!"

⁵ And from the throne came a voice that said,

"Praise our God,
all his servants,
all who fear him,
from the least to the greatest."

⁶ Then I heard again what sounded like the shout of a vast crowd or the roar of mighty ocean waves or the crash of loud thunder:

"Praise the LORD!
For the Lord our God, the ^bAlmighty, reigns.

⁷ Let us be glad and rejoice, and let us give honor to him.
For the time has come for the wedding feast of the Lamb, and his bride has prepared herself.
⁸ She has been given the finest of pure white linen to wear."
For the fine linen represents the good deeds of God's holy people.

John and the Angel, Servants of God

⁹ And the angel said to me, "Write this:
Blessed are those who are invited to the wedding feast of the Lamb." And he added,
"These are true words that come from God."

¹⁰ Then I fell down at his feet to worship him, but he said, "No, don't worship me. I am a servant of God, just like you and your brothers and sisters who testify about their faith in Jesus. Worship only God. For the essence of prophecy is to give a clear witness for Jesus."

10. TRIUMPH AND JUDGMENT

(19:11–20:15)

The Rider on the White Horse

¹¹ Then I saw heaven opened, and a white horse was standing there. Its rider was named Faithful and True, for he judges fairly and wages a righteous war. ¹² His eyes were like flames of fire, and on his head were many crowns. A name was written on him that no one understood except himself.

(18:20; see note on 18:1-24), which called for rejoicing. Various groups direct praises to the Lord. The praises can be divided into two sections:
thankfulness for the destruction of the evildoers (19:1-4) and thankfulness for the reward of God's people (19:5-8).

19:1-2 This scene focuses on what John heard rather than on what he saw. The first three-part praise comes from a vast crowd (cp. 7:9-10).

19:1 Praise the LORD: Literally Hallelujah; also in 19:3, 4, 6. Hallelujah is the transliteration of a Hebrew term that means "Praise the LORD."

19:2 true and just (see 15:3; 16:7):
In his righteous justice, God kept his promise of judging the great prostitute, who represents moral and spiritual corruption and persecution of God's people.

19:3 The smoke from that city: God's people praise him once again as they see the evil city's demise (cp. 14:11).

19:4 In response to the first two praises
(19:1-3), the elders and the living beings
(see ch 4) again prostrate themselves before the enthroned God (see 4:10; 5:8; 14; 7:11). • Amen! See note on 5:14.

19:6-8 The focus of the final thunderous Praise the LORD! is that God reigns as the Almighty in complete supremacy (see 1:8; 4:8; 11:17; 15:3; 16:7, 14; 19:15; 21:22).

19:6 the Lord our God: Some manuscripts read the Lord God.

19:7 the wedding feast of the Lamb: This event—the wedding of the Messiah with his bride, the church (see Isa 54:5; 61:10;
Jer 31:32; Ezek 16:7-14; Hos 2:16-20; Mark 2:19-20; 2 Cor 11:2)—symbolizes complete victory and eternal fellowship.

19:8 finest . . . linen: See note on 15:5-6.
• the good deeds of God's holy people:
See Eph 2:8-10; 2 Tim 3:16-17; Jas
2:18-22.

19:9 Blessed are those: This fourth blessing in Revelation (see 1:3; 14:13; 16:15) affirms the hope of the faithful.
• who are invited: God is in control and determines who will participate. • wedding feast (cp. 19:17): Jesus often used meals to explain the Kingdom (Matt 22:1-13; Luke 14:7-24) and he ordained a meal for the church (Mark 14:22-25; 1 Cor 11:23-26). • These are true words:
This oath asserts the reliability of the message.

19:10 The angel issues a stern warning against misdirected worship (cp.
22:8-9). • brothers and sisters: Literally brothers; see note on 6:11. • is to give a clear witness for Jesus: Or is the message confirmed by Jesus.

19:11–20:15 The drama moves into its climactic scenes: God's enemies are defeated and punished in two episodes (19:11-21; 20:7-10). Meanwhile, the faithful experience a 1,000-year resurrection (20:1-6) followed by the final judgment (20:11-15).

19:11-16 Then I saw: John describes a new vision of Jesus Christ as the holy warrior and conquering King (see 14:1; see also Exod 15:1-7; Ps 24:8; 78:49-50; Isa 59:16-17).

19:11 The rider is both a judge and a righteous warrior (see Isa 11:1-5). He is named Faithful and True: He embodies God's authenticity and reliability (see 19:2; 21:5-6).

19:12 His eyes were like flames of fire:
See 1:14-16; Dan 10:6. • Christ, wearing many crowns, is contrasted with the dragon, whose seven heads were each crowned (see 12:3).

¹³He wore a robe dipped in blood, and his title was the ^cWord of God. ¹⁴The armies of heaven, dressed in the finest of pure white linen, followed him on white horses. ¹⁵From his mouth came a sharp sword to strike down the nations. He will ^drule them with an iron rod. He will release the fierce ^ewrath of God, the ^fAlmighty, like juice flowing from a winepress. ¹⁶On his robe at his thigh was written this title: King of all kings and Lord of all lords.

¹⁷Then I saw an angel standing in the sun, shouting to the vultures flying high in the sky: "Come! Gather together for the great banquet God has prepared. ¹⁸Come and eat the flesh of kings, generals, and strong warriors; of horses and their riders; and of all humanity, both free and slave, small and great."

¹⁹Then I saw the beast and the kings of the world and their armies gathered together to fight against the one sitting on the horse and his army. ²⁰And the beast was captured, and with him the false prophet who did mighty miracles on behalf of the beast—miracles that deceived all who had accepted the mark of the beast and who worshiped his statue. Both the beast and his false prophet were thrown alive into the fiery lake of burning sulfur. ²¹Their entire army was killed by the sharp sword that came from the mouth of the one riding the white horse. And the vultures all gorged themselves on the dead bodies.

The Worship of Angels (19:10)

Acts 27:23-24
2 Cor 5:19-21
1 Tim 2:5-6
Heb 1:5-14; 7:24-25

Angels have a servant role and are not to be worshiped (19:10; see also Heb 1:5-14). But Jewish tradition had developed the concept of angels as mediators with God. In pre-Christian Judaism, God's transcendence or "otherness" was emphasized to such an extent that people felt the need for mediators to communicate with him. In this context, angels grew in importance.

For Christians, Christ has a unique role as mediator between God and humans. Interest in angels or deceased saints to communicate with God get in the way of honoring Christ alone as the mediator between God and human beings (1 Tim 2:5-6; see also 2 Cor 5:19-21; Heb 7:24-25). God still has angelic messengers, but they are creatures who serve him, not divine beings to be worshiped. Faithful saints of the past, including Mary, are human beings. They may be honored in our Christian memories but they have no claim to divinity, and they should never be worshiped. God alone is worthy of our prayers and our worship.

19:13 He wore a robe dipped in blood: This description may refer to (1) the blood of Christ's enemies, signifying his total victory (Isa 63:2-4); or (2) Christ's sacrificial death for humanity (1:7).

• The Word of God is John's distinctive designation for Jesus (see John 1:1, 14).

19:14 Christ's armies of heaven, dressed in victorious white and riding on white horses, contrast with the locust forces of the abyss (9:3-11), the three frog-like evil spirits (16:13), and the defeated armies at Armageddon (16:16; see also 19:19).

19:15 From his mouth . . . a sharp sword: See 1:16; Heb 4:12; see also Isa 49:2; 2 Thes 2:8. • The iron rod represents Christ's power as ruler and as supreme shepherd (see Ps 2:9; 23:4). • God, the Almighty: See 1:8; 4:8; 11:17; 16:7, 14; 21:22. • His fierce wrath will crush his enemies like grapes in a winepress (Isa 63:2-4).

19:16 On his robe at his thigh: Or On his robe and thigh. • King . . . and Lord: See 1:5; 15:3; 17:14.

19:17-19 Gather together for the great banquet: This feast upon the flesh of the armies gathered together to fight against Christ is contrasted with "the wedding feast of the Lamb" (19:7). The enemies that form for battle are quickly destroyed (19:20-21; see also 14:17-20; 16:16-21). Two feasts—the marriage supper of the Lamb (19:7-8) and the "great supper" of God's judgment (19:17-18, 21)—provide two perspectives on the end of time. They illustrate the two sides of the Good News: grace and judgment, reward and punishment (cp. John 3:16-18).

19:20 beast . . . false prophet: See 13:1-10. • The fiery lake of burning sulfur provides a picture of eternal punishment (see 20:10, 14-15; 21:8; see also Isa 66:24; Matt 13:41, 49-50; Mark 9:43, 48). • God's enemies are thrown into the fiery lake. The two beasts (19:20) are followed by the dragon (20:10) and then by death (20:14) and unsaved humans (20:15).

19:21 The entire army of enemies is dispatched by the sword from Christ's mouth (see 1:16; 2:12, 16; see also Isa 11:4; 49:2; 2 Thes 2:8). While one side of God's word (grace) leads to repentance, the other side (judgment) carries out the death sentence.

20:1-10 There are three parts to this passage: the binding of Satan (20:1-3), the reign of God's holy people (20:4-6), and the release of Satan for his final attempt at a battle (20:7-10). Four themes emerge: (1) Satan's war is futile—he cannot withstand even an angel; (2) God's holy people will be vindicated and glorified; (3) God will have the final victory; and (4) even when sinful and depraved human beings experience Christ's good purposes in the world, they still flock after Satan when he gains even a small amount of freedom to act.

20:1-2 Like the OT "angel of the LORD" (see Gen 16:7-11; 22:15; Exod 3:2; Num 22:22-34; Judg 2:1-4; 6:11-22), the angel coming down from heaven has God's authority, symbolized by the key that controls the bottomless pit (or the abyss, or the underworld; also in 20:3) and the power to put chains on God's great enemy (cp. 12:7-9) for a thousand years. in chains for a thousand years. ³The angel threw him into the bottomless pit, which he then shut and ¹locked so Satan could not deceive the nations anymore until the thousand years were finished. Afterward he must be released for a little while.

⁴Then I saw thrones, and the people sitting on them had been given the authority to judge. And I saw the souls of those who had been beheaded for their testimony about Jesus and for proclaiming the word of God. They had not worshiped the beast or his statue, nor accepted his mark on their foreheads or their hands. They all came to life again, and they reigned with Christ for a thousand years.

⁵This is the first resurrection. (The rest of the dead did not come back to life until the thousand years had ended.) ⁶Blessed and holy are those who share in the first resurrection. For them the second death holds no power, but they will be priests of God and of Christ and will reign with him a thousand years.

The Final Defeat of Satan

⁷When the thousand years come to an end, ⁸Satan will be let out of his prison. ⁹He will go out to deceive the nations—called Gog and Magog—in every corner of the earth. He will gather them together for battle—a mighty army, as numberless as sand along

The Thousand Years (The Millennium) (20:1-10)

Revelation 20 describes the 1,000-year reign of Christ on earth. Three perspectives regarding how the millennium relates to the coming of Christ have been held by Christian groups with an equally high regard for Scripture as God's inspired, authoritative word:

1. Premillennialism: Christ will return before the millennium to inaugurate a literal 1,000-year rule on earth with his holy people before the final judgment.

2. Amillennialism: 1,000 years is a metaphor representing the current age between Christ's first and second comings. Christ reigns spiritually with his people. At the end of this age, Christ will return, execute the final judgment, and inaugurate his eternal Kingdom.

3. Postmillennialism: The Good News will triumph on earth, and Christ will establish through the church an age of peace on earth. Then Christ will return and inaugurate his eternal Kingdom.

Differences over these perspectives have caused conflict among Christians. Many have forsaken Christian fellowship with those who hold a different opinion. True Christian humility and love (1 Pet 3:8), however, would never let such differences disrupt Christian fellowship.

All believers can agree with the overall message of Revelation: Christ will visibly return and rule in an actual new heaven and earth. A real spiritual warfare is taking place. Hell, like heaven, is real, and all people will be judged by God's standards. The prophecies of Revelation offer hope to God's people in the midst of pain, suffering, and confusion in the world.

20:3 This incarceration, portrayed as the bottomless pit, is a preliminary defeat for Satan and the powers of evil. Various NT passages describe the impact of Christ's work on Satan (Luke 10:17-20; Acts 10:38; 26:18; Rom 16:20; Eph 6:11; Jas 4:7; see Matt 12:24; 16:19; 18:18; John 12:31; 1 Jn 3:8). Christ's presence with his people binds evil powers (see 2 Thes 2:7), reminding persecuted Christians that there is a future with God. • so Satan could not deceive: Deception is the trademark of the devil, who is a liar (see John 8:44; 1 Jn 3:8); no liar will enter heaven (21:8, 27; 22:15). The faithful believers who experience Christ's reign will not be deceived. • The little while might be the equivalent of the symbolic three and a half years (see 11:2-3, 9-11; 12:14; 13:5)—it is a limited time.

20:4 thrones . . . people sitting on them: This portrayal of a heavenly tribunal includes the elders (4:4) on thrones (see Dan 7:9-10), the victorious martyrs

(see Dan 7:22), and all God's people. • beheaded for . . . Jesus: Beheading was a common form of execution for Roman citizens. • The faithful who resisted receiving the mark of the beast (13:16-17) will judge the condemned (see 1 Cor 6:2-3) on thrones similar to those of the worshiping elders (see 4:10-11; 5:8-10; 11:16).

20:5-6 John contrasts the first resurrection with the second death (see 20:12-15; cp. John 5:29).

20:6 Blessed: This fifth blessing of Revelation (see also 1:3; 14:13; 16:15; 19:9; 22:7, 14) focuses on the promised reward of life. God's faithful people (20:4) will reign with Christ as priests of God (see also 1:6; 5:10).

20:7-10 Satan's all-out attempt to conquer God's people is followed by his fiery demise. This passage has two major purposes: (1) to show God's absolute justice, because Satan and his followers are worthy of punishment and will never change; and (2) to show the depravity of people who follow Satan. In spite of viewing the nature of Christ's reign in the world for many years, they still flock to Satan's standard when he is freed. These factors are the basis for the judgment at the great white throne (20:11-15).

20:7-8 When free to act (20:7), Satan still seeks to deceive. He will gather a mighty army (cp. Ezek 38-39) in a final attempt to overwhelm God's people (20:9).

20:8 Jewish traditions vary regarding the locations of Gog and Magog. They are symbolically to the north (see Jer 1:14-15), the direction from which the enemies traditionally approached Megiddo and Jerusalem. The names represent nations and rulers from every corner of the earth that oppose God's people (see Ezek 38-39). • He will gather them together for battle: Repeating the earlier scenes in which God's enemies assemble for battle (16:16; 19:19), Satan here makes a last-ditch attempt to confront God and his forces.

the seashore. ⁹And I saw them as they went up on the broad plain of the earth and surrounded God's people and the beloved city. But fire from heaven came down on the attacking armies and consumed them.

¹⁰Then the ^adevil, who had deceived them, was thrown into the fiery lake of burning sulfur, joining the beast and the false prophet. There they will be tormented day and night forever and ever.

The Final Judgment

¹¹And I saw a great white throne and the one sitting on it. The earth and sky fled from his presence, but they found no place to hide. ¹²I saw the dead, both great and small, standing before God's throne. And the ^bbooks were opened, including the ^bBook of Life. And the dead were judged according to what they had done, as recorded in the ^bbooks. ¹³The sea gave up its dead, and death and the ^cgrave gave up their dead. And all were judged according to their deeds. ¹⁴Then death and the ^dgrave were thrown into the lake of fire. This lake of fire is the second death. ¹⁵And anyone whose name was not found recorded in the Book of Life was thrown into the lake of fire.

11. THE NEW JERUSALEM (21:1–22:5)

Introduction to the New Jerusalem

21 Then I saw a new ^aheaven and a new earth, for the old ^aheaven and the old earth had disappeared. And the sea was also gone. ²And I saw the holy city, the new Jerusalem, coming down from God out of heaven like a bride beautifully dressed for her husband.

³I heard a loud shout from the throne, saying, "Look, God's home is now among his people! He will live with them, and they will be his people. God himself will be with them. ⁴He will wipe every tear from their eyes, and there will be no more death or sorrow or crying or pain. All these things are gone forever."

⁵And the one sitting on the throne said, "Look, I am making everything new!" And then he said to me, "Write this down, for what I tell you is trustworthy and true."

⁶And he also said, "It is finished! I am the Alpha and the Omega—the Beginning and

20:9 Again, no battle occurs (see 16:16–21; 19:19–21), because fire from heaven came down . . . and consumed them as it did Sodom (Gen 19:24; see also 2 Kgs 1:10–12; Ezek 38:22–23; 39:6). The enemies of God cannot stand against him.

20:10 they will be tormented . . . forever: Rebellion against God has eternal consequences. While the concept of unending punishment repulses some, it is the message of Revelation and of Scripture generally that God will deal sternly with sin and rebellion by those who reject Christ's saving work (see Matt 13:42; 25:41–46; John 3:18, 36; Rom 2:7). Perhaps more than any book in Scripture, Revelation illustrates that the unrepentant persist in their rebellion despite the consequences (9:20–21; 16:9–11; cp. Luke 16:31). Revelation also emphasizes that God is just and deals with sin as it deserves.

20:11–15 This segment portrays a court hearing at which the dead are judged on the basis of their works. God's response to eternal rebellion is eternal punishment.

20:12 books were opened: See Ps 56:8; Dan 7:10. • The Book of Life holds the names of faithful people who have experienced God's saving power (Mal 3:16; see Rev 3:5; 13:8; 17:8; 20:15); they are probably the same ones as those who experience the "first resurrection" (20:5–6). • And the dead were judged: The works of both the redeemed and the unredeemed will be judged (see 22:12; Matt 16:27; 25:31–46).

20:13 the grave: Greek Hades; also in 20:14. See note on 6:7–8.

20:14 The expression death and the grave refers to the reality of death; it is the last enemy that God will destroy (see 21:4; 1 Cor 15:26). • The lake of fire portrays the horrible end of God's enemies who will not experience the "first resurrection" (see 20:5–6; cp. Matt 25:41; Luke 16:24; Jude 1:7).

21:1–22:9 The final scenes of the new heaven and earth are striking pictures of a new community and home for God's people that is fashioned and given by God. These scenes help to lift the spirits of persecuted Christians. John lays out his basic vision (21:1–8) and follows it with two expansions: (1) In 21:9–27, he presents the new Jerusalem as the site of holy perfection; (2) in 22:1–5, he describes the new Jerusalem as the ultimate Garden of Eden that Adam and Eve could have experienced had they not sinned.

21:1 The vision involves God's creation of the new heaven and earth (contrast Gen 1:1 with Isa 65:17; 66:22). The old creation has disappeared—it was subject to decay (see Rom 8:20–21; 2 Pet 3:7, 10). • the sea was also gone: The sea was associated with chaos or the abyss (see note on 9:1–12) and was sometimes portrayed as a roaring monster (see Ps 46:3; 74:14; see also Job 3:8; 41:1–34; Luke 21:25). The new creation will be free from all such evil.

21:2 coming down from God: The new creation is a gift from God. In the beginning, God created everything good, and in the end, God will create a new, unbroken world. • This picture of Jerusalem as a beautiful bride (see Isa 61:10) contrasts starkly with the vision of Babylon (or Rome) as the prostitute (17:4–5; 18:2–3; see note on 21:9–22:9).

21:3 God's home is now among his people! OT and NT expectations are fully and finally realized. Ever since humanity sinned (Gen 3), separation from God has been humanity's greatest problem (Gen 3:23). God has repeatedly called his people to himself through the prophets, through Jesus his Son, and through the presence of the Spirit (see Gen 17:8; Exod 29:45–46; Ps 46:4–5; 95:7; Jer 7:23; 31:33; Ezek 34:14; 37:27; Zech 8:8; John 14:2–3; 17:24). In the new heaven and new earth, God's people will finally experience ultimate and everlasting fellowship with God. • God himself will be with them: Some manuscripts read God himself will be with them, their God.

21:4 no more death or sorrow or crying or pain: See Isa 25:8; 1 Cor 15:54. God's people will know the creative wholeness and salvation that Christ brings (see 2 Cor 5:17; Gal 6:15).

21:6 God restates Jesus' final words from the cross, It is finished! (John 19:30; cp. 16:17), connecting Christ's death with the assurance of eternal life. • I am the Alpha and the Omega: With the first and last letters of the Greek alphabet, John portrays God as encompassing total reality and total truth. God was from the Beginning (see Gen 1:1; cp. John 1:1–2) and is also the the End. To all who are thirsty I will give freely from the springs of the water of life. ⁷All who are victorious will inherit all these blessings, and I will be their God, and they will be my children.

⁸"But cowards, unbelievers, the corrupt, murderers, the immoral, those who practice witchcraft, ⁹idol worshipers, and all liars—their fate is in the fiery lake of burning sulfur. This is the second death."

Vision of the New Jerusalem

⁹Then one of the seven angels who held the seven bowls containing the seven last plagues came and said to me, "Come with me! I will show you the bride, the wife of the Lamb."

¹⁰So he took me in the Spirit to a great, high mountain, and he showed me the holy city, Jerusalem, descending out of heaven from God. ¹¹It shone with the glory of God and sparkled like a precious stone—like jasper as clear as crystal. ¹²The city wall was broad and high, with twelve gates guarded by twelve angels. And the names of the twelve tribes of Israel were written on the gates. ¹³There were three gates on each side—east, north, south, and west. ¹⁴The wall of the city had twelve foundation stones, and on them were written the names of the twelve apostles of the Lamb.

¹⁵The angel who talked to me held in his hand a gold measuring stick to measure the city, its gates, and its wall. ¹⁶When he measured it, he found it was a square, as wide as it was long. In fact, its length and width and height were each 1,400 miles. ¹⁷Then he measured the walls and found them to be 216 feet thick (according to the human standard used by the angel).

¹⁸The wall was made of jasper, and the city was pure gold, as clear as glass. ¹⁹The wall of the city was built on foundation stones inlaid with twelve precious stones: the first was jasper, the second sapphire, the third agate, the fourth emerald, ²⁰the fifth onyx, the sixth carnelian, the seventh chrysolite, the eighth beryl, the ninth topaz, the tenth chrysoprase, the eleventh jacinth, the twelfth amethyst.

²¹The twelve gates were made of pearls—each gate from a single pearl! And the main street was pure gold, as clear as glass.

²²I saw no temple in the city, for the Lord God ^aAlmighty and the Lamb are its temple.

End (see 1:8; 22:13). • Because Christ is supreme and in charge of all things (see Rom 9:5; 1 Cor 15:28; Eph 1:22-23; 4:5-6), he dispenses the water of life to all who are thirsty for it (see note on 7:16-17; see also Isa 55:1; John 4:10; 7:37-38).

21:7 All who are victorious: God's children who persevere in life will inherit his blessings. Adoption is a covenant relationship; the language of adoption certifies their privileges and responsibilities (cp. Gen 17:8; 2 Sam 7:14-16; Jer 31:33; Ezek 34:24).

21:8 This vice list summarizes sins described throughout Revelation. These sins characterize people who have not experienced adoption by God; their fate is the fiery lake (see Rom 1:29-32; Gal 5:19-21; 2 Tim 3:2-5; cp. Exod 20:13-17; see also note on Rev 20:10). • all liars: John apparently viewed deception as the root of sin; elsewhere he describes Satan as the "father of lies" (John 8:44; 1 Jn 2:4; see Rev 14:5; 21:27; 22:15; cp. Matt 12:34).

21:9-22:9 This symbolic vision of the new Jerusalem uses vivid word pictures to describe the bride, the wife of the Lamb—all those who respond to Christ's message of salvation (see 21:2; 22:17; Eph 5:22-32).

21:10 in the Spirit: Or in spirit. • a great, high mountain: In Scripture, experiences with God frequently take place on the mountains (cp. Ezek 40:2; see also Exod 3:1; 19:10-25; Deut 34:1-4; 1 Kgs 18:20-40; 19:8-18; Matt 5:1; 15:29; 17:1; 24:3; 28:16). • the holy city . . . descending out of heaven from God: God's presence and eternal life cannot be reached by human effort but are received as a gift (Eph 2:8-9; cp. 2 Cor 5:1).

21:11 Like the true people of God, the glory of the city reflects God's glory (cp. Exod 34:29-35; 2 Cor 3:7-11). • Jasper (see also 4:3; 21:11, 18) is opaque on earth; the heavenly jasper is clear as crystal, having a transparency that mirrors God's purity and integrity.

21:12-14 In this vision, the twelve tribes of Israel represent the redeemed people of God (see 7:4-8; see also Rom 9:6-7). The foundation for this community of God's redeemed is the twelve apostles of the Lamb. In Jesus, God's promise to bless all of the families of the earth through Abraham has been fully realized (Gen 12:3).

21:15-17 measure the city: Measuring defines accepted boundaries (contrast the unmeasured section of the Temple, 11:2; see also Ezek 40:3-42:20).

21:16 The city is described as a perfect cube. Each dimension is 1,400 miles (Greek 12,000 stadia [2,220 kilometers]); the number 12,000 symbolically represents the people of God (see "Symbolic Numbers" at 4:4, p. 2173).

21:17 In the ancient world, walls were important not only to the defense and boundary of a city, but also to its status. That these walls are 216 feet thick (Greek 144 cubits [65 meters]) indicates the strength of God's redeemed people. The measurement of 144 cubits again uses a multiple of 12 to represent God's people. A cubit was the length of a man's forearm, with a standard length of about 18 inches.

21:18 The wall is built of jasper (see note on 21:11; cp. 4:3). The city is fashioned in gold, which is not opaque like earthly gold; rather, like God's transformed people, the heavenly gold is clear and pure.

21:19 The twelve precious stones adorning the foundation stones of the city's wall are a reminder of the twelve stones on the high priests' breastplate that represented the people of God (see Exod 28:17-20). • The identification of some of these gemstones is uncertain.

21:21 Things that are precious and luxurious on earth are common building materials in heaven.

21:22 I saw no temple: This apparent conflict with earlier visions (11:19; 14:15-17) is resolved by understanding each visionary picture in Revelation as a separate symbolic representation of God's presence. There is no longer any need for a temple in heaven because God is present with his people.

²³And the city has no need of sun or moon, for the glory of God illuminates the city, and the Lamb is its light. ²⁴The nations will walk in its light, and the kings of the world will enter the city in all their glory. ²⁵Its gates will never be closed at the end of day because there is no night there. ²⁶And all the nations will bring their glory and honor into the city. ²⁷Nothing evil will be allowed to enter, nor anyone who practices shameful idolatry and dishonesty—but only those whose names are written in the Lamb's ^bBook of Life.

22 Then the angel showed me a river with the water of life, clear as crystal, flowing from the throne of God and of the Lamb. ²It flowed down the center of the main street. On each side of the river grew a tree of life, bearing twelve crops of fruit, with a fresh crop each month. The leaves were used for medicine to heal the nations.

³No longer will there be a curse upon anything. For the throne of God and of the Lamb will be there, and his servants will worship him. ⁴And they will see his face, and his name will be written on their foreheads. ⁵And there will be no night there—no need for lamps or sun—for the Lord God will shine on them. And they will reign forever and ever.

12. EPILOGUE: JESUS IS COMING (22:6-21)

⁶Then the angel said to me, "Everything you have heard and seen is trustworthy and true. The Lord God, who inspires his prophets, has sent his angel to tell his servants what will happen soon."

⁷"Look, I am coming soon! ¹Blessed are those who obey the words of prophecy written in this book."

⁸I, John, am the one who heard and saw all these things. And when I heard and saw them, I fell down to worship at the feet of the angel who showed them to me. ⁹But he said, "No, don't worship me. I am a servant of God, just like you and your brothers the prophets, as well as all who obey what is written in this book. Worship only God!"

¹⁰Then he instructed me, "Do not ^cseal

21:23 The vitality, energy, and life of the city are not in institutions or physical sources of power and light, but in the glory of God and the Lamb. The sun and moon were features of the first creation (Gen 1:14-19; see Isa 60:19-20). • the Lamb is its light: Jesus is the light of the world (see John 8:12; 9:5; 12:35-36).

21:24-25 The nations: God's promise to Abraham is fulfilled (Gen 12:3; see Isa 2:3). • In Revelation, the kings of the world usually refer to God's enemies (6:15; 17:18; 18:3, 9). Now that the enemies have been destroyed (16:9, 11; 19:1-2, 19-21), the picture is of God's glory as reflected in those people who have repented (14:6-7; cp. 11:13) and walk with God (5:9; 15:4). • The gates that are never . . . closed contrast with the ancient scene in which closed gates protected cities from enemies, particularly at night. The people enjoy peace and security in God's supremacy (see Isa 60:11). God's enemies have been destroyed, and fear and failure have ended (see Zech 14:7; John 11:8-10; 12:35-36).

21:27 Nothing evil (or ceremonially unclean): Spiritual impurity is a basic concern in Revelation (see 21:8). Evil is generalized as idolatry and dishonesty (see 14:5; 21:8; 22:15). Those who fail to appear in the Book of Life are excluded from the city of God. Only those whose names are written in the Book of Life, the pure of heart (Matt 5:8), will see God.

22:1-2 This part of John's vision of the city deals with God's provision of water and food for his people (cp. Exod 16:4, 22-24; Ezek 47:1-12; John 4:10; 6:32-35). Although God originally made a "garden of delight" (Eden) for Adam and Eve, they disobeyed him and lost it (Gen 2-3). Now Eden is refashioned and united to the celestial city as God's marvelous gift for his faithful people.

22:1 the water of life: See 7:17; John 4:10-15; cp. Exod 17:1-7; Isa 55:1; Ezek 47:1-10; Zech 14:8.

22:2 Although humans were denied access to the tree of life after they sinned (see Gen 3:22-24), it is now freely available. The tree on each side of the river (cp. Ezek 47:12) shows that there is no wrong side of the river in heaven. The tree produces twelve crops of fruit (or twelve kinds of fruit), with a fresh crop each month, demonstrating God's constant provision.

22:3 No longer . . . a curse: Ever since the first sin (Gen 3:14-19), humanity has been cursed because of their rebellion against God (see 1 Cor 16:22). Now rebellion, sin, and the curse are gone forever. • his servants will worship him: Revelation gives glimpses of authentic worship (see 4:1-5:14; 7:9-17).

22:4 The human fears of death and of seeing God (see Gen 16:13; 32:30; Judg 6:22; Isa 6:5) will be removed. God's people will bear his name and will see his face with joy (see Matt 5:8; 2 Cor 3:18; 1 Jn 3:2-3).

22:5 They will reign with God forever (see 20:4; see also 5:10) in his radiant light that banishes night and the need for lamps (see Isa 60:19-20).

22:6-21 This epilogue to Revelation contains utterances by an angel (22:6, 8-11) and Christ (22:7, 12-19) followed by a concluding plea for Christ's return (22:20) and a closing benediction (22:21). The epilogue has a number of direct verbal connections with the introduction to the book (1:1-11), and it sums up important themes such as encouraging faithful perseverance, warning evildoers, affirming the authenticity of the prophetic message, and restating the nearness of Christ's return.

22:6 Everything that John records in Revelation is trustworthy and true because God, who has all authority (cp. Matt 28:18), has sent the messenger. But it does not mean these visions are easy to understand. • The Lord God, who inspires his prophets: Or The Lord, the God of the spirits of the prophets. • soon: Or suddenly, or quickly; also in 22:7, 12, 20.

22:7 Blessed: The sixth blessing of Revelation (see 1:3; 14:13; 16:15; 19:9; 20:6; 22:14) is for those who obey. Obedience is key to God's blessing. • book: Or scroll; also in 22:9-10, 18-19.

22:8-9 The earlier warning against false worship (see 19:10) is reiterated when John again falls at the feet of the angel. Only God deserves our worship (cp. John the Baptist in relation to Jesus; John 1:6-8, 26-27; 3:27-35).

22:10 Do not seal up: The angel expands John's initial instruction to "write in a book" (1:11) and warns against curtailing its communication. Although up the prophetic words in this book, for the time is near. ¹¹Let the one who is doing harm continue to do harm; let the one who is vile continue to be vile; let the one who is righteous continue to live righteously; let the one who is holy continue to be holy."

¹²"Look, I am coming soon, bringing my reward with me to repay all people according to their deeds. ¹³I am the Alpha and the Omega, the First and the Last, the Beginning and the End."

¹⁴Blessed are those who wash their robes. They will be permitted to enter through the gates of the city and eat the fruit from the tree of life. ¹⁵Outside the city are the dogs—the sorcerers, the sexually immoral, the murderers, the ^kidol worshipers, and all who love to live a lie.

¹⁶"I, Jesus, have sent my angel to give you this message for the churches. I am both the source of David and the heir to his throne. I am the bright morning star."

¹⁷The Spirit and the bride say, "Come." Let anyone who hears this say, "Come." Let anyone who is thirsty come. Let anyone who desires drink freely from the water of life. ¹⁸And I solemnly declare to everyone who hears the words of prophecy written in this book: If anyone adds anything to what is written here, God will add to that person the plagues described in this book. ¹⁹And if anyone removes any of the words from this book of prophecy, God will remove that person's share in the tree of life and in the holy city that are described in this book.

²⁰He who is the faithful witness to all these things says, "Yes, I am coming soon!" Amen! Come, Lord Jesus!

²¹May the ^agrace of the ^bLord Jesus be with God's holy people.

some things are sealed—God does not reveal everything (cp. 10:4)—what has been written must be communicated so that people will understand the seriousness of the message and that the time is near (see 1:1, 3; 22:6-7; cp. Dan 12:4).

22:11 Vile people who refuse to accept God's forgiveness will continue to be vile (see 16:9), yet John reminds the righteous to maintain their integrity. This verse is a warning to evildoers, and it calls the righteous to recognize the crucial significance of Christ's return relative to their commitments and their actions.

22:12 Christ is coming soon . . . to repay all people, not just on the basis of their profession of faith, but according to their deeds (see 2:23; 11:18; 14:13; 20:12-13; see also Prov 24:12; Matt 16:27; 2 Cor 5:10). Not every statement of belief is genuine (John 2:23-25); faith will show itself in actions (Jas 2:14-26). We are indeed saved by the grace and power of God in Christ. Our works do not save us, but they do indicate the seriousness of our confession and provide a just basis for our ultimate reward or punishment.

22:14 Blessed are those: In response to the connection between actions and ultimate results (22:12), the seventh blessing of Revelation (see also 1:3; 14:13; 16:15; 19:9; 20:6; 22:7) promises acceptance for those who wash their robes—those who have been purified by trusting in Christ and following him faithfully (3:5; 6:11; 7:9-10, 14; 19:13; Eph 5:26; Heb 10:22). • enter through the gates of the city: See note on 21:24-25.

22:15 This verse again lists those who are not admitted to contrast with those admitted in 22:14 (see 21:8, 27; 22:11). These unrepentant sinners remain outside the city; it is another warning to those who do not repent that they will not be allowed to enter the city of God (22:14). • The reference to sinners as dogs was a familiar Jewish designation for rejected outsiders (see Matt 7:6; Phil 3:2; also 2 Sam 3:8; 2 Kgs 8:13); Jews used this term to refer to Gentiles (see Mark 7:26-28).

22:16 I am both the source of David and the heir to his throne (literally I am the root and offspring of David): Jesus validates the message of Revelation (cp. John 21:24) by swearing that he is simultaneously the source of David (see 5:5; Isa 11:10) and David's heir (see Ezek 37:23-24; Rom 1:3). • The morning star was a name for the Messiah (see Num 24:17; 2 Pet 1:19; cp. Luke 1:78-79).

22:17 Come is a repeated invitation and a confession (see 22:20). • the bride: The Lamb's wife (see 21:9) is the church, the people of God. • The thirsty can drink freely from God's provision (see 21:6; 22:1; Ps 42:1; Isa 55:1; John 4:10-14).

22:18-19 I solemnly declare: John issues an oath to protect the integrity of the book of Revelation. He declares a curse upon anyone who alters the contents of the book or its message (cp. Deut 4:2; 12:32). The curse contrasts with the statement of blessing on all who read aloud, listen to, and obey the prophecy (1:3). At the time Revelation was written, scribes would sometimes alter books to suit their own views. Early Christians quickly developed means of authenticating both messages and messengers (see John 21:24; 1 Cor 16:21; Gal 6:11; Col 4:18; 2 Thes 3:17; 1 Jn 4:1-3). • Since the time of the early church, the scope and content of the NT has been established as the measure of the Christian proclamation (see "After the Apostles," p. 2201). Yet the church continues to be plagued by those who would attempt to reconstruct the borders of Scripture by adding other works that they believe are of equal status with the Bible or by arguing that certain segments of the Bible are unreliable creations of human effort and perception. The genuine church has rejected and will continue to reject efforts to redefine the boundaries of the canon as human and even demonic attempts to alter the basis of the Christian faith.

22:20 I am coming soon! See 3:11. • Come, Lord Jesus! Paul uttered the same response (1 Cor 16:22; see also Phil 4:5).

22:21 Revelation closes with a benediction similar to those in Paul's letters (e.g., Rom 15:33; 1 Cor 16:23-24). • The fitting final sentence invokes the grace of the Lord Jesus, the foundation of our forgiveness and the basis of our eternal hope. • be with God's holy people: Other manuscripts read be with all; still others read be with all of God's holy people. Some manuscripts add Amen.

INTRODUCTION TO THE TIME AFTER THE APOSTLES

The most pertinent issue that Christians faced at the end of the first century and into the second was that of self-identity. Ever since the council of apostles met in Jerusalem (Acts 15), Christians had wrestled with distinguishing their faith from contemporary Judaism and Greco-Roman religious culture. With the death of the apostles and their disciples, the eyewitnesses of Jesus were gone. With greater urgency many believers asked, "Who are we?" The process of answering this question pushed believers for the following centuries to clarify and define their own unique identity.

By the end of the first century AD, scores of documents were circulating that claimed to be written by one or more of the original disciples.¹ All Christian groups drew on the Hebrew Scriptures, but the writings of the apostles were still in process of being compiled into a collection that most churches would accept as equal in authority to the OT. Every Christian group appealed to apostolic authority: Jewish Christians honored the Gospel of Matthew and The Gospel of the Nazarenes (now lost); Gnostics heralded the Gospel of John and a variety of esoteric documents; followers of Marcion promoted the apostle Paul as the preferred interpreter of Jesus; and so on. How could believers recognize which documents were to be considered Scripture? What parts of Christian doctrine and practice should function as authoritative standards for Christians? What documents should be considered "canonical"—that is, which documents authoritatively reflected the church's faith and canon of belief? These were the questions at stake for determining genuine apostolic teaching.

THE FIRST "CANON"

The language and concept of canon preceded Christianity's use of it. The word meant a plumb line or a stick for making measurements. It came to be used figuratively in the Greco-Roman world to mean a standard or norm by which other things are judged, whether it be artwork, an idea, or a moral principle.

It is with this usage in mind that the first appearance of a "canon" in a Christian context occurs. In Gal 6:15-16, Paul reminds the Galatians that in relationship to Christ, it doesn't matter whether or not a man has been circumcised. Rather than measuring oneself by the law of circumcision, "what counts is whether we have been transformed into a new creation" through faith in Christ's redemption. Paul then says, "May God's peace and mercy be upon all who live by this principle" (Greek kanōn). The mention of canon here has nothing to do with a list of authoritative texts; instead, it refers to a standard of belief and behavior based on Christ. Earlier, Paul probably referred to this same canon when he complained about those Jewish Christians at Antioch who separated themselves from the Gentiles and thus "were not following the truth of the gospel message" (Gal 2:14). Elsewhere Paul similarly speaks of an existing standard of faith that correlates with his message of Good News (see 1 Cor 15:1-8; 2 Tim 1:13-14; 2:2). This "pattern of wholesome teaching" was by no means something Paul dreamed up—he had received it from the Lord (1 Cor 11:23; 15:3; Gal 1:15-17), and he passed it on with the intent that Christians would follow that pattern and pass it on to others (1 Thes 4:1-2; 1 Tim 6:20; 2 Tim 1:13-14; 2:2).

Paul was describing the process by which the faith was being transmitted well before the NT canon was codified. There was indeed a canon of teaching, as the above passages show. The first canon was a standard body of teaching handed down through the apostles' preaching. This teaching described the revelation of God in Christ, as seen through his incarnate life, crucifixion, death, burial, resurrection, and ascension to heaven. There was also some initial arrangement for devotion and worship in the life of the church (see, e.g., Acts 2:42) and for the appointing of leaders in the church (see, e.g., 1 Tim 3:1-13).

THE POSTAPOSTOLIC CHURCH

After the death of the apostles, the concern to preserve apostolic truth was no less active than it had been earlier. Every postapostolic Christian writer acknowledged the supreme and unique authority of the Scriptures, and postapostolic writers submitted themselves to the authority of the apostolic documents. For them, the apostles were the teachers par excellence, having unique authority.

The early postapostolic (i.e., the patristic) church, however, was not a different entity from the apostolic church, as if somehow detached from the Christian community of the first century. For the Christians who lived the apostolic faith in the years after the death of the apostles, there was not a radical break in how the churches were preaching, teaching, and defending the Christian faith. The points of continuity from one century into the next were far greater than the differences. The ancient church had an integrity and coherence that ran from the earliest days after Pentecost, through the NT, and into the postapostolic period.

¹ Such as the Gospel of James and the Apocalypse of Peter, accepted as Scripture by some churches but eventually rejected for their questionable teaching.

The leaders of the patristic church were aware of the need for clarifying the connection of the present churches with the apostolic legacy. Apostolicity, or that which is apostolic, pertained to the continuation of what the apostles taught and to the ability to trace a historical lineage back to those churches actually founded by the apostles. It was therefore important that Polycarp, the bishop of Smyrna, was called "an apostolic and prophetic teacher" (Martyrdom of Polycarp 16.2; about AD 156). He had been a disciple of the apostle John and was said to have faithfully preserved and transmitted the teaching given to him by the apostles. Twenty years later, Irenaeus of Lyons argued against Gnostic groups that the true churches are only those churches that stand in the succession of the "tradition which originates from the apostles, and which is preserved by means of the succession of elders" (Irenaeus, Against Heresies 3.2.4). The reality of the church's faith required an identifiable connection with the apostles.

THE CANON OF APOSTOLIC DOCTRINE

The way of faithfulness to the gospel was further defined and lived out by those we call the "fathers" of the church. The church fathers of the earliest centuries can be considered authors and exponents of a founding tradition. Protestants might insist that tradition is not revelation, yet they will agree that the early tradition was an element of the Holy Spirit's providential working to define and preserve the Christian faith and the church in its integrity. Even as the Spirit continues to incorporate new expressions of the church's faith, hope, and love into the body of Christ, it does so always under the guidance of Scripture and in "conversation" with the patristic tradition. We may not be familiar with the terminology used by the postapostolic fathers of the church, or we might object to their use of Platonic or Stoic categories. Nevertheless, the patristic tradition became an indelible part of the Christian faith upon which all theology, spirituality, and exegesis has been built. Practically speaking, this tradition has functioned as a canon of Christian belief, especially through the doctrinal and confessional achievements of the church during the fourth and fifth centuries. This "canon of belief" has operated ever since as the historical and theological precedent for all subsequent Christian doctrinal formulations.

This description of the patristic tradition as "canon" is not meant to equate the authority of the church fathers with that of the Bible. Any of the ancient church fathers would have been horrified to find their written legacy being placed on par with Holy Scripture. The patristic tradition is not revelatory in the way that Scripture is revelatory.

Still, the Christian tradition that was birthed in the apostolic era and formulated throughout the following 400 years has been regarded as the foundation upon which the church's history has been built. Each period of church history has made its unique contributions and will continue to do so, but the early church was unique for giving Christianity the tradition, the canons of Scripture and doctrine.

Historically, it is through the ancient church fathers that the NT canon was set, the basic professions of faith were composed, and Christian doctrine and theology were defined in response to contemporary culture and heresy. It was also they who formulated the first reflective responses to Scripture within daily pastoral experience and teaching.

SCRIPTURE AND TRADITION

For most of church history, Scripture and tradition were perceived as compatible. Tradition was the distillation of biblical truth and always existed alongside Scripture. For example, in response to a religious leader whose group vaunted themselves as true Christians but rejected the truly human birth of Christ, Augustine replied, "The catholic [i.e., universally held] doctrine, which is also the apostolic doctrine, is that our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ is both the Son of God in his divine nature and the Son of David after the flesh. . . . This teaching represents the 'plainest statement in Holy Scripture' (Augustine, Reply to Faustus the Manichaean 23.5). Tradition and the Bible are like streams coming out of the same spring. Like the work of the Holy Spirit in the church, both tradition and Scripture are necessary elements of the Christian faith.

In the ancient church, the practice of reading and hearing Scripture did not occur without the tradition. A Christian writer at the end of the first century addressed a letter to the church at Corinth in order to encourage believers there to avoid worldly practices and to seek heartfelt repentance. In this exhortation, the writer told the church leaders to embrace "the glorious and holy canon of our tradition" (1 Clement 7:2-4). This writer frequently cites the OT as declaring the Good News of Jesus Christ, but he displays no knowledge of an operational NT canon. Implicit to the writer's argument is that the apostolic understanding is achieved only when Scripture is read through the lenses of the "canon of our tradition." Only then does accurate theological and spiritual interpretation become possible. Tradition was not from outside the faith but was regarded as the essential teaching of the Bible.

Scripture was the authoritative anchor of the tradition's content, and the tradition stood as the primary interpreter of Scripture. In other words, the tradition was not a novel set of beliefs and practices added to Scripture, as if it were a separate source of divine revelation. It instead expressed the ancient consensus of the church fathers regarding the meaning of Scripture.

It was in fact the tradition, provided through the apostles' preaching, that formed the basis of the NT and served as the guide for interpreting the OT. As the body of this tradition developed over the next 400 years, it was understood as bearing witness to and interpreting Scripture. The baptismal formulas, catechisms, doctrinal summaries, and later creeds were valued as accurately representing the intent of Scripture. Augustine said, when he was instructing new converts, "Whatever you hear in the Creed is contained in the inspired books of Holy Scripture" (Augustine, Sermon 212.2). To describe the tradition was inevitably to speak about the message of Scripture.

THE CANONIZATION OF NT TEXTS

The concept of possessing an authoritative canon emerged gradually out of the worship and life of the early churches. With regard to Christian texts, the primary issue on the minds of early believers was inspiration, not canonization. Christian interests followed the Jewish attitude toward the Hebrew Bible. Creating an exclusive list of authoritative books wasn't as important as determining which texts were and were not "inspired by God" (2 Tim 3:16). As a result, writers from the first to early second century would refer to a particular writing as "Scripture" without wondering whether it was "canonical."

There was not very much doubt about the divine inspiration of the words and deeds of Jesus as accounted in the four Gospels, nor of many of the apostolic letters. But by the middle of the second century there were a growing number of other texts that were regarded by many churches as inspired, such as The Epistle of Barnabas, 1 Clement, and a puzzling apocalyptic work known as The Shepherd of Hermas that enjoyed widespread acceptance. These and other writings appear in some collections of biblical books by the fourth century, but none were read as Scripture in every church.

There was no single principle at work in the canonization process. There was no council of Christian leaders that met and decided which books should be in the Bible. Multiple issues were involved. Certainly, apostolic authorship and the antiquity of a text were important. Authors who were closer to the life of Jesus were believed to have a more reliable account than later writers. But the resemblance of a book's theological content to the church's canon of faith was undoubtedly more important than any other factor.

A good example is the case of Serapion, bishop of the church in Antioch (around AD 190~203). He complained that The Gospel of Peter was being read as Scripture in the worship services of some other churches.² This document carried docetic ideas about Christ, which means that Christ's physical reality was downplayed or denied. Such a view was largely associated with the Gnostic systems and unacceptable for most churches. Serapion argued against attributing scriptural status to The Gospel of Peter because it was heretical, denying the humanity of Christ and thus "the true faith." He called for the ultimate rejection of this gospel, not because it was absent in a list of scriptural books, but because it violated the traditional faith of the church.

The terminology of "canon" or "rule" is virtually never used for sacred books until later in the fourth century, and even then, there is only sparse mention. The earliest Christians did not trouble themselves about the canonical status of texts.³ Marcion's insistence (about AD 120) that only the Pauline epistles and an edited version of Luke's Gospel presented true Christianity is usually overinterpreted to mean that Marcion was propounding a scriptural canon and thereby instigated the early church to do likewise. However, we know of no writer during the second or third centuries who responded to Marcion's considerable theological challenge with a fixed canon of books. Justin, Irenaeus, Tertullian, and the many others who responded to Marcion attacked his position by highlighting the canon of truth, the rule of faith. It is true that the majority of churches were using the four Gospels, Acts, the letters of Paul, and some other letters as Scripture by the early second century AD, and they found Marcion's edited "Bible" unacceptable. Still, there was no consensus about the extent or parameters of the biblical books. Opposition to Marcion, therefore, was not and could not have been in the form of an "orthodox" canon of texts.

The Gnostics, similarly, were faulted with an inability to understand the Bible, not because they were using the wrong texts, but because they failed to understand the right tradition and thereby misinterpreted the texts. In the words of Clement of Alexandria, the Gnostics were guilty of not explaining Scripture according to the "canon of truth."

The process of NT canonization occurred primarily in the context of the believing community. Canonical "testing" took place within the give-and-take of church life. Determination of the shape and content of the NT canon, just like the theological canon, occurred as the NT text was received and consistently affirmed by the churches. We cannot simply point to a church council that decided the issue of the biblical books once and for all. None of the major church councils, east or west, addressed the matter of biblical canonization.⁴ Instead, the church's understanding of "Scripture" and "canon" slowly melded into a single entity: an exclusive, closed collection of inspired books.

The infrequent references to a normative list of texts suggest that Christian churches were not anxiously looking to create a canon; they were seeking to hear God's word in the Scripture readings during worship and to ascertain which readings conveyed this word. Public reading of Scripture is mentioned explicitly by Paul in 1 Timothy 4:13 as an activity intended for the whole church. In the process of liturgically reading in assembly, authoritative weight was accrued by certain texts that lent to their canonization. It was in this manner that the church ultimately came to reject, for example, The Gospel of Peter and The Gospel of Thomas whereas it continued to embrace Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John.

² The fragment is preserved in Eusebius, Church History 6.12. ³ E. F. Bruce, The Canon of Scripture, 255. ⁴ A small council that met at Rome in AD 382 is thought to have first enumerated the canonical books of both Testaments in a document known as the Tome of Damasus. Damasus was bishop of Rome (AD 366–384), and he convened councils of bishops in order to set church policy throughout Italy. But it is doubtful that the list of biblical books, which one manuscript also calls the "Decree of Gelasius on Which Books Should and Should Not Be Received," is actually from the proceedings of the council.

The churches eventually came to a consensus, and the NT canon was formalized: In AD 367, Athanasius of Alexandria gave the first official list of the twenty-seven books that are accepted today, and regional councils in Hippo (AD 393) and Carthage (AD 397) affirmed this list.

THE PILLARS OF THE CHRISTIAN FAITH

The faith articulated during the first 500 years set into place the pillars of authority on which Christians have relied: the theological canon of apostolicity (the tradition, the cardinal doctrines and confessions), the apostolic canon of Scripture (the Bible), and the community of faith itself (the church). Like a three-legged stool, these elements served as the foundation for determining true doctrine. Such an arrangement acted like spiritual checks and balances that guided the early church in its decision-making and served to protect the church from those seductive voices who offered new or special revelation or an alien interpretation of Scripture. Whatever authority a Christian leader claimed, it had to be based on this apostolic faith.

IT HAS BEEN RIGHTLY SAID that the "Book of the People" came to us from the "People of the Book." In other words, the church's faith, and the acknowledgment of specific books as canonical, occurred through their use and acknowledgment within living and believing communities. Whether in written or oral forms, the determination for declaring something canonical did not simply drop out of heaven, nor was it set in place by the decrees of church councils. The Christian Bible is intimately related to communities who first received and used its texts. Any historical consideration we may give to the authority and canonization of the biblical texts must take into account the believing community that recognized it as such. The Christian Bible first arose within the Christian church, it was first interpreted in the church, and it is acknowledged by the church. We cannot, therefore, divorce the development of the biblical canon from the role that the earliest Christian assemblies and meetings played in the canonization process. Just as God was revealed in Jesus Christ, in the process of canonizing the tradition and the NT the divine was revealed through the human.

Hebrew and Greek Word Studies

The NLT Illustrated Study Bible includes over 200 Hebrew and Greek word studies throughout the Bible text. These word studies open a window to the original languages of the Bible.

At various places throughout the Bible text, a superscript letter appears at the front of an English word. This letter indicates that there is a word study on that word or phrase. The cross-reference column includes a transliteration of the underlying Hebrew or Greek word or phrase, along with the Strong's number(s) in parentheses. Following the transliteration and Strong's number, the location is given for the next reference in that word chain. If you follow the reference chain, eventually you will read through all of the marked instances of that word or group of words in the entire study Bible. As you follow the entire word chain, note each context in which the word occurs and how it has been translated. You will get a good feel for the range of uses that each word can have.

Here, we have listed and briefly defined all of the words that are included in the Hebrew and Greek word-study chains.

HEBREW AND GREEK WORD STUDIES

Because the Bible was originally written in ancient languages that are quite different from our own, the Hebrew and Greek words of the original text are often seen as strange and wonderful. Sometimes, Greek and Hebrew words are portrayed as though they are somehow a special or "divine" language containing more significant meaning than normal languages like English. In truth, biblical Greek and Hebrew are normal human languages, with words that are similar to the words of any language.

Words are complex animals. Consider, for example, the word animals in the previous sentence. In most contexts, that word conjures up images of wildlife. In this particular instance, however, it means something quite different. Words have a dynamic relationship to meaning, neither confined to a dictionary entry nor free to mean anything at all. Few readers whose mother tongue is English would have misunderstood the meaning of the sentence, "Words are complex animals," but it could certainly cause confusion for a reader whose knowledge of English is minimal.

When confronted with a word from any foreign language, especially an ancient one like the Hebrew or Greek of the Bible, misunderstandings are common. Here is how to avoid some of the common mistakes that are made in studying words in the biblical languages:

- Don't assume a word means more than it does. When faced with the range of meanings a given word can have, sometimes interpreters are tempted to think that every instance of that word contains all of the possible meanings. While it is true that sometimes a writer will purposefully use a word to mean more than one thing, it is not common. Normally, a word has one meaning in a given context. For instance, not every instance of the Greek sarx (4561) has to do with the sin nature. An important part of original-language Bible study is to discern which meaning a term probably has in a given context.
- Words cannot be understood by their roots. Many words share common roots, but this does not necessarily mean their meanings are related. The meaning of a word is related to how it is used in the language, not where it came from. The Greek ekklēsia (1577) comes from two words that mean "to call" (kaleō) and "out of" (ek). This does not mean that ekklesia means "called out of," any more than the English word goodbye means "it's good that you're leaving" or "good riddance!" It is important to understand the meaning of the word from its usage rather than its roots.
- Synonyms are sometimes interchangeable, sometimes not. Many words are synonyms, having very similar meanings in certain contexts. An example in English is “choose” and “select.” In many cases, the difference is negligible, and a writer could choose between them without changing the meaning at all. But in some contexts the selection is meaningful. In this tool, we sometimes string synonyms together in a single chain, but that does not mean they are completely interchangeable. Each word must be considered on its own terms in each context.

- Appreciate the difference between words and concepts. Words are only tools to communicate meaning, so any one word will never be sufficient to get a complete picture of an important concept. If you want to understand the concept of “truth” in the Bible, Hebrew ’emeth (0571) is a good place to start; but to limit study to words alone will miss important components of the biblical picture of truth. Each concept must be studied as whole, going beyond the study of words.

HEBREW WORD STUDIES

’abal (0056): mourn. This verb expresses an attitude of deep sorrow. Often mourning is accompanied by weeping and other physical manifestations of grief or more formal mourning rites.

SEE Gen 37:34; Exod 33:4; 1 Sam 6:19; 2 Sam 13:37; 1 Chr 7:22; Ezra 10:6; Neh 1:4; Isa 3:26; 66:10; Dan 10:2; Amos 9:5

’adonay Yahweh (0136, 3068): Sovereign Lord. A compound name and title of God that combines his covenant name, Yahweh, with the title ’adonay (“my lord, my master”). This title occurs over 280 times in the OT and emphasizes God’s power and authority as well as his gracious relationship with his people.

SEE Gen 15:2; Deut 3:24; Josh 7:7; Judg 6:22; 2 Sam 7:18; Ps 73:28; Isa 61:1; Ezek 2:4; Amos 3:7; Hab 3:19; Zeph 1:7

’iwweleth (0200): foolishness. This noun is often presented as the opposite of wisdom. It indicates a lack of wisdom and understanding, with overtones of moral deficiency rather than simply intellectual failure.

SEE Ps 69:5; Prov 12:23; 14:17, 24; 15:14, 21; 17:12; 22:15; 26:4-5

’el (0410), ’elohim (0430): God. These two related words are both used to refer to God. Similar to the English word god, these words are also used to refer to deity generally (i.e., a god) or other supernatural beings. They can be used to address God directly (“O God, hear my prayer”), as part of a description of God (“the living God,” “my God”), or in describing false gods (“the gods of the Egyptians”).

SEE Exod 3:6; Num 23:21; Josh 24:2; Ps 16:1; 17:6; 36:7; 40:17; 85:4, 8; Isa 42:5

’aman (0539): believe. This verb denotes trust. It often involves the active decision to believe in the veracity or trustworthiness of an idea or person but can also signify an ongoing state of belief and the action associated with that faith. The word is often used to refer to faith in God and his promises, though not exclusively.

SEE Gen 15:6; 45:26; Exod 14:31; Num 14:11; Ps 106:12; 119:66; Prov 14:15; Isa 28:16; 53:1; Jon 3:5

’amen (0543): amen, let it be so. This word is an affirmation of the truth of what has been said. It can express either the firm belief that something is true (“Yes!”) or the desire that something will happen (“let it be so”). It is also used as a formulaic response in praising God, sometimes doubled for emphasis.

SEE Num 5:22; Deut 27:15; 1 Kgs 1:36; 1 Chr 16:36; Neh 5:13; 8:6; Ps 41:13; Isa 65:16; Jer 11:5

’emeth (0571): truth, faithfulness. This word has many nuances around the central idea of truth. It can represent the concept of truth as opposed to falsehood; it can refer to the faithfulness or reliability of a person or standard. It is also used in phrases such as “the true God.”

SEE Exod 34:6; Ps 25:5; 26:3; 86:11; 119:142, 151, 160; Prov 16:6; Isa 38:3; Dan 10:21

’ap (0639): anger. This word denotes anger or extreme displeasure toward a person, group, or state of affairs. It is morally neutral, as it is used both for foolish, selfish anger and for righteous anger at injustice. It also means “nose, nostrils”; the flaring of nostrils and reddening of the nose when a person is angry led to the usage of this word to denote anger.

SEE Num 32:13; Deut 7:4; Judg 6:39; 2 Sam 12:5; 2 Kgs 23:26; Ps 6:1; Prov 27:4; 29:8, 22; Isa 12:1; Hab 3:8

’arbeh (0697): locust. This word refers to a desert migratory locust in the mature wing stage. These insects can swarm in vast, inordinate numbers, covering scores of square miles and even blotting out broad daylight.

’aron (0727): ark, chest. This noun refers to a container for objects. It is generally a rectangular box. Its most common usage is for the Ark of the Covenant, but it can also refer to a coffin or a contribution chest. It is not the same word used for Noah’s large boat, even though it is traditionally called an “ark” in English.

SEE Gen 50:26; Exod 25:22; 40:20; Num 10:33; 1 Sam 3:3; 2 Sam 6:6; 1 Kgs 8:1; 2 Kgs 12:9; 1 Chr 28:2; Ps 132:8; Jer 3:16

’arek ’appayim (0750, 0639): slow to anger. Rendered literally, this idiom would be “long of nose,” but it means the attitude or emotion of patience. It pertains to not being easily or quickly angered in a potentially hostile situation. It is often used to describe a person of high moral quality and is a repeated component of God’s character. Cp. ’ap (0639).

SEE Exod 34:6; Num 14:18; Neh 9:17; Ps 86:15; 103:8; 145:8; Prov 14:29; 15:18; 16:32; Joel 2:13; Jon 4:2; Nah 1:3

’erets (0776): earth, land. This noun refers to any solid geographic area as contrasted to the sky or bodies of water. It is used in several idiomatic ways as well, such as in the phrase “the heavens and earth,” meaning “the entire created order.” Sometimes the word can refer specifically to a region or territory of the world, as in “the land” promised to Abraham and his descendants. SEE Gen 1:1; 9:11; 12:1; 13:17; 15:18; 28:13; Num 13:27; Deut 4:39; Josh 1:15; 23:14, 16; Ps 24:1; 47:2; 97:5; Isa 65:17; 66:22

’ashrey (0835): happy, blessed. This word points to a heightened state or condition of joy and rejoicing, implying very favorable circumstances and enjoyment. It may be implied that it is a state to be envied or highly desired. This “blessed” is somewhat different from divine favor (a blessing). SEE Job 5:17; Ps 1:1; 32:1; 34:8; 41:1; 84:5, 12; 94:12; 106:3; Prov 3:13; 14:21; 28:14; Isa 30:18

bakhar (0977): choose. This verb denotes making a distinguishing selection, often between items of similar features or qualities. It can refer to human or divine choices. Some contexts have the same general meaning but a different focus; such “choice” is based on a relationship or special loving concern.

SEE Exod 18:25; Deut 7:6; 14:2; 21:5; 1 Sam 2:28; 10:24; 17:40; 1 Chr 28:5; Ps 78:68; 135:4; Isa 40:20; 43:10 such as "children of wickedness," meaning troublesome people.

SEE Deut 13:13; Judg 19:22; 1 Sam 1:16; 2:12; 25:17, 25; 2 Sam 22:5; Pss 18:4; 101:3; Prov 6:12; 19:28

ben 'adam (1121, 0120), bar 'anash (1247, 0606): son of man. This phrase simply means "human being." There is no specific gender in view; it is a way of pointing to the essential human quality of a person. Occasionally there is a diminutive sense (e.g., God is not a mere ben 'adam). It is also a messianic term in some contexts. In Dan 7:13, the Aramaic bar 'anash is equivalent to the Hebrew ben 'adam. SEE Num 23:19; Job 25:6; 35:8; Pss 8:4; 80:17; 90:3; Isa 56:2; Jer 49:18; Ezek 2:1; Dan 7:13; 8:17

UNITED KINGDOM

KINGDOMS OF ISRAEL

The United Kingdom of Israel came into being at the coronation of Saul, grew in size and influence under David, and reached its height during Solomon's reign. Solomon inherited a powerful kingdom from his father David, covering the entire area inhabited by the 12 tribes of Israel. Throughout Solomon's reign, his power and influence increased as he also gained control over many of the surrounding nations.

After the death of Solomon, the kingdom of Israel divided. Solomon's son, Rehoboam, remained king of the southern kingdom of Judah, with Jerusalem as its capital. Jeroboam became the king of the northern kingdom of Israel and rebuilt Shechem as his capital. He also built new worship centers in Bethel and Dan, influencing his people to stay away from Jerusalem and its annual religious festivals. The division of the kingdom of Israel began a downward spiral into idolatry and godless leadership for both nations, eventually leading to the exile of the northern kingdom to Assyria and the southern kingdom to Babylon.

NEW TESTAMENT JERUSALEM

ROMAN DIVISION OF PALESTINE

MINISTRY OF JESUS

Chronologically speaking, it is not possible to sequentially arrange the events in the life of Christ in any definitive way; none of the New Testament Gospels follows an overtly chronological pattern. Accordingly, the arrangement here follows a geographic order, basically proceeding from north to south on the map. Because the Gospel of Matthew most frequently contains information cited here, and because it is the most geographically particularistic Gospel, synoptic passages are keyed to the book of Matthew, except where they are unattested there or where more pertinent information about the event cited is available in another Gospel.
